Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN. YOKOHAMA.

By the Pacific mail steamer Great Republic—which arrived at San Francisco May 13—we have advices from this port to the 22nd April. The London mail (French) of Feb. 17 was received on the 7th, and the following English mail of Feb. 24 on the 14th April.

For the following items we are indebted to the Japan Mail, of the 22nd April:—

The rumours that have lately prevailed as to the arrival of the Prince of Satsuma in Yedo are unfounded. Moreover, he is not, as has been reported, the brother of Shimadzu Saburo, but the son, and was adopted by the latter's brother. Shimadzu Saburo had not arrived at Yedo, although expected. Again, in contradiction of general rumour, Saigo Kichinosuke has left Yedo for Satsuma, and will probably return with the Prince and his father. Tokugawa Kamenosake is eleven, not sixteen years of age, and lives at Shidzuoka, not Shimidzu, and his betrothal to a daughter of the Prince of Satsuma is, in the highest degree, improbable.

Large contingents of troops were pouring into Yedo from various daimiates, and it has been reported that the effect of this would be antagonistic to the Mikado and his Government. We have the very best reason for asserting that the direct contrary is the case. Satsuma, one of the most powerful, if not the most powerful, prince, has given his entire support to the Government, and has thus induced a sense of security in Yedo hitherto unknown.

The ascent of Fusi-yama is a feat which at any time of the year is worth recording, but during the commencement of spring, when the snow is melting, is doubly worthy of mention. It has been usually considered impossible to ascend Fusi-yama except during the dry season, but that this is a mistake is proved by the fact that Captain Baird, of the 42nd Royal Highlanders, recently made the ascent, accompanied only by a coolie. Starting before daybreak, he reached the summit about four P.M., and did not get down till after dark. He found the snow very deep, and melting, which made the ascent toilsome in the extreme. Indeed, in places, particularly in a wood through which his path lay for some time, the snow was up to the waist. Such a feat as this, we believe, unparalleled, it being the first successful attempt to reach the top of Fusi-yama during the winter months. The Japanese always try to hinder any such hazardous experiments, and they endeavoured to dissuade Captain Baird from making the attempt; but his true British pluck carried him through triumphantly and successfully.

Mr. Hannen, assistant judge, delivered judgment in the case of Strauss v. Howell on the 20th April, for the plaintiff, with $600 damages, inclusive of his costs. Presuming these amount to $500, Mr. Strauss, who laid his claim at $2,000, receives $100 as compensation for the criticism upon his character which his connection with the Belgian Consulate at Yedo seems to us (the Japan Mail) not only to warrant but to demand.

An attempt was made to launch the lightship Hakodate, but from some cause she refused to leave the ways. She is the second lightship built in Japan, and is intended for use at Hakodate. She is 70 feet long, 25 feet beam, is 130 tons burthen, drawing only some 7 feet of water.

Some of the revelations made by the publication of the new Japanese Blue-book are extremely amusing. The claims of Mr. Portman, formerly American Secretary of Legation, to a concession for a line of railway between Yedo and Yokohama, are dismissed, with amazing brevity, in a despatch addressed to Mr. de Long, which illustrates with curious felicity the objections we pointed out some months ago to the intrusion of commercial aspirations into diplomatic intercourse. We may hope that for the future there will be no more danger of this.

Another curious despatch from a foreign consul to the Japanese Government requests that a temple at Yedo may be allotted to him as a residence, on the ground that by virtue of the "favoured nation" clause in the treaty made with his Government he has a right to insist upon a privilege of this nature which was previously granted to another consul. The plan adopted by the Government of publishing these communications is calculated to prove instructive to the Japanese, and not only to them. We need hardly tell our subscribers that we do not endorse these sentiments of our Yokohama contemporary. They seem to us to convey the prejudices of an old civil servant rather than the feelings of an independent journalist. Social influences are undoubtedly contagious, but we should be sorry to think that a residence in Japan was likely to bring about the adoption of so purely Japanese an institution as the hari kari by our own officials.

Mr. Adams, Secretary of H.B.M. Legation, has addressed an interesting paper on the subject of the deterioration of Japanese silk to the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Adams appears to think that the export of Japanese eggs may decrease in the future, and that the disease, known as pebrine, is assuming smaller proportions in France and Italy, where it formerly made such ravages. This disease is also indigenous in Japan. Mr. Adams discounts the idea that Government interference would be beneficial in improving the quality of the material or the manufacture.

A meeting of merchants interested in the silk trade was held at the Chamber of Commerce to take the same question into consideration. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Le Mare, White, Scheidt, Jacquemot, and Barthe, was elected to investigate the subject, and bring it under the notice of the Japanese Government.

We understand that in future the Daimios are to be called, upon to reside in Yedo for three months, in four relays, so that in three years every Daimio will have been domiciled in the capital for three months. The object of this is not, as was the case during the Tycoonate, to impoverish the Daimios by the enforced removal of their men, but to educate, as it were, every Daimio in the policy and theories of the Government. In connection with this determination on the part of the Government comes the rumour that about the middle of next month Shimadzu Saburo, the Prime Minister of the Sa-suma clan, will arrive at Yedo, on the invitation of the Mikado, with the avowed purpose of supporting the Government, to whom he gives practical assistance in the shape of two battalions, each numbering eight hundred men, of Satsuma soldiers. In return the Government has cheerfully and gratefully recognised the services of Satsuma, whose support is probably more valuable than of any other Daimio. To further strengthen the Mikado in his desire to centralise the Government and to form a national army independent of, or formed from, those of the Daimios, a number of Tosa troops, and a troop of one hundred cavalry, under the command of members of the Tosa clan, have been sent to Yedo to form the nucleus of a national army.

We also hear that a battalion, consisting of 400 Kanga troops, has arrived at Yokohama from Yedo; the reason being the overcrowded condition of the Yedo barracks.

On the 17th April the premises No. 71, Main-street, occupied by Mendelson Bros., the Pharmacie Francaise and Hirzog and Roth, and the next store, in the same occupation, were burned down. Messrs. Hirzog and Roth were insured in the Sun Fire Insurance Company for $5,000, the Lancashire Fire Insurance Company being also interested to a tolerably heavy amount.

A meeting of the Yokohama Rifle Association was held on April 14th, Dr. Dalliston in the chair. A small proportionate subscription—under a dollar each—was called in to defray the deficit on last year's accounts, so that the coming year was commenced with a free balance-sheet.

Some modifications have been made in the Board of Works. The telegraphs will be transferred from the lighthouse to the railway department, to which they more naturally belong. The lighthouses and harbours will be combined in one department, and in the former branch will be included all the lighthouses erected up to this time, three of which have hitherto been superintended by another branch of the administration.

The Japan Mail adds:—When it became evident to all those in any way connected with the Japanese Government that the driving out of the foreigners was an impossible task, the native officials at the head of the Government veered round in their policy and welcomed, instead of repelling, foreign advances. With this change of sentiment towards the foreigners, the Government has decided upon a most politic and advantageous step.

HIOGO.

The Hiogo News has the following items:—The Woodji Maru was launched from the yard of Messrs. Fitzgerald and Strome in the presence of a considerable number of visitors and residents. Flags of various nationalities were brought into requisition in the usual way and a cold tiffin was provided for those who had neglected that indispensable ceremony. The time appointed for the launch was one o'clock, and a few minutes after, Mrs. Korthals (who was to christen the vessel) arrived. The customary bottle of champagne having been duly broken over the bows, and the shores knocked away, the vessel should have glided more or less gracefully into the sea. The Woodji Maru has been built to the order of Mr.

Klein of Osaka; she is constructed of the best wood this country produces; is copper fastened, and is very strongly built. We may safely call her one of the best built vessels yet launched in Japan. Her length is 82 feet, breadth, 14ft. 6in., tonnage, 90. Her engines have been made in England, and are to be put in at the Kaga foundry. Shipbuilding is looking up just now in Kobe.

The Meidzru, a natty little steamer of about 100 feet in length, built by Messrs. W. K. Board and Co. for a Hiogo merchant, to the order of Messrs. E. C. Kirby and Co., has been launched. She looks about as neat a thing in the steamer line as we have seen in Kobe, and being twin screw, she is as handy as she is pretty.

We hear that Mr. Marshall has been selected to fill the post of Harbour Master for this Port. If the right man is in the right place—to ascertain which we shall not have long to wait, we suppose—those who have taken the initiative in filling this much needed office will deserve the thanks of the community. One of the first points to which we would call Mr. Marshall's attention is the mischievous practice which obtains amongst the crews of steamers of throwing coal ashes and other refuse into the harbour. At some future day we propose to revert to this subject at greater length.

The various Consuls have issued the following notification:—Whereas it has come to the notice of the undersigned that, in spite of their protestations, the Japanese local authorities have commenced to unduly interfere with the native servants in foreign employ, the undersigned warn their respective subjects and citizens against admitting into their premises any Japanese officials coming for such purposes, unless provided with their Consul's written sanction to that effect.

The undersigned also request to be informed of any further unauthorised interference under this head.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, April 15.

I last wrote you on the 28th ultimo, via Brindisi, but fear that it will not reach you sooner than the present letter, as it did not arrive at Shanghai in time to catch the outward mail for Europe. Since my last the mails of 3rd, 10th, and 17th February have been delivered here, and on the 14th instant the English mail of the 24th February arrived by the P. M. S. S. Co.'s New York, forty-nine days.

The British barque Lorton and the North German barque Alida both sailed for London on the 2nd inst. The chief portion of their cargoes consist of tobacco, see (N.E. No. 65) manifests. It is the general opinion here that as the Alida has been so long in port her bottom must be very foul, and that it will cause her to make a very long voyage. She is not a fast sailer at any time, and it would not surprise people if she took over nine months to reach London. The movements of the vessels of war have been as follows:—The French gunboat Coetlogon arrived from Foochow on the 30th ult., and sailed again for Hiogo and Yokohama on the 4th inst. Russian gunboat Sobol, for Hakodate, left on the 8th inst. The Danish frigate Tordenskjold and the French corvette Linot, arrived from Shanghai on the 8th and 9th inst. respectively. The last two vessels and H. B. M. gunboat Ringdove remain in port.

The officers of the Danish frigate are now engaged in making observations and taking soundings, in anticipation of the arrival of the Nagasaki section of the Great Northern telegraphic cable; and I hear that it is expected to be completed and in working gear by the end of August next. According to present arrangements, it is intended to land the cable at a spot between Tomatz and Tukahora, near the entrance of the harbour; and from thence continue it by land lines to the Belle Vue Hotel, which has been rented for a number of years as a station.

The Nagasaki regatta is to come off in a few days, and a meeting was held at the club on the 13th inst., to arrange details, which will be made public after the departure of the mail steamer, which takes place at noon. There is a report of an action, "Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation v. F. P. Tombrink," trustee of the estate of Glover and Co., which was gained by the bank with costs. The case, it is said, ought never to have been defended.

Business of every description is nearly suspended, pending the new coin reaching the port. The export of coals is as follows:—

	Takasima.	Karatz and other kinds.	Total.
January ...	2,870 tons	10,154 tons	13,024
February ...	865 "	4,834 "	5,699
March ...	2,142 "	4,580 "	6,722
To April 8	1,055 "	5,137 "	6,192

6,932 tons 24,705 tons

The steamer Yangtze, noticed in my last as wrecked, has been sold by auction for $1,700.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

NAGASAKI, April 15.

Considerable curiosity exists here with reference to the affairs of Glover and Co., relative to which but little information has as yet been allowed to transpire. The creditors—at any rate those on this side—seem to consider that the public have little right to information on the subject as the arrangement is a private one, and several of the parties concerned have, I hear, even disapproved of the brief report of the recent meeting of creditors that was published in the Nagasaki Express. I am inclined to believe that much of this desire to keep things quiet is attributable to the fact that the estate presents a very unfavourable prospect for unsecured creditors.

It is evident from the few facts which have transpired, that whatever dividend may be realised depends wholly upon the Takasima mine, all other property being mortgaged. The mine, however, has during the past six months incurred a loss in working of $25,000, so that not only is there no dividend, but, on the contrary, a very heavy deficit. I hear, further, that a large outlay has been made on machinery for the sinking of new shafts, but as this is an expense of special and not of periodic occurrence, there may be reason to hope that later on affairs may assume a more satisfactory aspect than they now present, especially as the additional inspectors appointed at the meeting are men who may be depended on to conduct matters in such a way as to give the best results obtainable. There are several obstacles tending to interfere with success, and these are very great burthens on the mine. First of these is the terms made by Mr. Glover, who, in his anxiety to do business, allowed the Japanese to get the best of the bargain, by giving them a royalty of $1 per ton on the coals raised and half-share of the profits. The next is the stipulation made by the Prince of Hizen, that none other than Hizen men are to be allowed to work, and as these are often not obtainable the full capabilities of the mine are not always developed, for which there appears to be no remedy. The length of time the lease has to run is seven years from the time the firm suspended payment, at the expiration of which the Prince of Hizen takes over the plant by paying for it. The agreement, I hear, contains a clause to the effect that no one but Mr. Glover is to be allowed to work a coal-mine on Takasima, which clause has been interpreted to mean that unless the mine is worked in Mr. Glover's name it is a breach of agreement (a quibble quite likely to be raised by the Japanese), so that Mr. Glover gets an allowance for superintending, which is charged to the estate, and not to the mine—a circumstance some people fail to see the justice of, though it was carried at the meeting.

With all the difficulties staring them in the face, the inspectors have got some very delicate work to perform. To throw the affair into bankruptcy would be very unwise, as it would leave nothing for the unsecured creditors, so the only alternative is to continue working the mine, in the hope that, although the first six months show unsatisfactory results, the next will prove better.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

We have received a copy of Mr. Medhurst's interesting lecture on "Curiosities of Street Literature in China" in pamphlet form. The English system of advertising would seem to be so well understood in the Flowery Land that it may possibly have originated there. Medical men in China, it seems, describe themselves as "the world's benefactor," or "a benefit to society in general," quite in the style of our own doctor infallibles. Mr. Medhurst's account of the theatres is most amusing—theatres being prohibited by law in China, and, as regards Shanghai in particular, having been denounced by the Taoutai. Theatrical establishments consequently describe themselves as "tea-gardens" and other romantic and evasive names, such as "Fragrance fills the Hall," "The Garden of the Three Elegants," &c., &c. The following is even more amusing:—

Visiting is a most serious business in China, and every individual who pretends to the slightest modicum of respectability must have a servant to carry and present his cards. A Chinese card is not the neat white glazed little bit of pasteboard which our Western exquisites affect, but a huge sheet of scarlet paper with the name inscribed in large characters—the more mammoth-like the character the more grand and respectable.

The most extraordinary card that Mr. Medhurst, or anyone else, we should think, ever received, was one from a young Chinese lady, announcing her intention to commit suicide (in consequence of the death of her intended husband) on a certain date. But even more remarkable is the fact that she was not only not prevented from doing this, but absolutely did hang herself publicly on a stage in the open fields!

Among the curiosities of street literature Mr. Medhurst includes some curious names of public thoroughfares. "Flourishing Affluence-street," "Peaceful Repose-street," "Benevolence-street," &c.

Baby linen scarcely comes under the head of Street Literature, but the amusing specimens of the inscriptions on infants' caps, &c., which Mr. Medhurst gives, fairly justify his including them in his amusing lecture. Here are some phrases, answering apparently to our "Welcome little stranger!" and "Heaven watch my sweet babe in its slumbers!" The Chinese seem to have rather the best of the selection, according to our judgment, for it seems they mark their berceauxnets and such small gear with such sentences as "Long life, wealth, and honour!" or, "A safe passage through all critical periods and obnoxious influences!"

It is altogether unnecessary for us to recommend Mr. Medhurst's most valuable contribution to our readers, who know so much of the land and people he so well describes. But we may express the hope that he will republish his work in London, where, we are sure it would be deeply appreciated by an immense circle of readers whom it would benefit as much as it would add to their information. Mr. Medhurst's concluding sentence is so admirable that we cannot resist transferring it to our columns.

The moral I would wish my hearers to draw from all these facts is, that it is wise, in whatever country one may by accident or of necessity be placed, always to use one's power of observation, and be slow to despise any people, however presumably barbarous or peculiar, until one has taken the trouble to ascertain what their customs really are, and how far they merit the censure ignorance is too prone to bestow on them.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been extremely dull throughout the interval, and business had been almost at a standstill. This had been in a great measure owing to a scarcity of money among native traders. Prices generally had declined. Grey Shirtings and Yarns were quoted considerably lower. The only goods for which any inquiry had been made were Muslins, Mousselines de Laine, and Black Alpacas. Quotations (which, except for the articles named, must be considered as almost nominal) were as follow:—G. E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 38½ yards 39 in., per piece, $2.30 to 2.35; 8 lbs. 4 to 8 lbs. 6 do., $2.62 to 2.67; 9 lbs., do., 44 in., $3. Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, per picul, $38.50 to 39; No. 28 to 32, $41.50 to 42; No. 38 to 42, $40.50 to 41.50. Alpacas, 42 yards 31 inch, per piece, $7.50 to 8; Mousselines de Laine (plain) 30 to 31 inch per yard, $0.22 to 0.24; do. (printed), do., $0.25 to 0.30.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—The news of the termination of the European War caused early in the interval some movement in cotton goods, and prices showed an upward tendency. The weakness of the Shanghai and Yokohama markets, however, soon checked the improvement, and quotations generally had at the close a downward tendency. Woollens were less saleable, in consequence of the weather. Cotton Yarn: Nos. 28-32 were in good demand early in the month, and a fair business was done at advancing rates, but the market had become much weaker; 16-24's showed an advance upon last mail's prices. Grey Shirtings: Large arrivals had fully supplied the market, and quotations tended downwards. Black Velvets: There had been a slightly better demand. Victoria Lawns: Sales had been effected at improved prices, but the enquiry had subsided, and prices were weaker. Camlets: White had been in demand, but all colours were again neglected at the close. Plain Orleans: Black continued to attract attention, and prices were fully maintained; White was also saleable. Mousselines de Laine dull at former rates. Cloth: Light colours saleable; black in no demand. Blankets in less enquiry. Quotations (in dols. at 10½ rios to 100 dols.) Cotton Yarn: Nos. 16 to 24, per bale, 120.19; 28 to 32, 131.03 to 132.02; 38 to 42, 123.15. Cotton Piece Goods: GE Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 38 yds. 39 in., per piece, 2.41; 8½ to 8½ lbs., 2.71 to 2.75; GE White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, 40 yds. 36 in., 2.71 to 2.82; 64 to 72, 2.95 to 3.20; T. Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., 1.72; Drills, Dutch, 40 yds., 3.44; handkerchiefs, assorted, per dozen, 0.64 to 0.74; brocades and spots, white, per piece, 2.46 to 2.71; dyed, 2.95 to 3.54; chintz, assorted, 24 yds. 30 in., 2.31 to 2.36; Turkey red, 2.46 to 2.71; Turkey red cambrics, 3 lbs., 2.58; velvets, black, 6.89; Victoria lawns, 1.10 to 1.13; taffetas, double warp, 12 yds. 43 in., 2.50 to 2.75; single, 2.25 to 50. Camlets, SS, scarlet 13.79; black, 9.85; lead, per picul, 5.91 to 6.27.

NAGASAKI.—The following is from Messrs. Gribble and Co.'s report:—Business in imports has been exceedingly limited, at a general decline upon all previous quotations. This has been caused by great scarcity of money in the native town, where considerable pressure has lately been felt through the enforced redemption of all local bank orders, and the uncertainty felt by natives as to the course to be adopted towards them by the Government in introducing the new coinage. As regards foreigners, a notification has been issued that all nibos held by them will be exchanged for the new coin at the rate of 400 boos per $100, with a charge of 2 per cent. for coinage. Unless, however, some similar equitable plan is adopted towards natives for the nibos they hold, we fear that much inconvenience to trade will arise. Grey Shirtings, 8½ lbs., $2.72 to 2.75 per piece; Dyed Shirtings, Indigo and Gentian, $3.15 to 3.20 per piece. T. R. Cambrics, 2½ catty, $2.72. Camlets, SS White, only, $14.75 per piece. Plain Lustres, 30 yards 32 in., Black, $4.95; White, $5. Victoria Lawns, 12 yards 42 in., $1—large stocks. Metals: Nail Rods, small size only, wanted, $3.45 per picul.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been but little doing in the market, settlements being only about 1,500 piculs, the greater portion of which consisted of Teas of low grades; a few parcels only of medium kinds had been settled at about former quotations. Supplies had been slight, and the stock of desirable leaf was very small. In the absence of business of any importance, prices must be considered nominal. The Eastern Chief was to sail in a few days, and the Oslo had been laid on for New York; the Percy Edwards would take some Tea for San Francisco.

Quotations :—Common, $18 to 22; good common, $23 to 25; medium, $27 to 30; good medium, $32 to 34; fine, $36 to 39 per picul; finest and choice, nominal.

NAGASAKI.—Stocks were very heavy, and holders were showing considerable anxiety to realise, both in barter and on credit. The quotations were :—Common to good, $13 to 16; medium to fine, $16 to 20; fine to finest, $20 to 25 per picul.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—But little business had been transacted since the departure of the last American mail, owing principally to unfavourable reports from the New York market, which had caused stocks to accumulate, the greater proportion still consisting of the lower grades, for which quotations were unchanged. Settlements returned at 800 piculs; arrivals, 4,000 piculs; stock, 6,600 piculs. Quotations :—Common, Rios 15 to 18 per picul; good common, Rios 19 to 24; medium, Rios 25 to 30; good medium, Rios 31 to 37; fine, Rios 38 and upwards; finest and choice to choicest, nominal, no sales.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—A quantity amounting to 662 bales went forward by the English mail of the 9th April, of which about 200 bales were on native consignment and were not included in the settlements given in our last report. Since the above date a considerable amount of business had been done in consignments on native account resulting in the settlement of some 700 bales, to which may be added about 260 bales as being actual purchases. Owing to continued unfavourable advices from home, buyers were disinclined to operate to any extent, and holders finding such to be the case were more anxious than ever to realise; under these circumstances it is very difficult to give reliable quotations, and they must be considered to a great extent nominal. Settlements, Hank sorts, 600 bales; other sorts, 360 bales; total, 960 bales. Quotations (including all charges to London at exchange 4s. 6d.): Hanks, Mybaah and Sinchu, extra best, 27s. 6d. to 29s. 6d. per picul; medium, 25s. 3d. to 26s. 9d.; interior, 20s. 2d. to 23s. 9d.; Oshu, best, 32s. to 33s.; medium, 29s. to 30s. 9d.; inferior, 25s. 6d. to 27s. 6d.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—There was nothing of importance to note. High prices ruling at Yokohama had made dealers raise their demands; the result of which had been an entire absence of business at this port.

SARAWAK AND SAIGON.*

“The Commercial Reports received from Her Majesty's Consuls in 1869-70” have just received an addition in a volume which contains the Reports from Sarawak and Saigon. From the former place Mr. Martin, under date May 11th, 1870, announces a great increase in the trade of 1869 as compared with 1868. The exports in 1868 were £446,348. In 1869 they rose to £734,174. And in the same space of time the imports rose from £401,395 to £614,361. The Coast trade also increased in similar proportion, and the outports did a steadily progressive trade with one another and with Singapore and China. The Cinnabar mines worked by the Borneo Company are reported as fairly started, and the antimony mines as yielding good ore in fair quantities.

From Saigon Mr. Consul Caswell's Reports for 1869 and 1870 appear simultaneously, owing to delay on the part of the Foreign-office. Mr. Caswell reports the growing importance and prosperity of the French colony, the war in which the mother country has been engaged having had no disastrous effect, but rather having benefited some interests, shipping especially. The British tonnage increased 32,000 tons in 1870 over the number in 1869. Three German vessels, captured by French men-of-war, were brought into Saigon, and their cargoes sold, but the vessels retained.

The total exports of rice amounted in 1870 to 3,781,670 piculs, being an increase of 1,112,328 piculs. The natives having thus readily found purchasers for their produce, put more ground under cultivation. In sugar, the Indo-Chinese company established a factory at Brenhoa, about eighteen miles from Saigon. Great expectations were entertained concerning the prosperity of this enterprise, with the support of the French Government. In addition to the great increase in the trade of the colony, Mr. Caswell reports the establishment of several British mercantile agencies. Tugboats, lighters, warehouses, rice and sugar-mills, banks and insurance companies, were also introduced. The report is unique, and extremely interesting, owing to the late proposal as to its transfer to Germany. Our readers may now more fully appreciate the success of our efforts to induce the Foreign-office to appoint a Consul at Saigon.

* Second notice. We owe the Foreign-office an apology for having accidentally omitted to notice the report for 1870, in addition to that for 1869.

THE OPIUM TRADE.—INDIAN COMMITTEE.

EXAMINATION OF SIR RUTHERFORD ALCOCK AND MR. COOPER.

Sir R. ALCOCK stated that he is Her Majesty's Minister in China, and that he has resided in that country for a quarter of a century. Within the last year or two his attention had been called by the merchants engaged in the opium trade to the cultivation of the poppy in China, and in consequence he took pains to get all the information he could on that subject. He was informed by the merchants that the trade of the three or four preceding years had been a losing trade, and that the progressive increase in the consumption of opium had been stopped, and they were of opinion that some cause was interfering with the consumption or the demand. In January, 1869, one of the censors—an important body in China, whose function it was to call attention to what was wrong on the part of any of the authorities, from the Emperor down to the lowest official—presented a memorial to the Emperor, requesting the cultivation of the poppy to be stopped. In consequence, an edict appeared in the Peking Gazette of June 29, referring to this memorial and to the former edict, prohibiting the cultivation of opium entirely. In February he sent a despatch to Lord Stanley on the subject, a copy of which was sent to the India-office and also to Calcutta. [Sir Rutherford read extracts from the despatch in question and its enclosures, to the effect that the cultivating was spreading in various provinces, almost all over China, and that in some it was taking the place of the natural products of the country. He also read a despatch of May 20, referring to a confidential interview he had had with Yung Sang and other ministers on the subject of the opium duty, in which they strongly urged on him to represent to his Government the propriety of forbidding the traffic. He also read an official note from the Foreign Board in China, urging Her Majesty's Government to prohibit the importation of opium as injurious to legitimate commerce.] Subsequently to this he discovered that one of the most distinguished of the Government officers had actually employed himself in the production of the poppy, and that he had memorialised the Throne to grant licences and to prohibit the importation of foreign opium. That course was suggested by Le, and by him carried out. In January in the following year he proceeded to Calcutta and placed this information before the Governor-General in Council. The substance of the information that he had to impart was that there was a large and increasing cultivation of the poppy in China, and that the Chinese Government, if they could not come to terms of arrangement with the British Government, would promote the cultivation of opium in China, so as to produce it at a cheaper rate than it could be sent at from India; that they would entirely shut out opium, and having done that they would be able to stamp out the cultivation in China.

Mr. COOPER was examined on the subject of opium cultivation in China. He could not speak from his own knowledge that the cultivation of opium was increasing, but from inquiries he made of the French missionaries, he was told that thirty years ago, when they first went to China, the growth of opium was unknown in the province of Szechuan, but now it was grown there extensively, rather under the ban of the officials, but still allowed, and that in Yunnan it was grown in larger quantities. There was no special tax upon it, but the cultivators were permitted to grow it on paying a secret fee to the officials. Opium was also grown in many provinces of China by the natives for their own consumption; not for trade, except at Yunnan. Indian opium never went to the west of China; they would not smoke it there, on account of its being too strong for them. Its use was solely confined to those provinces which were reached by our open ports on the east coast. He endeavoured to effect a passage from China to India, and went to Thibet, but he did not discover that any opium was grown there. The Chinese only smoked opium, they never ate it. The consumption of opium was becoming alarmingly prevalent in East China and in West China also. If a person smoked a pipe of opium once or twice a week it had very little effect, but if he smoked a pipe or two a day for three or four days successively it would affect him so seriously that before he could raise his energies to go to work he would have to smoke one or two pipes. The consumption of a regular smoker would be from three-quarters of an ounce to an ounce a day, but a great smoker would consume an ounce and a half or more. They would begin to smoke at eight in the evening, and go on till three or four in the morning. Amongst the lowest orders of the people women, and boys and girls from the age of eleven smoked opium. They would spend money for opium even if they went without food. He employed several coolies when he was in China, and each coolie used to smoke every evening an amount of opium which cost him 150 cash. 1,000 cash was equal to one tael, the value of which was 6s. 8d.; so that the opium would cost each coolie about a shilling, and his wages were 250 cash a day. When a coolie had his opium regularly he would perform prodigies of work, but if he missed for one day he would lie in his bed listless and unable to speak. His coolies carried him on an average twenty miles a day. He never saw a grey-headed coolie. The Indian drug would always find a good market in China on account of its superior quality. It required fewer pipes to produce the same effect than the native drug did. He should say that in Canton the native drug was mixed with Indian. The grandfather of the present Emperor slew his youngest son when he discovered that he was addicted to opium smoking, and he issued an edict against the cultivation of the poppy. In China the cultivation of opium interfered seriously with the growth of food. He thought the effect of opium smoking in China was worse than that of drinking intoxicating liquors in England. If a man could get his supply of opium regularly he went on, but if he could not get it he died. When he used to start on his journey in the morning, before the watch went round, it was a common thing to see men lying dead on the road simply from the want of opium. Opium smoking led to a crime in this way, that in order to get opium men would do anything, even sell their children. The Chinese Government levied an import duty on the opium, and he did not think they cared much about the traffic so long as they got the money. The Taepings, he had heard, set their faces against opium, as did also the Mahomedans in Yunnan. The Chinese were also heavy drinkers. It would be impossible to put down opium smoking in China; if they did, they would destroy one-third of the whole population. If the importation of the drug were stopped it would be a frightful calamity; he should say that one-third of the population would die. In a report of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce it was stated that for the last five or six years the poppy had been grown more openly, and was conspicuous in the fields; that quite accorded with his observation. The authorities winked at it, simply because so large a proportion of the people smoked opium that they could not prevent it. He did not think the habit had sprung up within the last thirty years. He believed it had existed on the eastern coast of China for a couple of centuries. The tribes bordering the northern part of Burma and Assam had cultivated opium for generations. He did not think we had anything to fear from the competition of the Chinese cultivators provided we furnished the eastern Chinese with the Indian drug at a moderate price, and even at present prices we need not fear the competition of the Chinese for several years to come. If we wished to put down competition we must reduce the price of the Indian drug. On the whole he thought if the Indian opium revenue failed it would be from bad management. He thought the consumption was sure to increase.

WHAT CHINA WANTS.

(NEW YORK HERALD.)

It would seem that enough material had been furnished the public of late with reference to the massacre of Tientsin in June, 1870, to make them see how impossible it is to receive China into the comity of nations, at least on just the same footing we do the Christian nations of Europe. It may be a very pleasant and a very gratifying thing to read in a nicely bound book of their gracious manners, their smiling and bowing and exchanging of courtesies with our officials. We were charmed, intoxicated with delight, when the Burlingame Embassy showered its celestial smiles upon us. We thought then that China had really entered the family circle of nations; but we have occasion now to be ashamed of what we lavished at that time upon them in compliments and in confidence. Having read the foreign papers published at Shanghai and Hong Kong at that time and since, we see that our countrymen, as well as other "Western barbarians" residing in China, were right in their opinions; and surely their opinions are worth studying; for who more than they are interested in the commerce of China? Who more anxious for a policy which will in all time insure peace, surrounded, as many of them are, with all they possess in the world, not to speak of their wives and children, their homes, earned at the expense of many privations and years of toil in the strange and distant land? From the views of the foreigners residing there we see that for the most part they distrusted China when she sent the Burlingame mission forth, and while in the United States and in Europe this mission was being received with every mark of respect, our people among the Chinese looked on with dismay and disgust. While the civilised world believed in the sincerity of China our countrymen and their fellow men about them knew it was but the acting of a base fraud. Why? We shall see if we look further.

Commerce with China, more than with any other country, in fact wholly, depends upon treaties; and perhaps there are no people who better understand their obligations in their keeping of an agreement, contract or a treaty, simple or complicated, ordinary or extraordinary. Among them written contracts for various purposes are of constant occurrence, all of which are duly written according to form, sealed, signed, and witnessed. And is it to be supposed that they are in the least ignorant of their obligations to keep or carry out their treaties with foreign Powers? No. But how have they kept them? Not with good will, most certainly; but by and through constant contention, argument and endless trouble on the part of every foreign official, Minister and Consul in China, of whatever nationality. Concessions have been obtained from that government mostly at the point of the bayonet. That is where the treaties came from. And so long as our policy was a strict one—so long as we put our fingers on the letter of the treaty and held them to it—we got our rights. But times have changed. We wanted to be magnanimous. The spirit was a good one—grand and generous indeed, beautiful in theory, but impossible in practice, to bring China into the circle of civilised nations—semi-civilised, ignorant, stupid, and obstinate to a most intolerant degree as she is. Her politicians kept the run of foreign politics. They saw that England was influenced by the peace party, and the rest of the world following in her train, and, like a cunning diplomat, as old China is, she played her part well. She began to fondle us, touch our vanity, and we were pleased, flattered, cheated. The time was drawing near for the revision of the treaties. She wanted time—time for delay—and so in the largeness of her heart she sent an Embassy to tell us of it. The Embassy made a treaty with us, a kind of complimentary exchange of sentiments. But what was the part this wily, oily Oriental was playing behind the scenes? Despising us at heart—counting us among the "outside barbarians"—she prepares for war, or something that looked very much like it. And so she begins by insult in every quarter and ends with a massacre, in which the most horrible crimes were enacted—another Cawnpore murder of East India memory.

But there is one all-important question to be settled before anything like national equality with China can be established. In diplomacy it is called the "Audience Question." In social life how impossible to think of friendliness where one party looks upon the other with contempt. The same is as true with the nation as with the individual. And yet these semi-civilised, ignorant, effete Chinese look upon us with positive contempt. The "central," the "middle Kingdom," views the surrounding nations as in reality but "outside barbarians." Our Ministers cannot have an audience of her ruler because our rulers are not his equal! Distinguished men, men of Royal blood, cannot be admitted to his presence. Ministers and consuls and other officials not unfrequently meet with insult, the Chinese officials refusing to extend the same courtesies or permit the same rules of etiquette to be employed that they would among themselves under similar circumstances. Let us insist, then, upon equality in word and in act as a basis to future understanding. Can free Americans, can a republic, ask less? The good effects of this line of action will be felt in every direction. The high Chinese functionaries, the subordinate officials, the petty officers of the people, will feel the influence of such a point gained. And this must react upon us; such is the law of nature. In bringing down the "Brother of the Sun" and the "Uncle of the Moon" a peg or two we bring him to reason.

CHINESE GOOD FAITH.

(NEW YORK TIMES.)

There is equal propriety and justice in the general denunciation, which has found voice at the religious meetings held here and elsewhere during the past few days, with regard to the reactionary movement in China. Naturally, there is small satisfaction in seeing a mission field, which has now for fifty years been cultivated at vast expense of funds and faith, suddenly shut against further attempts at tillage. And, Christianity aside, the spirit of progress and civilisation looks on with dismay to find that the sanguine hopes founded on the Burlingame Embassy and its doings are so rudely dispelled at a moment's notice.

But, without discussing the questions which the missionary and the social reformer have to consider in this matter, we may fitly inquire what action our Government has taken or purposes to take under circumstances which involve as bold a violation of treaty stipulations as the history of diplomatic relations records. The recent Imperial decree abolishes schools established for the instruction of females, restricts teaching to Government rules and regulations, prohibits the promulgation of any doctrines which do not agree with those of Confucius, and transfers the missionaries from their former independent position and from the protection of their own Governments to direct subjection to the Chinese Emperor. To have likewise decreed the refusal of compensation for damages growing out of the massacre of foreigners a few months ago is the natural result of the repudiation of those principles of reform which the world welcomed only a short time ago.

When, in 1858, the United States executed a treaty with China, that document contained a provision that "any person, whether citizen of the United States or Chinese convert, should be allowed, without persecution or molestation, peaceably to teach and practice the principles of Christianity." The Burlingame Treaty, made ten years later, emphasized these very points, and in its fourth article contained an agreement that the people of either nation, when in either country, should enjoy perfect religious liberty, and be exempt from persecution on account of their faith and worship. So far as our country is concerned this treaty has been sacredly observed, as witness the joss-houses and entire freedom of religious ritual allowed the "Heathen Chinese" wherever he cares to settle in America. On the other hand, the conduct of the Imperial Government has not been in the line of decent respect for our rights, and the rights of its own people, under these treaty stipulations. This recent proclamation is, in fact, an insult to the United States which cannot safely be overlooked, and, whether we will or not, we are compelled to take up the matter in defence of our missionaries and their converts. When our present Minister, Mr. Low, sailed for China, he received instructions from the State Department which indicate a determination on the part of the United States to insist upon the faithful fulfilment of the Treaty in its entirety. Even within the past year, as matters of provocation have been reported, Secretary Fish has directed Minister Low to inform the Celestial authorities "that any violation of the rights of our citizens, and any flagrant violation of treaty stipulations of other Powers, may cause a change of the traditional policy of the United States in their intercourse with China." This certainly was a very courteously-worded threat. And now that the "violations" have occurred, under aggravating circumstances, too, the country awaits with some impatience and anxiety the intimation of a decided line of policy on the part of our Government.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ROYAL MAIL COMPANY'S FLEET.

The fleet of steamers owned by the West India and Brazil Royal Mail Company will this season be reinforced by the addition of three new vessels of the first class, one of which, the Tagus, has just passed satisfactorily through an official trial at the measured mile in Stoke's Bay. The Tagus, under the command of Captain T. A. Bevis, ran the measured mile four times with the following results:—First, 4min. 10sec., equal to 14.400 knots per hour; second, 3min. 48sec., 15.789 knots; third, 4min. 20sec., 13.846 knots; fourth, 3min. 49sec., 15.721 knots; the Government mean speed of the whole being 14.873 knots per hour. The vessel's draught of water was 17ft. 11in. forward, and 19ft. 9in. aft; total weight of coals, stores, &c., on board, 953 tons; average steam, 46½lb.; vacuum, 27½ inches; revolutions of engines, 61. The leading dimensions of the Tagus are as follows:—Length on water line, 340ft.; beam, 41ft.; depth to spar deck 33ft. 4in.; tonnage, builders' measurement, 2,790; gross registered tonnage, 3,290. She has accommodation for 251 first-class passengers, 50 second, and 50 third, and can carry 1,000 tons of cargo. The main saloon is the full width of the ship. The Tagus, which was built by Messrs. John Elder and Co., of Glasgow, is propelled by compound engines of 600-horse power, similar to those in the company's steamers Elbe and Tasmanian, the advantages of which, both in reference to speed and economy of fuel, are fully demonstrated by the fact that the Tasmanian, which left Southampton on the 17th of April, on her first voyage after being fitted with these engines, made the run out to St. Thomas in 338 hours, burning only 466 tons of coals, while for nearly the same time consumed 1,033 tons in a run of 349 hours. The Tagus is appointed to take out the West India and Pacific mails, from Southampton, on the 17th inst. The Moselle, a sister ship to the Tagus, also building by Messrs. Elder and Co., is expected to be ready for sea in ten weeks; and the third new steamer, to be named the Boyne, of larger dimensions and less power, is being constructed by Messrs. Denny, Brothers, of Dumbarton, and will be ready for service about October. The Royal Mail Steam Company may therefore now be congratulated on the possession of some of the finest ocean steamers in the world, each of their new vessels including the practical adaptation of some improvement on its predecessor. Not the least of the distinguishing characteristics of the steamer under notice is her graceful appearance and build, due in great measure to the retention of the bowsprit and figure-head—not the heavy old bowsprit of our forefathers, which made the vessel plunge, but the light bowsprit of modern times, which is not only essential to form the perfect symmetry of the ship, but also really serviceable to hoist a staysail.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

DEMURRAGE CASE.—TRASK V. FINDLAY AND ANOTHER.

This was a special case stated for the opinion of the Court, to determine whether the plaintiff was entitled to recover from the defendants in respect of an alleged breach of charter party of the American ship Charles A. Farwell. The plaintiff was owner of the vessel, and the defendants were merchants and shipowners of Glasgow.

On the 7th of January, 1868, the Charles A. Farwell, then on a voyage from San Francisco to Liverpool, was chartered by defendants to proceed, after discharging her homeward cargo, to Birkenhead or Cardiff, to load with coals for an Eastern port, either Aden, Hong Kong, or Shanghai, as ordered on signing bills of lading; the vessel, after discharge, to proceed to Amherst, with liberty to take cargo to a port and load at Moulmein, Bassein, Rangoon, or Akyab (but one port only), seventy running days to be allowed charterers for loading with teak, or fifty running days for loading with rice. In February, 1868, the ship arrived at Liverpool, and subsequently commenced loading at Birkenhead, during which time a supplemental charter was agreed upon between defendants and the captain, by which Messrs. Findlay agreed not to send the ship to Shanghai if they had option to send her to Annesley Bay, and to pay ten shillings per ton extra on homeward cargo if they took that course. The vessel arrived at Aden on the 25th July, and completed the discharge of cargo on the 1st September. The captain telegraphed that he was waiting orders, which he received on the 24th October, directing him to proceed to Amherst. She arrived there in ballast on the 10th January, and on the 13th February the vessel was ordered by the defendants' agents to Rangoon, where she loaded a cargo of rice. The captain claimed demurrage for detaining the vessel at Aden, and on her arrival at Liverpool the plaintiff, the owner, placed a stop upon the cargo, which was only released on the defendants depositing a sum of £1,000. The question was whether the plaintiff was entitled to demurrage for the detention at Aden.

Judgment was for the plaintiff for £1,000, the amount claimed.

THE LOSS OF THE "WILLEM III."—His Netherland's Majesty's screw corvette Valk, Commander Clifford, sailed from Portsmouth on the 27th ult. for the Scheldt, with the troops landed from the Netherlands Company's troopship Willem III., recently burnt off the Isle of Wight, and the Government treasure recovered from the wreck since she has lain in her present position on the Spit shoals near the entrance of Portsmouth Harbour. Steam pumps have been sent off to the iron shell remaining of the ship from the fire, and after the holes made in the bottom have been plugged up, and the water inside pumped out, and the hull floated, it will be towed into Portsmouth harbour for clearance, examination, and report.

ADULTERATION OF TEA.—In the House of Commons, on the 2nd inst., in answer to Lord E. Cecil, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said no regulation could be made to require Custom-house officers to detain tea suspected of adulteration under the existing law, and he would not take upon himself to recommend the enactment of a law to provide for making such regulations, because such a course would render the Customs more unpopular than they were at present, and would not prevent adulteration by the retailer.

The Juno, corvette, Captain J. K. E. Baird, having undergone extensive repairs to her hull and machinery at Hong Kong, has been added to the strength of the China squadron.

In all probability the Wolverine, corvette, Captain W. R. Wratistaw, will shortly be ordered from the East Indies to augment Admiral Kellett's fleet in China and Japan.

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, May 30.

Accounts from Berlin announce the resignation of Count Eulenburg (who will be known to many of your readers in the Far East as the head of the Prussian diplomatic mission to China and Japan) from his post of Minister of the Interior, and he will probably be succeeded in that appointment by Count Königsmark, at present resident at Posen, in his capacity of Governor-General (civil) of the province of Prussian Poland. It is added that the Count will be furnished with very extensive power, and proceed to Strasburg as Civil Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, in replacement of the present functionary, Herr von Kuhlweber.

A very important meeting of delegates of maritime towns belonging to the German Commercial Congress was held last week at Berlin by special invitation, to take into consideration what steps could be taken to obtain redress and compensation for German shipowners, on account of their losses incurred by the late war with France. Thirty-four maritime towns were represented at the meeting, and Herr Commerz-rath Brunnin, of Stettin, was elected as President. The chairman pointed out that circumstances had greatly changed since their last meeting in October, when their object was to obtain a promise of a separate demand for compensation from France over and above the amount that might be demanded as the war indemnity. Very lately, however, Prince Bismark had made a declaration in Parliament, according to which their claims were not only recognised in principle, but a promise was given that the amount should be paid by Germany out of the five milliards to be received from France as indemnity for the expenses of the war, though only for ships captured and sunk by the enemy. But there was another and much more numerous class of shipowners whose claims for compensation could not be ignored; he alluded to those whose vessels had been obliged to remain idle in foreign ports, or forced to take shelter in neutral harbours for fear of capture, whilst the German Consuls steadily refused to give them clearances and permit them to sail—even at their own risk and responsibility—and withheld permission to discharge their crews, thereby putting them to useless and unavoidable expenses for wages, provisions, and port charges whilst the vessels were earning nothing. It now became their duty to their constituents at home to come to an understanding as to the claims they should make for compensation for this class of owners; for whereas the number of vessels actually captured, condemned, and sold was only between one and two hundred, there were several thousand included in the other category. The meeting unanimously agreed to the principle of asking for a moderate compensation for the latter class of shipowners, but their views diverged considerably as to the definition of the term moderate. After a protracted discussion the meeting agreed to the following demands:—1. Full compensation for the value of ships and cargo captured but not returned in natura, according to the stipulations contained in the Preliminary Treaty of Peace, the amount claimed to be the value of the respective objects at the time of the capture. 2. Reimbursement of port charges, notarial expenses, the purchase of provisions, and sending home of ships and cargoes, compelled by the Consuls to remain inactive in foreign ports. 3. Compensation to captains and crews captured and detained in France as prisoners of war, according to the following scale:—Captains $400 each, mates $200, petty officers $150, and seamen $100 each. Dr. Soetbeer, the delegate for Hamburg, and Dr. Schumacher, the representative of Bremen, were requested to draw up a petition in this sense for presentation to Prince Bismark as Chancellor of the German Empire.

The Hamburg Börsen-Halle of the 25th inst. contains an article advocating very decidedly the expediency of appointing a Consul Missus in Siam instead of having there as Consular Agent a merchant connected with one of the German houses at Bangkok. It then gives a full translation of the despatch of Mr. D. K. Mason, the Siamese Consul in London, dated October 26, 1870, taken from a Bangkok journal, but which is also printed in the Straits Times of March 1, 1871, giving particulars of the rendition of six cargoes of Siamese produce, and adding the remarks of the Straits Times on the transaction, which imply a reflection on the conduct of the German Consul, whose duty it is to make out the Custom-house clearances and grant the certificates of the manifests. "It is the more remarkable," it says, "that those articles free of export duty show the usual deficiency in weight on their arrival in England, whilst those subject to duty exhibit a marked and unaccountable increase of weight." The Börsen-Halle, in pleading strongly in favour of the appointment of Consules Missi, concludes by saying "the honour of German mercantile houses must be above suspicion, like that of our wives, and we cannot afford to risk its being subject to the breath of calumny for the sake of saving a few thousand dollars which Germany is quite rich enough to pay."

COMMERCIAL.

There is but little to say about the produce markets, which are very quiet generally, on account of the holidays, though on the whole prices are well supported. Among the sales of raw sugar were 6,850 kranjangs of Batavia in loco at 11 mks. bco., 467 do. for delivery on arrival at 17½, and 18,200 do. brown Batavia, also for delivery, at 11 mks. bco. The cargo of tea per M. M. Jones that has come to hand was previously sold for arrival. The sales by importers comprised 1,968 chests of Congou, and 269½ do. of Souehong; a few hundred packages were also disposed of by the dealers, all at former rates. Rice is dull of sale and a shade lower; of rough no dealings reported. Pepper is also out of favour, and prices a trifle lower. No alteration in Cassia Ligna, which is firmly held. Nothing to say about Spelter, which is offered at 11½ mks. bco.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Madras, from Hong Kong; M. M. Jones, from Foochow. SAILED.—Hadia, to Manila; Cesar Godeffroy, to Navigators' Islands; Peter Godeffroy, to Otaheite.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, MAY 30.

The Second Chamber have approved of the Budget of the Colonial Department by fifty-five against eight votes. Never, probably, was a Budget voted with so much haste. Not one of the members seemed to consider the occasion fit for a thorough colonial debate. Mr. Hasselman stated that discontent prevailed in Java, and that an energetic and efficient man was required at the head of the Government; he meant to infer that Mr. van Bosse, who never has visited Java, could not be "the right man in the right place." He was of opinion that a Minister who had failed to reorganise the tax system in Holland would certainly be unsuccessful in controlling public affairs in Java. He raised no opposition to the credits asked for, though he should vote against the Budget. Mr. Nierstraz—also a member of the Opposition benches—did not go so far; on the contrary, he believed that Mr. van Bosse was not so Radical as in times gone by, that he would maintain the status quo, and that he would decline to be led by the ultra-Radicals, for all which reasons he did not care to oppose quand meme. Mr. van Goltstein wished to give the Minister the opportunity to explain the principal points of his policy—a policy as yet unknown. He asked the Minister pertinently if he adhered to the principles of his predecessor, to which Mr. Mirandolle replied in the negative. Mr. van Goltstein then demonstrated that the Minister de Waal had not enforced the Agrarian Law in the way he had promised; the Royal decree had not conferred on the natives the right of property in land, which was the leading wish of the Liberals. Therefore, the member wished to know whether the Minister would revoke the decree; if he refused, then he should vote against the Budget. Messrs. Sloet and van Kerkwyk supported Mr. Mirandolle, whilst Mr. 't Jacob remembered that, when the members dealt with the Agrarian Bill, it was stated it would not decide the colonial question. There was another main point in the debate, besides the questions of the East India tariff, the examination of public functionaries, and the medical service in Java, viz., the question of the transfer of our settlements on the coast of Guinea. On this head Mr. Gratama asked whether the statement of the West African Herald of March 31 was true, and Mr. van Sypteyn whether the transfer was un fait accompli. The Minister of the Colonial Department replied that it was his intention to apply liberally the fundamental rule of 1854; that he wished to maintain the culture of coffee, but with the necessary improvements. He further declared that he did not approve of all the actions of his predecessor, especially with regard to the Agrarian Law. Before he took a final decision in this matter he wished to wait for further information from India; then, after having examined the question, he will make further proposals. With regard to the question of the transfer of our African settlements he declared that the Chamber could, if so disposed, annul the treaty with England.

Yesterday a meeting of shareholders in the Steam Line Company Nederland was held at Amsterdam; the main subject for consideration was, of course, the loss of the Willem III. The managers stated that they could not give any elucidations as to the cause of the fire, but it was quite certain that it was not the spontaneous heating of the coals. It was further stated that three members of the council of managers with two commissaries had been appointed to make an ample investigation. This composition of the Commission was regarded by some shareholders as not being impartial; they would prefer that eminent and neutral nautical men should be appointed, or that the Government should compose a commission, in order that the company should be wholly justified in the eyes of the public. The question is not yet decided; the managers will consider the matter. The passengers will have the option to take passage by the next steamer, or half the passage money will be returned.

A pamphlet has been published here in which the question is considered whether it is desirable that the expiring treaty between the Government and the Trading Company should be renewed. The question is very important, but the author, Mr. F. W. C. Blom, M.P., arrives at no conclusion.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

In anticipation of the Trading Company's Coffee sale, taking place here to-day, there has been but little activity in this article since my last. Sugar continues in active request since the Trading Company's public sale, the current result of which was reported in my last, but the reserve of holders does not permit of much business being done. Other articles mostly exhibit a firm appearance, but transactions have been on a limited scale, which to some extent may be attributed to the intervening Whitsuntide holidays.

COFFEE is firm in the face of the coming public sale, but there has been but little business. Sales have been closed of 400 bags Java, ex Noach III., 480 chests do., ex Nagasaki, besides some very small parcels.

SUGAR.—An active demand has prevailed since the late public sale, and ready buyers could be found at the parity of the prices paid at the same. There is, however, little on offer, and a material advance is demanded.

TEA.—No transactions worth notice. Buyers keep on the reserve in anticipation of the appearance in the market of the cargo lately imported from Foochow per Winder mare, which soon will be announced for sale by public auction.

SPICES.—Hardly any business has been doing since my last, but prices keep steady.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—The following sales have been closed by private tender: 736 bales Java, marks, AS/Malang K.P.; 1,064 bales HL; 500 bales do. PA Malang. Large quantities will be offered here tomorrow in public sale.

THE CHINESE DESPATCH.

THE last mail brought us what purported to be the text of the Circular of the Government at Peking, a telegraphic summary of which was received a month since, and has since been the subject of discussion in our columns and by all interested in China. We need hardly commend a document of such importance to our readers' attentive perusal; nor need we, so far as our subscribers are concerned, point out the insidious tone of the Circular. But, for the information of readers who are not familiar with the Far East, it may be desirable to request particular attention to those parts of the Circular which, while they contain threats of the most arrogant kind as to the proposed curtailment of our treaty rights, are so euphuistically worded as to seem like the remonstrances of an injured person, instead of being the menaces of an unpunished assassin. Affecting to be addressed to us on the score of conscience, the present Circular is in reality neither more nor less than an attempt on the part of the mandarins to "fit the velvet glove on the iron hand"—a study after BISMARCK. The late JOSEPH HUME, who, with all his faults, was unquestionably a sincere Reformer, and an honest man, used to say that he hated to hear anybody mention the word "delicacy," because his experience assured him that something shabby was sure to follow such an exordium. In too many cases the plea of "Conscience" has been made the stalking-horse for ulterior and sinister views, but in none within our experience more palpably than in the Circular under notice. It is a sarcasm not directed only at our religion, but also to our presumed indifference to it; and, if it should fail to meet the prompt and indignant repudiation it demands, it can merely fill the public mind of the Chinese with the most presumptuous anticipations of finally expelling foreigners from their shores as the natural consequence of any apparent temporary success in this experiment. We would emphatically warn our readers not to treat the present as merely a "missionary question" for a single moment. The attack apparently directed against the missionaries is in reality aimed at the whole body of foreigners. Therefore, in resisting the present audacious proposal to ignore our treaty rights, our mercantile friends will be in reality fighting their own battles; for they may be assured that, if the Circular be not promptly repudiated, it will be "their turn next." This is something like the way in which the literati will argue, if they are encouraged to imagine, even for a moment, that the present proposal of their Government is seriously entertained by ours:—

"No sincere man values anything more highly than his religion. No brave man suffers so willingly for anything as his religion. No honourable man can be brought to consent that the doctrine he believes and teaches ought to be silenced by Government decrees and mere force. Therefore, if we can fix the stigma of withdrawing their religion from the Flowery Land, we succeed in attaching to them the lasting reproach of being neither sincere, brave, nor honourable—which is precisely what we mandarins wish the common people to believe. After we have succeeded in proving that the English nation has no more attachment to their religion than to allow its teachings to be silenced

"and its teachers murdered with impunity, we shall have no great difficulty in disposing of their commerce, their presence among us, and even their communication with us. It is the easiest way in the world to degrade, insult, or punish a people, through the excuse of religion, because all religions in the world's history have always been persecuted in exact proportion to their purity, and as a preliminary step to charging the believers in particular creeds with crimes nearly as atrocious, and quite as unfounded, as the calumnies which we mandarins circulate against the Christian missionaries now."

MR. MAGNIAC, M.P., will this evening ask Lord ENFIELD whether Her MAJESTY'S Government have yet received the copy of the Circular addressed by the Chinese Government to the Foreign Ministers. We have reason to believe that the Under-Secretary will reply that the Government have not received such a document, but that some of the despatches by the mail by which it might have been sent were lost on the way. The committee of the various missionary bodies which united to form a deputation to the Foreign Secretary, to learn his sentiments with regard to the Chinese Circular, as we stated in our issue of the 8th May, are now deliberating whether they shall postpone their inquiry till the Government admit that they have received official intelligence of the Circular, or whether they shall take action in the matter without further delay.

POSTAL SUBSIDIES.

OUR readers will remember that, when lately discussing the postal service between England and the Far East, we were compelled to notice the unpropitious spirit in which the new Postmaster-General expressed himself with regard to mail subsidies. The following extract from the reply of the same honourable gentleman to a deputation which waited on him for the purpose of urging the importance of keeping Southampton as a point for the departure of the mails is even more discouraging.

MR. MONSELL replied to the representations of the deputation by saying:—

Be this as it may, the important fact remains that both the contracts with the Royal Mail Company come to an end in December, 1874, and it is not at all probable that any similar contracts will be entered into. There are already several lines of steamers running to the Brazils, as well as to many of the ports embraced in the present West India scheme, and this department will, no doubt, on the termination of the contracts be able to make arrangements for the transmission of the mails by some of the vessels then running, without any regard to the port to and from which they may sail.

After what has been here stated, and seeing that the policy of the Post-office for a long time past has been, and is still, to send the ocean mails by established lines of steam vessels, and to adapt the mail service as much as possible to the ordinary mercantile traffic, rather than require such traffic to give way to the mail service, it will no doubt be apparent to the deputation that so far from any practical benefit being derived from the suggested inquiry by a select committee, such an inquiry would be objectionable. It would naturally encourage a belief that the determination of the best port for a packet station would be followed by new contracts for mail services from such port, and thus expectations would be raised which could only lead to vexation and disappointment. Her Majesty's Government are disinclined to enter into any packet contracts for a term of years.

As a natural and inevitable consequence of this kind of policy, no Steam Company will ever again be likely—at least during the existence of the present Government—to construct docks, and build vessels, shipyards, machinery, and offices, as the P. and O. Company and Royal Mail Company have done at Southampton, solely for the purpose of being told by a Liberal Government that their public spirit would be entirely thrown away, as no contract would be entered into for such a term as could alone repay or justify the outlay.

WE are glad to hear that, according to the last advices from the Resident Engineer at Colombo, the Colombo Gas and Water Company's works are proceeding in a rapid and most satisfactory manner. The foundations of the buildings (and of the gas-holder especially), which it was feared might have entailed considerable difficulty and expense, have proved much better than was anticipated, and all difficulties in these respects have been overcome. The boundary wall has been erected, the whole of the foundations of the buildings put in (with the exception of that of the tar-well), the brickwork of the retort-house all round raised as high as the plinth, the building of the ovens was about being commenced, as also the putting in the bottom tank plates of the gas-holder tank.

The bed of brickwork was completed for receiving the condensers. The scrubbers had been fixed, and all the other work, including laying of mains, was in an equally advanced state. Great credit is due to the resident engineer, Mr. SIMPSON, and to the contractors' representative, Mr. LAWRIE, for the energy displayed by them in all the arrangements connected with our works, and the progress made therein, the first spade having been put into the ground only on the 9th January last, and the first portion of the plant having only arrived on the 4th February last. If all continues to go on as well as heretofore, the directors expect to be able to deliver gas to the town by the beginning of August next.

SOME time ago we drew attention to the fact that the Spanish Government had offered a subsidy for a line of steamers between Barcelona and Manila, via the Suez Canal, and that the idea had been taken up by some enterprising persons, who thought the proposed line might be advantageously extended to China. We have now before us the prospectus of the "European and Eastern Steamship Company," the incentive to the formation of which has apparently been the offer of the above-named subsidy. The amount of this subsidy has been variously stated at from £100,000 to £240,000 per annum; the latter sum, it will be apparent to all persons, is far beyond the capabilities of either the Spanish Government or the trade of the Philippines. The proposal before us states the subsidy as £100,000, and is accompanied by an estimate for the construction and working of six vessels, to form a line starting from London or Liverpool, calling at Barcelona—thence through the Suez Canal to Manila, Hong Kong, and Shanghai.

We invite attention to the evidence of Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK and Mr. COOPER, before the Indian Finance Committee, given in another column, simply because it corroborates the article which we published in our last, in reply to our correspondent TAU, in our last issue. The only point on which our convictions are strengthened by the evidence of these gentlemen is one on which we are almost sorry to be confirmed in our opinion—namely, that the use of opium is not an unmitigated evil. Mr. COOPER says that "when a coolie has his opium regularly he can perform prodigies of work." This certainly does not excuse the traffic in a poison which must ultimately undermine the constitution, but it needs only for us to look into the condition of our manufacturing districts at home to find that "prodigies of work" are required from masses of persons who would never be able to perform them, unless they discounted their after-life by the use of stimulants and the habitual over-exertion which makes stimulants necessary.

A SHORT time ago we had occasion to remark on the inefficiency of the private steamers laid on for the Straits, China, and Japan, via the Suez Canal. We now find by the Straits journals that this inefficiency in transit is accompanied by reckless carelessness, if not wilful negligence, in delivering cargo. The Penang correspondent says:—

Goods are shipped in good order, and lines such as the P. and O., Jardine's, and Apcar's, allow consignees to take delivery of their goods alongside, and no complaints are ever made; but the other lines discharge their vessels themselves, storing the goods in their own godowns. The goods are kept there two or three days, and delivery is then taken of them in apparently good order, but when the cases are opened there are nearly always found to be contents missing; bags of pepper are short several cetties each; fish maws and other things are always found to be short weight. Out of a shipment by the Glendaroch the other day of 190 bags of pepper, there was a loss on the whole of nearly 12 piculs! Another shipper of 205 bags of pepper by the same steamer lost 11 piculs from his consignment, and many others have similar reasons to complain of the robberies of their goods.

It is certain that shipowners cannot expect to compete with the established lines above mentioned, or even to obtain any share of the trade, unless they make a sweeping reform of these irregularities.

A TELEGRAM has been received from Singapore announcing a tremendous volcanic eruption in the island of Rua (supposed to be the Dutch settlement of Rhio). The country, it is stated, was devastated, and four hundred lives lost.

THE P. AND O. CO.'S HALF-YEARLY MEETING.

At this meeting, which is to be held on the 6th inst., we understand that an interim dividend of three per cent. will be recommended by the directors. The following is an abstract of the report:—

THE COMPANY'S FLEET.

The tabular form contains, as usual, particulars of the tonnage, horse power, and present stations of the company's fleet; and, on comparison with that which formed part of the last report, the following changes will be noted:—

The Khedive and Indus have been brought upon the active list, the former being now on her voyage to China, via the Suez Canal, and the latter being appointed to leave Southampton for India on the 3rd inst. The Mirzapore was launched on the 20th ultimo, and is now being fitted out by Messrs. Caird and Co., at Greenock, and the same builders are making satisfactory progress with the Peshawur (called in the last report the Agra) and the Pekin.

The Salsette, the three small vessels, the Formosa, Azof, and Norna, the sailing transport ship Haddington, and the hulks Zenobia and Broughton Hall have been sold. The directors have the satisfaction to state that the navigation of the fleet has not been attended by any accident since the date of the last meeting.

GENERAL REDUCTION OF THE RATES OF PASSAGE-MONEY.

The opening of the Suez Canal has had the natural effect of introducing a considerable change in the course of passenger traffic to and from the East. Many of the screw steam-ships, placed on that line for commercial purposes, have a certain amount of accommodation for passengers, so that, in addition to the competition of the fine sailing ships via the Cape, the company has to encounter opposition of a more direct nature.

Under these circumstances the directors, while feeling that the company's vessels present superior advantages for the accommodation of the travelling public, considered it would be for the interest of the proprietors so to modify the rates of passage-money as to assimilate them more nearly to those of their competitors, and a general abatement, equivalent to about 20 per cent., was, consequently, brought into operation about the middle of March. In deference, also, to what appeared to be the wish of the majority of the passengers, they have discontinued the system of including the supply of wines, spirits, and beer, in the charge for passage-money, and have undertaken to furnish these articles at a moderate tariff on board the ships.

It is too early at present to estimate the effect of these changes, but the proprietors may be assured that in what has been and may yet be done the directors are fully alive to the importance of maintaining the high position of the company, and at the same time of adapting its arrangements to the altering requirements of the times.

OPERATIONS OF THE HALF-YEAR.

The company's business during the six months embraced in this report has been carried on under considerable depression, arising from the unsettled state of affairs on the Continent, and from the effects of severe competition, the result being a diminution of the receipts as compared with the corresponding period of former years. It affords the directors, however, much gratification to state that the reductions in some of the more important items of expenditure, which were adverted to in the last report, have been maintained.

Monetary and Commercial.

After the long depression in India Exchanges, on which the success of our Indian Banks so much depends, it is gratifying to notice an improvement, and also that the rates of interest in Calcutta, which have ruled at four to five per cent., have now risen to six to seven. The Exchanges in China with the new tea season will also advance.

Our readers will probably remember the disastrous report of the National Bank of India, published some two months since, and the severe comments which it gave rise to at the general meeting held in London. Mr. Murdoch Maciver, the shareholder who made these comments, now writes to The Times in reply to a letter from their Calcutta correspondent, to explain that he had no animus in bringing forward the serious questions mooted at the meeting, which had till then escaped notice from the Press, though the shareholders, who are widely domiciled in Europe and India, have some knowledge of them. In consequence of the letter in The Times, however, the shareholders may perhaps accept The Times correspondent's opinion as the weighty opinion of The Times itself, and so be biassed against the exertions which Mr. Maciver says he is still making to reform the management of the Bank. He says:—

"During three years earned only 2 1-5th per cent. per annum, with cash resources ranging from a million and a quarter sterling in 1868 to £2,200,000 in 1870. Since June of that year no profit has been made, but severe losses have been sustained out of capital; and a shareholder in such circumstances might be pardoned for speaking plainly to directors drawing £3,000 a year from the capital under the name of fees, but doing no good to the bank in return."

What he means by "cash resources" is difficult to say, but if he means that this amount represented capital and deposits on which the Bank had to pay a dividend, he evidently does not understand his subject, as the larger the amount the less the dividend.

The prospectus of the Penang Plantations Company has been issued, with a capital of £50,000, in 10,000 shares of £5 each. The company is established for the purpose of acquiring land and plantations in Penang and elsewhere. Power is taken to purchase the Alma Estate and all rights for £28,000, payable—£12,000 in cash, £8,000 in deferred debentures, £8,000 in deferred shares, and a further £2,000 by way of additional purchase money. The original subscribers are Messrs. J. Browne, United Universities Club, Pall-mall, 5 shares; Wm. Stephens, 2, Constitution-crescent, Milton, Gravesend, 5 shares; Alfred R. Locke, 1, Palmerston-buildings, 5 shares; Leonard Wray, Eagle Lodge, Ramsgate, 5 shares; Cromwell F. Varley, Whitehall Club, Parliament-street, 5 shares; H. E. Montgomerie, 17, Gracechurch-street, 5 shares; J. W. Mulhury, Vestbourne-terrace, 5 shares; and Frederick Pontifex, University Club, 5 shares.

The fiftieth annual report of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce contains some information of interest to our readers. The new Convention with China, negotiated by Sir Rutherford Alcock, as supplementary to the Treaty of Tientsin, it will be remembered, excited much dissatisfaction, and the memorial of the chamber showed that its effect would be to impose vexatious restrictions on trade, that there was no protection afforded against the exactions hitherto imposed by local officials, and that there was no sufficient guarantee for the fulfilment of treaty engagements. In consequence of these representations Her Majesty's Government determined to defer to the wishes expressed by the different commercial associations in this country, and also in China, and the Royal ratification was accordingly withheld. The influence of the Manchester Chamber has also been successfully exerted in obtaining a remission of fines and a withdrawal of the confiscation of goods, which, owing to the carelessness of a servant, had been shipped to Manila under a wrong declaration; the circumstances of the case, and the high standing of the house concerned, proving conclusively that the occurrence was to be attributed solely to error.

Another attempt is being made to upset the amalgamation of the Imperial Bank of China and the Hindustan Bank by a shareholder in the former.

Messrs. Southern, Quilty, and Co., of Fenchurch-street, announce that they have opened a branch of their firm in Bombay, under the style of R. L. Southern and Co. Mr. William Wilson Baily, who has had considerable experience in the East India trade, principally in Bombay, will have the management of the business, and will sign the firm by procuration.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison and Rehden's Circular:—The market has continued firm for useful to medium quality of Congou, and the limited business transacted confined chiefly to these grades. In reference to the new season 1871-2: from Canton about 1,500 boxes of new make Congou have come to hand, of fine quality; from Shanghai, under date 12th April, the market at Hankow is expected to open early, and the cost of the leaf at the producing districts likely to be lower than last year; from Foochow advices speak well of the prospects for a better crop. For export there has been business in good common black-leaf at 11d. to 1s. per lb., and a few fine Monings at 2s. to 2s. 2d. per lb. Black: But little has been done in leafy to good flavour red-leaf, but Kaisow kinds at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. are in very small supply, and have been generally inquired for. Tayshan Leaf: A few sales, chiefly of second hand, have taken place at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. in boxes of medium quality; the new season's are fine and of good aroma, and have sold at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 8d. per lb. Black Leaf: Ordinary quality remains as last advised, but fair good to common can be quoted slightly dearer; fair to medium quality is scarce, and has realised a further small advance, quotations closing at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 4d. per lb.; fine and finest have sold in small lots at about 1d. per lb. lower. Souchong: No change. Oolong: Easier rates. Scented Teas: No change to advise, transactions being on the smallest scale. Green calls for no special remarks.

There was a small public sale on the 1st inst., at which 743 packages were sold "without reserve." With the exception of 374 packages of Japan green tea, which realised full rates, the teas offered were olds and ends, and call for no special notice. At the close there are more signs of activity, though little business has been transacted, holders being firm. Common and medium Moning continue in good request; fine grades are comparatively neglected. In common red-leaf descriptions there is as yet no improvement.

SILK.

A dull, flat, dragging market has prevailed, with very limited business in desirable classes of Silk, and hardly any business at all in those descriptions not required by manufacturers, still consumption has been highly satisfactory, the deliveries being, with the exception of March last, the largest in total since June of last year, which go far to prove that manufacture goes briskly forward, notwithstanding the deplorable events on the Continent. Importers and holders have, in many instances of late, shown much disposition to sell, in the face of the recent disasters in Paris, and the prospects of a good European crop, and this has naturally depressed an already dull market, and cut ed prices to decline, although not to any important extent, say about 1s. on Chinas and Cantons, and 1s. to 2s. on Japans, the latter Silks having to be forced where sales were demanded. At the present ruling rates, say 24s. for Red Peacock and 16s. to 16s. 6d. for good market Teatlee Canton, there has been a small steady business doing, and it is not at all improbable that the market would speedily strengthen under better news from France, and the certainty of order being restored in Paris. With regard to the European crops, it is just a little too early to speak confidently of the result, but the chances are in favour of a very fair yield; the assurance of such being the case will hardly act upon our market, the prospects of an abundant crop having probably been already discounted. The deliveries in May were—China, 2,696 bales; Canton, 909 bales; Japan, 567 bales; Bengal, 329 bales; total, 4,501 bales. Stock, China, 13,799 bales; Japan, 7,778 bales.

COFFEE.

Subsequently to the issue of our report of the 22nd ult. the demand fell off, and for inferior qualities of plantation Ceylon prices gave way 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt. Latterly the quantity offered at auction has been light, and the market has in consequence assumed a rather steadier appearance. Transactions comprise, 2,663 casks 784 tierces and barrels, 1,023 bags Plantation Ceylon, low middling palish to middling colour 59s. to 67s., good middling to very good bold 68s. to 79s., small 55s. to 58s.; 94 casks 780 bags Native Ceylon, good ordinary 52s. to 53s., small 47s. 6d. to 49s., peas 56s.; and 350 bags Singapore mixed pale 48s. 6d. to 50s., Bonthyne 53s.

Compared to the heavy landings in the corresponding week last year, those in the present show a deficiency of 1,450 tons, and as the deliveries for the week are of good extent and nearly 400 tons in excess, the stock now shows a relative deficiency of 1,550 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 352,660 cwt., against 303,452 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1870; Native 47,586 cwt., against 32,519 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 9,409 cwt. Plantation, against 15,177 cwt., and 2,326 cwt. Native, against 6,992 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-one weeks ended May 27, 1871, was, of Ceylon, 12,339 tons, against 11,249 tons during the corresponding period of 1870; of all descriptions, 21,133 tons, against 19,486 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 4,228 tons, against 4,331 tons; of all descriptions, 7,635 tons, against 7,865 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 10,681 tons, against 9,014 tons; of all descriptions, 21,105 tons, against 14,591 tons. The stock on May 27 was, of Ceylon, 11,035 tons, against 11,768 tons; of all descriptions, 17,191 tons, against 18,749 tons.

The Dutch Trading Company's public sale of 83,800 bags Java, &c., held on the 30th ult. at Rotterdam, went off steadily at 4c. to 4c. above the valuations, which were about 1½c. below the prices realised at the previous sale in April; good ordinary brought 33½c. to 34c., against 34½c. to 35c. in April.

SUGAR.

The active demand noticed in our last report has continued, but owing to the scarcity of suitable refining qualities, and the high rates demanded for low descriptions, the business done has been less extensive. Prices have further improved 6d. to 1s. per cwt. Transactions comprise, on the spot, 900 bags 2,300 baskets Penang, brown to middling yellow 28s. 6d. to 31s., brown Date 19s. to 22s.; 310 bags low brown Siam at 21s.; and 83,000 bags Manila, Zebu 22s., Taal 21s. 6d., 110 110 23s., and low to fine clayed 25s. to 27s. 3d. per cwt.

The landings for the week are the smallest for some time past, although including 810 tons Beetroot, and are 15,000 tons less than in 1870, and the deliveries being only 400 tons less, the deficiency in the stock is further enlarged to nearly 20,000 tons. Stock, May 20, 61,253 tons, against 79,985 tons; May 27, 1871, 60,251 tons, against 80,102 tons. The quantity of Sugar landed in the twenty-one weeks ended May 27, 1871, was, of Penang, 327 tons, against 1,105 tons in the corresponding period of 1870; of Manila, Java and China, 10,946 tons, against 8,142 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,380 tons, against 1,016 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 12,131 tons, against 10,230 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 112 tons, against 44 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 694 tons, against 1,600 tons. The stock on May 27 was, of Penang, 1,811 tons, against 2,375 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 25,915 tons, against 32,102 tons.

CINNAMON.

The Quarterly sales were held on the 22nd ult.; they comprised a total quantity of about 1,900 bales Ceylon and 144 bales Tellioberry, together with sundry parcels and boxes of broken. The attendance was very good, and demand being general, the auction passed off with fair spirit, nearly everything offered being sold. Really fine quill was strongly competed for, and realised 2d. to 3d. advance; Good steady; fair occasionally lower; ordinary and mixed kinds with flavour sold at irregular but generally lower prices, say 1d. and 2d. decline; Low bastard or Sas-afra bark was unsaleable even at 2d. per lb. Of 1,614 bales genuine character, the bulk was placed. 1st sort sup. ror at 3s. 3d. to 3s. 8d. per lb. fair to very fine; 1st sort 2s. 8d. to 3 ½ 6d. per lb. middling to very fine; 1s. 9d. to 2s. 2d. ordinary; 2nd 2s. 6d. to 3s. 4d. per lb. middling to very fine; 1s. 7d. to 1s. 8d. ordinary; 3rd 2s. to 3s. 1d. per lb. middling to very fine; 11d. to 1s.

Of 3,612 bags, &c., Chips offered, only a small proportion found buyers, chiefly the better qualities; prices realised were—1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d. good to fine thin quilly; 3d. to 5½d. fair to fine shavings; 2½d. to 2½d. ordinary to middling shavings, part rather woody; 1½d. to 2½d. thick to thin bark. In addition 144 bales Tellicherry were offered, and all sold; 1sts 2s. 10d. to 3s. per lb.; 2nds 2s. 9d. good; 3rds 2s. 7d. to 2s. 8d. per lb. good; and 46 packages good quilly Chips sold at 1s. 6d.

CHINA.—A rather important quantity, 633 boxes, has been offered, but very little was placed, owing to the high prices asked. 20 boxes of fine small quill, neatly tied up in bundles, sold at 1s. 2d. per lb.; very good ditto at 1s. to 1s. 0½d., and good cuttings at 10d.; rest retired at similar quotations. 115 boxes very thick coarse tubes (quill) withdrawn at 40s., a few selling at 30s.

COIR GOODS.—The market is generally steady. At public sale, 85 bales Cochín Yarn were disposed of, good at £37 15s. to £38; common to medium, £28 10s. to £32 5s. 21 Dholls sold, common to good, £26 to £35 15s.; and 49 bales and 16 tons Ceylon were quitted—superior, at £52 5s. to £60; fine, £41 15s. to £48; good, £34 to £38 5s. Of Rope, 24 tons Cochín were offered, and buyers found for half at £24 10s. to £30 per ton.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon has been very quiet, and transactions during the fortnight have been extremely limited; the quotations given in our report of the 19th ult. are still the current rates, but a downward tendency is apparent.

CAMPHOR.—Previous to the 29th ult. the market for China was steady, and a fair business was done, some 500 cases changing hands at 65s. to 67s. 6d. per cwt.; the mail delivered on the 29th brought unfavourable advices with reference to this import, and since that date there has been but little inclination to purchase, and the above quotations are not now obtainable. Japan is scarce, and in this description no movement has been made. On the 1st about 100 cases China were sold at 65s.

CUTCH remains much in the same position as reported on the 22nd ult.; the known marks of Rangoon are firmly held, but transactions are upon the most moderate scale, and prices quite nominal. At auction, 1,700 boxes, from Penang, were offered, and fine sold readily from 19s. to 19s. 3d. per cwt.

CHINA PRESERVES.—No transactions have been effected during the fortnight.

CHINA GRASS.—Recently there was some demand, and a small quantity was quitted at £50, but the market has since become again dull.

CARDAMOMS.—An offer of 34 bags Ceylon found buyers at 2s. 9d. to 2s. 10d. for fair quality but slightly mouldy.

COPRA.—There is a good demand but no supply, and any offers brought forward would meet with a ready sale.

CUBERS.—The market is quiet, but prices are steady at last quotations, viz., 25s. to 26s. for good and 21s. 6d. for grey and stinky.

CAJAPUTA OIL.—The unusually heavy quantity of 325 cases, per Hibernia, a Singapore, JE in circle, has been offered and met a limited demand, only 35 cases finding buyers—these at 2s. 6d. per bottle.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—There is but little demand, and of an offer at public sale of 25 cases lump only one third was taken at £5 2s. 6d., the quality being fair but rather coarse.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Cinnamon very scarce, and wanted. Citronelle dull; of 80 cases at auction, a few fine sold at 2d. per oz. Lemon Grass dull; large arrivals, 54 cases at sale bought in. Anniseed has been in rather better demand, but business has been limited; retail sales at 8s. 9d., which is the closing price. Cassia dull, and sales at 4s. 4d. Nutmeg flat; 15 cases offered and retired.

EBONY.—No change; still inactive from absence of supply.

ISINGLASS.—Penang and Manila both extremely dull.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Sumatra 2nds firm, and good qualities scarce 80; packages (chiefly low) at auction, retired. Siam is very low, with only small retail transactions at previous value. Manila Copal is steady; 62 cases soft rather blocky and drossy sold at auction at 25s. per cwt. A better demand for hard is apparent, but little has yet been done. Damar steady; of 66 cases at sale, a few only sold, fair at 62s. 6d. Gamboge a shade lower, with arrivals; of 30 cases offered, three-fourths sold at £14 per cwt. for good bright pipe, £10 15s. to £12 ordinary to good pickings.

GALLS.—China are not so firm, a large quantity afloat causing holders to be reader sellers. Sales have been made of good at 46s. 6d. to 47s., being about 1s. per cwt. decline. A small parcel has been sold afloat at 47s. Japan: 50 cases good were retired from auction, but afterwards placed at 48s. per cwt.; this description is very scarce.

GAMBIER.—The market continues firm, but the demand is by no means active; sales of recently arrived parcels have been made, ex ship, at 16s. per cwt., all faults. Sales have also been made afloat at the same figure. In Cubes no business is reported.

GUTTA-PERCHA has been rather inactive, only small trade being done privately, at former value; no supplies at auction.

HEMP.—There is no alteration to report in the market for Manila, which has exhibited extreme quietude throughout the fortnight; about 800 to 500 bales only have changed hands, at prices showing no alteration, viz., £30 for ordinary, and £37 for good brown.

HIDES.—At the fortnightly sales held on the 1st, a smaller quantity was brought forward than for some time past, but the demand was limited and about one-fourth was bought in; prices, however, showing no alteration. Buffalo were chiefly bought in. 6,719 Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow sold, light 6½ to 6½ lb. at 8½d. to 9½d., heavy 8½ lb. at 8½d. to 8½d., extra 12 to 17½ lb. at 8d. to 8½d., small 4½ lb. at 8½d., calf 2½ lb. at 8½d., thirds 7 lb. at 6d. to 6½d. Buffalo: Of 2,254 Singapore and Penang 593 sold, light 16½ lb. at 6½d., best heavy 32½ lb. at 5½d., seconds 26½ lb. at 4d.

HORNS.—No business doing.

INDIA-RUBBER.—All East India descriptions have ruled quiet, excepting Assam, which has been dealt in to some extent; 50 baskets good pinky Singapore, Java kind, have been sold at 1s 10d. to 1s. 10½d. JAPAN WAX.—There has been no alteration in the tone of the market; high rates continue to rule, and the greater part of the stock is withheld from sale; privately a few transactions have been effected at 85s. per cwt. Subsequently, of 152 cases saucer offered 73 cases sold, good middling to good 85s. to 90s.

Musk is in moderate request, and prices for the better descriptions are well maintained; of 47 caddies in auction 30 sold: good fair shape well trimmed 35s. to 36s., wet 27s., middling second pile 19s. 6d., low rough and bally 16s. to 17s.; 3 tins good genuine grain were retired at 56s.; and 4 caddies Cabardine were placed at 12s. 6d. for new, roughly trimmed and very wet, to 16s. 6d. for really fine dry of good shape, &c.

PEPPER.—Black has been a shade easier, and less active, about 1,000 bags only having changed hands, Singapore at 5½d. to 5½d. per lb.; Penang at 4½d. to 4 15-16d.; West Coast at 5d. Several hundred bags have also been sold for October delivery at 4½d., the sellers having choice of delivering either Penang or Singapore. At auction 1,841 bags Singapore were offered, and part sold at 5 1-16d. per lb. for middling. White has been very firm and advancing: some 400 bags Singapore sold at 7½d. to 7½d., and a few bags subsequently at 8d. Only 255 bags at auction, which were retired. Several forward delivery contracts are said to have been cancelled by payment of differences. At the close a better demand prevailed, and about 1,500 bags Singapore Black sold at 5d. to 5½d., also 500 bags, ex previous auction, at 5 3-16d., and 250 bags Penang at 4 15-16d. to 5d.

PLUMBAGO.—The market for Ceylon is dull, except for fine descriptions. Of 1,379 barrels at auction, a very few only sold at barely previous value.

RHUBARB.—China has sold very irregularly, but generally with a downward tendency; at recent public sales, which embraced 210 cases, two-thirds were placed; fairly trimmed root, two-thirds fair fracture at 1s. 11d. to 2s.; middling to good middling at 1s. to 1s. 7d.; ordinary to middling, part rather rough coat at 6d. to 11d.

RISE.—The inquiry has continued good, and has now extended to soft grain descriptions. The transactions on the spot are not very heavy, but for arrival they reach a rather large total. Prices of all descriptions are in favour of the seller. Sales comprise, on the spot, 27,000 bags Rangoon, at 9s. 3d. to 9s. 6d.; 3,000 bags Madras, at 9s. 6d. to 10s.; 25,000 bags Billam, at 9s. 1½d. to 9s. 9d.; 6,000 bags Askoolie, at 9s. 4½d.; and 8,000 bags white Bengal, ordinary to fine, 10s. to 13s. 6d. per cwt. Afloat, 450 tons Askoolie at 10s. 6d.; and 2,400 tons middling white Bengal at 10s. 3d. to 12s. ex quay; and 1,250 tons Rangoon, spring shipment, at 10s. 3d. U.K.

RATTANS.—No transactions to report.

ROOTS.—Colombo: Market very dull, with few buyers. China: Following our last, 120 baskets, part of 200 baskets offered, well-trimmed root, sold at 23s. 6d. to 24s.; and at the last auctions, 69 baskets at 22s. to 22s. 6d., being 5s. decline.

SPICES.—Cassia Vera: There have been no transactions in Japan prices for which are nominal; Padang of fair quality sells at 76s. per cwt. Cassia Ligna: Only 49 cases offered, which sold at 99s. for stained and unworked; value of first and second quality nominal. Buds: Sales are reported at £6; market closes strong with inquiry for parcels afloat. Cloves: The market for Penang continues firm, although the supply is far in excess of requirements; no sales are reported. Cinnamon: See report of quarterly sales above. Nutmegs: Transactions by auction have been very limited; of 31 cases offered only half sold—69 to the lb. at 3s. 1d., 79 to 80 to the lb. at 2s. 6d., 85 to the lb. at 2s. 4d. to 2s. 5d.; small size nuts are very firm. Mace: Penang very firmly held, and market almost without transactions; 1 case fine washed retired at 4s. 2d., and 1 case small but bright at 3s. 8d.; 15 cases Java withdrawn at 3s. 6d. per lb., 2d. less being bid and refused.

SHELLS.—The periodical sales will take place on the 6th inst. The bulk of the stock of mother-o'-pearl, which is rather large, is firmly held, thus preventing consumers from operating to any extent, in the face of the quantities shortly expected to arrive. For good and fine descriptions of tortoise the market is firm, but inferior kind is dull.

SAGO.—The market is steady and fairly active, but the heavy stock (1,798 tons) stands in the way of any improvement; of 1,288 bags offered at auction, about one-half was sold at 16s. to 17s. per cwt. for medium to large. Flour is dull, and there have been no transactions.

SAPANWOOD.—Extreme prices are obtainable for fine quality Ceylon, which is very scarce; Manila and Siam are without inquiry; 27 tons of the former at public sale were retired.

SOY.—China steady at 2s. per gallon.

STAR ANNISEEDS.—In rather better enquiry, and about 70 cases placed by private contract at £5 9s. per cwt. for fair and good quality together: 10 cases at auction realised corresponding figures.

STICKLAC.—Without change, Siam being still scarce and firm; private business in good quality effected up to 75s. per cwt.

TAPIOCA.—With free arrivals, and heavy shipments; this import is difficult of sale; 714 bags very good and fine white (Rio kind) sold at 2d. to 2½d. per lb. Penang: of 461 bags offered, only a portion sold at 2d. per lb. for good white Alma brand; fair quality sells slowly at 1½d. to 2d. per lb. Pearl may be quoted at about 1s. per cwt. dearer; of 591 bags offered, nearly all sold:—Fine White small at 18s. 6d. to 19s.; good large grain at 18s. 6d.; dull large grain at 17s. 6d.; good medium grain at 18s. 6d. Flour is still very dull and neglected; stock very heavy, and fast increasing; 93 bags of Penang retired from sale 2d. per lb., and 77 bags good Singapore sold at 1½d. per lb.

TIN.—There is a good demand for Straits, the quotation for which on the spot has advanced to £127, while £126 has been refused for floating parcels; Banca is quoted £130.

TURMERIC.—Without demand, and no transactions to report; 102 bags Java offered at public sale and retired.

VERMILION.—Nothing doing in China; previous price nominally maintained.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—MAY 20.

—o—

TEA.

An active enquiry for nearly all descriptions has been exhibited throughout the fortnight, and prices have been firmly maintained, though no actual advance can be reported.

An article has appeared in the Chicago Tribune stating that the tea trade of the States is being rapidly revolutionised, with the sure prospect of being concentrated at a very early day in Chicago. It adds:—“For nearly a year past some of our leading South Water-street firms have been preparing the way for this result by experimenting on the cost of the two routes, and arriving at the exact rates for transportation overland necessary to ensure the complete abandonment of the ocean route. It is found that 5½ cents per pound is the lowest ocean rates from Yokohama to New York, including insurance and all other charges, as well as freight. Thereupon arrangements were promptly entered into by the Central and Union Pacific Companies, whereby the total rates from Yokohama to Chicago, including insurance and all charges, should be 4½ cents. The difference in time is between forty days by rail to Chicago, and one hundred and twenty days by the Suez route to New York. No sooner was this point reached than a considerable number of our merchants established direct agencies in Yokohama, sent on their orders, and the new and widening stream began to flow in good earnest. Twenty-five thousand chests of about sixty pounds to the chest have come by rail to Chicago direct within two months, for our Western trade, and about 50,000 chests have passed through Chicago to New York and other Eastern points.”

COFFEE.—The current quotations for East India kinds are, Java Government bags, 18c. to 20c.; Java mats, 18½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 17c. to 18c.; Manila, 14c. to 15c.; Native Ceylon, 15½c. to 17c., showing no change from those of our last issue. The market for Brazil is almost at a stand-still, owing to the continued absence of demand from consumers, who are purchasing their supplies elsewhere on better terms than this market affords. The parcels on hand or expected can only be sold at a loss of about 1c., and in some instances of 2c. per lb. There is, on the part of holders, a willingness to realise when current values can be obtained, but as this seems to be well nigh impossible, the business is restricted to the supply of the merest necessities of buyers. For East India kinds the market has been but moderately active, the inquiry from consumers having been limited. Java has been selling in a jobbing way at 19½c. to 19¾c. for pale, 20c. to 22½c. for yellow, and 23c. to 24c. for brown; and Singapore at 17½c. for pale, and 18c. to 19c. for yellow, there being no brown in stock; 2,000 bags Ceylon have also been quitted at the current quotations given above.

* This does not include the shipments per “Sun Foo” S.S., the manifest of which is not yet received.

CORDAGE.—Prices have again advanced half a cent, and we adjust our quotations accordingly; these rule as follows:—Manila Cordage, 18c.; do. 6 thread and 9 thread (¼ inch and 6 16 inch diameter), 19c.; do. 12 thread (¾ inch diameter), 18½c.; do. Hay Rope, 18½c.; Manila Cordage, bolt rope yarns, 20c.; do. 6 thread and 9 thread, 21c.; Tarred Manila, 17½c.; fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 19c.

CAMPOR.—China is quoted 15c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.20; Cassia, 95c. gold (in bond).

FIRE CRACKERS are in moderate demand at unchanged prices. Sales have been made of 1,800 boxes extra No. 1 at $2.45 to 2.50, and 4,000 do. on private terms.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is $3.85 to 3.87 gold (duty free). HEMP.—There has been but little alteration in the market for Manila during the fortnight; prices have been firm but without any great amount of activity. The sales reported are 1,500 bales fine quality ex Mindora (at Boston), at 11½c.; 500 bales low, ex Glenlyon, at 10½c., and 1,500 bales per Monte Rosa (before arrival), at 11c.; 60 days prompt all gold.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila has been very quiet, without change from the prices quoted in our report of a fortnight since.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 50c. to $1.25 currency (duty free).

RICE.—The arrival at Liverpool of the first cargoes of the new crop some time earlier than usual, owing to the transit via the Suez Canal, occasioned much excitement and activity in the market; subsequently this to some extent subsided, but a fairly active inquiry is still maintained and prices are well supported. The fortnight's sales of Rangoon amount to 5,200 bags for home consumption at $6.75 to 7.25 currency, and 10,000 bags in bond at $3.30 to 3.50 gold. The first supply of the new crop Rangoon was received on May 17. This arrival is fully two months in advance of any previous year, having come via Suez Canal and England. The quality is unusually good—especially in colour, owing to quick transit—the ordinarily long passage via Cape of Good Hope causing cargo to heat, with consequent deterioration in colour. This importation is an experiment, but the high cost in freight will probably prevent further shipments by the Canal.

SUGAR.—Just before the close of the market an active demand sprung up for West Indian kinds, chiefly from Refiners, induced by concessions made by holders, and a larger business was done than for some time past. The activity has not yet extended to East India descriptions, and the only sale to report is of 53,021 bags Manila, per Golden Fleece (before arrival) on private terms.

SPICES.—An invoice of 3,000 cases and 3,000 bales Cassia has been received from China, via Manila, and remains unsold. A parcel of 200 piculs Pepper, to arrive at Boston per Polly Lewis, sold on private terms. There is more inquiry for Pepper in bond, for export, but prices are unchanged. There continues a good jobbing demand, and the market remains steady for most goods. Sales have been made in lots of Mace at $1.15; Nutmegs, at 84c. for Penang; Cassia, 31c. to 31½c.; Pepper, 16c. for Sumatra, and 16½c. for Singapore; White Pepper 22c. all gold.

TIN.—The demand is still very limited, and the market in consequence dull and weak; Straits is quoted 32½c. to 32¾c., Banca 38c. gold.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—CHEST PRESERVATIVES.—At all seasons of the year the rate of mortality from diseases of the lungs is very great. Holloway's Ointment, well rubbed upon the chest, aided by his Pills, arrests all mischief. These cleansing medicaments exercise the most salutary and restorative influence over the entire contents of the pectoral cavity. Air tubes, nerves, blood vessels, and all other tissues feel their wholesomely potent power, more particularly in their thoroughly purifying both venous and arterial blood, by promoting the free circulation of air. Neither Ointment nor Pills contain any noxious ingredient whatever, but their balsamic nature nourishes rather than irritates the system, and kindly subdues all untoward symptoms till all is well once more.

THE MAILS, &c.

The P. and O. mail, bringing above dates (which, owing to the change in the monsoon, are only two days later than those received by the French mail on the 7th inst.), was delivered on Saturday. The next inward mail (P. and O.) is due on the 24th inst., with dates—Shanghai May 6, Hong Kong May 12, Singapore May 20.

The direct China Telegraph line was opened to the public on the 9th inst. We publish elsewhere the congratulatory messages which have passed between London and Hong Kong with reference to the completion of the line. The communication between the shore end of the cable and the telegraph office at Hong Kong was completed on Saturday. The line from Singapore is working well, messages occupying but a few hours in transmission.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the morning of 22nd April, or two days later than the French mail; no mail had arrived out since that of Feb. 24.

On the occasion of the departure of Mr. Medhurst, the North China Herald pays a just tribute to that gentleman for his untiring and valuable exertions in the China Consular service, of which he has been a member for twenty-five years.

The following items are from the same journal:—

At the meeting of shareholders in the North China Insurance Company the accounts showed a total balance at the company's credit of Tls. 790,782, in addition to the paid-up capital of Tls. 300,000, and after paying a dividend of Tls. 150,000 for the year 1869. A further dividend of Tls. 50 per share for that year was agreed to. Messrs. J. I. Miller, A. Schroers, and H. G. Pemberton were elected directors in the stead of Messrs. Bell, Michie, and J. T. Brand. It was announced that a meeting would be called for the 1st May, to prepare for the formation of the new company by receiving suggestions for any modification in the present deed of settlement. The expediency of raising the value of the shares was mooted.

A meeting of shareholders in the China and Japan Insurance Company had also been held. The accounts show a balance in hand on the 31st December of Tls. 140,936, out of which losses to the extent of Tls. 64,516 have been since paid, and Tls. 20,744 are held to meet the losses and claims reported to date. Messrs. Behn Hormusjee, Little, Bade, and Ringer were confirmed as directors for the current year.

A prospectus of a joint-stock company, intended to purchase and build on the Mayfair estate, on the Bubbling Well-road, opposite the racecourse has been issued. It is proposed to raise Tls. 25,000, in two hundred and fifty shares of Tls. 100 each. The land comprising twenty-six mow, is offered by the present owner for Tls. 9,000; the balance will be laid out in building six detached and semi-detached villas, which can be let at rates varying from Tls. 50 to Tls. 30 per mensem. Small houses of this kind are much wanted, and will, no doubt, let readily.

The new light-ship for the mouth of the Yangtze had left. As our readers are aware, she is provided with a first-class revolving light, and a fog-horn. Among the names of vessels which have passed Anjer, we notice the Newchwang for Shanghai. Evidently this is the new lightship for Newchwang, at last. She was to be called after the port for which she is destined.

A meeting of landrenters at Kiukiang was held on the 31st March. The municipal accounts show an expenditure of Tls. 571 out of Tls. 584 available funds, leaving a balance in hand of Tls. 13. No call seems to have been made on the taxpayers during the year, as Tls. 544 remained over from the previous year, and the remainder was derived from an arrear tax and from the sale of an aggressive raft. This pleasant condition of affairs, however, can obviously not continue during 1871, though we do not see that any provision was made for a fresh levy. Messrs. Hamilton, Shaw, and Anderson were elected a municipal council for the current year.

At the annual meeting of the Shanghai Rowing Club, Mr. E. W. Batt in the chair, the report by the committee and accounts for the year were read and passed. The latter showed a total receipt of Tls. 1,571.08, including balance from previous year (Tls. 281.08), and an expenditure of Tls. 1,170.57, leaving a balance of Tls. 400.51. The sum of Tls. 291.06, proceeds of a theatrical performance given at the Lyceum in aid of the removal of the upper boat-house, is also in hand. The following committee was elected:—Messrs. Low, Batt, A. Dent, Maitland, and Lessmann, the first being also appointed captain. Some discussion ensued regarding the removal of the boat-house.

An interesting lecture had been delivered, at the Asiatic Society's Rooms, by the Rev. O. Kreyer, on "Some Phases of Interaction between the East and the West."

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to 28th April, and are only two days later than the French Mail. The London Mail of March 10th arrived April 20th. The following items are from the China Mail:—

The Min case—the Comptoir D'Escompte of Paris v. Rodgers—had been again before the Supreme Court. The Attorney-General, for the defendants, applied for an order on the plaintiffs to pay $11,806.34 for interest. The question had been referred to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, which decided that the defendants were entitled to interest, and ordered that the original sum in dispute must be repaid by the respondents to the appellants, together with interest at the rate usually allowed by the Supreme Court of Hong Kong. On the strength of the wording of this order, the Attorney-General moved that the Court would order interest to be paid at the rate of 12 per cent. After some discussion the hearing was adjourned.

At the U. S. Consulate, on the 21st April, an inquiry into the charge brought by Captain J. B. Spearwater, of the American barque Mary J. Roberts, against William Holt, a seaman, of threatening the lives of the officers and captain, and otherwise behaving mutiniously, was held, with a view to ascertain whether the case for a rendition under the extradition treaty with Great Britain could be made out, to authorise the Consul to apply to the Colonial Authorities for the arrest and detention of the parties accused, until a requisition can be sent by the President of the United States. It appeared that the captain, out of self-defence, fired at Holt, having nothing at hand to ward off the blow which would have inevitably hit him. The shot took effect on his cheek, and he fell down. After Holt was shot, he took great care of him, giving him his own cot. The wound was healed within a fortnight. The inquiry, which was adjourned, seemed likely to last a long time.

The case of Kwok Asing, of Nouvelle Penelope celebrity, was brought before the Chief Justice on the 18th April. Our readers may remember that this man took ship at Macao for Callao, under the conditions usual in the coolie trade as carried on from the "Holy" City; then he became mixed up in the subsequent murder of the captain and others of the ship; then escaping to land, he presently found himself under arrest by the British authorities in Hong Kong on suspicion of being a bad character; then, his complicity in the murder being alleged, the Chinese authorities at Canton, through Mr. Robertson, the British Consul there, demanded that he should be given up to them for punishment; then, in accordance with British law, the charge against him was investigated by a British magistrate, and the evidence produced did certainly establish the fact that he had been, sufficiently for all legal purposes, a participator in the outrage; and thereupon he was handed over to the Crown. The China Mail observes that as the act charged against the prisoner was committed under the French flag, to French—not to Chinese—jurisdiction should the prisoner be rendered up by a British Government. That he has incurred a penalty we are bound to admit, but to the French Consul at Canton should be remitted the duty, as upon him is properly entailed the obligation, of negotiating with the Chinese authorities in the matter, not upon the British Consul. At the last hearing of the case the Attorney-General explained that a letter had been received from the Acting French Consul, in which he withdrew from the present prosecution. It was of course very serious, whatever technicalities might exist, to discharge the prisoner without his going before a jury, and the Attorney-General, therefore, thought it his duty to invite the opinion of a jury as to his guilt. Although he was discharged, the Attorney-General gave him in charge of the captain superintendent of police to answer a charge of piracy jure gentium.

It has been suggested that a link of the China Submarine Cable should have been sent out to connect Macao, but no estimate is given of the probable traffic. No account is given of the traffic on the Hong Kong and Shanghai cable, which had been open some time.

S I A M.

BANGKOK.

We learn from the Advertiser that the subject of "Marking the People" is again mooted. The Minister of Foreign Affairs has addressed a circular to the Consuls of the Treaty Powers, requesting their co-operation in the movement, which, according to Siamese tradition, becomes necessary on the decease of one of their kings and the accession of a new one. The document in question is sensible and unassuming—its style contrasting with the recent manifestoes of the Russian and Chinese Governments in a manner which shows the civilisation and intelligence of the land of the Elephant to be very far in advance of those of the Bear and the Dragon.

The officers of the French gunboats in this port had had an audience with his Majesty the Supreme King. His Majesty the Pusanret Rajakan Pendin had been visiting the new sugar mills at Nak'aunchaisee. This mill is now in working condition, and must greatly augment the Royal revenue. After the return of his Highness, it is said his Majesty the Supreme King of Siam is expected to pay the new sugar mill a visit also.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 5th May. On the 27th April the Orissa arrived with the London mail of the 24th March.

We learn from the Straits Times that preparations were being made for the opening of the Legislative Council, but we are not informed of any new measure of importance likely to be brought before it. The pension rules have been amended, so as to remove the wide distinction drawn in the existing ordinance between officers appointed under the Colonial rule and those retained in office after the transfer,—which formed the ground of a joint protest by the unofficial members. The amended ordinance has been drafted in obedience to instructions from the Secretary of State, and affords a gratifying proof of the weight attached to the protests of the unofficial minority in the Council. This, together with an amendment of the Gaming-Houses ordinance, and the amended Penal Code, are all the public measures that we have yet heard of to be considered in the early part of the session.

With reference to the fears entertained by the merchants here, in consequence of the reports which reached them from Johore, we are glad to be able to announce that his highness the Maharajah has concurred in the views and suggestions of the Chamber, and that an arrangement has been agreed upon, which, while securing to the Maharajah protection of his revenue, will at the same time be satisfactory to the merchants here, and to the planters, who have suffered very materially from combinations among contractors and others.

A recent Post-office prosecution at Malacca shows very strongly the disadvantages under which the Chinese labour in sending letters from the Straits to their friends in China, owing to the stringency of the Indian Postal Act and the incapacity of the postal department to forward the letters to their destinations. Enterprising Chinese here and in Penang have sought to remedy the shortcomings of the Post-office by establishing a sort of express post, sending a messenger up to China in a steamer in charge of a large number of letters destined for the interior of China, and also carrying large sums of money, the aggregate of many little remittances by coolies and servants to their relatives. In the case in point, it is alleged that the Penang Post-office declined to accept the letters because there was no means of sending them to their destination, and yet during the stay of the steamer at Malacca the messenger was arrested, tried before a magistrate, and fined fifty dollars, after which we are informed the letters were returned to him. This is only one of a number of prosecutions on account of Chinese letters, and taken it would be to the advantage of the Chinese residents were the matter to engage the attention of the authorities at home, with a view to legalising these expresses.

At Hong Kong a project has been already mooted for extending the telegraph to Macao and Manila, while the importance of bringing Saigon into communication with Hong Kong is also strongly urged.

Messrs. Paterson, Simons, and Co., writing to the same journal, contradict the report that the object of the Singapore and New Harbour Railway is to bring all the wharves which line New Harbour within traffic communication of the town at one uniform rate of carriage, and that a differential tariff would be as undoubtedly opposed by the promoters of this scheme as it would be insisted upon by the Singapore Railway Company. So far from this being the case, Messrs. Paterson, Simons, and Co. state the proposition of a uniform rate, if ever seriously entertained, has been long since abandoned—and so far from the promoters of the Singapore and New Harbour Railway in any way seeking to interfere with the interests of any particular company, the object of their scheme is simply to serve them all by bringing into easier communication with the town—and thereby more fully utilising the docks and wharves.

Captain A. H. Loftus, for some time sailing out of this port, has been employed by the Siamese Government to make a survey of the Siamese waters and the coast of Siam.

The steamer Sharpshooter has been purchased by Messrs. Tan Kim Seng and Co., and will be placed on the line between Singapore and Penang, in connection with the steamer Japan.

Lieut. Burn, Master Attendant at this port, comes home by the present mail, on twelve months' leave of absence. His duties will be fulfilled in the meantime by Captain Ellis.

We learn that the contract for building an iron screw-pile landing pier at Mintoh, for the Dutch Government, has been awarded to Mr. J. Cazalas, of this port, for the sum of Java Rs. 177,999. There were, we understand, but three tenders sent in, one of which was from Holland and two from Singapore.

The arrivals, via the Suez Canal, were the Hector, on the 1st, and the Glensannox on the 4th May. There had been no departures for home by this route.

There has been an alarming increase in the burglaries by Chinese, and the attitude of this class has been very unsatisfactory.

The pro forma notice of the parties interested in the Singapore and New Harbour Railway scheme includes the names of the Maharajah of Johore; J. B. Caldbeck, P. & O. Agent; P. Brasier, Agent Messageries Maritimes; Whampoa; H. Buchanan, Manager Borneo Company; T. Shelford, Paterson, Simons, and Co.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Rumour has it lately that Sir Hercules Robinson, whose term of office expires this year, is to have it extended for another six years. Whether this report be well or ill-founded, certain is it that there is no precedent for such a course as a Colonial Governor getting his term of office doubled. In the time of Sir Henry Ward, when at the zenith of his popularity, a memorial was got up and forwarded to the Colonial-office, signed by the great body of the colonists, praying that his term of office might be extended, and offering on behalf of the colony to make up his salary to the level of that of Madras, to which Government he had the prospect of being promoted. The memorial met no favour at the hands of the Colonial-office, and the colonists were informed that there was no precedent for the step recommended, and, further, that the Imperial Government did not wish to establish such a precedent. It is true Sir Edward Barnes was twice here as Governor. But it was not a continuous period. He served in Madras in the interval. Warren Hastings was nine years Governor-General of India; but this was at a very exceptional period, when it was thought he was the man most capable to cope with the many difficult problems which then beset that great country. Still there seems no good reason why such a precedent might not be established. It would not perhaps be wise to adopt such extended service as a rule, because a colony might have a bad Governor forced upon it, to get rid of whom at the earliest possible moment would no doubt be desirable. But where a man has shown himself specially adapted for the position—where he has inaugurated measures for the advancement of the country, and for the moral and material prosperity of its inhabitants—or where his plans for developing the country's resources are only in course of being tested, it would be wise that he should be continued in office for such a period as might enable him to see his projects carried to a successful issue. Now this is exactly the case with Sir Hercules Robinson. Those vast irrigation schemes to which he has devoted so much attention and such liberal votes for the benefit of the native agriculturist are yet only in their infancy, and will want his parental care to watch over them till fairly tested. The railway to Nawalapitiya, inaugurated by him, would best be carried out under his watchful eye. The new educational system introduced by him should be fairly floated ere he leave. So with the Colombo Harbour scheme and the Paumben Canal—the new school of medicine—the codification of the laws—the service tenures ordinance—and a hundred other matters in which he has taken so deep an interest. Besides these special claims on his consideration there are other reasons why a Governor who has proved himself eminently fitted to advance the interests of the country under his charge should be allowed an extended period of rule; for instance, it takes a man quite half the usual period before he makes himself master of the position—before he learns the country's wants and how to supply them. In fact, be a Governor ever so clever, or so industrious, coming to a new country, where the people, the trade, and the commerce are different to anything he has known before, it necessarily takes time for him to gain experience sufficient to fit him for the wise and successful administration of the Government. And many a man has only acquired such experience when the time arrives for him to drop the reins. It is unjust to him and unfair to the country to change a ruler under such circumstances. Sir Hercules Robinson has certainly not been, nor tried to be, a popular man, but he has been a hardworking, painstaking, conscientious Governor, doing what he believed right without fear or favour; and it is likely we shall get many a worse before we get one better. The general wish, I believe, would be, if the feelings of the community were consulted at all, that he should be continued here.

CEYLON HARBOURS, &C.

A correspondent informs us that Ceylon is singularly unanimous in the desire for the Paumben channel. The Home Government have never yet allowed any money to be borrowed, on the security of the revenues of the colony except in the case of the railway. Nevertheless, if the proposed harbour should be favourably reported on, they will probably sanction both schemes, if the channel is not taken up by private enterprise. Our correspondent wishes us to draw attention to the fact that Ceylon is the only Crown Colony that does not cost the Crown anything for its defences, £160,000 a year of the revenue being appropriated to the support of the troops.

We regret to learn from the Ceylon Observer that our correspondent's very reasonable hopes have been unexpectedly dashed aside. Mr. Robertson has given Ceylon the slip after all, having passed through Galle on his way home by the steamer Delhi on Thursday. Lord Mayo and the Indian authorities have evidently neglected to give effect to their promise to the Governor of Ceylon, that Mr. Robertson should be directed to visit Colombo before leaving for Europe. But will Ceylon consent to wait till Mr. Robertson returns to India, about the end of the year? In view of an engineering opinion being required in respect of the Paumben channel as well as the new harbour, we think a special visit from a first-class engineer might well be arranged for at once. The difficulty, proceeds our contemporary, lies in the division of authority. The Ceylon Government has no voice in the Paumben project, nor even the subscribing London merchants until the Indian authorities give permission. But where everybody is agreed on the great interests at stake we cannot conceive that Sir Hercules Robinson will be content to wait. A splendid opportunity is offered to the Governor of winning the gratitude of the community by a little independent personal action. We may be sure that his views will be adopted by the highest authority at home, for our readers cannot but remember that, when the East India Association's deputation waited on the Duke of Argyll only last month, the Secretary for India expressed his confident opinion that the channel could be constructed, and, moreover, promised to instruct Mr. Robertson to survey and report on the matter, and furnish an estimate for the work. This arrangement of the Duke's seems to have been entirely nullified by Earl Mayo's subsequent instructions, thereby showing how true are our contemporary's remarks on the bad consequences of "divided authority."

Commercial Report.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings pressed for sale in large quantities, prices for 8½ lbs. declined, market weak, light and heavy makes maintained previous value. Grey T-Cloth sold on easier terms, as, in consequence of the lateness of the China New Year there had not been the usual inquiry for these goods. Dyed Fancy Cottons: Quiet demand at about last quotations. Long Ells: Neglected. Camlets: In good request. Woollens: Fairly saleable. Lead: Very difficult to quit, as Teamen had fair stocks. Quicksilver: Difficult to obtain.

SHANGHAI.—The market had been extremely dull, not from any want of demand, but simply from unprecedentedly heavy supplies sent from home. As last English mail closed, the market showed some indications of steadying, but the simultaneous arrival of several steamers and sailing vessels, each bringing a large cargo of manufactured goods, had destroyed the tone, and although many importers had withdrawn their stocks from offer, there appeared no sign of returning confidence amongst dealers. Grey Shirtings: Direct sales trifling, but the Chinese had sold heavily, and by their extreme anxiety to force off their purchases had lowered the rates to Tls. 1.83 to 1.93 per piece, for common to best chops of 8½ lbs. goods. White Shirtings: Scarcely any business reported; T-Cloths had been in good demand, with a considerable trade at from Tls. 1.50 to 1.55 per piece for fair to good Mexican quality 7 lbs., showing a serious decline on last quotations. Common counts not inquired for. 6 lbs. goods taken at Tls. 1.15 to 1.40 per piece, and 8 lbs. at Tls. 1.88 to 1.89. There had been scarcely anything done in other descriptions of Cotton manufactures. Woollens: Figured Orleans of favourite patterns and colours saleable at former rates, but for other kinds of Woollens a dull market had prevailed, and the business in all had been confined within a small compass.

HONG KONG.—The market continued greatly depressed and sales of every class of goods were most difficult to effect, there being little or no demand. Prices were quoted at a further decline and were to a great extent nominal. Cotton Yarn: A slight enquiry for Nos. 16 to 24 fair to best spinnings had been met at a decline; higher counts, Nos. 28 to 42, quite neglected, and prices nominal. Grey Shirtings 7 lbs. very quiet; forced sales of the other weights at $2.40 for ordinary, and $2.45 for best quality; Market closed weak with no buyers; heavy weights quiet. Other Cotton Goods no demand, no sales, and prices nominal. Woollen Goods also out of demand and prices nominal.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI, HANKOW, KIUKIANG, and FOOCHEW.—Nothing to report.

CANTON.—Musters representing a few parcels of new season's local Congou had been put on the market within the last ten days, but they were generally of poor quality, and very indifferently cured. It was reported that 600 boxes had been settled at Tls. 22 to 24 per picul, which price appears to be above their value. The new Scented Teas were in course of preparation, and musters would be shown in about ten days. The natives promised good quality, as the scenting flowers were very cheap and plentiful. Of old season's Imperial, 1,000 boxes had been taken for Continental order at Tls. 18 per picul. Settlements from April 14 to April 24, 1871:—Canton District Congous, 600 boxes at Tls. 22 to 24; Scented Orange Pekoe, 150 boxes at Tls. 14; Canton Greens—Imperial, 1,000 boxes at Tls. 18.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Skeggs and Co. report as follows:—Very little has been doing in the article, some few purchases of Koo-fong-sing and, Check chops 3rds are reported at 29s. 7d., and old Cat cho p at 27s. 1d. Rereels Tsatlee and Hainin at 27s. 6d. to 30s., and a small lot of Szechuen taken in barter at Tls. 240 for the common description and Tls. 360 for the fine sorts. Settlements are about 600 bales, 200 bales of which should have been included last mail. Total settlements amount to about 33,700 bales, and stock is reduced to 200 to 300 bales, a large portion of which is Szechuen.

CANTON.—Only a very few bales have been taken for both the French steamer and the present mail. A comparison of the stocks on hand with those of same time last year showed a considerable excess this year, especially in Tsatlees and inferior descriptions. The weather had been favourable for the new crop, and in a week or ten days musters were expected in the market. For America there was little or no enquiry. The stock was estimated at 175 bales Tsatlee-reels, 20 bales Kow-kongs, 100 bales Cumchucks, Lacklows, &c., and 200 bales of inferior descriptions.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—Tin: The only purchase reported had been 300 piculs for England at $31.75 per picul. About 500 piculs remained, for which $32 was asked, but there were no buyers over $31.50. Gambier placed to a moderate extent at $2.92½, but was very dull. Black Pepper coming to market very slowly, and difficult to purchase at $9½ per picul. The crop this season seemed likely to be small. White Pepper last sold at $14½ to 14½ per picul; none offering. Sago Flour: Borneo worth $2.55; no stock. Pearl Sago: Large contracts for small grain at $3 to 3.02½. Tapioca—Flake, $3.50; Pearl, $3.40. Coffee: 1,100 piculs Bontyne held for $13 per picul. Buffalo Hides sold at $9½ to 10½ for best descriptions. Cow Hides in demand at $14½ per picul. India-rubber: Small arrivals and sales of Palembang at $4½, and of Calantan at $4½ to 43. Gutta-percha: Good qualities worth $52½ to 75 per picul.

BATAVIA.—Arrack, f.88 to f.90 per leaguer; small sales; stocks reduced. Cloves, f.25 per picul; nominal. Coffee: The Government sale on 25th April averaged as follows: 10,000 piculs Preanger f.37.46 per picul; 25,000 piculs Pasaroeng f.32.50 per picul. Cubebs, f.15 per picul; not yet in the market. Gutta-percha, f.100 to f.150 per picul; in less request. Gum Dammar, f.36 to f.37.50 per picul; limited arrivals. Hides: Cow, f.30 to f.40. Buffalo, f.21 to f.27 per lb.; sales. Rice: Table, no stocks. First quality Batavia f.150 to f.165 per coyang; scarce. Second f.140 to f.145 per coyang; small stocks. Cargo f.100 to f.110 per coyang; without stocks. Rattans: Borneo, f.13 to f.13.50 per picul; Padang, f.8 to f.10 per picul; scarce. Sapanwood: Manila, no stocks; Java, f.2.50 to f.3; nominal. Sugar: Jacatra, f. 16. 25. Tin: Billiton, an auction of 7,800 piculs advertised for June 5.

MANILA.—Sugar: The fortnight had been very quiet, and the only transaction noted was a small sale of Current at $4.50 per picul. The price had declined in Cebu to $2.87½ per picul, and in Ilo Ilo to $2.75 per picul. Hemp remained firm at $8.37½ per picul for Current. Coffee: Considerable sales of Batangas and Indan had been made at $11.50 per picul.

ENGLAND'S POSITION IN CHINA.

(Translated from the Hamburg Borsenhalle.)

For some time past warnings against a fresh outbreak of Chinese hatred against foreigners residing in China recur periodically, particularly in journals, which are well informed with the affairs in Eastern Asia, and which have absolutely no interest to give a more unfavourable or threatening account of the state of feeling existing than in reality it is. Whilst official England constantly gives the assurance that China is in a perfect state of tranquillity, the information given by Anglo-Chinese and Anglo-Indian papers, on the contrary, is to the effect that a storm is preparing, which is intended to remove, forcibly, foreign influence. According to latest information, China has on hand a story of demands which it intends to make on England for the removal of concessions formerly granted. Little, doubtless, exists on this point, and it offers a new proof how acute among demicivilised nations is the sense of appreciation of a change in the political atmosphere. As things are in China it is unquestionable that the security Europeans occupy in China depends chiefly on the degree of respect the Chinese have for the most dominant or influential of the Western nations—the British—interested in China. This prestige, on the one hand, has not decreased since the last Anglo-Chinese war, but that the courage, self-reliance, and determination of the statesmanship of Old England has during the latter years considerably retrograded seems not to have escaped the observation of the Chinese.

Since Englishmen in 1871 are no more what they were in the fortieth and fiftieth years, the Chinese think themselves also justified to change. Therefore, it is not unlikely that the Europeans residing in the north of China (which part of the Empire shall be most exposed) before long will have to suffer for the loss of England's influence on the world's affairs. To what the once acknowledged British energy has now come the Chinese had lately a good opportunity of observing; it is most unaccountable that English diplomacy, which ought to know the Chinese from long experience, could have exposed itself to such a degree.

Our readers will remember the correspondence which a short time ago appeared about the capture of the ships Sophia Rickmers and Robert Rickmers.

These two merchantmen, lying—the one in Shanghai and the other in Singapore—were immediately after the publication of the German-Franco difficulty (after the declaration of war) sold legally by the owners to English houses. Taken after their departure by French men-of-war, they were, because the transfer had been effected after the declaration of war, declared by the French Prize Court as good prizes. To the remonstrance of the injured English proprietors Lord Granville declared he could not enter into the matter, since, as, according to the French order, such transfer during time of war did not protect from capture—and so the affair ended. At the first moment there seems no objection to this—but only for the first moment. The transfer of ownerships of the ships Sophia and Robert Rickmers was duly acknowledged by the English authorities in China; the hoisting of the British flag on board of them was permitted and acknowledged by the Admiral, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet in Chinese waters. In the eyes of the whole world, and also in the eyes of the Chinese, these ships were British.

Lord Granville and his colleagues, after a little reflection, ought to have come to the conclusion that the action taken by the Courts and naval officials had already decided about the nationality of these vessels, and that a refutation of the decision of these authorities, well-founded or unfounded they might have been, could only be effected at the expense of English prestige.

If the British authorities had committed errors, they ought to have been made responsible. Common sense demanded that on no account it should have been permitted to ignore the British flag, and the less so since the Chinese were witness to it. If England had distinguished itself by a similar anxious conscientiousness on former occasions as in the present case, it would have been different, and at least become a matter disputable.

But what will the Chinese think about the desponding spirit displayed to-day by a Power which nearly fifteen years ago caused Canton to be bombarded, because a Chinese vessel which was formerly under its protection, and which carried the British flag against right and law, was confiscated by the Chinese authorities? For a country that witnessed the unexampled audacity displayed by Sir H. Parkes in 1856, when he provoked a bloody war solely for an apparent insult to the British flag—for such a country the weakness shown by England regarding the ships Sophia and Robert Rickmers must act as a direct encouragement (or stimulant) to profit from the altered circumstances.

This is only a singular case, but it was not an accidental one. The change which has taken place during the last ten years in the English State as well as popular opinion has, indeed, received a stereotyped expression, in the change that has taken place about the honour of the British flag, as expressed in China in 1856 and 1871.

Bad, indeed, it is that the historical importance of old England's loss of political influence should have been so clearly exemplified under circumstances where the general interest of Europe is closely intensified with that of England.

In the Tientsin affair the English showed the Russians—in the Rickmers' affair the Chinese—that they have been citizens of Troy.

LITERATURE.

AMERICAN GUIDE-BOOKS.

We have received a batch of American and Californian guide-books, railway time-tables, maps, &c., all which, from the fulness and variety of their information, and the matter-of-fact way in which it is communicated, give a more extensive insight into the almost inexhaustible resources of the Far West than any works we have hitherto seen. The largest of the volumes before us is Croft's Trans-Continental Tourists' Guide, which gives a really clear and full description of more than five hundred places, the great majority of which, we should imagine, not one Englishman in a hundred has ever heard of before. What do our readers think of such places as these—Alkali, Bitter Creek, Shady Run, Red Desert, Medicine Bow, Independence, and Hazard? The last of these is certainly a candid kind of name, which might be bestowed with singular propriety on some portions of our English railways in the present excursion season; but all the others are startlingly original and suggestive. It seems that some places on the line are named after living persons—Christian and surname in full—like ships. Such is C. H. Mills, a town commanding a surprising prospect, which, however, it is scarcely possible for average human nature to enjoy with perfect calmness we should think, seeing that the excursionist in question, going at the rate of sixty miles an hour, just catches a glimpse of C. H. Mills at the bottom of a precipice 2,500 feet deep, with a romantic variety of scenery called a "chasm" below that—being immediately underneath him. It seems to us a positive waste of money to take a return-ticket to such a station as this, because if you can get out there, which may be a process more simple than agreeable, how in the world are you to get in again? For our own part, we are therefore content to take our account of C. H. Mills from such enterprising travellers as the author of the book before us, who, we should imagine, must be a sort of locomotive Blondin. Jestings apart, the book is excessively interesting, crammed with facts, profusely illustrated with maps and engravings, and, in short, a complete Vade-mecum over an enormous line which is a marvel even in these days of engineering triumphs.

All about California and the Inducements to Settle There is another remarkable book, published for gratuitous circulation by the Immigrant Union, San Francisco. This work, which is also illustrated with valuable maps, gives us every information concerning the value of land, the condition of agriculture, mines, cotton and silk culture, and "what kind of immigrants are wanted" in California. English readers who desire further information concerning this extraordinary country will find it in the supplements of the Anglo-American Times, published in London by Mr. D. P. Croke, 127, Strand, or at the office of Messrs. H. Starr and Co., passenger agents, Moorgate-street.

A Catena of Buddhist Scriptures from the Chinese. By Samuel Beal, a chaplain in Her Majesty's Fleet. London: Trubner and Co.—We prefer to give the title of this remarkable book in the somewhat quaint style of the author, because it seems to us to be a kind of key to the scope and intention of a work conceived in the true spirit of a Christian gentleman—the noblest character in the world—and likely, unless we are much mistaken, to pass some day into a religious classic. We must not pause here longer than to make the observation that, as the first thing a doctor does, when he is called into a family, is to ascertain the exact disorder from which his patient is suffering, and then proceed to cure it, so the Christian, who would fulfil the command of his Master and preach the Gospel to the heathen, should, in the first place, comprehend the precise nature of the misbelief which he is called on to convince and cure by the judicious application of Divine Truth. Too many preachers, it may be feared, go about the world contenting themselves with violent invectives against religions other than their own, and demanding the recantation of those who have been brought up in them before they take the pains to comprehend the origin and scope of the creed they are to supersede. Such dogmatic and presumptuous enthusiasts do more harm than good to the cause of real religion throughout the world. It is therefore with peculiar pleasure that we welcome the work of the reverend gentleman before us—a work which bears evidence not only of distinguished scholarship, but also of the patient application of it; not only of the most devout faith in his own Gospel, but also of the true spirit of tolerance taught in its pages. Mr. Beal quotes Hagenbach on his title-page—and the motto of his book is a thorough indication of its sentiment and bearing. He says, of different creeds, "All these were but so many scattered seeds, which Christianity was designed to quicken and make fruitful." Happy the ship, say we, where Jack's spiritual welfare is cared for by so large-hearted and high-minded a minister as the "Chaplain in Her Majesty's fleet," to whose last addition to religious literature we now offer our cordial welcome.

In default of extracts, which our limits prohibit, we think we shall be doing our readers and the author more justice by recommending the work to the study of every one interested, in whatever way, in the Far East. As simplicity is truly said to be the first principle in nature, and the last in art, so tolerance is the first principle in piety and, unhappily, is too often the last in creeds. Unknown, even to himself—for a more unassuming book we never opened, to say nothing of the vast amount of labour involved in the publication, which might have excused an almost Johnsonian dogmatism—the Rev. Mr. Beal may have founded a new school of teachers of the truth by analysing and explaining the principles of Buddhism with the simple integrity and scholarly research displayed in the delightful volume before us.

THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT AND CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.

The English Independent says:—Letters which have been received from China show that the circular addressed by the Peking Government to the foreign legations respecting missionaries was tentative merely, and has already been virtually withdrawn. The Chinese Court wanted to see how far it could go in prohibiting Christian teaching, and put out the circular as a feeler. We are informed that the energetic protest of the American representative has effectually prevented the issue of any edict against the missionaries. The difficulty has therefore been evaded for a time, but the incident shows the real feeling not only of the literati class, but of the Government, and we see what it would do if it dared. We repeat our opinion that the behaviour of the Jesuit emissaries in China makes the feeling at Peking against missionaries perfectly intelligible and excusable. The distinction between Protestant and Romish missionaries cannot be expected to be very nicely observed by the Imperial Ministers, and the Protestant missionaries should be very modest in enforcing what they may consider to be their "rights."

The Hamburg Borsenhalle, on the capture of the Sophia and Robert Rickmers, says that England has done a grievous injury to her own prestige and to the rights of Germany in not insisting on the restoration of these vessels, which were under the English flag. It contrasts our conduct with that in the lorcha Arrow affair, and says that the effect will be bad on the Chinese Government.

Foreign Intelligence.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 7.

We are still waiting in vain for the appointment of the new Governor-General of Java. For a fortnight it has been rumoured that the King had signed the decree appointing Mr. Loudon to the post, but our official paper, the Staats Courant, does not say one word about it. What is the reason for this? One report says that Mr. Loudon wishes to take a ceremonious leave of the Provincial States—which will meet in six weeks—whilst other rumours suggest that there is a want of perfect harmony between the new Governor-General and the Minister of the Colonial Department.

Political affairs are very dull. The only question before the public is the forthcoming election of members to the Second Chamber of the States-General, which will take place on the 13th inst. The papers are full of this, especially the organs of the Conservative and Ultramontane parties, who, to win their cause, are telling the electors that the Commune of Paris is only a consequent result of a Liberal policy, and therefore, if they back the Liberal candidates, we shall very soon have Amsterdam or Rotterdam burned by "petroleuses." They also affirm that all the Liberals are members of the "Internationale," which is holding meetings in Amsterdam, the Hague, &c., to prepare for the establishment of a Commune. Such nonsense as this we are obliged to read day after day, and the Liberal papers, under the impression that the majority of the electors are stupid enough to believe these assertions, feel themselves obliged to refute them. There, however, is not much chance that the Conservatives will be successful in the contest, because the Orthodox party (the followers of Mr. Groen) have decided not to vote for the Conservative candidates.

The members of the First Chamber met yesterday, and are now occupied in the sections with those Budgets, which have been approved of by the Second Chamber, which will meet again on the 20th inst. It is earnestly to be hoped that they will then be ready for serious labour. The whole work of the session still lies before them. Hardly a single important measure has yet been carried. The two great measures which the ministry is pledged to are the revival of the East India tariff and the Army Reorganisation Bill—and the list of legislative matters is so long that the whole summer will not be long enough to deal with them, the less because Parliament is always thinking about holidays, whilst those members who will not be re-elected do not think it of any use to spend their time in legislative labour. To-day was published the section report on the treaty between our Government and that of Great Britain, regarding the transfer of our settlements at the West Coast of Africa, and which can only come into force after being ratified by both our Legislative Chambers. This report throws, as reports always do, but very little light upon the opinions of the members—so that it is difficult to say anything about the definitive fate of the treaty. There are many opponents to the principle of selling our colonies. Others, however, defend the transfer of the forts at the Coast—and I think the last-named are in the majority, so that most probably the treaty will be approved of.

There is not any appearance of revival of activity in our markets for public securities; the engagements principally consist of investment purchases, and therefrom prices in the majority of instances have derived support. There is, however, no speculative business. The latest advices from France are regarded as more pacific, which, together with the existing plethora of heaped-up capital, and the improbability of any immediate advance in the value of money—the Bank of the Netherlands has lowered the rate of discount one-half per cent.—have checked speculative sales, and had the effect of staying any downward movement in the position of quotations. Home funds continue steady, without any remarkable alteration in quotations; a rather brisk demand has prevailed for industrial securities, so that a good business has been done in railway shares. The reports from the provinces about crops are generally very bad. For several days biting, sharp northerly winds have prevailed, and showers of hail have repeatedly fallen, which make the weather anything but propitious for the growing produce. It is even stated that a good deal of the crop of grain and potatoes will be lost.

Some days ago a meeting was held at Amsterdam of creditors of the Oost Indische Maatschappij van Lyfrenten, in order to appoint a commission to represent the creditors with regard to the liquidation. There were appointed by a very large majority Messrs. T. M. C. Asser, G. J. de Clercq (manager of the East India Trading Bank), and F. A. Lens, formerly a notary in Java.

The King has approved of the appointment of Mr. Neill McLean as Consul for Great Britain at Batavia.

The commission to investigate the causes of the burning of the steamer Willem III. has been amplified, Messrs. P. Buys, jun., expert, and M. M. J. Kroeff, naval officer, being appointed members.

COMMERCIAL.

The result of the Trading Company's coffee sale, held here last Wednesday, has exceeded the general anticipations, a rather important advance having on the average been realised over the brokers' valuations. The article has since continued in good request at the prices of the late public sale, which also applies to sugar, for which a brisk demand prevails and prices are further looking upward. As regards our other leading articles, but little alteration has taken place, and the business done has been upon the whole on a limited scale, which may be partly attributed to the late holidays.

COFFEE.—The business done privately since the late public sale consists of the sales of 1,400 bags Java ex Sophia Koningin der Nederlanden, 1,400 bags ditto ex Noach III., 039 b. Padang ex Magdalena, 211 b. ditto Benkoelen ex Nyasas, 90 b. Macassar ex Alblasserwaard. Total stock of coffee on the 31st May, 786,900 bags; floating, 279,800 bags.

SUGAR (RAW).—A good demand prevails for the article, but the reservedness of holders checks business, and no transactions of note have taken place. Small lots of suitable numbers and quality find buyers at the parity of the May sale and at a fraction higher. Stock, 3,000,000 kilo.

TEA continues to be well supported. Public sales are advertised for the 21st inst. of the following quantities: 3,717/4, 3,488/12 chests Congou; 100/4, 1,930/12 chests Souchong; 475/4 chests Pekoe; 371/4 and 89/12 chests Java. The first three parcels China imported, ex Windermerre, from Foochow; stock, 7,900/4 chests.

TOBACCO.—Sales have been closed by private contract and by secret tender as follows, viz.: 1,242 bales Java, headmark HL; 1,071 bales do., Krossok; 469 bales DR and C; 235 bales W; 15 bales J.W.H.; 267 bales PA/Malang; 1,064 bales Krossok BLC. The public sales held here on the 1st inst. went off as follows, viz.: 608 bales ETB Kediri at 19c.; 170 bales ETB Kediri P at 19c.; 697 bales ETB Malang at 18½c.; 67 bales ETB Kendal Malang at 14½c.; of the 803 bales Kediri P only 390 bales were sold at 19c. to 24c. Our stock embraces 3,209 bales Java, and at Amsterdam 6,803 bales.

INDIGO.—A fair demand has prevailed for this article, which has resulted in several small sales. Our stock in first hands comprises 219 chests Java of private importation, and 30 chests Manila.

DRUGS.—Camphor remains dull. Cubebs are quoted at 10c. to 11c. Long Pepper nominally 27c.; Cassia fistula would find buyers at f.6½; A small lot of about 25 kilos. Java Vanilla, ex Caprera, realised some advance; the article is well thought of; Preserved Ginger is offered at 70c.; Oil of Cassia f.2½ to f.3; No stock of Gum Benjamin is left on hand; Sales could be effected at 85c. to 100c.; Japan Wax assortment A f.44 B f.42; Siam Pearl Sago f.10 to f.10½; Sales have been closed of 100 boxes and 50 casks Sago flour, ex Sirius, at a full price; Gutta-percha unaltered; the demand remains inactive; India-rubber, none in the market; Gum Damar without change; Good first quality quoted 36c. to 37c.

DIVI-DIVI.—About 12 tons were sold at f.9½; 90 tons are expected per Paulus.

HIDES.—The demand keeps active, but the business done in our market since my last report has been confined to the sales of some parcels ex Samaraang, Albert Victor, Johanna and Willem, Elisabeth and Jacoba, and St. Louis. 1,561 Macassar Buffaloes also put up to tender at Amsterdam were not adjudged, and remain on sale at 26c.

TIN.—Banca sold for short prompt at f.76 to f.75½, and for delivery, ex the coming autumn's sale, at f.74 to f.74½; Banca on the spot offered at f.75½, and for future delivery at f.75. Stock on warrants 82,542 slabs. New Stock: Banca 49,138 slabs, Billiton 2,051 slabs.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—May 31, at Hellevoet, from Batavia, P. A. J.; June 1, at Texel, from Sourabaya, Maarten van Rossem; 2, at Brouwershaven, from Passaroeng, Metis, Somerset; from Batavia, Mary and Hille-gonda; at Texel, from Probolinggo, Java; from Macassar, Batoe Bassi; 4, at Texel, from Samarang, Bengal; from Batavia, Lady Caecilia; 6, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Ridderkerk; at Texel, from Sourabaya, Levant.

THE MISSING DESPATCH.

LORD ENFIELD'S reply to the question put by Sir JOHN LUBBOCK (in the absence of Mr. MAGNIAC) concerning the missing China despatch, although merely a repetition of the stereotyped statement that it had not yet come to hand, was supplemented by a remark of a rather suggestive character. The Under-Secretary added that, although our own Government had not received the despatch, there was reason to believe that the French Government had been more fortunate, and that application would be made for a sight of our neighbour's copy. We may assume that Lord ENFIELD declined to recognise the copies—or résumés—of the document which had been received by our China friends in London, and which we cannot doubt were placed at his Lordship's service; and we are not at all disposed to contend that, in the absence of positive bad news by telegraph, our Government would have been justified constitutionally in availing themselves of the information which they had a right to expect from their representative at Peking, simply because the mercantile public had shown themselves so much more zealous or better served than the diplomatic Department. We will even go a step further, and state that we should not like to see the blame which apparently attaches to Mr. WADE for his extraordinary delay laid to his account until he has had an opportunity of explaining the causes of that delay. But what we would certainly ask—and the question is plainly suggested in Lord ENFIELD'S reply—is, "How far, and in what way, is telegraphic communication with the Far East to be considered as a part of the machinery of official intelligence?" If the telegraph is to be ignored by the Government, it is hard to see for what reason telegraphs were ever subjected to Government supervision. If, on the other hand, telegraphic intelligence is recognised by Government in part, why should it not be so recognised always, and made as much use of as possible in public as it is in private offices? It would be difficult to imagine a more striking case in point than the present. Here is a despatch—or rather here is not a despatch, which ought to be here, and the contents of which are just as well known as if they were here, because they were telegraphed long ago by Mr. WADE himself. There is no doubt that, if the original document has not come to hand, it must have miscarried on the way; we believe that the Foreign-office goes so far as to admit this. But, even if it did so miscarry—or, rather, because of its miscarriage—ought not the failure of the arrival of the document by mail to have demanded immediate inquiry for, and transmission of, its full contents by wire? We think it should have done so; we are sure it would have done so in the case of any mercantile house placed in unexpected risk by the miscarriage of advices or the negligence of an agent. If telegrams are not to be recognised as official forms of communication, of what use is scientific discovery? It is far better not to know an evil than to be fully aware of it without the power of remedying it. For several weeks our readers and ourselves have been under the avalanche of the nightmare of this despatch, and we have not got it yet! If this is to be taken as a principle of life, the sooner we do away with scientific improvements the better. They only torture and perplex where they should inform and arm.

We had last week the pleasure of recording the fulfilment of this first of our prophecies—the complete establishment of the telegraph between England and China is a fait accompli; and we must be pardoned if we admit a certain gratification at finding that we christened our paper* thirteen years ago and by anticipation, with the title which BENJAMIN FRANKLIN gave his invention in his little garden in the States that he so nobly helped to make United. The China cable will no doubt connect, not only places more remote but peoples more opposed; but, for that very reason, it seems to us that the wire should be used in preference to every other of the modes of communication which have become by degrees more and more antiquated. And therefore we repeat the question we set out with—"Why, when Mr. WADE'S despatch did not arrive in due time, was not inquiry at once made as to the cause of its miscarriage?" The saying that "ill news travels apace" is altogether contradicted by the present protracted absence of any news at all, with the thorough conviction that bad news is on the road. We want facts; and, if the telegraph cannot convey them, it is bad alike for Government and people that it should be employed to convey only such messages as we cannot take action on.

We have not heard for some time of the movements of the Chinese plenipotentiary, CHUNG HOW, but it must be admitted that he has lost no time in repairing to the seat of his mission, having left Versailles for Paris yesterday. One of his first acts was to attend the funeral of the Archbishop, and we may readily imagine the crowd of reflections that must have rushed across his mind as he stood beside the grave of the murdered prelate of the same Church whose ministering servants, the nuns, perished as miserably under his own eyes twelve months ago. Well might he murmur to himself, as he gazed on the splendid tomb in Notre Dame, and thought of the graveless heaps of ashes at Tientsin,

"These be Christian butchers!"

ACCORDING to the latest advices from New York there is no probability of the Pacific Mail Company arranging for their fortnightly service between San Francisco, Japan, and China before October.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in this company was held at the offices, Leadenhall-street; Mr. P. D. Hadow, chairman.

The report of the directors, recommending a dividend of 3 per cent. for the half-year (which appeared in our last), was taken as read.

The Chairman said that the meeting was called primarily for the purpose of declaring an interim dividend; secondarily, to afford the opportunity of asking any questions they might wish to put, and enabling the directors to give such information relative to the affairs of the company as the shareholders might wish to glean relative to the past six months. He was happy to say that the operations of the period under review had been conducted with a perfect exemption from casualty of any kind, and he hastened to make that statement because he thought it reflected the highest honour and credit upon the captains, officers, and staff that operations of such magnitude, with so many and varied ramifications, should have been conducted without the slightest hitch or casualty, and he desired thus early to say that the captains and officers were in the greatest degree entitled to the thanks of the shareholders. Those shareholders who had gone carefully over the statement in the report would see that there was a slight diminution in the tonnage of the fleet when compared with last year, but the increase was more apparent than real, for the company had parted with some of its ships, and, though the tonnage seemed a little smaller, owing to the old ships having been replaced by new ones with modern improvements, its cargo carrying powers were greater.

The Khedive, a new vessel, after having run the measured mile most successfully, had made the journey from Southampton to Suez in 13 days, having passed through the canal. Her average speed had been 10 knots, and her consumption of coal a little over 30 tons per day, and when they remembered that the shareholders used to congratulate themselves upon the steamers only consuming 60 tons per diem they would see that the saving had been enormous—(loud cheers)—and the extent to which modern science had led them. The Indus had run her measured mile at 13½ knots, and therefore promised to be equally successful. The Mirzapore, a sister to the Khedive, would be delivered in about August next, and two other vessels later in the autumn, and the company would—with the improved vessels at command, carrying more freight and consuming less coal—be able to work the traffic at a considerably diminished cost.

The company had recently made an alteration in the charge, making the travellers pay simply their passage money, and charging them extra for just what wines and spirits they chose to order, instead of allowing the passengers, as formerly, wines & à discrétion. The result was that there had been a falling off of at least 40 per cent. in the consumption of wines and spirits. The company had lost a valuable servant in the person of Mr. Woolley, the deceased superintendent purser of the company, who had served it most faithfully for many years with untiring zeal and ability, and he desired to take that, the earliest opportunity of paying a tribute to the memory of a most efficient officer, to whose untiring exertions the company was most deeply indebted.

The war on the Continent had not been (as many people had supposed) beneficial to this company; but, on the contrary, the stoppage of the traffic between Marseilles and India had been most injurious; so much so, that the company had applied to the Government to make Brindisi the port of departure, and with success, and there was little chance of the route being altered, as the board were doing all they could to supplement the traffic by developing that which might naturally flow through Italy to this company's steamers. Some of this company's ships had passed through the Suez Canal with advantage, but the company could not at present adopt the canal as the usual route, because two things were involved in so doing—first, a vast improvement in the canal itself, and a reduction of charges; and next, a remodeling of the fleet of the company. At the same time the board were anxious to utilise the canal as much as possible, in proof of which he mentioned that the Australia, having gone out through the canal, was now on her homeward voyage, coming through the canal with the first season's tea from China.

Having a large experience to guide them, the policy of the board would be to dispose of the small vessels and replace them with larger ones with smaller coal-consuming powers and higher rate of speed; experience having proved that it was not profitable for this company to convert or adapt old vessels to the new service, and that the loss made upon a sale was recouped in a very few years by the better-going qualities and the superior carrying capacities of newly built ships. They had added six new vessels without making a call, and they hoped to add four more. He concluded by moving the adoption of the report.

The motion having been seconded,

Mr. Jones thought the board had taken the right step in adopting Brindisi as a point of departure for its vessels, but he wished to know whether this company had been put to any expense in improving or building the docks, or wharves, or harbour at Brindisi, or whether the board had subscribed any money for that purpose. He also wished to know how many hours the vessel alluded to by the chairman took to go through the canal, and why the Indian Government persisted in running troop ships in opposition, instead of employing their vessels; also if any decision had been arrived at as to the harbour of Galle. Remembering what the board had done for the company when the freight at Bombay was £2 per ton, he fully expected that the dividend for the whole year would be something handsome now that the rate of freight ruling in that place was £5 per ton.

Mr. Davis suggested that the company should import and bond the wines and spirits sold on board its vessels, as he believed a great profit would result therefrom, instead of employing wine merchants. He thought, also, that Indian coal might be used to advantage, and that shareholders could hardly be satisfied with the dividend, which did not equal the Royal Mail or Cape Company.

The Chairman, in reply to the various questions, said that the Peninsular and Oriental Company had not spent one farthing in improving the port of Brindisi. (Hear, hear.) All the expense it had been put to was in establishing and furnishing a small office there. Passengers and mails were conveyed from Alexandria to Suez in twelve hours, while it occupied twelve hours to get from Alexandria to Port Said, and thence thirty-six hours through the Canal to Suez, making a difference of thirty-six hours in favour of the overland route. The company could not use coal from the Nerbudda valley with advantage, as it could lay down English coal in Bombay or Calcutta at a price below that at which Nerbudda coal could be supplied. The company was, however, using Australian coal in the Australian seas, and Indian coal in some places; but it would not be to the advantage of the company to use it everywhere, as the storage room required for Indian coal was very great, and the furnaces and fire bars required altering to use it with advantage, and they would have to be altered back again when English coal was used. English or Australian coal did not require such large space for storage, and so left more room for cargo. The question of importing and bonding the wines and spirits of the company for its own vessels had been under consideration, but as yet the board did not see that it could be done with any very great advantage. The company had no property in Marseilles, and therefore would not lose anything by transference to Brindisi. He hoped the company would be able to pay an increased dividend, but could not pledge the directors in any way. The board were anxious to do the best they could for the shareholders, but at the same time were most anxious to look to the permanent good of the company. (Cheers.)

The report was unanimously adopted. A dividend of £3 per cent., free of income-tax, was declared for the half-year ending the 31st of March last, payable on the 24th inst., and the proceedings concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors.

KEY TO SOUTH-WESTERN CHINA.

(THE GLOBE.)

The report by Major Sladen on the Bhamo route deserves careful perusal. To geographers and men of science it is interesting as furnishing information respecting a hitherto unexplored country, and to the general reader it is not less so, as it exhibits an amusing picture of the triumph of an educated mind over the low cunning and ferocity of barbarians. Never did calm good temper and imperturbable patience more completely vanquish vulgar violence and base treachery than in the case of Major Sladen and the Kakhyan and Burmese chiefs. There have been, perhaps, more brilliant displays of successful daring in dealing with savage tribes, and more wonderful escapes from danger, but never a finer victory of calm resolution and dignified composure over the plots and insolence of Asiatics.

For the benefit of those who have not looked up the subject of the paper to which we are referring we may say that it is, in brief, a report on the question how to unlock the trade of South-Western China. The three south-western provinces of China are Se-chuen, or the "Province of the Four Streams," with 166,800 square miles, and a population of 21,435,678 souls; Kwei-chow, or "Honourable Division," with 64,554 square miles, and 5,288,229 souls; and Yun-nan, "South of the Clouds," with 107,969 square miles, and 5,561,320 souls. We give these statistics from a late authority, but we are inclined to think that the population is underrated. If not, the statements in the report before us are very incorrect, and Se-chuen and Kwei-chow are not, as here represented, "the most populous in China," for Kiangsu, which is only one-fourth the size of Se-chuen, has a population three-fourths greater. This, however, is the least important point commercially in the description of the provinces in question, and it is enough for our purpose if the rest be true. The paragraph which refers to them is as follows:—"The great mineral wealth of the country is known, as also the enormous wealth of the neighbouring provinces of Se-chuen and Kwei-chow, the most populous in China, and their gigantic trade in tea, silk, rhubarb, tobacco, sugar, hemp, oil, varnish, and other commodities, and the vast capacity of all these provinces to consume European manufactures, a large proportion of the whole of which trade we shall gain when once the route by Bhamo is fully reopened." Waiving the question, then, of the comparative population of these south-western provinces of China, which at the least computation exceeds thirty-two millions, the fact we have to consider is their gigantic trade, and the possibility of directing it into a more convenient channel. Now up to the last decade this trade was chiefly carried on by a most circuitous and undesirable route, as stated by the Chief Commissioner in Burmah at p. 10 of this paper. He says:—"It was believed that Kwang-tung and Kwang-si were the great producing and consuming districts of the Chinese empire, but on the opening of Shanghai to foreign trade this fallacy was exposed, and it was completely dispelled by the opening in 1860-61 of Hankow and the other ports on the Yangtze river, which showed that the foreign trade that had centred in Canton had been flowing, not in its natural, but in a forced and artificial channel, and that the great bulk of what was shipped from Canton was really produced in Se-chuen, Kwei-chow, and other provinces drained by the Yangtze, and that this produce had actually been carried up that river in boats to a point where it is separated from the Canton river by a steep range of hills, through a pass, in which the produce was carried by porters down to the southern stream, and from thence to Canton in boats."

But superior as the route by the Yangtze was to that by Canton as an outlet for the commerce of South-Western China, it was still immensely circuitous. Hence inquiry was busy in search of a better communication, and two plans presented themselves. There was Captain Sprye's scheme of a railroad from Rangoon by Kyang-hung and Esmok, and there was the Bhamo route, by which, until the Mahomedan rebellion in Yunnan in 1855, there had already been a traffic which was valued at half a million per annum, but which the war between the Panthays and the Chinese, and the intrigues of the Burmese Court, had wholly stopped. We read in the appendix to Mr. Cooper's travels, page 406, that "before the unhappy and long Mahomedan rebellion, the trade of Taly (in Yunnan) was great and extensive with Burmah;" and we also read, at page 458, that the neighbouring province of Se-chuen is "the greatest and richest province of China." But there is a not difficult and direct road from Bhamo to Taly, as is shown in Major Sladen's report. It is clear, therefore, that by this road the trade of South-Western China can be tapped.

But, before we consider the prospect of success in this quarter, let us say one word about the scheme of Captain Sprye. His line would pass through Kyang-hung, which is 250 miles to the south of Taly, and so far out of the direct way, and it would encounter the Salwen, Lantsang, and other great rivers, at points where the crossing them would entail great delay. It is unnecessary to consider whether such a line would be practicable. It is enough that three Governors-General have reported against it, and that, as appears from the paper we are reviewing, there is an infinitely better line of communication by Bhamo, a port, which being on the navigable Irrawaddy, means practically the sea.

Major Sladen left Mandalay (which, strangely enough, is not to be found in the Royal Atlas) on the 13th of January, 1868, in a steamer belonging to the King of Burmah, drawing three feet of water, and reached Bhamo on the 21st. Here his troubles commenced, for the King, though he outwardly pretended to assist the expedition, did his utmost in secret to frustrate it. The Burmese officials at Bhamo threw every impediment in the way, and they sent reports of the most inflammatory and calumnious kind, not only throughout the adjoining Shan territory, but even as far as Yunnan. There are three routes which lead from Bhamo to Yunnan: 1st, the northern, or Pontyne; 2nd, the central or embassy route, by which ambassadors usually proceeded from Burmah to China; and 3rd, the southern or Sawuddy. The Burmese took care that Major Sladen should not proceed by the central route, as that would have given him prestige; and at last, after wearisome delays and altercations, the expedition left Bhamo by the northern route on the 26th of February, having been more than a month kept back by the intrigues of the very people who ought to have assisted it. A Kakhyan chief, who is called Pontye in the narrative, was the guide, and passed his time in getting drunk, and furiously abusing and threatening his English guests. On the 2nd of March several shots were fired in front of the English party, but no mischief was done, and they reached Pontyne village. On the 6th they reached Ponsee, and here they were delayed for more than two months, till the 11th of May, during which time every possible menace and annoyance were employed to deter them from proceeding further. But Major Sladen, with great boldness and foresight, had despatched messengers to the Panthay chief of Momein, in Yunnan, entreating his aid, and he, with a sagacity which did him credit, understood the benefits which would result from the safe arrival of the mission, and at once took vigorous measures to accomplish that end. He despatched an encouraging reply to Major Sladen, and injunctions to all the Shan chiefs on the road to assist him. He did far more, for he himself advanced with a considerable force and stormed Maupho, the stronghold of a free-booter named Lees-bee-ta-hee, who had promised the King of Burmah to destroy the mission.

To Tah-sa-Kan, then, the Governor of Momein, Major Sladen was indebted for his life, at one time in great danger, and for the success of the expedition. In the meantime, however, he had been driven to such straits that he sent back to Bhamo Captain Williams, the engineer of his party, and Mr. Stewart, who left Ponsee on their return journey on the 29th of April. On the 12th of May Major Sladen got to Manwyne, a town of about 5,000 inhabitants. On the 14th he reached Sanda, which was plundered by the Panthays in 1863, but still contains 6,000 people. Here he had to adopt the son of the chief, a ceremony which entailed nothing more onerous than the giving a few presents. On the 16th of May he reached Mynela, a town with from 8,000 to 10,000 inhabitants; on the 23rd he was at Maupho, and on the 24th at Nantin. In the march from this place to Momein, two of the Panthay chiefs who were escorting him were killed by brigands, when at a little distance in advance, and some of the baggage of the mission was carried off. Momein was reached on the 26th of May, and on the 10th of July Major Sladen started on his return journey for Bhamo, having fully accomplished the main objects of his mission, in forming a friendly alliance with the Panthay governor, and in ascertaining by personal observation that there was no difficulty in the route to seriously impede traffic. All this was effected, not only without the assistance of the Burmese Government, but in the teeth of its opposition.

As one result of Major Sladen's labours, we may say that a political agent was appointed to reside at Bhamo, with a sufficient staff to enable him to supervise such traffic as might arise. It is time the public were informed of what success has attended this measure. It is most satisfactory to know from this narrative that the Shan country, which lies between Burmah and Western China, is no savage and inhospitable region, but well cultivated, with a population of a quarter of a million Shans and Kakhyens, and perhaps as many inhabitants of other hill tribes. The climate seems to be temperate as compared with that of India. This, indeed, might be expected, from the elevation of the region above the sea. The breadth of the territory appears to be about a hundred miles. At the time of the expedition a sanguinary contest was still raging between the Chinese and the Mahomedan rebels, or Panthays; but the latter were gradually consolidating their power, and they showed themselves most friendly to the English.

BRITISH BURMAH.

(SHIPPING AND MERCANTILE GAZETTE.)

The memorandum of Major-General A. Fytche, late Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, describing his four years' administration of that province, from 1867 to 1871, recently printed at Rangoon, is a document which possesses sufficient interest to cause us to refer to its leading features in these columns. General Fytche joined the old Arakan Local Battalion in 1841, when the British territory comprised the strips of seaboard known as Arakan and Tenasserim, the former being separated from the latter by the important Burmese province of Pegu. The Government of India at that date was contemplating the occupation of Afghanistan, and a withdrawal from Burmah was discussed and proposed for adoption. British rule had become popular with the natives, but the revenue was insufficient to meet the expenditure, the population not having had time to recover from the wars which for centuries had retarded the prosperity of the country, and desolated that region from Chittagong to Siam. The whole of the fertile valley of the Irrawaddy, from the sea coast upward to the wild tribes intervening between Burmah and China, was in the hands of a cruel and barbarous despot, utterly ignorant of the great world around him, and, consequently, unrestrained by the public opinion of civilised States. For forty years the Government of India endured indignities and brooked insult through being engaged in expensive wars against the Mahrattas, Ghoorkas, and Pindarces, and were reluctant to undertake further hostilities. In 1825, however, the Burmese officials seized an island belonging to the British Government, and a war ensued which terminated by the annexation of Arakan and Tenasserim. Those provinces, when placed under British rule, improved rapidly. The area of cultivation extended, revenue increased, and the population was augmented 300 per cent. between 1826 and 1852. The adjoining province of Pegu, governed by the King of Burmah, presented a marked contrast to the prosperous condition of the British territory adjoining, and his Majesty—Tharra-waddi—was a tyrant of the worst sort. He repudiated the treaty which had been concluded with his predecessor, and openly insulted the Resident at his capital. This behaviour was tolerated for some years, but in 1852 the repetition of outrages on British subjects induced our Government to send an expedition up the Irrawaddy, and, as usual in Eastern wars, Pegu formed an appendage to British Burmah. This measure consolidated and strengthened our conquest, and the three divisions now form a compact province, occupying an uninterrupted line of sea coast of nearly a thousand miles in length, and a water communication with the distant interior more easily navigable than the Ganges, and which promises to open up a Trade route of great importance to British commerce and manufactures. By the possession of Pegu, our territory in Burmah has become one of the most prosperous provinces of our Eastern Empire. It is satisfactory to learn, from data furnished by General Fytche, that British Government in Burmah has been productive of marked benefit to the races placed under our rule. Although there are still 30,000 square miles of cultivatable land in the provinces lying waste from want of cultivators, and not above 3,000 square miles cultivated, the population has increased in eighteen years from about one million souls to nearly two millions and a-half. It would thus appear, says General Fytche, a priori, that, if nearly two millions and a-half of people can be supported by the culture of 3,000 square miles of land, the cultivation of the entire area of waste would maintain a population of about twenty-five millions of inhabitants. There is a yearly immigration of Burmese, Shans, Chinese, and other cognate races into British Burmah, driven out from their own countries by the exactions and oppressions of native rule, who are eager to cultivate new lands under the peace, protection, and personal liberty enjoyed under British administration, and which cannot be found elsewhere throughout the Malacca peninsula.

When General Fytche was entrusted with the government of British Burmah in 1867 he set to work, through his assistant at the Court of Mandalay, to remove all suspicions from the mind of the King of Burmah, and to convince his Majesty that the only object of the British Government was to promote the material interests of the two contentious States by mutual concessions. Having paved the way by diplomacy, the Chief Commissioner proceeded to Mandalay, the capital of Ava, and concluded, in October, 1867, a treaty providing for the utmost freedom as regards commercial intercourse between the peoples of the two countries, for the permanent residence of a political agent, and for the establishment of a court in which the political agent has the power to adjudicate in all cases in which British subjects are alone concerned, and in which a Burman official of high rank sits on the same bench for the adjudication of all civil cases in which both Burmese and British subjects are concerned. Moreover, under this treaty the King gave up his more oppressive monopolies; and measures have been initiated for reopening the old trade route with Western China, to which we shall have occasion to refer in another article. The effect of these closer alliances between the British Government and the Court of Ava has been to draw the people into friendly communication, and the King has sent several young Burmese to Europe for education, whilst he welcomes any European merchant or official who may pay a visit to his capital.

The gross internal and external trade of British Burmah in 1869 amounted to 10½ millions sterling. The Custom-house revenue was £287,000, and the exports of cutch, jute, rice, paddy, and timber augmented yearly. The East India and China Association in England, and the Chamber of Commerce at Rangoon, complain that the rice of British Burmah was being driven out of the home markets by the produce from Cochin China and Siam. The rice from these two last-named countries is in demand by the Chinese, and therefore, says General Fytche, is mostly carried to China. The export duty on rice is 10s. 6d. per ton. This impost, the gallant General holds, has not checked exports, though he is inclined to admit that the duty on unhusked rice, commonly called paddy, might be reduced with advantage. It is not necessary to follow the Chief Commissioner through his report on barracks, fortifications, forests, roads, frontier boundaries, schools, and administrative acts. Suffice it to add that General Fytche presents a good account of his stewardship over the British dominions of Burmah. This possession stretches along the shore of the Bay of Bengal, and is equal in extent of seaboard to the Madras Presidency, on the opposite coast. Governed by natives the shipping trade would never, in the present century at least, have assumed such proportions as it does in 1871; and the ports of Akyab, Rangoon, and Moulmein must by this time have become familiar to shipmasters and merchants generally.

Monetary and Commercial.

The tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £300,000; and to Bombay, £10,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. on all the Presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 15 per cent., and on Bombay at that price about 31 per cent. These results show a further increase in the demand for means of remittance to India.

The demand for Bar Silver and Dollars for the Straits and China has fallen off, and quotations are lower. The principal arrivals now consist of the new dollar, which is not suitable for China.

We have received the following communication from the secretary of the China Submarine Telegraph Company:—

"SIR,—I beg to inform you that the China Submarine Company's cable was completed and landed at Hong Kong on the 3rd inst., at 4.30 p.m., and that the report of the tests by the company's engineer being satisfactory, it has been opened to the public this day at three o'clock. The following congratulatory messages have passed along the line."

To the Chairman of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce, from John Pender, Esq., Chairman China Submarine Telegraph Company:—

"The successful laying of the submarine telegraph from Singapore to Hong Kong brings your important settlement into immediate telegraphic connection with England, via the Red Sea and Falmouth, and it is to be hoped that this will result in greatly extended commercial intercourse between England and China."

The following reply was received from the Chairman of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce:—

"Telegram of to-day arrived; this Chamber congratulates the company on the completion of the telegraph, and heartily joins with you in hoping that it may greatly extend commerce between England and China."

The following message was forwarded to his Excellency the Governor of Hong Kong:—

"The completion of the submarine telegraphic system between Singapore, Saigon, and Hong Kong brings the Chinese Empire into immediate connection with India and Europe. I congratulate you on this important result, and trust that it may prove equally advantageous to all countries so connected in promoting friendly relations and commercial intercourse."

To this message the following reply was received:—

"To John Pender, Esq.—I thank you for your courteous message, and cordially congratulate you and your able staff on the successful completion of your great telegraphic enterprise, uniting with you in the hope that the same may promote friendly relations and commercial intercourse between the several nations thus placed in instant communication one with each other."

The annual report of the Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company states that the company's new duplicate cable between Malta and Alexandria was successfully laid on the 22nd November last. Since the last ordinary general meeting the cables of the Marseilles, Algiers, and Malta, the British Indian Extension, and China Submarine Telegraph Companies have been laid in connection with the cables belonging to this company. The British Australian Company's cable is to be completed by the end of the year. The Government cable between Malta and Tripoli and Egypt having again failed, that line is no longer in use for the transmission of traffic. The directors have purchased the cable from the Government for the sum of £25,200, with a view to its being picked up, and have resold it to the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company at the same price. By this arrangement the rent of £2,000, increasing to £5,000, payable to Her Majesty's Treasury, ceased on the 31st of December last. An arrangement with the Italian Government is on the point of completion, by which this company's land line from Susa to Modica is to be transferred to the Government, and the company will thereby be relieved of the cost of its maintenance and working.

The prospectus has been issued of the Submarine Cables Trust, which proposes to issue certificates for £1,000,000, of £100 each, at 90 per cent. The trust is, of course, founded on the model of that of the Foreign and Colonial Government Trust, it being stated that the advantage of this form of investment, by distributing the risk over a number of kindred undertakings, is peculiarly applicable to this class of property, and it is believed the public would gladly avail themselves of the high returns yielded by telegraph cable companies if they were relieved from the fear of exceptional losses from accident or other causes, which would be greatly lessened by such a combination. The prospectus states that the trust will consist solely of the stocks, shares, or debentures of submarine cable companies which offer, apart from accidental interruptions, the prospect of a high rate of profit. Among these companies are—the Anglo-Mediterranean, the Anglo-American, the Societe du Cable Francais, the British Indian Submarine, the British Indian Extension, the British Australian, the Marseilles, Algiers, and Malta, the China Submarine, and the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta.

The traffic receipts of the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Company for the month of May amounted to £7,263 15s. 4d. The traffic receipts of the British-Indian Submarine Company for the month of May amounted to £10,753. The traffic receipts of the Marseilles, Algiers, and Malta Company for the month of April were £813. The traffic receipts of the British-Indian Extension Company for the month of May amounted to £4,386.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, held on the 6th, at their offices, Leadenhall-street, Mr. Patrick Douglas Hadow in the chair, the report was unanimously adopted, and a dividend of 3 per cent., free of income-tax, for the half-year ending the 31st of March, was declared, payable on and after the 24th inst. A report of the meeting will be found in another column.

The report of the Ceylon Company (Limited), to be presented on the 20th inst., recommends a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, a balance of £4,267 to be carried forward. The reserved fund, after deducting £20,000 credited to the amount of mortgages foreclosed in Mauritius, and £26,275, the balance of cost of estates sold in Ceylon, stands now at £20,257.

The directors of the Universal Marine Insurance Company (Limited) have declared an interim dividend of 5s. per share, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The London and Provincial Marine Insurance Company have notified a payment of interest for the half-year ending the 30th of June next at the usual rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The Thetis Marine Insurance Company have announced that 2s. 6d. per share will be paid as interest for the half-year ending the 30th of June.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for the month of May have been issued. The totals show that our imports during the month amounted in value to £24,418,272, being a reduction of £2,466,224 as compared with the corresponding month of last year; our exports, however, were valued at £12,099,880, being an increase of £2,212,940. During the five months of this year our imports have amounted to £120,502,118, being an increase of £17,655,385 as compared with last year; and our exports to £52,379,737, which is an increase of £2,578,553.

The export trade shows some remarkable changes, chiefly of an encouraging nature. Thus, for instance, our cotton manufactures exported increased in value from £4,377,696 in May last year to £4,922,135 last month. Comparing the five months of the present year with those of last year, there appears very little difference in value; but these are over a million in excess of the preceding year 1869. The iron trade would appear to be in a very flourishing condition, as the exports last month (£2,782,973) were nearly a quarter of a million in excess of last year, and for the four months they amounted to £9,229,245. The value of the linen manufactures exported last month (£614,147) represents an increase; but there is a slight decline in the five months as contrasted with last year. The wool trade seems to have experienced an enormous impetus, as the exports of woollen and worsted manufactures last month (£2,160,203) were about half a million greater than in the same month last year. Upon the five months, during which the exports were valued at £9,604,585, there is also an improvement of over half a million sterling.

The following is an extract from these Returns of those figures which relate to our Export trade with China and other countries in the Far East:—

TEA.

Public sales of China, comprising 11,562 packages, were held on the 6th inst., of which 4,200 packages were offered with reserved prices and withdrawn, of the remainder about 5,500 packages found buyers, nearly all without reserve. The greater part of the supply consisted of low and undesirable qualities, which were sold at about the previous value. A few breaks of low Green and black leaf Siftings were rather cheaper. The moderate quantity of common to fair qualities of Congou sold steadily. Common to good common red leaf Congou realised 10d. to 10½d.; fair, 11½d. to 1s. 0½d.; low Shanghai dust offered with all faults sold at 1½d. to 2d., Foochow siftings and fannings (partly old import) at 4½d. to 5½d., and very low Canton Congou at 4½d. per lb.

Privately there is a fair business passing in common kinds, but fine and choice Teas, especially Monings, remain without buyers over 2s. per lb.

SILK.

The market continues in a depressed state. Continental troubles and the usual uncertainty respecting crops still deter manufacturers from buying, except for immediate wants, and notwithstanding the continuous fall in prices, buyers look for further concessions. In spite of all adverse circumstances, we must report that almost daily fair quantities of Canton Silk have been selling, and the consumption—all things considered—is good, though the large importation has caused an increase of stock, which now is unusually large. Transactions in China Silk have been very limited. In Japan Silk there has been some business. Maibash sorts have sold chiefly for speculation, and there is still an inquiry for medium Oshu, which, unlike other kinds, is taken for consumption.

Deliveries from 1st to 6th June inclusive:—China, &c., 769 bales; Japan, 111 bales.

COFFEE.

During the week which has elapsed since our last report public sales of some magnitude, consisting chiefly of Plantation Ceylon, have taken place and the offers have been mostly disposed of at steady rates, although a want of animation is still observable. Native Ceylon has been quitted at lower rates than those ruling of late. The following are the latest prices realised:—Plantation Ceylon, triage and ordinary 46s. to 53s., small grey to coloury 54s. 6d. to 60s. 6d., low middling grey and dull 59s. 6d. to 62s. 6d., bold ditto 61s. 6d. to 68s., middling 63s. to 68s., good to fine middling 69s. to 76s., good bold 73s. to 81s., peaberry 76s. to 82s. 6d., Native Ceylon, small 45s., good ordinary 51s. 6d., fine ordinary bold 53s. to 53s. 6d., peaberry 57s. 6d. An offer of 458 bags Singapore was chiefly sold, Bonthynce at 54s., good bold brownish 54s. 6d., mixed brownish 50s. to 50s. 6d. An offer of 49 bags pale Manila was bought in at 58s.

Although the landings for the week amount to 1,549 tons, consisting chiefly of Foreign and Continental Indian, they are about 700 tons less than in 1870, but deliveries are also less by about 400 tons, and the deficiency in the stock is only slightly increased. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 352,660 cwt., against 303,452 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1870; Native 47,586 cwt., against 32,519 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 9,409 cwt. Plantation, against 15,177 cwt., and 2,326 cwt. Native, against 6,992 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-two weeks ended June 3, 1871, was, of Ceylon, 12,504 tons, against 12,756 tons during the corresponding period of 1870; of all descriptions, 22,682 tons, against 18,704 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 4,448 tons, against 4,566 tons; of all descriptions, 7,993 tons, against 7,749 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 11,230 tons, against 7,730 tons; of all descriptions, 21,958 tons, against 15,799 tons. The stock on June 3 was, of Ceylon, 10,481 tons, against 12,324 tons; of all descriptions, 17,531 tons, against 19,375 tons.

SUGAR.

During the last few days arrivals have increased the quantity on show for private sale, and refiners being only willing to purchase at a slight concession, a decline of 6d. per cwt. has in most instances been accepted. The following is a record of the business done during the week:—MANILLA: In auction offers of 13,277 bags met no offers and were all bought in as follows: 6,675 bags fine clayed (duty 4s. 9d.), imported 1865 at 27s. 6d.; 5,842 bags low brown (duty 4s.) import May, 1870, at 23s. 6d.; and 760 bags Ceba unclayed at 22s. By private contract 9,000 bags old clayed have been sold at 25s. to 25s. 6d.; 3,040 bags Taa unclayed of old import at 21s. 3d.; and 11,000 bags Ilo Ilo soft brown (duty 4s.) at 25s. to 25s. 6d.; of the parcels previously offered by auction and bought in 6,675 bags good clayed (duty 4s. 9d.) have been sold at 27s. 3d. PENANG: There have been no public sales; privately 200 baskets low date have been sold at 19s. 6d. JAVA: In auction 781 baskets fine strong gray (duty 6s.), ex Acuaris, were offered and bought in at 41s. SIAM: At public sale 540 bags syrupy brown (duty 4s.) offered, 335 bags sold at 25s.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market continues quiet, but Ceylon is saleable in small quantities at £39 10s. cash, and at £40 with three months' prompt.

HEMP.—In public sale of 966 bales Manila offered, the bulk consisted of brown qualities, which continue dull of sale, and only 200 bales found buyers at former rates, a few lots sound, fine £49 5s., fine brown £40, but chiefly damaged brown at £32 15s. to £34 10s., the remainder being bought in at £36 to £44.

PEPPER.—Black: At the last auctions 1,471 bags offered met a good demand, but being held for extreme rates, only 500 bags found buyers at ½d. above the quotations of a week ago; 529 bags Singapore were bought in at 5½d.; and of 588 bags good Penang 150 bags sold at 5½d. Privately small sales have been made at full rates. There has been a large demand for floating parcels, and transactions reaching 6,000 bags Penang have been effected, mostly distant shipment, at 4½d. to 5d., a few 5½d.; also about 3,000 bags, for delivery in October at 5d. White is also in request, and prices are again rather dearer; in auction 183 bags Singapore were partly sold at 8d. to 8½d.

RICE.—The tone of the market is quiet, but steady prices are obtainable. At public sale on the spot about 5,000 bags white Bengal have been sold at 12s. 3d. to 12s. 6d.; 3,000 bags Ballam at 9s. 6d. to 10s.; 6,000 mats garden Siam at 9s. 1½d.; and 4,000 bags Rangoon at 9s. 6d. For arrival 200 tons white Bengal have been sold, but the price is not reported. Privately 600 tons garden Siam have been sold at 9s. 3d.; and 1,200 bags white Bengal at 10s. 6d.

SHELLS.—The periodical auctions took place on the 6th inst. with the following results. Mother O'Pearl Shells: Large quantities of both Bombay and Freemantle were brought forward, and with a good demand were nearly all disposed of at fully last sale's rates; Manila also brought full prices; 58 cases fair bold Manila sold at £7 15s., 38 cases Macassar partly sold, medium £9, fine bold bought in at £13. Tortoiseshell: A total of 4,900 lbs. was offered, which met a good demand, and the bulk found buyers at firm prices, 8 cases (768 lbs.) Singapore sold at 12s. to 13s., and 1 box (49 lbs.) Penang at 12s. Cowries: Of 85 bags Ceylon live Maldiva offered only 8 bags medium sold at 32s. 6d., the remainder withdrawn. Green Snail Shells: 99 baskets and 33,360 loose Penang and Singapore chiefly sold, good bold 3½d. to 4½d., medium and loose 2½d. to 3d., small and broken 1½d. to 1½d. each. Ear Shells: 153 baskets, 42 cases, and 50 tons loose Japan met few offers, and were all bought in at 18s. to 30s. per cwt.

TOBACCO, &c.—Japan is in good demand. Some parcels lately arrived were offered at public sale, and found buyers at 8½d. to 10½d. In Java transactions have been numerous, all recent imports, when of good useful quality, having been readily placed. Prices remain firm. Stock in first hands is now very limited. Manila of the last import continues in request, and prices are well maintained. Some sales are reported to have been made afloat of the 1870 crop, at an advance on the first cost, and in the absence of covers of other growths there is but little doubt that the demand for this growth will be very considerable. At auction 13 bales Leaf sold—Ysabela No. 2 at 2s. 9d., No. 3 at 1s. 5½d., Cayagan No. 2 at 2s. 8½d., No. 3 at 1s. 5d. Manila Cheroots and Cigars: Stock of both descriptions very limited; the late arrivals have been very heavy in weight, which is a great drawback to the ready sale, except at proportionate prices.

TIN.—Straits has continued in demand, and has further advanced, the present quotations being on the spot £128 to £128 10s., afloat £128 Banca rules at £130 and Billiton at £128 per ton.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet or tin is labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London. Epps's Cocoa is also prepared with condensed milk, and sold in tins, labelled Epps's Milky Cocoa.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—MAY 27.

TEA.

Messrs. Beebe Bros. report as follows:—Since our report of the market under date of April 21 an active business has been done in Greens, at gradually improving rates for most descriptions. Sales from first hands foot up 44,500 half-chests for the month, the market closing with increased firmness, especially for fine to finest chops of Tienki and Moyune. In Japans a moderate business is reported, at rather lower quotations for common to fine, and 2c. to 5c. better for finest to choice; the latter are in limited supply at the moment, and find a ready market at the advance. Sales since last date include 19,600 half-chests. Oolongs have been taken to a small extent only from the crop now coming to hand, at unchanged prices. Of old Teas, however, nearly 25,000 half-chests have found buyers on a basis of 25c. to 27c. in bond, for fair to good cargo. Total of sales during the month 32,700 half-chests; Souchong and Congou to the extent of 8,000 half-chests have been taken by the trade at prices within the range of our quotations. The market closes with a good consumptive demand, and a more healthy tone for Tea generally.

The following are the current quotations (in gold, duty 15c. paid):—Greens (Moyune, Teenki, and Fychow): Gunpowder fair to good, 65c. to 100c.; fine to finest, 70c. to 115c.; Imperial, fair to good, 38c. to 82c.; fine to finest, 45c. to 95c.; Young Hyson, fair to good, 35c. to 37c.; fine to finest, 37c. to 105c.; Hyson, fair to good, 31c. to 63c.; fine to finest, 40c. to 75c.; Hyson Skin, 26c. to 35c.; Foochow Oolongs, common and good, 40c. to 48c.; superior and fine, 53c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 100c.; Amoy Oolongs, common and good, 38c. to 48c.; superior and fine, 50c. to 60c.; finest, 62c. to 65c.; Souchong and Congou, common and good, 27c. to 38c.; superior and fine, 43c. to 58c.; finest, 60c. to 85c.; Japans, common, 43c. to 45c.; medium, 47c. to 50c.; good medium, 52c. to 54c.; fine and finest, 56c. to 70c.; choice, 75c. to 80c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to May 18, 1871, were as follows:—Greens, 13,299,694 lbs.; Japans, 6,945,064 lbs.; Souchongs, 1,686,985 lbs.; Oolongs, 9,046,638 lbs.; other sorts, 213,195 lbs.; total, 31,191,576 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 16,748,661 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 47,940,237 lbs., as the total supply. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to May 18, 2,876,394 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 24,252,053 lbs., there remains a total of 20,811,790 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from April 19 to May 18 amounted to 4,457,727 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 4,610,723 lbs.; and the exports to 648,406 lbs.

COFFEE.—The current quotations for East India kinds are, Java Government bags, 18c. to 20c.; Java mats, 18½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 17c. to 18c.; Manila, 14c. to 15c.; Native Ceylon, 15½c. to 17c., showing no change from those of our last issue. The market for all descriptions remains dull, though we have no change to notice in prices. There is a disposition on the part of holders to meet buyers, could they be found, at current rates, but their continued reticence brings business almost to a stand. The market, which for some time past has been bare of Java in first hands, has been supplied by the arrival of the Agincourt with 15,540 mats from Padang, of which 5,000 mats were sold before arrival on terms which have not transpired; there is also the sale of 4,185 mats, ex Sally Brown, on private terms, to report.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 17c. to 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.30; Cassia, 97½c. gold (in bond).

FIRE CRACKERS.—Are in good supply, but remain steady at previous rates. Sales have been made of 3,800 boxes extra No. 1, in lots, at $2.47½ to 2.50, and 1,000 boxes in bond at $1.20 gold.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is $4 gold (duty free).

HEMP.—The market for Manila is still without change, but is very firm, with a sale of 400 bales, to arrive per S. D. Carlton, at 11½c., 60 days; we quote as before—10½c. to 11½c. gold, according to quality, the latter price being for the best grades.

INDIGO.—The market is dull, and the business doing is confined to actual requirements; about 30 cases Manila has been sold during the week at $1 to 1.25 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 50c. to $1.50 currency (duty free).

RICE.—There is a steady and fairly active demand for all descriptions, and the market maintains the firm tone noticed in our report of a week since. In East India the following sales have been effected:—2,000 bags Rangoon in lots for home consumption at $7 to $7.25 currency, 2,750 bags in bond at $3.40 to $3.55 sold, and 700 bags new crop received via Suez Canal at $7.25 to $7.50 currency.

SUGAR.—We have to notice an inactive sluggish market, the buying, both from refiners and the trade, having been confined to the supply of their immediate wants, and though previous quotations are maintained, they must be considered a little extreme for low refining grades. The stock gains a little on previous figures, and there is a disposition in some quarters to meet the views of buyers from landing parcels, but as a rule holders generally exhibit confidence in the future and refrain from pressing their supplies on an unwilling market; there is in consequence a steady feeling, though the absence of general buying gives the market a dull appearance. The only sale of East India has been 23,996 bags, ex Chattanooga (before arrival), at 8½c.

SPICES.—For invoices the market is quiet, but there continues a good jobbing demand, and prices remain steady. Sales have been made of Mace at $1.15; Nutmegs, 80c. to 82½c. for English, and 84 do. for Penang; Cassia, 31c. to 31½c.; Cloves, 11c. to 11½c.; Pepper, 16c. for Sumatra and 16½c. for Singapore.

TIN.—Still remains dull and neglected, and, though holders ask former prices, quotations may be said to be entirely nominal. There having been no business, Banca is held at 38c., and Straits 32½c. gold.

Company's steamer Australian is reported leaving Hong Kong on the 9th inst., with 1,300 tons new season's Hankow Tea, and 800 bales Silk. She also brings the usual mails, which will be landed at Suez for Enderby, and the vessel will come through the Canal on to Southampton.

Advices have also been received of the departure from Hankow and Shanghai of the Ulysses (since reported on shore in the Yangtze), Erl King, Craigforth, Lord of the Isles, Cheops, Enterprise, Argonaut and Diomed steamers.

It is known that some of these vessels are not full, and that the rate of freight is £5 to £6 per ton 40 feet from Hankow. The Danube, from Canton, £4. The Australia $30 paid there. The advices regarding the course of prices and settlements at Hankow are unreliable, as also the opening of the Silk market at Shanghai on a basis of 23s. 6d. for Red Peacock.

OLD SEASON'S TEA.

The only two vessels afloat now are the Vanguard, from Shanghai, and Isles of the South, from Canton.

THE FOOCHOW MARKET.

A telegram received this morning (presumed to be dated Foochow 12th) advises the market not opened.

THE HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI CABLE.

It is uncertain when this cable can be repaired, as the Great Northern Company's agent would probably have to wait the arrival of the Danish frigate Tordenskjold.

COMPLETION OF THE CHINA CABLE.

"It is impossible to conceive anything that the Chinese 'have not known for ages before our time!' Such was the almost despairing exclamation of good Bishop WILKINS—CROMWELL's brother-in-law, and TILLOTSON's step-father—when he 'found that his theory for the universal medium for the communication of ideas' had been anticipated by the disciples of CONFUCIUS from time immemorial. WILKINS's idea was 'a language that may consist only of tunes and musical notes without any articulate sound;' and the disappointment he expressed was caused by the discovery that this is the leading principle of the Chinese language; because, while the letters of our alphabet are mere symbols of sounds, the Chinese characters are symbols of ideas, and alike intelligible to the people of Cochin China, Japan, and half-a-dozen surrounding nations, with those of China itself. If our noble pioneer of religious toleration had lived in the present day, he would, however, have been obliged to confess himself mistaken in assigning the priority of invention in everything to the Chinese; for the Submarine Telegraph, which has just brought us a message from the Flowery Land in five hours, is most certainly an European discovery which must take the Asiatics considerably by surprise. It is, however, an accomplished, and we may now say, literally an every-day fact, that in a few hours we may know everything that concerns us in China. On Monday last we in Cornhill knew as much of Saturday's quotations, markets, exchanges, &c., &c., in Hong Kong as the most watchful merchant. At the same moment Mincing-lane was made aware of the fact that the P. and O. steamer Australia was putting out of Hong Kong harbour with about 1,800 tons of new season teas from Hankow; 'LLOYD'S' learned, to a keel, the risks that it had escaped and those which it had begun to incur, by the list of arrivals and departures.

At the moment when we are sharing the general enthusiasm at the completion of this latest triumph of science, we must not forget to pay our humble tribute of gratitude to those who have devoted their energies and capital to confer so enormous a boon on the Western World. The influence of the China Submarine Telegraph on our commercial and political relations with the Far East is too apparent to need any attempt to describe it; and we sincerely hope that all to whom we are indebted for conducting this great enterprise to a successful issue will find a substantial reward for their public spirit.

THE CHINESE DESPATCH.

It affords us great satisfaction to record the relief with which we have read the Circular so long anxiously expected, and which has at length been presented to Parliament, an official translation of the copy addressed to the French Minister having been obtained through the courtesy of the French Government, our own Foreign Office being still without the one referred to in Mr. WADE's telegram. We have so often dwelt on this important fact that it is unnecessary to do more than refer to it, now that the document itself comes before us for examination. We have no doubt but that the French Government will be equally ready to give us a copy of their reply. After perusing the contents of the Circular, two remarkable characteristics of it suggest themelves to our mind. One is the extraordinary firmness of the style; the other, the impression it gives that it is intended to apply almost exclusively to the French and to Roman Catholics. So strongly marked is this last, that, if we were not compelled by Mr. WADE's telegram to believe that a copy must have been received by him, we should be inclined to think it possible that the Circular had not been addressed to the British Minister, and was not meant to refer to Protestant missionaries at all.

The Circular sets out with a brief sketch of the introduction and early progress of Roman Catholicism in China. The first Catholic missionaries were then recognised as the literati of the West; and, the Circular proceeds, "The greater part of the conversions took place at that time among respectable people. On the other hand, since the conclusion of the Treaties took place (1860), the majority of the converts are persons without virtue; so that that religion, whose object is to exhort men to virtue, no longer enjoys any consideration." The italics are, of course, our own, but the language of the official translator would seem to indicate that the Circular designedly excluded Protestantism from the reproach which it ascribes to Catholicism. It is indeed the gravamen of the whole document that low and dangerous characters, "veteran rebels, beyond the pale of the law, amateurs in intrigue, seek a refuge in the church and lean upon her influence in order to commit disorders." The animosity of the people has thus been excited to frenzy, and, the Circular adds, "They are in general unaware of the difference between Protestantism and Catholicism, and confound the two religions under the same denomination, so that, when troubles break out, foreigners residing in China are all exposed to the same dangers." Nothing could be clearer than this, if we could accept it as sincere. Unfortunately, however, here lies the difficulty.

The eight articles of the Circular may be shortly described as requiring (1) the registration of all children received into Catholic orphanages; (2) the prohibition of women from teaching religion; (3) that the missionaries should teach their own religion without disparaging that of the natives; (4) that the fact of a man's being a convert to Christianity does not denationalise him, and consequently gives the missionaries no right to interfere in shielding him from the laws of his country; (5) that the passports of missionaries should be limited to the precise scene of their labours; (6) that missionaries should not be permitted to make converts of criminals, or persons who have been convicted of crime; (7) that the missionaries should take rank with the native literati, and conform to the same strict rules of ceremony which that class is compelled to observe in its communications with the mandarins, &c.; and (8) that missionaries must obtain a Government licence before purchasing ground and building a chapel on it, or conducting Divine service anywhere.

As we have observed, there is nothing in any of these articles which would appear to be directed against Protestants—if we could but believe that they had been framed in a spirit of sincerity. This, however, as our readers must have anticipated, we are unable to do. We look upon the Circular before us as merely addressed pro forma to the French Government, because the French Government happened at the time to be the only Government that was in a state of utter chaos and defencelessness—being, in fact, no Government at all. We do not know in what way our French neighbours, now that, as we all hope, they have restored order at home, may be disposed to accept or resist those propositions in the Circular which refer exclusively to them. For our own part we can see none that can give a Protestant missionary a feeling of anything but relief and comparative security. The demand that his passport shall be restricted to the scene of his labours is the only point that touches him—and this, as he cannot fail to see, is his greatest safeguard, since it will circumscribe within the narrowest ascertainable limit the locality wherein he can be attacked. As for the clause about "women preaching religion," thank Heaven, we have none that do so controvert the great apostle's injunction. Our missionary's wife, if she accompanies her husband to China or India, as she always does, busies herself with acts of benevolence and good example. She doesn't want to preach for the simple reason that she practises. She does not make any foolish vows of continence because she is perfectly certain that she was meant to be the helpmate of a good man engaged in a noble work. And, so far from missionaries' wives being endangered by such objections to nuns as are enunciated in the Circular, we can call to mind one instance in which a missionary's wife was so adored by the natives among whom her husband had laboured—the many whom he had not converted, as well as the few whom he had—that, on becoming a widow, the whole village besought her to remain among them; and, when she could find it in her heart to stay no longer from her friends, helped greatly, out of their small means, to pay her passage home! Such are the Heathen—when they are kindly treated, and not misguided by their rulers.

THE CONDITION OF JAVA.

THE last mail from Java brought news of general interest. The newspapers describe disturbances at Pekalongan, and give rumours of similar affairs at Grobogan. According to the Batavia Handelsblad, the latter are more serious than is stated in the official Java Courant. It is somewhat reassuring to note that none of these reported movements seem sufficiently strong to authorise any apprehensions on the part of the Government, though an article in the Locomotif, somewhat ominously entitled "Spots on the Sun," is by no means calculated to increase the respect for Dutch rule in Java. The drift of this article is the general carelessness of the officials, and the dangerous spread of fanaticism among the native population, which it may require strong measures to suppress. It is rumoured that everywhere in the Archipelago the increasing number of Hadjis remains unchecked, while nothing is done to promote the instruction of the lower classes, and the Government is slow to confer on natives the privilege of holding land. The Education and the Land questions are, as our readers are aware, the immediate objects of the Reform party. This unsatisfactory state of things is not improved by the flippant tone of part of the Javanese press.

The prosperity of Java is at least questionable. The European population is clearly decreasing. In 1866 there were 29,132 Europeans in Java; in 1867 there were but 28,695; and in 1868 the number had still further fallen to 21,466—showing a decrease of more than twenty-five per cent. in four years. Official reports of the number of Europeans in Java have been, with doubtful discretion, withheld since the last year quoted; but there is a general belief that they have continued to decrease during these three years of official silence. The receipts from import and export duties are equally unsatisfactory. In 1844 they amounted to £7,827,347, in 1858 to £7,104,977, and in 1868 to no more than £6,215,890. These figures are certainly an eloquent commentary on the "progress" of the island, which we should like to see counteracted for the sake of all interested, for we are told that the native population is as discontented as the European. The error of the Dutch Government appears to be a general tampering with questions of the most vital and urgent importance. They content themselves with half-measures, delays, and promises, when they should grapple with facts. It is true that the Home Government is nominally Liberal, but nevertheless it is generally doubted whether the Minister, Herr VAN BOSSE, will be less wavering than his predecessors, though everyone is persuaded that, without free trade and free labour, the restoration of our former prosperity is out of the question. This Minister has certainly pledged himself to give the natives the privilege of being landowners, and he is believed to be opposed to the differential system; but everyone is asking, "Will he set himself resolutely to the task of abolishing that concrete of monopolies, 'the Dutch Trading Company'?" The time has arrived when the expiring contract between the Government and this relic of the past must be either superseded or renewed. This engrossing question must be settled in the next few months, but there is a general apprehension that, Liberal as the Government professes to be, and great as is the majority at its back, it will shrink from the course which the prosperity of the colony demands—namely, the abrogation of the present monopoly, and the licensing the independent sale of all produce in the Indian or other markets, instead of cramping commerce and discouraging capitalists by compelling everything to pass through the medium of the Dutch Company.

THE SEIZURE OF THE RICKMERS.

In our last issue we gave translations from articles which have appeared in the Hamburg Borsenhalle on the seizure of the Sophia and Robert Rickmers, which, we shall be able to show, contain a vast amount of error. In the first place it was announced, and well-understood, that the French would consider a good prize any vessel captured under a neutral flag, if such vessel had been transferred from a subject of the belligerent Power to that of a neutral after the Declaration of War. Such was the case in these two vessels, and, consequently, our Government could not interfere on behalf of the so-called British owner. The case of the Arrow is entirely different from the above, and not exactly as stated in the Borsenhalle. She was sailing under a Colonial Register, under an Ordinance No. 4, which passed the Legislative Council on 3rd March, 1855, approved by Her MAJESTY'S Government on the 30th November, 1855. The Register granted to the Arrow was dated the 27th September, 1855, and as far as is known the vessel had complied with all the provisions of the thirteen sections of the Ordinance; of which Section X. is to this effect:—"Duration of register to be for one year, and renewable by endorsement on the same. The Register to be deposited one week before the expiration of the year, or if the vessel be at sea, then on her return to the waters of Hong Kong."

Mr. Acting-Consul PARKES, in a despatch, wrote:—"YEH has no complaint against the vessel, nor does he impeach her character or occupation, but himself (YEH) bears testimony (through his witness, WOO-A-FUN) to the regularity of the trade in which she is engaged. I should have mentioned that the Arrow is well known as a trader to the legal ports. She entered from Macao with rice on the 3rd inst. (October, 1856), reported her arrival at the Consulate, and deposited her papers, which have remained to this time in my possession." The vessel had not been in Hong Kong waters since the 1st of September; therefore, in accordance with Clause X., the register had not expired when the crew was forcibly taken away from the vessel during the absence of the captain, who was an European. Further, she had not smuggled salt, but brought a legal cargo, been duly entered in the Custom-house, and her papers were deposited with the Consul, according to Article XVII. of the Supplementary Treaty, and permission to discharge her cargo had been granted by the Custom-house. The China Mail of 11th December, 1856, gives the history of the lorcha Arrow, and says:—"As an evidence of the truth of the above statements, the documents bearing reference to it have been placed in our hands for the inspection of any person who may feel interested in the matter." . . . YEH, at first, maintained that the vessel was a Chinese vessel, because she had been built by Chinese workmen; but, in his letter to Admiral SEYMOUR, he says:—"It was not known at the time my executive went to seize persons on board her that the lorcha was a foreign one."

In short, all the evidence on this matter, including the correspondence laid before Parliament, prove that the vessel was legally flying the English flag, and, therefore, entitled to its protection; no charge of smuggling or other illegal acts was brought against her by the Chinese Government or others. YEH and his minions maintained that the vessel belonged to one SOO-A-KING, while the real owner was a Compradore, a resident and Crown lessee of Hong Kong, named "FOONG-A-MING," in whose name the register was. The Mandarin who ordered the hauling down the flag said, on the occasion, "This is a Chinese vessel, for there is no foreigner on board in command"—the captain at the time being on shore to fetch his papers from the Consulate. We certainly sympathise with the owners of the Rickmers, but we cannot allow that there is any comparison with the case of the lorcha Arrow. The bombardment of Canton was not ordered solely on account of the Arrow; it was simply the last affront that Sir JOHN BOWRING made a determined stand against. It is well known to residents in China at that time that the insolence of the Governor-General, YEH, had become unbearable. Our Treaty rights were being daily ignored, in addition to the standing grievance of refusal to enter into the city of Canton. It is idle to contend that we went to war solely for the lorcha Arrow. Our list of grievances had reached that point beyond which forbearance ceased to be a virtue."

We understand that an interview was granted by Lord GRANVILLE to Mr. HUGH MATHESON on the subject of the "Chinese despatch," at which his Lordship stated that he would not be able to state the views of H.M. Government on the despatch until its receipt from Mr. WADDE, and consequently a deputation at the present time would be useless. The only daily paper which at present has noticed the despatch is the Globe. We give this in another column. By advices from Washington we hear that the United States Government have conveyed to their Minister at Peking the following instructions for his guidance:—"Any violation of the rights of our citizens, and any violation of our Treaty rights may cause a change in the traditional policy of the United States Government in their intercourse with China."

The China Submarine Company have, we understand arranged with the French Government the terms for messages over their Cable to and from Saigon, and instructions have been sent out to pick up the cable and connect the Saigon shore end. The small line to be laid in the Straits of Sunda to connect Anjer with Sumatra will be sent out next month with the cable to connect Java and Australia. It has been arranged to retain a repairing cable ship on the Straits and China station.

THE STATE AND CLAIMS OF HONG KONG.

We are indebted to a gentleman of long experience in this colony for the facts from which we condense the following statements. Having regard to the national utility—we might almost say the national dependence—of Hong Kong, it certainly seems most unfair that the cost of any part of the military establishment should be borne by this one small colony, simply because it is the corner-stone of our position in China. Hong Kong can ill afford the drain of £20,000 a-year for the sake of preserving the security of other stations, which are constantly endangered, while contributing nothing to their defence, the place which pays being the most secure of all. Perhaps our correspondent's remarks may elicit the opinions of others interested in the subject:—

If we turn to the report of the Select Committee of 1847 concerning the propriety of supporting the colony of Hong Kong by Parliamentary grant, we find the result of its deliberations comprised in the brief sentence, "Nor do we think it right that the burden of maintaining that which is rather a post for general influence, and the protection of the general trade in the China seas, than a colony in the ordinary sense, should be thrown in any great degree on the merchants or other persons who may be resident on it."

In the following session Mr. Hawes, then Under Secretary for the Colonies, protested against the charge brought against Hong Kong that it was an "extravagant" settlement, and showed that, while its income was increasing, its expenditure was decreasing; and added his opinion that Hong Kong was an important station, and was maintained for the protection of our trade, and not for the sake of patronage; and it could only be upheld by the aid of a naval and military force. But it was not fair to charge that expenditure upon the colony. Indeed, he might remark that if they had no colonies they would still be obliged to maintain a large fleet and a considerable force for the general protection of trade and commerce; so when hon. gentlemen spoke of the packet service in connection with our colonies, he must protest against the inference, because it was clear that that service must be maintained, whether they had colonies or not. The rule which he would venture to lay down was, that as soon as a colony had arrived at that amount of population, and attained that amount of intelligence which could furnish the materials for good government, that then it was the bounden duty of a Secretary of State to grant local self-government.

Two years later, on the vote of £20,000 for the establishment of Hong Kong being opposed by the Hon. Mr. Scott, who wished to reduce it to £15,000, Lord Palmerston said it was a mistake to look at Hong Kong in the same light as other colonies. It should not be considered merely as a colony, but as a post for the support of our trade with China generally. When he framed the instructions to Sir Henry Pottinger, who went to China with a view to the treaty which he was to conclude, and afterwards did (with verbal alterations) conclude, it was his (Lord Palmerston's) duty to obtain information from every possible quarter, and he saw people from all parts who had any knowledge of China, past or present, and among others from whom he received valuable information was Sir George Staunton, who was not then in the House. Two things were pressed upon him as of the utmost importance, one was that access should be obtained to a large number of ports in China, and that our intercourse should not be confined to Canton; and next, that some insular position should be established on the coast of China. Chusan was at first fixed on, but it was found to be too far up, and objectionable on account of the influence of the "monsoon," so Hong Kong was chosen. So strong was the opinion as to the importance of an insular position, that many persons doubted whether it would not be equivalent to admission into other ports besides Canton. We had got both. Hong Kong, therefore, was not to be considered merely in relation to the trade of that port, although his hon. friend had shown that it was increasing, the tonnage of which amounted to 293,000 in the last year, being 64,000 more than the year before; but it was to be looked upon as a place whence naval and military assistance might be derived to support the merchants trading in the different Chinese ports. Those who knew what was going on in China were aware that our position in Canton was not very satisfactory, and that there was a feeling of hostility towards us. It was important that the merchants there should have at hand British support to which they could look for assistance. Hong Kong was important not merely as regarded its commerce, but for its protection to commerce, and was selected on account of its insular position.

The objections of Mr. Scott and his friends were founded on a pamphlet entitled "Statements and Suggestions Concerning Hong Kong," the object of which was alleged to be to rid Parliament of a pecuniary burden, meaning the grant in aid of the expenses of the Civil Government, and to vest the funds in a municipal body with a legal adviser. The author of this pamphlet, however, admitted that "as regarded the military, if it were indispensable to maintain something Imperial, that would be amply secured by the troops and ships of war, which must always make Hong Kong their head quarters in China. It is for the sake of the general trade and of British influence in China, not in Hong Kong, that these forces are kept up."

About the same period the present Chancellor of the Exchequer made a remarkable speech at the meeting of the Colonial Reform Association. Mr. Lowe then made a complaint, concerning the justice of which little doubt can exist. "The greatest amount of political feeling and public feeling," he said, "is enlisted in the colonies against the centralising power of the Colonial Office. The question of questions in the colonies is not the form of their internal policy, but the management of their own local affairs by their own local authorities." And he added, "They (the colonists) feel so hampered and restricted by the system prevailing in the Colonial Office, that I do not overstate the general feeling when I say, that it would be more acceptable to the Australian colonies if the Governor of each colony were armed with absolute executive and legislative power,—that such a Government if attended with the delegation of full authority to settle at once, upon the spot, all local questions, would be more acceptable than the freest system of Government which the ingenuity of man could devise, clogged with the restrictions and hampered with the interventions to which the present mode of colonial administration is subject."

As regards the composition of Legislative Councils, where the nominees of Government and office holders under it must vote with the Governor, Mr. Lowe said (speaking from his own experience in the colonies):—"If I voted with the Government, I was in danger of being reproached, as I have been on one or two occasions, as a mere tool of the Government, and not, according to the theory of the constitution, acting for the colony at large; and if I took the opposite course and voted with the Opposition, as I did upon most questions, and upon none more heartily than upon that relating to district councils, I was reproached by the officials as a traitor to the Government. In fact I was in this position—if I voted with the Government I was taunted with being a 'slave,' and if I voted against them I was taunted with being a 'traitor.'"

Mr. Gladstone, who then sat for Oxford University, said, in the debate on the New Zealand Bill in 1852:—"Departing from the principles of former days, you have implanted a principle, if not of absolute, yet of comparative feebleness in your distant settlements. You have brought upon yourselves enormous expense, and, by depriving them of the fullness of political freedom, you have deprived them of the greatest attraction which they could possibly hold out to the best part of your population to emigrate; because Englishmen do not wish to emigrate to countries where they cannot enjoy the political franchises which they enjoy at home, and where the regulation of their interests will be committed to the hands of a Government which, however mild and equitable, must still be called despotic. The system which I recommend, which I am certainly convinced will gain ground from year to year in the feelings and convictions of this country, is the system on which the whole of that great and wonderful operation of colonising North America was conducted—the system which Mr. Burke studied, examined, and comprehended from top to bottom, and which he described in his great speech on American taxation, when he warned the Parliament against the erroneous and destructive consequences of attempting to establish administrative power over their distant dependencies, or to extract from them some miserable and contemptible pecuniary benefit. The by-laws of Liverpool or London are not sent to the Secretary for the Home Department to be kept for two years considering whether they are to be carried into effect or not, but they go into operation at once, or are laid aside, as is found expedient; and our system would be as bad as that of Turkey if it were not so. I must say the degenerate and degrading ideas we now have of retaining the substance of colonial patronage partly, and still more the name, in this country were totally unknown to your ancestors six generations ago. Thus, in fact, the principles on which our colonial administration was once conducted have been reversed, and our colonies have come to be looked upon as states. I will say, that when we look at the constitutions we have given of late years to our colonies, the acts we have passed, the difficulties we have had with them, and the millions we have paid for the suppression of insurrections, and when we see that 200 years ago a system conceived in another spirit was carried out by our forefathers, we cannot raw the contrast without a blush upon our faces."

THE CHINESE DESPATCH.

(GLOBE.)

Trouble is certainly brewing in China. Our Ministers may be lulled into the sleep of a false security by the peaceful asseverations of Mr. Wade, whose roseate-hued picture of the Celestials is exciting mingled gratulation and incredulity. But others equally well-informed on affairs in China affirm that matters are hastening on to the goal of a war of extermination against foreigners. The Chinese are becoming bold, as the European Powers, which formerly held them in check, are becoming impotent and imperturbable by events abroad. We offer no prediction as to the future course of events in China; but the Chinese Government has now presented its first ultimatum to the European Powers, and it remains to be seen what development this new phase of the Chinese problem will assume. The mysterious Circular of the Chinese Government, which has been the source of much apprehension, is now before Parliament, and from this it appears that the crusade is first made against the missionaries—chiefly Roman Catholic French—established in China. A more flaming incitement to popular wrath could hardly have been penned. The European missionaries are accused of all imaginable offences, whereby their presence has become odious, and the case for their extermination is thus put forward:—

The Prince and the members of the Yamen fear in all sincerity lest, after the arrangement of the Tientsin affair, the animosity of the ignorant Christians of the Empire should take a more decided tone of insolent bluster, that the bitterness of the popular resentment should increase, and that so much accumulated bad feeling, causing a sudden explosion, should bring about a catastrophe. It would then be no longer possible for the local authorities, nor for the high provincial functionaries, nor even for the Tsung-li Yamen, to assert their authority. In the event of a general rising in China, the Emperor will be able to appoint high dignitaries to order them to assemble everywhere imposing forces; but the greatest rigour does not reach the masses, and when their anger manifests itself, there are persons who refuse to yield their heads to the executioner. Then, when the evil becomes irremediable, and when the wish we all have to preserve so great interests will no longer be effectual, the men who direct the international affairs of China and of Europe will not be suffered to decline the responsibility which falls on them. In short, in the direction of affairs, the important point in China, as in Europe, is to satisfy opinion. If, failing in this duty, oppression and violence are employed, a general rising will at last take place.

They are not permitted to place themselves in a kind of exceptional independence, to show themselves recalcitrant to the authority of the Government and of the officials, to attribute to themselves powers which do not belong to them, to injure the reputation of men, to oppress the people, to asperse the doctrine of Confucius, by which they give ground for the suspicions, the resentments, and the indignation of the masses. The missionaries must submit themselves, like everybody, to the authority of the local officials; and the Christian Chinese must, in every case, be treated according to the common law. Except the expense of theatrical solemnities and of the worship of local protecting divinities from which they are dispensed from contributing to, the Christians cannot escape the requisitions and forced labour, and are constrained to accept, like everybody else, the charges imposed by the local administration. With stronger reason they cannot refuse to pay, in their integrity, the land taxes and the rents, nor can the missionaries advise them and support them in infringing the common law. In the case in which missionaries allow themselves to be mixed up in affairs beyond their province, the local authorities ought to send their verbal or written communications to the high provincial functionaries, who will refer them in their turn to the Tsung-li-Yamen, in order that a decision may be eventually taken as to the repatriation of these same missionaries. In the case where Christians in suits respecting matrimonial alliances or property in land plume themselves upon their position of Christians to invoke the intervention of the missionaries, they will be severely punished by the authorities.

Chinese and foreigners living together ought to be governed by the same laws. For example, if a man kills another, he ought to be punished, if a Chinaman, according to the Chinese law; if he is a foreigner, according to the law of his country. In thus acting, order will reign; it matters little the manner in which the Chinese or foreigners treat the case: punishment is all that is necessary. But that punishment once inflicted, they must not come and claim indemnities, and above all they must not seek the soi-disant abettor of the crime to exact from him a certain sum. It belongs to the local authorities to adjudicate on the differences which may arise between the Christians and the people. If it is a Pagan who has committed wrongs against a Christian, he ought to be punished more or less severely, according to the gravity of the fault; similarly if it is a question of a Christian accused by a Pagan. The official ought to adjudicate with the most perfect justice, and the greatest impartiality. If a Christian conducts himself altogether contrary to the laws, the local authority takes evidence; and if some one accuses this Christian, the latter is seized and judged. But the missionaries must not then come forward to defend him, and exculpate him. If the case arises of a missionary preventing a Christian giving himself up to the commands of the authority, the Christian alone ought not to be punished, but also the missionary, or at least he ought to be sent back to his own country.

They ought not to make use of seals, the use of which is reserved for functionaries alone. It is not allowed them to send despatches to a Yamen, whatever may be their importance. If, however, for an urgent matter it should be absolutely necessary to write, they may do it; but taking good care not to speak of matters beyond the subject, and making use, like people belonging to the class of literates, of the Sling-tieh (petition). When the missionaries visit a great mandarin, they must observe the same ceremonies as those exacted from the literates; if they visit a mandarin of inferior rank, they must also conform to the customary ceremonies. They must not unceremoniously go into the yamens.

What is of not less importance, the Chinese Government would exercise a sort of confiscatory right over all property bought by missionaries for Church purposes; and, on the whole, the eight articles of this Chinese Government Circular doubtless prove what is the chief contention, "the impossibility of Christians and non-Christians living together harmoniously" in China under the proposed regime. To judge alone from Mr. Wade's despatch to Lord Granville, dated March 29 last, and just issued from the Foreign Office, one might infer that there is not the slightest ground for apprehension. Quiet everywhere; order supreme; toleration, but little love—such, according to Mr. Wade, were the characteristics two or three months ago of every part of China penetrated by the European. But did Lord Granville ever hear of the calm which precedes the storm? In one significant statement Mr. Wade lays down a portentous hypothesis. "If the assumption be correct," he says, "that the people heretofore well-disposed are everywhere becoming hostile to the foreigner, the foreigner must elect shortly either to conquer the country or to leave it." This is unquestionably the issue, but Mr. Wade perceives "no indication of such a change." What stronger "indication" is needed than that in the action of the Chinese Government, which is now intensifying the hatred of the Chinese population towards all Europeans trading or residing in the country?

(WEEKLY REVIEW.)

[We have received the following important communication from Mr. Hugh M. Matheson, which will be read with interest at the present time. From his thorough knowledge of the subject, there is no one more able to form a correct judgment upon the exact bearings of the despatch which has caused so much anxiety to the friends of missions to China]:—

I have been exceedingly relieved by the presentation to Parliament yesterday of the circular of the Chinese Government on the subject of missions, communicated by the French Charge d'Affaires. An examination of this document leads me strongly to believe that it is the only communication on the subject issued by the Chinese at the present time, and that it is owing to incorrect and exaggerated reports of its contents, received at first by telegraph, and subsequently in brief outline in the China newspapers, that so much uneasiness and anxiety has lately been caused to the friends of Christian missions.

The circular is in the form of a note, addressed by the Prince Kung and the members of the Yamen to the representative of the French Government in China, and points out the difficulties which have arisen in China from the methods adopted by the Roman Catholic priesthood in propagating their faith, and very specially from the practice which has grown up among them of interfering to shield their converts or adherents from the just operation of Chinese laws. The members of the Yamen are alarmed lest the people at large should be roused beyond the power of restraint to animosity against the Catholics, and through them against other foreigners. "At this moment," they say, "the animosity of the people, already deep, degenerates gradually into a hate, which at length reaches its paroxysm. The people in general, unaware of the difference which exists between Protestantism and Catholicism, confound these two religions under this latter denomination. They do not grasp the distinction which should be made between the different nations of which Europe is composed, and give to Europeans the generic name of 'man from without,' so that when trouble breaks out foreigners in China are all exposed to the same dangers." They therefore call upon Europeans, in concert with themselves, to seek by efficacious means a really lasting understanding, and wind up the letter thus:—"Consequently, with the view of protecting the great interests of general peace, and of remedying the abuses above pointed out, the Prince and the members of the Yamen have the honour to submit, for your Excellency's examination, a plan of regulation in eight articles, which has also been communicated to the representatives of other Powers."

The paper goes on to say: "The facts which are stated in this memorandum have been chosen as examples among many others to demonstrate what is irregular in the acts of the missionaries. . . . The object is to separate the tares from the good grain; to punish the wicked in the interests of the good. . . . The rules which we now propose are the last expression of our firm will to protect the missionaries, and have nothing in their import hostile to them. If they sincerely endeavour to conform themselves to them, good harmony might be maintained; if, on the other hand, the missionaries consider these same rules in the light of attempts upon their independence, or contrary to their rites, they may cease to preach their religion in China. The Chinese Government treats its Christian and its non-Christian subjects on a footing of perfect equality; that is the evident proof that it is not opposed to the work of the missions. In return, the missionaries, allowing themselves to be duped by the Christians, do not adhere faithfully to their duties. From this state of things a hatred by the masses must result, which it will be very difficult to combat, and a general overthrow of order, which will make all protection an impossibility. It would be far better from henceforth to speak the truth frankly."

I have thus endeavoured to give you the substance of a somewhat remarkable document, the report of the existence of which has excited the deepest interest among the Christian communities of Great Britain and America. In the belief that it aimed a blow at the very foundation of Protestant missions, and that in doing so the Chinese Government were relying upon a considerable amount of sympathy from an influential class in England, the matter had been gravely considered by all the leading missionary and Bible societies, and discussed in the Supreme courts of the Scottish Churches, and in that of the Irish Presbyterian Church. By each of these Churches, and by nearly, if not all the societies to which I have referred, important deputations were appointed to wait upon Earl Granville, and in conjunction with a large portion of the mercantile body connected with the East, and many members of Parliament, to represent to Her Majesty's Government the extreme danger of the crisis, and the necessity of maintaining, by a firm policy, the rights secured by solemn Treaty. It was clear to all who have any acquaintance with China, and any experience of the subtle diplomacy in which her statesmen are such adepts, that any abandonment of Treaty rights in reference to missions would have led to agitation for other concessions, and in all probability to the occurrence of some disaster which would have broken up the peaceful relations existing between China and foreign Powers. And I am not sure that it may not be well for statesmen to know the depth of the feeling that was roused in this country and in America by the apprehensions to which I have referred.

Happily, if my view of the Chinese circular be the correct one, there is nothing to fear at present for Protestant missions. It is made clear in this official document, that the Chinese Government knows how to discriminate between the rival systems as exhibited in operation on their territory. And I do not doubt that advantage will be taken of this opportunity by the friends of the Gospel in China to bring out the principles, by which all Protestant missionaries in that country, without exception, are uniformly governed, in respect of the matters dealt with in these eight articles. As having been intimately connected with the management of the English Presbyterian Church's Mission for the whole twenty-four years of its existence, I know the jealous care with which our missionaries have watched against any tendency on the part of the native Christians to seek, under the influence of the mission, exemption from the just claims to which they are liable in virtue of their Chinese citizenship. With the exceptions which, it is satisfactory to observe, are recognised by the Imperial Yamen—viz., contributions to idolatrous festivals and to the expenses of local divinities—and in their resistance to these things the Christians have been often made to suffer the bitterest persecutions—they are uniformly taught by Protestant missionaries their rightful subjection to the laws of their own country. And speaking of our missions, I am entitled, without being considered boasting, to say that we have never had a single case of difficulty or grievance appealed to Peking, although we have often been indebted to the good offices of Her Majesty's Consuls in obtaining from local officials the redress of wrongs, and the softening of asperities, exercised against unoffending native brethren.

I cannot conclude this letter without asking our friends who are interested in its statements to unite in giving thanks to Almighty God for his protecting care over our missionaries and the Christian converts in China. I feel profoundly thankful that our fears on the present occasion have been so signally disappointed. And while those who conduct these important missions in a field so difficult, and where there are so many special causes of trial, have need of great grace and great wisdom and tenderness in all their actings, I am sure I shall not appeal in vain for much prayer to the God of all grace, that He may bestow all that is needed, and may enable us to carry on with increasing zeal and with a manifest blessing the work on which already He has so graciously smiled.

HUGH M. MATHESON.

(PALM MALL GAZETTE.)

Two papers relating to affairs in China have been issued by the Foreign-office. One of them is a Circular of the Chinese Government on the missionary question, communicated by the French Charge d'Affaires. The Peking Government, with a view of removing the increasing animosities among the population, arising from the operations of the missionaries, submit a series of regulations which they suggest should be observed by foreign missionaries in the Chinese Empire. The Orphanages, it is proposed, should be removed to Europe, or, if continued in China, only the children of necessitous Christians should be received into them, and notice given to the authorities of their entrance into and departure from these institutions. Women should not be allowed to enter churches, nor should Sisters of Charity live in China to give religious instruction. Missionaries should not shield offenders against the laws, and should themselves be liable to punishment by the authorities for breaches of the law. It is also urged that the missionaries should not clandestinely go to other places than those for which they have a passport, that they should not attempt to smuggle contraband articles, that they should observe Chinese customs, that they should not admit persons who have committed crime to the privileges of religion, and that they should not seek to obtain land for the building of churches except in an open and avowed manner, and in compliance with the usual legal formalities. These rules, the circular says, "are the last expression of our firm will to protect the missionaries, and have nothing in their import hostile to them. If they sincerely endeavour to conform themselves to them good harmony might be maintained; if, on the other hand, the missionaries consider these same rules in the lights of attempts upon their independence, or contrary to their rights, they may cease to preach their religion in China."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE TIMES."

Sir,—The Chinese despatch, the telegrams of which have caused so much anxiety in some quarters, turns out to be totally different from what had been expected.

It now appears that it deals exclusively with the Roman Catholic missions in China. Every one of the examples cited to prove their case occurred in provinces where no Protestant mission has ever existed.

Moreover, the difficulties that have arisen with the Roman Catholic hierarchy are familiar to us as having occurred in one age or another in every country in Europe, in the assertion of their superiority to the common law, and in the attempting to shield their own order from its due execution.

It is satisfactory to all who are interested in the progress of Protestant missions in China, to know that no charges are brought against them in this document; on the contrary, it encourages us to hope that the continuance of a prudent and conciliatory course in the prosecution of their work will ensure a continuance of peace.—Yours, &c.,

AN OLD RESIDENT IN CHINA.

Hrs Imperial Highness Fushimi no Miya has visited his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh at Marlborough House, and presented the Duke of Edinburgh with a sword from the Mikado of Japan, in remembrance of His Royal Highness's visit to that country. His Royal Highness Prince Arthur was also present. Mr. Mitford and Baron von Siebold were in attendance on his Imperial Highness. The ex-Emperor and Empress of the French also visited the Prince and Princess of Wales.

KIDNAPPING COOLIES IN MACAO.—In the House of Commons, on Friday, Sir J. Lawrence gave notice that on Monday next he would put questions to the Under-Secretary for the Colonies, and the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, relative to the alleged kidnapping of Chinese from the port of Macao.

THE CANTON AFFAIR OF 1856.

The leader in one of our last numbers made allusion to the cause of the bombardment of Canton in 1856. The following details have been furnished to us by a witness of this memorable event. A vessel constructed after Chinese models known as a "lorcha" named Arrow, of about 150 tons capacity, arrived at Canton with a cargo of salt, and as this article is a Government monopoly farmed out, the article can be imported only with permission of the farmer, which in this case not having been obtained, the vessel was liable to confiscation. The price for such permit was at that time high, and, therefore, strong crew and armament was obtained for the conveying vessel, to combat, in many cases successfully in bloody fight, the Chinese customs guards.

In consequence of denunciation of acts of piracy committed by the crew of the Arrow, the Chinese authorities made greater exertions and increased their watchfulness for the purpose of capturing the Arrow, in which they succeeded; and the crew, consisting of Chinese only, were taken and brought into the city of Canton, within the walls of which, at that time, no European dared to set foot.

About the real ownership of the Arrow it was ascertained that no native Englishman had a share in it, but that she was owned solely by Chinese; that these Chinese navigated here in virtue of a colonial sailing letter (pass), that this sailing letter had expired for some time, several months, and not been renewed and that, consequently, at the time the Chinese authorities confiscated the Arrow, according to Sir John Bowring's opinion, was not entitled to protection by the English flag.

Sir John Bowring at that time was Governor, her British Majesty's Plenipotentiary and Superintendent of Trade. In his despatch on this subject (which was laid before Parliament) to the Acting Vice Consul, Mr. Harry Parkes (afterwards Sir Harry Parkes), he declared most positively that the Arrow was not entitled to carry the British flag, and advised not to give any assistance from British authorities for the liberation of the Arrow and her crew.

Before this answer from Hong Kong reached Canton, Mr. Acting Vice Consul Harry Parkes, being urged on, had communicated to Yeh, Viceroy of the two Kwangs, Regent over forty-five millions of subjects, his ultimatum—either the release of the crew of the lorcha Arrow within twenty-four hours, or, in case of non-compliance, to see Canton bombarded.

Yeh sent the captured crew to the Consulate, to avoid further cause of strife, but declaring, at the same time, that the English Government had acted unjustifiably, and by doing so made itself the protector of pirates. Without doubt this answer was written in an irritable state of mind, and must have been in an insulting (verletzenden) style, because Mr. Acting Vice-Consul Harry Parkes made a second ultimatum to Viceroy Yeh, in which he demanded an apology within twenty-four hours, and, in case of refusal, threatened again with the bombardment of the city.

A superficial knowledge of Chinese rank and official ceremonial (etiquette) will not wonder that he, the Viceroy, looked at such a threat from an acting Vice Consul as an immoderate brag, which it would be impossible for an English Admiral to carry into effect. Yeh did not give an answer within the limited time, and the bombardment of the city of Canton with a population of two millions commenced. The further course of events, the taking of the Taku forts, the plundering and burning of the Imperial Palace, the Yu-min-Yun, the taking of Peking by the united forces of England and France, do not require to be recalled to mind, not even to that of the Chinese.

In Peking sits Mr. Wade, in Japan Sir Harry Parkes, both on the watch to guard England's position in Eastern Asia, if the successors of Lord Palmerston will permit it. The practical conclusion to be drawn from it is, that it is safer to have a vessel under the Hong Kong Colonial flag than under the flag of the colony of Heligoland.

LITERATURE.

MR. WADE'S SAFETY DESPATCH.

The Despatches from Mr. Wade and Vice Admiral Kellett respecting the State of Affairs in China have been published in the form of a Blue-book. The volume commences with a letter from Mr. Wade to Earl Granville, in which the former describes the condition of China as being generally tranquil, Hankow being the "one place about which he felt some anxiety." This was in March last, and Mr. Wade adds:—

I have not failed to expose the slackness of the Chinese Government in the matter of the Tientsin Massacre, the ineptitude which has distinguished its proceedings both before and since the event. The penalty of these may indeed yet be to be inflicted by the Power most outraged; and it is impossible to predict, if France decide upon hostile action, the extent to which foreign interests, those of France included, may be compromised. We can certainly not afford to diminish our naval force in these seas. . . . If the assumption be correct that the people heretofore well disposed are everywhere becoming hostile to the foreigner, the foreigner must shortly elect either to conquer the country or to leave it; to my eye there is no indication of such a change.

This is followed by an extract from the North China Herald, in which a correspondent at Tientsin writes, under date March 16, 1871:—

In respect to the conduct of the Chinese people at Tientsin towards foreigners, I have only to say that I have observed no difference from any of the previous winters during the last ten years, since the opening of this port to foreign trade. We have gone up to town as we used to do, and did not meet with abuse or molestation in the slightest degree. Several of the residents have been up the country, and returned sound and safe, having had no complaint against the people of the interior. Dr. Treat, an American medical missionary, has just arrived here; and we learn he has been in various parts of the interior of the province during the last few months, and was everywhere treated with civility by the people. In the interior of the North of China, north of this to Mongolia, and west of this to Shan-se, all has been tranquil, and no bands of robbers have appeared. The Viceroy of this province, Li-hung Chang, has resided during all the winter at Tientsin, as the Edict stated he would do which mentioned his appointment to the post, instead of at Paou-ting-foo. He removed into the Yamen formerly occupied by Chung-how, just before the setting in of the cold weather.

In December, 1870, Mr. Medhurst informed Mr. Wade of the proclamation issued in Shanghai under the seal of the Taoutai, of which he had received a translation in Mr. Wade's despatch of Oct. 26th. On the 29th March last Mr. Wade wrote to Earl Granville:—

There is nothing remarkable, as Mr. Medhurst seems to think, in its appearing merely under the seal of the Taoutai. Had that officer put it forth as from himself, he might have been charged with taking from its importance. . . . I myself have been in the habit of regarding the population of Shanghai and its vicinity as the last from which anything like aggressive action was to be looked for.

On the 2nd November, 1870, Ting Futai, Governor of Kiang-su, wrote to Mr. Consul Medhurst respecting an attack on four English gentlemen, fortunately unattended by any serious consequences:—

The Governor knows that all trade (and intercourse) between foreigners and Chinese ought to be protected, as provided for by the Treaty. It appears, however, that Englishmen, while on a shooting excursion, have been pelted in Su-chow, and the priests in the pagoda have used threatening language to them, in order to extort money, and these priests are greatly to blame, and this ill-treatment is much to be deplored. His Excellency does not know whether the priests did get anything out of the Englishmen, but if they did they must be severely punished, so as to prevent any recurrence of the same annoyance. His Excellency has therefore ordered the magistrate of (Su-chow) to institute a strict inquiry, and get at the root of the case.

With reference to the Tientsin outrage, so soon as the writer reached that place he, in conjunction with the authorities on the spot, took most stringent measures for arresting the criminals, and, moreover, employed detectives in the cities and provinces beyond, who seized and brought up to Tientsin all the ringleaders and accomplices.

The correspondence closes with Admiral Kellett's statement that the river Peiho was open to navigation, and everything quiet and satisfactory in China and Japan in April last.

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, June 13.

The German Parliament is still in session, but according to the latest arrangement will be prorogued the day after to-morrow, as the following day is fixed for the triumphal entry of the Guards into Berlin, whilst the rest of the army will be represented by small deputations from each regiment, in selecting which those officers and men decorated with the Iron Cross will have the preference. It must be confessed that the members have been very industrious and have got through a great deal of public business, but there is still a hitch in passing the Bill for the pensions of soldiers' wives whose husbands were killed in the war, and of the men invalided on account of their wounds, the difficulty being not only to agree as to the amount of the pension, but how to draw a line between those able and unable to work any more. The most important Bill, however, and of the greatest interest to your readers, is that for compensating the German ship-owners for their losses, which has just been passed by the Parliament. It recognises not only their right to compensation for vessels captured and condemned by French prize courts, or sunk by the enemy at sea, but also for loss of earnings by being obliged to remain idle for many months in a neutral harbour, or take shelter in a port of refuge, and remain there till the end of the war. The Staats-Anzeiger publishes a first list of forty-eight vessels belonging to the first category, condemned by Admiralty Courts prior to the 2nd of March; there are about a dozen that have been condemned since then, and between thirty and forty that have not been condemned at all, and will probably be returned to their owners, making a total of about one hundred vessels captured. The number of those detained in foreign ports by the war from fear of capture amounts on the other hand to several thousand, and it will naturally take a long time to liquidate the claims of their owners, as each case must be separately examined into. On a rough calculation it is estimated that all these compensations will amount to ten millions of Prussian thalers, which will be paid out of the war indemnity to be received from France.

In the above mentioned pension Bill is a clause providing that the time of officers, marines, and seamen employed in a German ship of war on service in any station in the East of Asia shall count double for pension or promotion, reckoning from the day such vessel leaves the port of her departure to the period of her return to the same. There was no difficulty about passing this clause (No. 49 of the Bill), as the members all appeared to recognise the justice of the principle, and it passed without a division.

The Hamburg Borsenhalle contains an article giving a very succinct and interesting historical account of the progress and development of the Russian and China Telegraph from the original crude proposal of Mr. Schiffner in 1854 down to the final completion of the line on November 28, 1870, on which day the first telegraphic message was sent from Nicolayefsk to St. Petersburg.

The Sedan steamer left this port on the 8th inst. for Singapore and China via the Suez Canal. A day or two before her departure she was inspected by a considerable number of gentlemen interested in the trade, with whom were several ladies. The prospectus of a new steamship company, to be called the "Deutsche Dampfschiffs Rhederei in Hamburg," has just been issued under a very influential board of directors, including the firms of J. C. Godeffroy and Son, Wm. Oswald and Co., and Wachsmuth and Krogmann, with a capital of a million marks banco in shares of 1,000 m.b. each, which may be increased to any amount by resolution of the majority of the shareholders. It is proposed to build or purchase four steamers of about 1,000 tons each to be employed under the German flag in whatever trade appears the most advantageous without blinding them down to any one particular trade; these steamers are to be furnished with engines on the economical double compound principle. The project has met with such general concurrence and support that, as I am informed, all the shares have been taken up, and a general meeting will be held next week to deliberate on the "statutes" or bye-laws and declare the company "constituted."

COMMERCIAL.

There is but little to say about the produce markets, which are generally very calm, but prices are mostly well sustained. There has been a moderate demand for tea, both for consumption and shipment at former rates, and the same may be said of cleaned rice. No sales of rough are reported. More attention is paid to pepper, and prices are a shade higher. Refined camphor is much inquired for, and prices have risen considerably.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 15.

The result of the elections is favourable for the Liberal party, notwithstanding that the Conservatives have compared the Liberals to the French Communists. The Liberals have only lost one seat, Mr. Sloet van de Beele being replaced in the district of Arnhem by the Count van Zuylen. The Ultramontane party has lost none of its members. The anti-revolutionists—Mr. Groen's party—was too disorganised, and had no influence upon the result of the election. The Conservatives have lost up to this moment (the results in the districts of Dokkum, Alkmaar, Middelburg, Goes, Breda, are not yet known) six seats. Messrs. van Lynden, van Goltstein, van der Hucht, Insinger and Bichon were not re-elected, and Mr. Kalf is replaced by Mr. B. Brouwer. Three other Conservatives (Messrs. Kien, van Hardebroek and 's Jacob) did not obtain a sufficient majority, so that fresh elections must take place between them and three other candidates. The Liberal party has won an enormous victory, and is considerably reinforced.

The members of the First Chamber have finished their examination of the Budgets in the section, and the reports are very satisfactory for the Ministers. The debate will, I think, be very short, and that the Budgets will be approved of there is no doubt.

Yesterday the elections for members of the Second Chamber took place throughout the country. There were in almost all cases very sharp contests, the Conservatives being desperate now that Mr. Groen has declined to co-operate with theirs and the Ultramontane parties. The results I will forward to-morrow.

As was the case at date of my last letter dealings in our stock markets have again been very limited, and on the whole there are hardly any material changes in leading stocks. There is no doubt a great deal of money is now seeking investment, but our capitalists are waiting for the financial operations of France, it being the opinion that they can invest their money therein, in a very advantageous manner.

The temperature has become more genial, and for some days past the weather has been fine. The crops are, however, still very backward, the harvest will be late, and the ultimate result is still very uncertain, which, of course, has a very unfavourable influence upon our grain markets, where prices are very fluctuating.

A collection is being made on behalf of the soldiers who showed such manly conduct on board the steamer Willem III., and who have lost all they possessed.

COMMERCIAL.

No alteration worth notice has taken place in the general features of our produce market, which continues to exhibit a healthy appearance for most leading articles, without there being much activity. Cotton has further advanced, whilst Tin has materially improved, in consequence of the rise in London.

COFFEE has remained in a healthy position. The demand keeps active, and the deliveries, which are steadily progressing on a large scale, bear evidence of extensive wants, so that prices are firmly supported. The following shipments of private importations changed hands since my last, viz., 1,815 bags Java, ex Noach III., 2,764 bags Padang, ex Maria Sarah and Zaanstroom; 1,500 bags Java, ex Nagasaki, 300 bags do., ex County of Stirling.

SUGAR.—A firm tone continues to prevail in the market, but there is little on offer, which checks business.

TEA.—The following are the outside figures of the brokers' valuations of the Teas to be put up for sale by public auction here on the 21st inst., viz.: 3,817/4, 3,388/12 chests Superfine Kaisow Congou, 90c. to 130c.; 375/4 chests superfine flowery Pekoe, 180c. to 225c.; 200/4 and 1,930/12 chests superfine Souchong, 100c. to 130c.; ex Mark Windermere, from Foochow. There will also be offered 371/4 and 89/12 chests Java, mark Tjikoppo Mayak, valued at 40c. to 180c.

DRUGS are quiet. A shipment of 1,757 mats Timor Cassia Vera, about 205 piculs, ex County of Stirling, changed hands on secret terms. A firm tone prevails for Gum Damar, which would meet buyers at 39c. to 40c.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—May 12, at Texel, from Probolinggo, Maria Adolfini; June 14, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Mina, Wemyss Castle.

* This steamer has put into Southampton to repair damages sustained to machinery. She is expected to proceed this day.

DEPARTURES.—May 7, from Texel for Batavia, Maibit; 8 May, from Texel for Samarang, Aria and Betsy; 10 May, from Texel for Sourabaya, Sourabaya Packet; from Brouwershaven for Batavia, Dordrecht II.; Willem Poolman; June 14, from Texel, for Batavia, Galiloi.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java, per Maibit, Messrs. W. S. J. de Winter and family; Canter Visscher, J. A. Oudemans; Mrs. C. Krause, Miss J. van der Venn; per Sourabaya Packet, Messrs. H. Stuffers, A. Huydecooper and family, H. Mullinger, Messrs. Mullinger and F. P. Y. M. Mollinger; per Aria and Betsy, Mr. J. P. Schreuder and family; per Dordrecht II., Messrs. C. Baron von Hertling and family, J. J. Sandberg and family, W. C. Goteling Vinnis and family, C. A. Huskers and family, C. A. Ziedses Desplantes, J. G. Kiezer, van der Sloot, E. C. Ruys, &c.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java, per Maria Adolfini, Messrs. Bentford and family, Heringa, Epke, Tythoff and Son, Messrs. Ruys and Iselmunde.

THE INTERNATIONAL CREDIT AND TRADING COMPANY, ROTTERDAM.

The annual meeting of shareholders of this company was held here on the 12th inst. The report of the directors gives a very clear view of the state of affairs of this company. According to the altered statutes several accounts, which had proved to be doubtful or bad, have been cleared and discharged. Some plantations, with which the company is in connection at Java, are reduced to a safe figure. The two tobacco plantations in Rembang and Bezoekie, belonging to the company, which have given such very unsatisfactory results, have been entirely written off. Moreover, the culture on account of the company will be stopped, and the last crop will be sold in the course of this year. Great care was taken during the eventful year 1870 not only to provide for every contingency, but also to leave as much as possible the capital free. The directors, through their agents in Java, have sold the sugar estate Ketanen (in the Sourabaya residency) to be delivered next year, at a very satisfactory figure. Taking into consideration the liquidation of doubtful accounts which has been effected and the liberal provisions which have been made for further decline in value of the remainder of the merchandise in the company's hands, it may be said, that the present basis of the operations is a very sound one. The directors have much pleasure in stating that the agencies at Java have worked very well, and that the increase of commission money fairly shows that the amounts of goods sold and produce bought on account of constituents has considerably augmented during the past year, which offers the best proof that parties have been satisfied. The relations with several agricultural undertakings are generally very satisfactory, but nevertheless the directors have taken measures not to extend this branch of business, in order to keep the capital as much as possible free.

The results of the year 1870 were a profit of f.413,001.31½, viz., commission f.268,938.33, interest f.87,888.82, sundries f.56,174.16, total f.413,001.31½; whilst the losses were: general expenses f.169,800.78, loss on tobacco plantations, crop 1869-70, f.54,468.09, sundries f.55,830.35, discharge of old accounts f.118,760.72, total, f.398,912.94; leaving a net profit of f.14,088.375.

Of this profit a sum of f.5,428.53 is payable as a bonus to the Java directors, so that a favourable balance of f.8,659.85½ remains, with which amount the directors propose to open the account of profit and loss for next year, whilst the reserve account, resulting from the capital set aside to cover the unfavourable balance of previous years, amounts to f.36,569.90½.

EARTHQUAKE IN CHINA.

(NEW YORK TIMES.)

Our Minister in China, Governor Lowe, has forwarded to the Secretary of State the following translation of a report of an earthquake in Bathang, in Szchuen, made by the Chinese Governor-General of the province in which it occurred:—

I have ascertained that Bathang lies on a very elevated spot beyond the borders of the province, about 260 miles west from Li-tang, and more than thirty post stations from the district town of Ta-tien, on the high road to Tibet.

About 11 o'clock A. M. on the 11th of April, 1871, the earth trembled so violently that the Government offices, temples, granaries, stone and store houses and fortifications, with all the common dwellings and the Temple of Ting-Lin, were at once overthrown and ruined. The only exception was the hall in the Temple grounds called Ta-Chao, which stood unharmed in its isolation.

A few of the troops and people escaped, but most of the inmates were crushed and killed under the falling timber and stone. Flames also suddenly burst out in four places, which strong winds drove about until the heavens were darkened with smoke, and their roaring was mingled with the lamentations of the distressed people. On the 16th the flames were beaten down, but the rumbling noises were still heard under ground like distant thunder, and the earth rocked and rolled like a ship in a storm, at the mercy of the waves. The multiplied miseries of the afflicted inhabitants were increased by a thousand fears, but in about ten days matters began to grow quiet and the motion to cease.

The grain collector at Bathang says that for several days before the earthquake the water had overflowed the dyke, but after it the earth cracked in many places, and black, fetid water spouted out in a furious manner. If one poked it the spurting instantly followed, just as is the case with the salt wells and fire wells (in the eastern part of the province); and this explains how it happened that fire followed the earthquake in Bathang.

As nearly as is ascertained, there were destroyed two large temples, the offices of the Collector of the Grain Tax, the local Magistrate and the Colonel, the Ting-lin Temple, and nearly 700 fathoms of wall around it, and 351 rooms in all inside; six smaller temples, numbering 221 rooms, besides 1,849 rooms and houses of the common people.

* The statement of assets and liabilities, as well as the profit and loss account, will be found in our advertising columns.

The number of people, soldiers and llamas, killed by the crash was 2,298, among whom were the local Magistrate and his second in office.

The earthquake extended from Bathang eastward to Pang-chah-muh, westward to Nan-tun, on the south to Lin tsah-shih, and on the north to the salt wells of A-tuntz, a circuit of over 400 miles. It occurred simultaneously over the whole of this region. In some places steep hills split and sunk into deep pits; in others, hills on level spots became precipitous cliffs, and the roads and highways were rendered impassable by obstructions.

The people were scattered and beggared like Autumn leaves, and this calamity to the people of Bathang and vicinity was really one of the most distressing and destructive that has happened. The Governor-General twice memorialised the Emperor respecting it, who granted aid to relieve the misery, reopen the roads between the post-houses, and rebuild or repair the offices and dwellings as they were needed. Many are now resuming their occupations, and the roads are everywhere passable.

LORD CAIRNS, as arbitrator under the Albert Life Assurance Company's Act, has given judgment respecting the claims for indemnity against the undertaking by five companies amalgamated with it. The question was whether the shareholders of the Albert were subject to an unlimited liability to indemnify these companies. His lordship held that the latter were entitled to an indemnity, limited, however, to the funds and assets of the Albert. They must therefore take their place with the other creditors.

We learn that Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gill, the late managers of the Lyceum Theatre, Calcutta, have started on a professional tour, which will include the principal places in Japan and China. Mr. Gill is an actor of remarkable talent, and Mrs. Gill (late Miss Waddy Deering) is a very pleasing performer; we may, therefore, congratulate our friends in the Far East on the prospect of an entertainment such as is seldom offered to them.

Monetary and Commercial.

We gather from a circular issued by Mr. F. M. Page, that the total export of bullion and specie during the month of May was, to China and Japan, £98,743, to the Straits, £112,660; and during the first five months of the year, to China and Japan, £546,083, to the Straits, £545,644.

The opening of the direct telegraphic line to Hong Kong and the announcement of the departure of six steamers with the new season's teas has been the chief topic of the week. Most of these messages were received in five hours.

The report of the British Indian Submarine Telegraph Company, preparatory to their meeting on the 21st inst., has just been issued. It states that since the last meeting the lines of the British Indian Extension and the China Submarine Telegraph Companies have been successfully laid. The gross receipts of the company for the six months ending March 31 amounted to £42,644; and the expenses to £17,316, leaving a balance of £25,328 for distribution, out of which it is proposed to pay a dividend of 4s. per share free of income-tax, which will absorb £23,750, leaving £1,578 to be carried forward. The receipts for April and May were £21,797 equal to 8 per cent. per annum, after deducting expenses.

The report of the Ceylon Company, in anticipation of the meeting on the 20th inst., states that the net profits of the year amount to £53,712, including £6,968 brought forward; out of which it is proposed to pay a dividend of 6 per cent., free of income-tax, which, with the interim dividend paid in December last, and £5,000 carried to reserve, will absorb £49,445, and leave £4,267 to be carried forward.

Mr. Ludwig Wiese, of Mincing-lane, lately a partner of Messrs. Siemssen and Co., of China, has joined the Board of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Massilia, from Southampton on the 10th inst., was, in gold, to Galle, £185; to Bombay, £2,200; to Madras, £1,094; in silver, to Penang, £7,300; to Singapore, £36,400; to Hong Kong £28,000; to Shanghai, £6,760; total in gold, £3,479; in silver, £78,460.

"21, Regent-street, June 12.

"Sir,—Although England cannot be said to be directly interested in the financial affairs of the Suez Canal, nevertheless the shipping and commercial interests indirectly involved greatly exceed the entire cost of the canal, and have assumed such gigantic proportions that I apprehend all matters in any way affecting its future efficient maintenance are not only of serious import, but of legitimate concern to this country, and as such cannot be viewed with indifference.

"I therefore beg to submit the following statement relative to the receipts for the month of April last:—

	Francs.	c.
Passage dues on 55 ships	627,406	98
Passage dues on small craft	12,249	26
Transit of merchandise	2,102	6
Transit of passengers	7,836	19

At 25f. to the pound, £25,983 15s. 7d.

"The amounts received from rents on property and other sources in April have not been forwarded by the last mail from Egypt, and are, therefore, not included. These items in the preceding month (March) amounted to £1,004 17s. 4d.

"Surprise has been expressed that the separate tonnage of French vessels passing through the Canal is found to be comparatively larger than that of British ships, but this is easily explained by the fact that the thirty-eight British, together 44,448 tons, were chiefly composed of merchant ships, whereas the four French, together 2,741 tons, which traversed the Canal during the same period last April, consisted of the Corraze and the Japon, French Government transports, the Ava, belonging to the Messageries Maritimes, and only one French merchant ship of 839 tons.

"It is somewhat curious, and has been a subject of remark in France, that since the opening of the Canal the French should have made no effort to construct ships adapted to its use, whereas England's example in this respect has been actively followed by Holland, Russia, and other countries, where powerful shipping companies have been formed for that purpose.

"It may not be superfluous to add that the Canal has now a depth of water throughout of twenty-six English feet.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your very obedient servant,

"DANIEL A. LANGE."

TEA.

Messrs. Capel and Co. report as follows:—

The market has been very dull, the amount of business having been smaller than usual at this season, partly owing to the want of fair to good medium Congous in first hands, the great bulk of the Teas on sale being those under 1s. 1d. per lb., with a good many parcels offering from second hands at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. Prices, however, show but little alteration, the deliveries now being much in excess of arrivals.

Red-leaf Congous: Siftings have been rather more saleable at a slight advance. Broken-leaf kinds have been in full supply, with only a moderate demand. Fair to good common have been firm at former prices. In fair qualities a few sales have been made from 1s. to 1s. 2d. per lb., being former prices. In good to fine and finest there has been but little done. Pak Lins have been inquired for by exporters. Black-leaf-kinds: In the low qualities there is no improvement either in demand or price. In fair to good common but little has been done, but importers hold firmly for former prices. Fair to good medium have been inquired for at rather higher prices; sales chiefly consist of second hand parcels. Good to fine have been difficult of sale, as also finest. Amoy kinds show no alteration. In new-make Congous about 8,000 boxes, received by Overland route, have been sold, chiefly from 1s. 10d. to 1s. 11d. per lb., a few realising 2s. 2d. per lb., showing a fall of about 3d. per lb. on previous sales. Oolongs: A few fine have been sold at full prices, but generally they have been difficult of sale. Souchongs have sold at prices rather in favour of buyers. In Flowery Pekoes but little has been done. Scented Teas: A few sales of Canton Caper have been made from 1s. to 1s. 3d. for fair to good quality, being about former prices. Foochow kinds have been wanted. Canton Orange Pekoes remain much as before; some parcels of Foochow, of recent arrival, have found buyers at former rates. Uncoloured Japans have been dull of sale. Green Teas: The market remains much as before; there has been a better demand for fine grades, and prices show some improvement; common to medium kinds are still much depressed.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular:—The market has ruled firm during the past fortnight, but transactions have been limited, as the bulk of Congou held by importers is unsuited to the wants of the dealers. Further supplies of new make have been sold at 1d. to 3d. per lb. decline, though the quality proves fully equal to the first import, but it would seem buyers act under the idea of large arrivals at any moment; the total quantity arrived to date is about 10,000 boxes. Direct telegraphic communication is now established with China, and this great event we trust will benefit importers by making the trade less risky than formerly. Latest telegrams to this morning report four vessels having left Hankow; the market was opened on 22nd ult., at Taels 40 per picul, Hankow currency, or 2s. 6d. per lb., say equal to 2d. to 3d. per lb. over last year. For export, to the Continent, transactions have been on a small scale; to Canada and New York there has been a good inquiry for finest Ping Suey and Moyune Gunpowder, and Twankays have sold at ½d. per lb. advance, but can still be bought at prices which should induce purchases. Deliveries read well as follows:—

from 1st Jan. to 31st May.	38,664,000	33,365,000
Export do.	15,500,000	13,300,000
Sent coastwise do.	13,600,000	16,400,000
Total	67,764,000	63,065,000

At a public sale on the 15th, 1,230 packages red-leaf, ex Oruba, just arrived, brought fair market rates; prices for the bulk ranged from 9d. to 10½d. per lb. Two breaks of fair quality realised 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb. A half chop of fine Ning-chow sold at 2s. 2½d. per lb.

SILK.

The last few days have brought more inquiry, chiefly from abroad, and although prices are no better than at the beginning of the month, still there is a slightly improved tone in the market, and for the moment, at any rate, any further decline seems stopped. Deliveries are large. The chief demand is for Tsatlee on the basis of 24s. for "Red Peacock," and 24s. 6d. for "Blue Elephant"; and for Canton Silk at 15s. 6d. to 16s. for ordinary useful market Tsatlee, and 17s. to 18s. 6d. for good to extra best, importers having shown every disposition to meet buyers at these rates. The low rates of Japans have led to some considerable sales of Mybash at 21s. to 23s. for common to best average parcels. The public sales are fixed for the 21st and 22nd inst. The opening of the new Silk season in China was reported by direct telegraph on 10th inst., at about 23s. 6d. for "Red Peacock."

The deliveries from 1st to 14th inst., compared with same period last year, were as follows:—

Canton	570	378
Japan	440	435
Total	2,766	2,522 bales.

In the Lyons market, according to Messrs. Arles Dufour and Co.'s Circular, the progress of the European silk crop has continued to attract the chief attention of dealers. In Spain the result is now ascertained to be quite equal to that of last year. In France the wet and cold weather of the past few days is interfering with the gathering of cocoons, and may prove prejudicial to the yield in silk. Prices in that country have consequently risen. In Italy it is too early to form an exact opinion, particularly for Piedmont, but in Lombardy, Frioul, Tuscany, and Naples the crop will, in quantity, be at least equal to that of last year. Prices, therefore, have not experienced any appreciable changes. Business, which until now had been exceedingly quiet, has been reviving a little during the last week, but the heaviness of the stocks, both of raw material and manufactured goods, coupled with political and financial difficulties and the threatened imposition of a duty on imported silk, are expected to check any important rise.

COFFEE.

There has been a somewhat better demand shown for Colonial descriptions during the week, and the quantities placed on offer, which have been light and not beyond requirements, have been taken off at steady prices for Plantation, and at a slight advance (equal to a recovery from the late decline) for native Ceylon. The prices paid have been:—Plantation: Triage, 52s. to 53s. 6d.; small, coloury, 60s. to 61s.; middling, 63s. to 68s. 6d.; good middling to fine middling bold, 70s. 6d. to 79s.; good to fine bold, 81s. to 85s.; pea-berry, 80s. 6d. to 81s. 6d. Native, good ordinary to fine ordinary, 52s. 6d. to 53s. 6d.; bold, 54s. to 55s.; pea-berry, 57s. 6d. to 58s. Privately a good demand has prevailed, especially for pale and native descriptions, which are in request for export to France at some advance, and the following sales have taken place:—About 100 casks Plantation Ceylon and 120 casks and 800 cases Wynaad, ex recent auctions, at former prices, about 2,000 bags Native Ceylon at 54s. to 55s., and 500 bags pale Bonthynne Singapore at 54s. 6d. to 56s.

Of 2,010 bags SINGAPORE offered at public sale the bulk consisted of pale to fine yellow Bonthynne, which was bought in at 56s. to 61s., the remainder, about 400 bags being sold, good to fine Pari Pari at 50s. to 51s. 6d., dull 48s. Subsequently 285 bags have been sold, mixed at 50s. to 50s. 6d., Bonthynne at 55s. to 55s. 6d. An offer of 422 bags MANILA has been sold, good pale at 56s. 6d. to 57s., rather mixed at 54s., also 33 bags sea-damaged at 50s. to 54s. per cwt.

SUGAR.

The demand for all descriptions is very small, and although importers are willing to accept the decline noted in our last report, sales are effected slowly. The only transactions in East India have consisted in the sales at auction of 3,706 bags clayed Manila (duty 4s.), bought in at 27s., washed 25s. 6d.; and privately of 3,330 bags clayed Manila (duty 4s.) at 25s. 6d.

CAMPOR.—There has been a considerable enquiry for France, and prices are 2s. 6d. higher. About 1,000 chests China have been sold at 68s. 9d. to 70s. per cwt., at which price there is little to be had. Japan is still scarce, and without movement.

COIR GOODS.—The last public sales of Yarn were of good extent, and met a fair but not active demand, the greater part being sold at barely the previous sales' rates. Of 203 tons Ceylon in dholls only about 40 tons sold, medium to good fair £30 to £34, good to fine £37 10s. to £41 15s. Of fibre 52 bales Ceylon sold, chiefly without reserve at £21, a small lot £28, 3 tons bristle were bought in at £35 to £35 10s. Of 872 coils (13½ tons) Ceylon Rope barely one-half sold, 1-inch at £30 10s., 1½-inch at £29, 2-inch at £26 5s., 2½-inch at £24 15s., 3-inch at £24 10s. per ton.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Ceylon being in large stock—5,850 tons—and only in limited demand, barely maintains its value, sales of fine quality being effected with difficulty at £40.

CUBERS.—The market is steady at the quotations given in our report of the 2nd inst.

CARDAMOMS.—No transactions in Ceylon.

COPRA.—The market is dull, owing to large quantities of Australian being on offer.

CURCH has been largely dealt in at £1 per ton advance on the current rates of a fortnight since; privately some 6,000 packages have been sold; fine at 21s. to 22s., fair at 19s. 9d. to 20s. 6d., Penang 19s. 3d. to 19s. 9d.; of 2,055 packages offered at auction, half sold within the above range.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—The demand continues limited; no business has been done at public sale, and privately there have been only small transactions at previous rates.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Cinnamon very scarce, and wanted. Citronelle dull; 52 cases at auction, partly sold at 2d. per oz. Lemon Grass quiet; large arrivals, 51 cases at sale, part sold at 2½d. Aniseed has been in rather better demand, but business has been limited to retail sales at 8s. 9d., 10 cases sold at auction at same price. Cassia, lower: small sales at 4s. 3d., and 30 cases sold at auction thereat. Nutmeg steady: 15 cases offered and retired, and private trade at 6½d. for good quality.

EBONY.—Without change; market dull, and no sales reported.

GALLS.—China: Market improved, and the recent decline has been recovered; privately about 500 cases have found buyers at 47s. 6d. to 50s.; 70 cases offered in auction were retired. Japan: Nothing doing.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Sumatra 2nds firm, good quality scarce; 34 cases partly sold at £8 15s. at auction. Manila Copal is firmer; 400 cases good clean hard sold at 40s., and a parcel to arrive from Singapore at a little under that price. At auction 111 cases soft drossy sold at 20s. to 20s. 6d.; and 131 packages hard were retired. Damar firm, Gamboge steady, nothing of importance done in either.

GAMBIER.—The chief feature of the fortnight has been the sale of large quantities afloat at 15s. 9d. to 16s.; of 3,883 packages offered in public sales about one-fourth were quitted at corresponding rates.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—The market has again been very inactive, without change in value. In auction, of 4,267 packages and 22 tons offered, very little sold at 1s. 9d. to 2s. 9d. per lb. for middling to good genuine, and 1s. 2½d. inferior mixed and foul.

HEMP.—The market for Manila has again been rather quiet, but some 4,000 bales have been sold for future delivery at £44 to £47 per ton, according to date of delivery. At public sales one-third of 966 bales offered brought the previous value, fine white £49 5s., and fine brown £40 per ton; 60 bales Sorsagon have also been sold at £49.

HIDES.—At the fortnightly sales held on the 15th a good quantity of East India kips was brought forward, and being in good demand were nearly all sold at a general advance of ½d. per lb. Tanned sold at previous rates. Buffalo were in slightly better demand, without alteration in prices. Ox and Cow: 9,363 Singapore and Penang sold, light 6½ to 7½ lbs. at 8½d. to 10½d., heavy 8 to 10 lbs. at 8d. to 9½d., extra 11½ to 14½ lbs. at 8d. to 9½d., small 4 to 5½ lbs. at 8½d. to 9½d. CALF: 3 lb. at 8d., thirds 6½ to 7½ lbs. at 6½d. to 7d., fourth 4½d., brined light 7 to 7½ lbs. at 9½d. to 10½d., heavy 9½ to 10½ lbs. at 8½d. to 9d., extra 14½ to 15 lbs. at 8½d., small 9½ to 10½d. BUFFALO: Of 4,215 Singapore and Penang 2,800 sold, light 10½ to 14½ lbs. at 6d. to 7d., heavy 21½ to 44½ lbs. at 4d. to 5½d. 500 Rangoon sold, first heavy 34½ lbs. at 4½d., second 37½ lbs. at 3½d.

HORNS.—Siam Buffalo steady, but prices continue to rule low; 11 tons offered at auction realised 37s. per cwt. for 3 lbs. weight. No transactions in Ceylon.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Good quality continues scarce, and sells readily; privately 10 tons have been sold at 1s. 10d.; 61 baskets Penang at auction were retired, but subsequently quitted at about 1s. 9d. for rather sticky and foul; 25 packages Singapore were retired.

ISINGLASS.—Market quiet, especially for common; of 96 cases at auction a few only were quitted—Leaf at 3s. 3d. to 3s. 6d. per lb. for fair to good; Tongue, fair to fine, 3s. 2d. to 3s. 7d.; middling, 1s. 10d. to 1s. 11d.; low, 5d. to 1s.

JAPAN WAX.—There is no change in the tone of the market, although higher rates than those ruling a fortnight since are now obtainable; the bulk of the stock is still withheld for a further advance. Early in the interval about 80 boxes found buyers at public sale, realising £4 10s. per cwt. for fine saucers, and £4 5s. to £4 6d. for good. Subsequently at auction 55 cases saucer were offered and bought in at 90s. to 95s.

MUSK.—The market is firm for good qualities, but common kinds rule low. Of 50 caddies at auction two-thirds sold,—fine selected dry even pods at 33s. to 36s. per oz., rough and bally, ordinary to good at 16s. to 23s.

PLUMBAGO.—The market for this article is dull, except for fine descriptions. Of 631 barrels at auction, a few only sold; middling to good lump, 17s. to 25s.; chips, 8s. to 14s.; dust, 6s. to 8s.

PEPPER.—BLACK: Following our last report about 1,500 bags sold at a further advance, viz., Singapore at 5½d., Penang 5½d. to 5 5 16½, also for arrival 600 bags Singapore, per steamer Said, at 5½d., 1,000 bags Penang at 5½d., and 1,000 bags ditto for October delivery at 5½d. Subsequently holders have shown a disposition to demand extreme prices, and at the last public sales 3,800 bags chiefly Singapore offered went off without animation, the bulk being held for firm rates and bought in; 3,491 bags Singapore were chiefly bought in at 5½d. to 5½d., only 250 bags being sold at 5½d., 306 bags Penang sold at 5½d. to 5½d., sea-damaged 5½d. Privately the market is firm, but as high prices are again required business is restricted to small purchases of Penang at 5 5 16½, Singapore at 5½d. to 5½d. WHITE: There has been scarcely anything done; at auction 128 bags country damaged Singapore sold at 8d. to 8½d., chiefly the latter price.

RICE.—Bengal has been firm, and in moderately active demand, but soft grain kinds have been very dull. Privately 7,000 bags ordinary Rangoon have been sold at 9s., including a small proportion first class sea damaged. The arrived cargo of 900 tons new Rangoon, per Laurel, has been sold at 10s., ex ship for London.

RATTANS steady, and of 1,470 bundles Penang offered, one-third sold at 4s. 5d. per 100 canes; 7,452 bundles Singapore offered and retired.

RHUBARB.—China is quiet, and rules low; at auction, of 153 cases offered, 40 cases sold, fine selected at 4s. to 4s. 10d.; well-trimmed dull-coated root at 2s. 7d. to 2s. 9d., ordinary at 7d. to 11d.

ROOTS.—China: Market dull, no transactions reported, stock small. Colombo: Lower; 221 bags middling sold in auction at 27s. to 27s. 6d. per cwt.

SAGO.—Market steady, at low prices, fair inquiry afloat; of 406 bags at auction the damaged only sold. Flour dull, and few buyers.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: No business worth notice has been done since the quarterly sales of the 22nd ult. Cassia Lignea: Steady, and little offering, but a moderate private trade; Buds held firmly; auctions advertised. Cloves: Penang firm, 6 bags very low at auction retired; Amboyna dull; supply still far in excess of requirements. Mace continues very firm, with very little offering; of 59 cases offered a few sold at 3s. 3d. to 3s. 7d. for fair red mixed with dark to good palish red. Nutmegs a shade better; of 145 cases at auction, two-thirds sold, 64s at 3s. 6d., 68s at 3s. 3d., 74s and 77s at 2s. 8d. and 2s. 6d., 80s and 84s at 2s. 6d. and 2s. 5d.; 108s and 114s at 2s. 2d.

SHELLS.—Nothing done since the periodical sales reported in our last issue.

SAPANWOOD.—There is somewhat more inquiry; 25 tons Manila at auction sold at £8 per ton for good quality. Ceylon and Siam without transaction.

SOY.—Market dull but holders firm; no sales reported.

STAR ANNISEEDS.—Without movement.

STICKLAC.—Siam scarce and firm; no sales during the past fortnight.

TAPIROCA.—Prices higher, with an export demand, and large sales at 2d. to 2½d.; at public sale, of 1,500 bags Singapore offered about two-thirds sold at 1½d. to 2½d. per lb. for low to good; of 1,035 bags Penang half sold at 2d. to 2½d. middling to fair, and 1,103 packages pearl were chiefly quitted at previous value. Flour very dull; 1,117 bags at sale retired.

TOBACCO.—At auction 1,235 bales Japan sold at 8d. to 11½d., 691 do. (damaged) at 6d. to 10d., inferior at 2½d. to 3½d., and 71 do. Java sound at 6½d., damaged at 4½d. to 4½d.

TIN.—The market continues active, and the advancing tendency lately apparent still prevails; Straits is £3, and Banca £1 higher than a week since, the current quotations being—Straits, on the spot and afloat, £130; Banca, £131 per ton.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—JUNE 3.

TEA.

The market continues active, the demand being principally for choice grades of Green and Japan, and prices for all descriptions are very firm at the range of quotations given in our last report.

COFFEE.—The current quotations for East India kinds are, Java Government bags, 18c. to 20c.; Java mats, 18½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 17c. to 18c.; Manila, 14c. to 15c.; Native Ceylon, 15½c. to 17c., showing no change from those of our last issue. The market for every description continues extremely dull, with scarcely any inquiry and no business of moment. On the part of holders there is the same indisposition to operate as before noticed, and though willing to sell at current rates, there is no pressure to realise; we have therefore a steady, though a very dull market. There are no sales of East India to report beyond a small jobbing business in Java at the current rates.

CORDAGE.—There is a fair demand for Manila at previous rates.

CAMPOR.—China is quoted 17c. to 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.30; Cassia, 97½c. gold (in bond).

FIRE CRACKERS are in steady demand and prices are firm, with a slight advance for best brands; the sales have been 3,700 boxes Extra No. 1 at $2.50 to $2.55, usual terms.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is $4 gold (duty free).

HEMP.—Manila continues very firm at the last quoted rates—viz., 10½c. to 11½c. gold, according to quality. There have been no transactions during the week.

INDIGO.—Manila continues very quiet; sales are reported of about 30 cases at previous rates—viz., $1 to 1.25 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $3.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 50c. to $1.50 currency (duty free).

RICE.—There is somewhat less activity in East India kinds than existed at the date of our last report, but a fair demand is still exhibited and prices are well supported. The sales have been 1,800 bags Rangoon in lots for home consumption at $7 to $7.25; 400 bags new crop—a portion to arrive—at $7.50 to $8 currency, and 1,000 bags in bond at $3.50 gold.

SUGAR.—Business is still on quite a moderate scale, refiners and the trade only buying as their immediate needs require, or tempted to increase their stocks by the slight concessions occasionally offered by holders on some of the numerous landing parcels. There has, however, been little or no relaxation in the firmness of holders, who, as before noticed, are disposed to look with much confidence to the future, and are only free sellers of parcels not desirable to store and hold till a later period of the season. There have been no transactions in East India descriptions.

SPICES.—There has been a considerable movement in Nutmegs, at about the prices previously current, leaving but few in importers' hands; the sales embrace some 350 cases (including the invoice of 236 cases per Agincourt) and 30 to 40 casks. We have only to notice besides 300 bags Penang Pepper in bond, on private terms, and 1,400 bags Penang and Sumatra, also in bond, 10½c. to 11c. gold. The jobbing demand is moderate, and prices of most goods are steady. Sales have been made in lots of Mace at $1.15; Nutmegs 80c. to 84c.; Cassia 31c. to 31½c.; Pepper, 16c. for Sumatra, and 16½c. to 16¾c. for Singapore; and Cloves 10½c. to 11c., all gold.

TIN.—The market is still at a stand, and in the absence of sales prices are wholly nominal; Straits 32½c., Banca 37½c. gold.

SHIPPING.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Suez state that the Africa (British str.), from London to China, when near Ashroffi, in the Red Sea, run down the Souakin (Egyptian str.), which was coming up; the Africa returned to Suez, 30th May, bringing all the crew of the Souakin, except eighteen men, who are supposed to have taken refuge at a lighthouse.

The Peru (barque), Barcham, of and from Shields, for Colombo, which was in collision May 23, having undergone the necessary repairs, sailed again for her destination, and when off Yarmouth, June 10, ran on the Cockle Sand, during a dense fog, but was assisted off and brought up in the roads; she did not make more than an inch of water per hour, but draws too much water to go into Yarmouth.

Advices from Surinam, dated May 20, state that the Vrede, v. d. Plas, from Panaroekan to Amsterdam, which put in there Feb. 7, leaky, had been repaired, and would be surveyed, May 20; if found seaworthy she would commence reloading, and would proceed.

The Sedan (North German str.), from Hamburg to China, put into Southampton, 12th inst., with machinery out of order, but is expected to proceed to-day.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Table Bay, May 6, Trevanion, Stevens, from Colombo, and sailed, 7, for London; 8, St. Jan, Lommerse, from Padang; 7, Admiral van Wassenaer, Ledehaas, sailed for Batavia.

At St. Helena, April 28, Maria, Tofteld, from Banjoewangie, and sailed for Rotterdam; May 3, Aristos, Kildahl, from Samarang, and sailed for Amsterdam.

Off Cape Agulhas, May 7, P.C.Q.N. (Dutch), from Bally Straits, for Amsterdam.

Off Cape Point, April 29, Hedwig, from Sourabaya, for Rotterdam.
At Port Said, June 10, Sun Foo (str.), Castle, from London, for Singapore, China, &c., and was to enter the Canal the following morning.

The head board of the ship Mountain Laurel, of Liverpool, was picked up on the Hayle beach June 7. (The Mountain Laurel, of Liverpool, Dickson, sailed from Penarth, May 25, for Batavia.)

THE WRECK OF THE "WILLEM III."—A few numbers since we detailed the circumstances under which this steamship, laden with a valuable cargo and with a large number of passengers on board, caught fire on the night of the 19th ult., and was towed by a Channel steam-tug into Spithead, where she was placed in shoal water and scuttled. The holes opened in the iron bottom plates of the hull were subsequently plugged up, steam pumps got on board, and other means taken to clear the inside of the hull from water. On the 11th the hull was at length floated and moored for the night in six fathoms of water, the pumps on board being more than sufficient in power to insure the safety of the vessel during the night. On the 12th she was towed into Portsmouth Harbour by Government steam-tugs, and berthed temporarily alongside one of the large coal hulks, and measures were at once taken by Lloyd's agent at Portsmouth for clearing out the hull. It is believed that a considerable portion of the cargo, and possibly some portion of the luggage and goods belonging to the passengers, has escaped the fire, owing to the position of stowage in the ship's hold.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer China arrived at San Francisco on the 12th June, having left Yokohama on the 22nd May. She brings the following passengers:—

For New York.—A. P. Hase, A. B. Bulkley, W. D. Peckham, W. F. Archibald, Capt. B. T. Taylor, U.S. Navy, B. F. Warren, Dr. C. E. Kilkelly, H. Henderson, A. C. Smith, Mrs. A. T. Forbes and two children, Mr. von Brundt, Thomas Walsh, wife, and infant, and fifteen Japanese students.

For Europe.—The Bishop of Victoria, Sir Harry Parkes, Lady Parkes, the Rev. A. W. Cribb, Robert Craig, J. H. Andrews, W. Park, W. H. Fittock, wife, and child, W. R. Winch, W. P. Livingston, Mrs. Sinclair, Dr. A. H. Clay, L. Archer, and three Japanese.

The China had about 1,040 Chinese passengers. Of the Japanese passengers by her two are Treasury officials, eight are bankers, sent abroad to study our financial system, and seven are students.

The China brings 5,549 packages of tea, 1,111 bags of rice, and 4,621 packages of sundries to San Francisco. The China picked up the crew of a junk blown off Japan, and on June 1 spoke the company's steamer Japan, outward bound. She also reports that the Admiral Rodgers left Nagasaki for the Korea on May 17, and the loss of the German barque Mauritius.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, April 29.

My last, on the 15th instant, went forward via San Francisco. Only one public event has transpired since that time—the Nagasaki Regatta, which came off on the 26th instant. The prizes amounted to $300, distributed over ten races; but unfortunately the day was a very unfavourable one, and most of the events were contested in a drenching rain, which completely spoilt the pleasure of the visitors, who made the affair also serve as a picnic on Pappenberg. However, the tents erected did much to protect them, and as this community never allows anything to interfere with pleasure when they have made up their minds, they contented themselves with the racing, and remained on the island until the events were all decided.

The movements of the men-of-war during the interval have been as follows:—Arrivals: Her Britannic Majesty's ships Ocean, on the 15th inst., from Hong Kong and Amoy, and Salamis, on the 21st, from Yokohama, and left again on the 25th for Tientsin. The North German corvette Hertha arrived on the 22nd, from Yokohama, and left this evening for Shanghai, en route for Europe. The United States corvette Alaska arrived on the 28th, from Hio-go, &c. The French corvette Linois sailed for Yokohama on the 19th; and the Danish frigate Tordenskjold left for Port May on the 21st. Her Britannic Majesty's ship Ringdove leaves tomorrow morning for Shanghai. Remaining in port, Ocean and Alaska.

Several vessels of the U. S. Navy are expected here, and will shortly after proceed to the Korea, in order to endeavour to make a Treaty for the protection of the crews of any vessel that may be wrecked there; but it is thought that the real object of their visit is much the same as it was to Japan some years ago, and it is to be hoped that they will be successful in their mission.

The British barque Albys Isle is expected here from Shanghai, and will be put on the berth from London to load tea. Old native coins quoted at 2 per cent. discount on the new coin. Exchange on London is nominal. No departures have taken place since my last of vessels coal laden, and the export stands as last stated. The English mail of the 10th March arrived here by the P. M. steamer Golden Age this morning, forty-nine days out.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

We are informed, on reliable authority, that the sentence of banishment has not been carried out yet, in the case of either the mandarins or the rioters. There is a report that the former went to Shanghai not long ago in a Foochow gunboat; but information regarding them is uncertain. Certainly, some of the rioters are still in Tientsin. There is nothing particularly new in the political world, but the horizon is cloudy. From H.E. Li-hung-chang having expressed his determination not to allow the steamship Peiho to enter our river again, or to detain her if she did come, we feared there might arise some trouble in the matter. These fears have fortunately been dispelled by the steamer's having been granted her clearance; and after a little ineffectual bluster on the part of the Chinese officials, she left Tientsin. The case was one of collision with a junk, in which the British Consul held the steamer harmless. We have to thank Mr. Lay for his firmness in this matter, and it is pleasant to have to record that H.B.M.'s Chargé d'Affaires has taken the same view of the case that Mr. Lay has done.

CHEFOO.

We learn that the almost unprecedented occurrence of a fall of snow so late as the 19th of April has taken place at this port. With the exception of a very slight shower of rain on the 3rd inst., uninterrupted drought had been experienced since the 17th February, when the last snowstorm took place; but on the morning of the 19th April snow fell in heavy flakes for about half-an-hour, melting of course before it reached the ground. This was followed by a copious fall of rain, and the agricultural prospects of the usually parched vicinity of Chefoo have consequently been much improved. The thermometer ranges from 40 deg. to 65 deg. at present.

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this opportunity extend to the 5th May. The English Mail of March 10th arrived out on the 25th April, and the French Mail of March 17th on the 3rd May.

The following items are from the North China Herald:—We have received a copy of an "Abstract of Trade and Customs Revenue Statistics," from 1864 to 1870, just published by the I. M. Customs. The aggregate value of foreign trade was less last year than during 1868 or 1869—Tls. 131,000,000 only, against Tls. 140,000,000 and Tls. 142,000,000 respectively. Shanghai, Foochow, Tientsin, Amoy, Kiukiang, Chefoo, and Newchwang are accountable for the decrease. Canton and Ningpo hold their own, and Hankow, Swatow, Chinkeang, and the two Formosan ports show a slight increase.

The necessary changes have been at last made to mark out the new channel over the Woosung bar. Two red buoys have been moored in thirteen feet water on the northern edge of the shoal running to the west-north-west of Gough's island, and two signals have been added to the published code, indicating twenty-five and twenty-six feet of water. There are, we believe, now never less than fourteen feet.

The U. S. expedition to Korea will comprise all the American men-of-war in the China sea except the Ashelet, which remains in Shanghai. Mr. Seward does not accompany the expedition. But we hear that Mr. Drew, Commissioner of Customs at Kiukiang, has been specially requested by Mr. Low to join it, and his knowledge of the Court (Chinese) language will enable him to render valuable aid.

The Russian steamer Tchickatchoff, of 2,000 tons, has arrived from Odessa for Shanghai and Hankow. The company expect her to return to Odessa with the new season's tea, to be forwarded on to the fair at Nijni-Novgorod, which has been hitherto supplied by overland caravan from China, and generally reputed to turn out in better condition than the sea-borne tea.

On the 6th May the Bishop of Victoria admitted the Rev. Henderson Burnside, of Nagasaki, to the Holy Order of the Priesthood in Trinity Church. The Rev. Canon McClatchie presented the candidate, and the Bishop preached the sermon.

The Taoutai has issued a proclamation calling attention to the prevalence of small-pox in Shanghai at all seasons of the year, and urging people to avail themselves of the facilities for vaccination now offered, the benefits of which he lauds very highly.

A meeting was held on May 1 to discuss and make preliminary arrangements for reconstituting the North China Insurance Company at the end of the present term, Mr. Lavers in the chair. A resolution was passed empowering the directors of the present company to act as a Provisional Committee for the organisation of a new one, which is to be organised for three years, commencing on Jan. 1, 1872, and terminating on Dec. 31, 1874. The chairman mentioned a few changes which it was thought might be advantageous to the company, and invited the views of those present. Some discussion took place on the points brought forward, and finally the meeting was adjourned for a fortnight.

A question has been raised as to the validity of the Municipal elections this year. Art. XIX. of the Land Regulations says: "Every foreigner * * being an owner of land of not less than Tls. 500 in value, whose annual payment of assessment on land or houses or both, exclusive of all payments in respect of licenses, shall amount to the sum of Tls. 10 and upwards, or who shall be a householder paying on an assessed rental of not less than Tls. 500 per annum and upwards, shall be entitled to vote at the election of the said members of the Council." Persons have been allowed to vote on the basis of the payment of Tls. 10 assessed taxes, although they did not possess land worth Tls. 500 or pay Tls. 500 rental; and this reading of the clause is now condemned. The list of voters has been examined with reference to the question of qualification raised, and it is found about forty of those who polled would be excluded under the new reading of Art. XIX. But the result of the election would not be altered by the withdrawal of their voting cards. A new election is therefore hardly necessary, and we do not hear that it is proposed to demand one.

We hear that the Chehaien's proclamation condemning lotteries has been supplemented by one from the Taoutai, speaking in still stronger terms, and threatening with condign punishment any Chinese who shall purchase tickets.

A proclamation by the Taoutai, forbidding women going to the temples to burn incense, &c., and having especial reference to the festival at the Lung-hwa pagoda during the third moon has just been issued. The proclamation is a mere farce. It is neither expected nor intended to have any effect. Women will go to the pagoda just as if the prohibition had not been issued, and probably the Taoutai's wife and daughters (if he has any) will go also—so will the wives of all the Shanghai officials. Our readers will remember that about two years ago Ting Footai issued a proclamation prohibiting idol processions. That proclamation was still hanging on the city walls when a monster procession took place. The fact is that, such things being forbidden by law, the officials are compelled now and then to go through the form of issuing a proclamation on the subject. Chinese generally disapprove of women going to the temples, considering it immodest and dangerous. Reports are frequently got up about the priests having criminal intercourse with their female devotees. Last year, after the pagoda festival, reports of this kind were in everybody's mouth, and assumed such a positive shape that it was said the Taoutai had instituted formal inquiries, which proved that they were false. They were probably spread by some opponent of Buddhism, or by some one who wished to restrain his own women from going.

Two hundred and twenty dollars were contributed at a collection at Trinity Church for the benefit of the Hong Kong Orphanage.

The Shanghai Auxiliary Bible Society held its first meeting on the 1st May, Bishop Alford in the chair. The Rev. Mr. Syle submitted the report, which was adopted. The following gentlemen were appointed officers for the coming year:—President, F. B. Johnson, Esq.; Vice-President, the Bishop of Victoria; Treasurer, Egbert Iveson, Esq.; Secretary, Rev. Edward W. Syle; Committee, the officers of the society, the resident chaplains, ministers and missionaries, A. A. Krauss, Esq., D. Reid, Esq., with power to add to their number.

We have received copies of the "Report of the Municipal Council of Shanghai," with appendices; also the estimates for the year 1871-2, and Dr. Henderson's "Report on Prostitution in Shanghai"—all which shall be noticed in our next number.

VON GUMPACH V. HART.

In the cause of von Gumpach v. Hart, now under appeal to the Privy Council, Mr. Harwood applies for leave to appeal from an order made upon a demurrer dated 29th March, 1870, and to amend the record of appeal accordingly. It appears that a motion for leave to appeal from this order was filed on the 5th April, 1870, but no order was made upon this. The cause came on for hearing on the 14th day of April, and the verdict being against the defendant he moved to set it aside. Upon the hearing of this motion, leave to appeal from the judgment (delivered the 3rd of May) was granted, and it was this appeal of which the record was transmitted to the Privy Council. The appeal from the judgment on the demurrer appears to have been dropped. In giving judgment the Chief Justice said:—

There is no evidence before the Court that there was any mistake or oversight in the matter, and at this distance of time it would be against the ordinary practice and rules of the Court to give leave to appeal from it. As the record of the actual appeal is in the hands of the Privy Council, it appears to me that application to amend it should be made to that Court if it so think fit. I must therefore discharge this rule with costs.

NINGPO.

The Futai of Chekeang is visiting Ningpo, with the object of inspecting the coast defences. He went over the citadel at Chin-hai, and is going over to Chusan in a day or two. Speaking of Chusan, a gentleman who has lately visited the island writes that several of the graves of those who died during our occupation in 1841-45 need repair, and the inscriptions restoration.

There has been considerable excitement among the Chinese in regard to the disturbances near Li-yang, and less assurance of a quiet settlement than I see your Hoochow informant affirms. The insurgents seem to be marching westward from Li-yang, and are said to have taken a small hien city called Lin-chow, or Lintze. Large quantities of cash have been sent up from here to Hong-chow to pay the troops before starting them in campaign, and the price has at once gone up in the city.

HONG KONG.

The present mail brings dates from this port to the 12th May; the London mail of 24th March arrived out May 4.

We are glad to hear that previous to his departure from Canton Mr. Robertson procured from the Chinese a settlement of the Fat-shan chapel difficulty. The chapel is to be rebuilt, and the native community indemnified for losses amounting to about 1,600 taels.

The Hon. J. G. Austin, the Hon. J. Pauncefoot, L. H. Moorsom Esq., and F. W. Mitchell, Esq., have been nominated trustees of St. John's Cathedral for the present year.

We hear that the staff of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation presented their late chief manager (Mr. Victor Kresser) with a very handsome testimonial on the 3rd May. An address of an extremely laudatory nature was also presented. The testimonial consisted of a fine silver centre piece, the work of the London Goldsmiths' Alliance, and bore a suitable inscription.

ANOTHER COOLIE TRAGEDY.

By this mail we have received details of the destruction of the coolie ship Dolores Ugarte, which was lately announced by telegram. It appears that she touched at Macao, where she took on board no less than 650 coolies for Peru. In order to evade the law of Macao, it was necessary that she should be owned by a Peruvian. She was accordingly ostensibly purchased by one, declared national by the acting consul, hoisted the Peruvian flag, and left Macao, in tow of the steamer White Cloud, on the 4th of May. The awful punishment of her infamy was not long suspended, for, within forty-eight hours of her sailing, she was burned to the water's edge. This catastrophe, however it was caused, occurred within fifty miles of Hong Kong, and many of the coolies were saved, and gave contradictory accounts of the origin of the catastrophe. Most of the evidence seems to point to the fact that the fire, whether incendiary or no, was caused by an explosion of gunpowder. Some Europeans opened the hatches to give the kidnapped coolies a chance of saving themselves. The coolies made a rush for the boats, and the Europeans fired on them to prevent their attempt. A great number of coolies were suffocated in the hold; many more were burned to death; many others plunged into the water and were drowned rather than face the more painful death by fire. One of the masts having happily broken short off some of the drowning managed to cling to it, and were taken off in a sampan. These coolies state that there were about fifty Europeans on the vessel, and from Macao it is reported that a party of them had arrived there and stated that the coolies set fire to the ship aft with the design of forcing all forward, and so taking the vessel, and regaining their liberty.

We extract the following from the account of this catastrophe in the China Mail:—Ho Ah-sze is a young man from a Hakka village near Canton, who, with eleven clansmen, went to Macao on promise of obtaining employment at 88 per month for eight years in "Peh-loo." Ho Ah-sze was one of the twelve working "passengers" allowed to be on deck. The other coolies were not allowed any lamps, and were kept below. Of the twelve privileged or working coolies, only three have been saved. When the smoke appeared, it was blown down the main hatch; but he afterwards saw that the fire was aft. The smoke smelt heavily of oil and medicine, and as it got into the coolies' mouths, they appeared to get suffocated, and fell as if they were dead. Very many died on board, some were drowned, and others fell from the masts. When the fire was discovered the coolies assisted, together with the foreigners, in endeavouring to subdue the flames. The anchors were thrown overboard to try and swing the vessel's stem to the wind; but this only partially succeeded. There was no fighting whatever, and no foreigner killed or wounded; so say the Chinese. And the fire, to their mind, was purely accidental. Ho Ah-sze avers that only one Chinaman (the doctor) was saved by the ship's boats. Another account says that the last boat was swamped by means of a rush on the coolies' part to get in; and altogether the statements about boats are very consistent. It is very clear, however, that there was not boat accommodation for a sixth or eighth part of those on board. Over five hundred of the miserable victims were burnt alive, a very small portion having been drowned or killed by falls.

The captain's account is thus described in the China Mail:—The Chinese mutinied, revolted, showed signs of taking possession. They tore up their berths and the woodwork about their bunks, and, using the planks as a battering-ram, they broke down the bulkhead and got into the lazarette, which was direct aft. This was when about a hundred miles from land, steering east. Having got through the bulkhead and into the lazarette, the coolies piled up the lumber thus torn up, and set fire to the ship by its means. When those on deck saw what the "passengers" had done a hose was got down into the hold; but the coolies deliberately threw it overboard through one of the side-lights. The fire was apparently lighted aft, with the purpose of forcing all those living overhead to go forward, and thus simplify the capture of the vessel. It is even said that on being asked through the grating what they wanted, the coolies declared their intention of taking the ship. However improbable this may appear, it is alleged that the coolies openly stated their purpose. The battering down of the hatch is again declared to be a fact, and no mention whatever is made (so far as we have heard) of any attempt having been made to save any of the "passengers." Things becoming desperate, the crew took to their boats, and soon fell in with fishing junks, into which they are said to have transhipped themselves and found their way to Macao. Whether the boats were or were not too far away to be of any service to the coolie victims is not stated.

The following items are from the same journal:—It is said that, so soon as intelligence of the tragedy was received here, the Colonial Secretary was communicated with, and information was at once forwarded to the Senior Naval Officer on the Station. From such representations, we believe that the corvette Barroa left early for the scene of the wreck. We shall anxiously look for any further light which her cruise may cast on this dark and mysterious catastrophe.

In connection also with this dreadful affair, we may state that, according to the advices from Macao, the Governor there has ordered a total suspension of the coolie trade as carried on at that port. It is said that no less than 2,000 coolies are at present quartered in the barracoons, and that the Governor has authoritatively forbidden that any shall be taken away or any placed into these coolie-houses for the present. This amounts only to a suspension of the traffic, and any subsequent action, it is presumed, will depend on further investigation.

PHILIPPINES.

MANILA.

(Daily Press Correspondent.)

On the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd May great festivities were held at Manila, on the occasion of the proclamation of the new Sovereign of Spain and her dominions, Don Amadeus I., who was proclaimed in the public places with the usual formalities by waving the Gonfalon to the old cry of "Oyez, Oyez, Oyez, Castilla of Filipinas." On the night of the 1st a splendid ball was given by the municipality, and a "thé dansante" on the night of the 2nd by the new Governor-General, Izquierdo. A bull-fight was also held on the 2nd, and races with the popular greased poles and public games on the 3rd, the morning of which day was inaugurated by the review and swearing-in of the troops. The principal streets were adorned with arches, and the houses hung with draperies of gay colours, the illuminations at night being general.

The new Governor is accompanied by his wife and two daughters, who, by their amiability, have proved an immense addition to society, hitherto disjointed and split up into factions by the absence of acknowledged leaders; for disunion and petty jealousies are too prone to characterise society among Spaniards, though not to such an uncharitable and undignified extent as among other nationalities who pride themselves without reason on superior culture.

Most of the oppressive restrictions upon commerce are now removed from Manila, and the Spanish Government, by measures even more advanced than those of our own quasi-liberal policy, has shown its intention of coming to the front in the great march of toleration and liberty. The differential duties on foreign flags were removed in April last.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to May 20th. On the 10th the Travancore arrived with the mail of 7th April, and on the 17th the Donnai came in with the French mail and London letters to the 14th April.

The following items are from the Straits Times:—

The Legislative Council was formally opened on Saturday, the 13th May, by his Excellency Colonel Anson, Administrator of the Government, but no meeting has been held since. The speech of his Excellency shows the colony to be in a very satisfactory financial position, the revenue for the first three months of the year being nearly $40,000 in excess of the expenditure—a state of affairs that promises well. Of course, this is exclusive of the contemplated expenditure upon works of improvement; but it will be observed with satisfaction that his Excellency proposes to set aside $50,000 as a reserve fund, to meet any falling off in the revenue, or any unforeseen emergency that may arise. This is, we think, a wise provision, and one that will meet with the approval of the community and all interested in the welfare of the Colony. Among the matters to be brought before the Council is the New Harbour Railway, the concession for which is sought by two distinct companies. A great deal of correspondence has passed between the applicants and the authorities, which was laid before the Council on the 13th. At the same meeting a number of despatches from the Secretary of State for the Colonies were laid before the Council, relative to ordinances passed during last session; these despatches plainly show the great care with which our local ordinances are revised at home, and we are indebted to this precaution for the detection of several important omissions and errors, which might otherwise have remained undiscovered until some miscarriage of justice should have developed them. His Excellency drew out a lengthy programme of matters of importance which are to come up for the consideration of the Council—principal among which are the reorganisation of the police force, the alteration of the Municipal Act, the lighthouse on the North Sands, education, pauperism, the water-works, and the subsidiary silver coinage. These are all matters of great public interest, and the session, if not a very busy one, is at all events likely to prove a very important one.

The threatened quarrel between the Chinese secret societies appears to have been settled, and there are at present no signs of its early renewal. Our native community, however, is at times exceedingly excitable, and little differences of opinion between the various sections sometimes lead to serious quarrels, in which entire clans become embroiled. The Mahomedan community are now giving the police some trouble,—and as many of the police are members or partisans of the two hostile parties, unless something is speedily done to put a stop to the quarrel it may prove difficult of repression. There is a standing feud between two Mahomedan societies, the Red and the White Flag Associations, the members of which have been long anxious to prove their prowess by a trial of their strength. On a recent Mahomedan feast day they repaired in large numbers to the Gaylang district, some five miles from town, for the purpose of bathing. The police had early intimation that a rupture between the two societies was likely to occur, and were present in sufficient force to prevent it. The members are eager to have the quarrel out, however, and a serious disturbance may occur at any moment.

The principal occurrence of interest during the fortnight was the spring meeting of the Sporting Club. The races lasted two days, and were very lively and exciting. Some new horses were introduced, but the older ones bore the palm, and won all the most important stakes.

The arrivals of steamers via the Suez Canal during the fortnight were the Emblehope on the 9th and the Achilles on the 15th from Liverpool, the Canton on the 18th and the Elgin on the 19th from London. There were no departures homeward by this route.

PENANG.

The following items are from the Argus:—The Report of the meeting of the Municipal Commissioners leaves no doubt on our mind now that they are prepared to enter the lists against Messrs. Sandilands, Buttery and Co., and the claimants in the Ghaut question, and that they mean to fight out their point in Court. The Commissioners have not advanced a step further in the right direction towards a settlement of their difficulties, and we can only regret that such men should be permitted to retain their office a day longer. The public will hold Mr. Herriot responsible for the issue of their case. His determination from the commencement, that these matters should be dealt with in Court, in spite of any arguments brought to bear against such a course being adopted, we confess, savours more, in our opinion, of private, than of public feeling, and cannot but be regrettable. As the question of Messrs. Sandilands, Buttery and Co.'s right of way has already been discussed by the Commissioners, we are justified in mentioning the opinion of Mr. A. Logan, one of the ablest men in the Straits, on the point at issue.

Mr. Logan wrote:—"As the Municipal Commissioners have no powers to build houses or shops, or to derive a revenue from them, I am of opinion that they were not authorised to erect the buildings along Messrs. Sandiland, Buttery, and Co.'s boundary wall in Light-street, and that as the grant of these premises describes them as being bounded on the north side by Light-street, and on the west side by Beach-street, the owners were thereby granted an easement, or right of way over these streets, and, therefore, a right of free egress thereupon from any portion of their premises."

On dit that Captain Speedy will, on the retirement of Mr. Dunman, which takes place in three months, be appointed Chief Commissioner of Police of the Straits Settlements, and that Mr. Waller will then revert to the appointment of Deputy Commissioner at Singapore, Mr. Evans returning to Penang.

The Colonial steamer Rainbow is expected, with Messrs. Maxwell, Skinner, and Captain Fox as passengers. Captain Fox succeeds Captain Ellis, Mr. Skinner takes up the appointment of Police Magistrate and Commissioner of the Court of Requests in province Wellesley, and Mr. Maxwell displaces Mr. Evans, who returns to his former post in the Police at Singapore. Captain Ellis will proceed also in the Rainbow, on her return trip to Singapore, to take up Lieut. Burn's place.

We have to record with regret the death of Mr. James Duncan Pasley, Deputy Commissioner of Police, province Wellesley. We hear that Mr. Skinner, a cadet, who arrived in the Straits some time ago, is expected here by the Homeward Mail steamer from Singapore, to take up the appointment.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—Holders had continued to press sales, and a further serious fall has to be noted in the values of Plain Cottons; the decline, at first confined to 8½ lbs. Shirtings, subsequently extended to all classes of these manufactures. The bulk of speculators' goods sent up for sale had been cleared off, and, with firmer advices from Shanghai, prices at the close showed signs of steadying, but the market closed very quiet. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. declined a mace and a-half per piece. By daily concessions large sales of 8½ lbs. had been made, the lowest point reached being Tls. 1.77 and 1.80 for ordinary chop, and Tls. 1.89 for Dewhurst's Eagles. Closing rates, Tls. 1.62 to 1.68 for 7 lbs., Tls. 1.79 to 1.85 for ordinary 8½ lbs., and Tls. 1.92 to 1.96 for Eagles. Latest quotation for 9½ lbs., Tls. 2.35 to 2.42 per piece. White Shirtings: Sellers at lower rates, but no inquiry. T-Cloths: Demand very languid, and good Mexican quality 7 lbs. could not now be quoted over Tls. 1.50 to 1.55 per piece; 8 lbs., little doing at Tls. 1.80 to 1.90 per piece. Drills also declined; fair sales of English at Tls. 2.86 to 2.95 per piece. Fancy Cottons: Quotations quite nominal; no demand. Woollens and Worsteds: All descriptions very quiet throughout the fortnight. Camlets firm, but less inquiry. Figured Orleans still wanted. Metals—Lead: Nothing doing, prices nominally the same as last stated. Quicksilver: A decline of Tls. 2 per picul has to be noticed; current quotation of Tls. 82 not readily obtainable.

SHANGHAI.—Cottons: A further decline had taken place in all staple goods, and the market continued in a dragging and unsatisfactory state, so that buyers could only be tempted by continuous concessions; though clearances were large, very heavy arrivals had increased stocks, and, until shipments from England should be materially checked, no better feeling was expected. The market for all other Imports is extremely dull, and all quotations are more or less nominal.

HONG KONG.—The following is from Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Circular:—Cotton Yarn: Some demand had been shown for Nos. 16 to 24, but several vessels with fair parcels of Yarn on board having arrived, dealers were declining to operate at current prices, although a concession of $2.50 per bale had been made by importers; Nos. 28 to 32 altogether neglected, and quoted $1 to $1.50 lower; Nos. 38 to 42 found an occasional buyer at a decline of $250 per bale from last figures. Piece Goods: The market is duller than ever, and with increased arrivals prices of all the staple manufactures have further declined. Grey Shirtings of all weights are 2 to 7 cents lower, 8.4 lb. goods having been quoted at $2.37½ per piece. White Shirtings are dull of sale, and all descriptions show a reduction of 5 cents. English and Dutch Drills have fallen 5 cents, and there are no buyers of American at prices 10 cents below those last quoted. A resale of 500 pieces of the last mentioned description is reported at $4 per piece. T-Cloths of 6 and 7 lb. weights show a drop of 2½ cents, and 8 lb. do not command former figures by 5 cents per piece; all are slow of sale. Brocades and Spotted Shirtings command previous values, and Turkey Reds and Chintzes, 2½ lb., steady. Woollens: Long Ells have been quoted to a small extent, but lower prices have been accepted to make sales: Assorted are 10 cents down, and Scarlet 5 to 10 cents lower. Spanish Stripes are weaker; and Crape Lastings have fallen 50 cents to $1, common kinds showing the greatest decline. Lastings and Camlets are quoted unchanged; Blankets are dearer, and 10 to 12 lb. are saleable at current rates. Metals: Stocks of Nail Rod Iron have been further largely increased, and as dealers are aware of it they are declining to buy: prices are 5 to 10 cents lower than last quoted. Round and Square Hard Bar Iron has improved in value 5 to 10 cents, while Soft Bar shows no change. Hoop is dearer as stocks are still small. Wire has advanced 15 to 20 cents. Lead is very dull, and is quoted down 10 cents. Quicksilver shows a fall in price of $4 per picul. Coals: Arrivals have been, 4,400 tons of Cardiff, 3,120 tons of Australian, 250 tons of Anthracite, and 100 tons of English. Sales have been, 5,030 tons of Cardiff, at $10.50 to 12; 1,090 tons of Australian, at $9; 770 tons of English, at $10, and 250 tons of Anthracite, on private terms. Australian and Cardiff coals have been in good demand on the spot, and the market closes steady for the former, while for the latter less inquiry exists. Anthracite description has not been wanted. The following were the current quotations:—Cotton Yarn: Nos. 16 to 24, per bale, $103.00 to 112.00; Nos. 28 to 32, $110.00 to 117.00; Nos. 38 to 42, $122.00 to 130.00. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., per piece, 2.02½ to 2.05; 8.4 lbs., $2.37½ to 2.42½; 9.12 to 10 lbs., $3.20 to 3.40; White Shirtings, $1.90 to 2.80; Fine, $3.10 to 4.80. T-Cloths, 6 lbs., ordinary, $1.42½ to 1.45; Mexicans, $1.60 to 1.65; 7 lbs., ordinary, $1.65 to 1.70; Mexicans, $1.85 to 2.05; 8 to 8.4 oz., $2.35 to 2.50. Spanish Stripes: Scarlet, per yard, $0.60 to 0.64; Assorted, $0.57 to 0.59. Long Ells: Scarlet, per piece, $6.15 to 6.25; Assorted, $5.30 to 5.55. Camlets: SS Scarlet, $14.00 to 14.25; Assorted, $13.00 to 14.00. Iron: Nail Rod, per picul, $2.50 to 2.65; Round, Square, and Flat Bar, $2.50 to 4.20. Lead, $5.60 to 5.90.

MANILA.—The market had been very quiet and the business transacted had, for the most part, been on the basis of late rates, although in some instances even lower prices had been accepted. The sales of Coloured Goods had not been large; the extremely low prices offering checked sales, and supplies in second hands being ample for requirements; dealers were averse to increasing their stocks in the dull state of the retail trade.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—Grey Shirtings: 8½ lbs. placed to a large extent, but at lower rates; sales forced at $2.35 to 2.30; stocks large. 7 lb. in moderate inquiry, and weak at $2 to 2.02½; 6 lb. in no request. 45 inch: Small transactions in 8 lb. at $2.35, and 9 lb. at $2.07½; demand very limited. 32 inch Grey T-Cloths: Inquiry limited, and prices weaker; 5 lb., $1.17½ to 1.22½; 6 lb., $1.42 to 1.45; 7 lb. very dull, small sales at $1.05 to 1.70. Grey Maddapollams without any inquiry. Long Cloths: No transactions. White Shirtings: Fair demand for fine medium, and low little inquired for and lower. Woollen Goods continue very depressed, only retail sales reported of Assorted Camlets, 32 lb. at $14½; Scarlet Long Ells, 12 lb. at $6.75 to 7; and Scarlet Bombazetta, 5 lb. at $2.95. Grey Yarn: Prices lower for all counts, and demand very limited. 40s placed at $108 to 109; 30s very dull at $102, and 18/24s at $85 to 86. Turkey Red Yarn: Less inquiry. Glasgow Dye, 10 lb. $127½ to 130; 12 lb., $133 to 135; other colours very dull.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: No business since the departure of last mail. Green: The only transaction had been the settlement of 271 half-chests inferior Fychow at Tls. 23½, leaving on offer some 3,800 half-chests of all descriptions.

HANKOW AND KIUKIANG.—No business reported.

FOOCHOW.—According to latest intelligence from this port, the weather in the country continued favourable to the growth of the leaf, and there was no doubt that the plants were undergoing the operation of picking; an impression prevailed among the natives that the greatest care was being bestowed upon the preparation of the leaf, and that the supply of Oolongs this season will exceed that of last. There had been no settlements.

CANTON.—Musters of the new season's Scented Teas had been shown, and the leaf in course of preparation represented about 35,000 boxes, while further arrivals from the larger districts were close at hand. The prices named by the Chinese were very extravagant, and some time would probably elapse before buying commences. As a rule the Tea appeared to be well scented and strong in the cup, though hardly up to that of last season. The only purchases had been 770 boxes Canton District Congou, at Tls. 25 to 26 per picul.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—Some few transactions have taken place in barter, otherwise we should have nothing to report, as the season may virtually be said to be closed, the small stock remaining on hand being composed chiefly of Yellow Silk and Long-reel Taysaams. The prospects for the new Silk are thus far good; the worms are now reported to be in their second to third stage, and are very healthy. Mulberry leaves are abundant, the yield being estimated at about 30 per cent. over last season, and the price about $1.50 per picul against $2.50 last year. On the other hand, growers are reported to be hatching very little more seed than last year, thus giving rise to very conflicting opinions as to what the yield for the coming season is likely to be.

CANTON.—Notwithstanding unfavourable intelligence received regarding the home market, some few bales had been taken during the fortnight for Europe. A few samples of the new season's Silk had been seen, and were favourably spoken of, both as regards quality and quantity. Stock estimated at 80 bales Tsatlee reels, 20 bales Kowkongs, 50 bales Cumchucks, Lacklows, &c., and 100 bales of inferior descriptions.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—JUNE 17.

TEA.

The market exhibits a quieter appearance than at the date of our last report, but prices are well maintained and show no alteration.

A meeting of importers, brokers, and dealers in Tea has been held, at which a committee was appointed to consider the status of brokerage, and another to present a plan for carrying out a grocers' exchange.

COFFEE.—The current quotations for East India kinds are, Java Government bags, 18c. to 20c.; Java mats, 18½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 17c. to 18c.; Manila, 14c. to 15c.; Native Ceylon, 15½c. to 17c., showing no change from those of our last issue. Prices must, however, be regarded as merely nominal, there having been an entire absence of business in any description during the fortnight.

CORDAGE.—There is a fair demand for Manila at previous rates.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 17c. to 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.30; Cassia, 97½c. gold (in bond.)

FIRE CRACKERS.—The demand has become less active, and rates show a slight decline; transactions are reported at $2.45 for extra No. 1, and $2.47½ for gold chop.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is $4 gold (duty free).

HEMP.—There is but little enquiry for Manila, and the business done during the interval has been limited in extent; holders, however, show no disposition to force sales, and former prices are consequently maintained, the current quotations being still 10½c. to 11½c. gold. The only sales to report are 500 bales, ex Rattler, at 10½c., 250 bales, ex Aberdeen, at 11c. to 11½c., and 500 bales on private terms.

INDIGO.—Manila continues very quiet; sales are reported at $1 to 1.20 currency, showing a slight decline in prices.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $3.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 50c. to $1.50 currency (duty free).

RICE.—During the greater part of the fortnight there had been a steady demand for all descriptions, but towards the close the market had relapsed into a quiet condition, although no material alteration has taken place in prices. The sales of Rangoon during the interval have been about 3,000 bags for home consumption at $7 to $7.50 currency, and 2,500 bags in bond for export at $3.35 to $3.60 gold.

SUGAR.—There are no new features of any prominence to report in the market. The buying has been moderate, and though holders as a rule are firm, and offer their accumulated stocks rather sparingly, the current inquiry has been supplied from landing parcels at the previous currency, or, perhaps, more strictly speaking, at some shading in prices, the advantage having been rather on the side of buyers than sellers.

SPICES.—Stocks of most descriptions are concentrated, and prices generally are steady and firm. The sales are an invoice of 530 bags Pimento afloat at 3½c. gold in bond; 1,000 to 1,100 bales Cloves, also in bond, 50 cases Nutmegs, residue per Knight of Snowden, and an invoice do., per Louise, at Boston, on private terms. There continues a steady moderate jobbing demand, at $1.15 for Mace, 82c. to 85c. for Nutmegs, 31½c. for Cassia in bond, 16c. to 16½c. for Pepper, and 11c. for Cloves, all gold.

TIN.—The demand is still very limited, but, holders being strengthened by favourable European advices, display more confidence and have advanced their pretensions a little; the nominal prices now are, for Banca 38c. HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 21.

The final results of the elections for members of the Second Chamber of the States General have proved to be most fatal for the Conservatives. The principal Conservative supporters have been rejected, whilst the Liberals have only lost Mr. Sluet van de Beele, who will probably be a candidate at a forthcoming election in one of the Liberal districts. At Alkmaar the battle was won by Mr. de Bruin Kops, Mr. Schimmelpenninck being beaten by 300 votes. The members of the Second Chamber will meet on the 22nd. In the First Chamber the Budgets have all been carried unanimously. The Minister of the Colonial department has made an important statement; he declared that most probably the new tariff for Java cannot come into force on the day fixed by the law, viz., the 1st January next year. A delay will be necessary, and considering the state of political affairs abroad, he wished to withhold the particulars of his plan. These mysterious words are interpreted by some to signify that if the French Government introduces anti-free-trade principles, the East India tariff will not be so liberal as we flattered ourselves that it would be. Probably this is correct, as it is certain that in some quarters Protectionism is strongly advocated.

The Minister of War, Colonel Engelvart—who some days ago was appointed general-major—has been interpellated about our means of defence. He stated that when our lines of defence are in good order our army will be able to defend the country, even against a superior force. This statement is of a most reassuring character, but it is somewhat disquieting that nothing is done. You will remember that when Mr. Thorbecke inaugurated his third ministry, we learned that the main work of the session was to apply the lesson of the great war in a serious and practical fashion; in other words, that an "army reorganisation Bill" was to be laid before the members. The military question would be the first in the programme. It even seemed that a good deal of our national income would be expended for military purposes. I think it has been proved now that the enormous plans were only passagere. So much is certain, that if not the Government, the nation has forgotten the lessons of last autumn. If Parliament had had to deal at once with an army reorganisation Bill the impulse of the national will should have induced the legislature to produce a bold measure; but with the end of the war the memory of its warnings faded away, and I should not wonder if this Minister is not tempted to leave the army to the chances of the future, he being well persuaded that a good many members are not inclined to grant the enormous sums required for a total reorganisation, knowing that the outside world shows a lack of apprehension with regard to military questions. How many millions have been spent during the last twenty-five years for military purposes, and has it not proved that all this money has literally been thrown away?

The affairs of the Oost Indische Maatschappij van Lyfrenten are becoming more and more complicated. According to the advice of the lawyers, Messrs. J. C. Reepmaker, J. de Lange, and J. Kappeyne van de Cappello, some holders of bills, drawn on this company, have summoned the managers, Messrs. Fr. Adr. Jas and A. van Eybergen Santhagens, the commissaries, Messrs. E. W. Cramerus, J. ter Meulen, and the members of the direction, Messrs. Jhr. Mr. D. A. Junius van Hemert and H. van Alphen, who all were in office at the time these bills were drawn. According to the stipulations of our Commercial Code, the managers of every company are personally liable for every debt, which they conclude, if they continue business after 30 per cent. of the capital has been lost. Now it is pretty clear by the last balances that much more than 30 per cent. was lost when these bills were put in circulation, and that the directors thus sought credit by concealing the true position of the company. Consequently they have to pay the bills. If they refuse to do so, then the holders of bills require that they shall consent by an official declaration that if the claimant accept the proposed liquidation, the said managers and all the members of the direction will remain liable for the balance—so that in any case the holders of bills will be paid in full. I need not add that this matter creates much sensation in our financial circles.

The Papal jubilee has passed without any disturbances having taken place. The greatest excitement prevailed amongst our Catholic population, but they wisely withheld themselves from any public demonstration.

The Noach III. has been chartered as a troopship, and 125 soldiers will start within a few days in this vessel for Java.

Mr. Gericke, Minister for Foreign Affairs, has declared that he will in the following session deal definitively with our diplomatic representation in China, in order to warrant our commercial relations without the least fear for hostilities.

The annual meeting of shareholders of the Netherlands India Trading Bank has been held at Amsterdam. The report which was read showed that the profits in Europe amounted to £237,153.92, and in Java to £452,603.83, being 11½ per cent. upon the capital, and £109,827.66 more than in 1869. This amount, however, is by several discharges of accounts in India decreased to £223,409.26, out of which sum a dividend of 1.9.25 or 3.7-10 per cent. will be paid per share. The meeting approved of the report, and passed the above named dividend. As commissaries were re-appointed Messrs. A. van Geuns at Amsterdam, and H. Klein at Batavia, and Mr. I. D. Fransen van de Putte was elected as commissary in the place of Mr. W. vom Rath.

H. M. has conferred the Knighthood of the Netherlands Lion on the infantry captain of the East India army, H. van Heyvingen, who commanded the troops on board the steamer Willem III.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

A want of activity has been the prevailing characteristic, but prices of the leading articles remain upon the whole unaltered. Those of Cotton and Tin have further advanced. More genial weather has prevailed in the past few days, which has much improved the prospects of the growing crops, the reports about which are at present on the whole a great deal more favourable than could have been reasonably anticipated.

COFFEE.—A firm tone continues to prevail, and sales have been making at full prices. The transactions from first hands since my last embrace: 1,161 bags Java, Preanger, ex P. A. J.; 354 b. ditto ex ditto; 3,039 ditto Nangoon ex ditto; 299 b. ditto ex County of Stirling. The Trading Company's June sale is to be held here on the 28th inst., and will comprise about 80,000 bags Java and Macassar, stored in our different ports.

SUGAR (RAW).—A firm tone continues to prevail for this article. There is very little on offer in the market, and no transactions are reported.

TEA.—There is little doing in anticipation of the public sales taking place here to-morrow of the cargo of China, ex Windermere, and of about 500 packages Java.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—Sales have been closed by secret tender of 313 bales Java W P S, and 242 bales W S. at 16c., 125 bales Sumatra at 155c.

SPICES.—The demand is not active, and prices are barely supported.

TIN.—The further advance of £3 in England has imparted a very firm tone to this article, and several sales have been closed of Banca at £77½ up to £78½ for usual prompt, and at £76 and £76½ for delivery ex the coming autumn sale; also of Bilton at £76½ to £77, delivery ex quay.

TEA.—The following is the result of the sale of the cargo of China tea imported from Foo Chow, per Windermere:—1,981¼ and 1,984¼ chests superfine Kaisow Congou 88c. to 121c.; 270¼ chests superfine Flowery Pecco 177c. to 233c.; 200¼ and 1,903¼ chests superfine Souchou 91c. to 150c.; 1,432¼ and 1,133¼ chests superfine Kaisow Congou 85c. to 108c.; 105¼ chests superfine Flowery Pecco 163c. to 187c.; 404¼ and 271¼ chests superfine Kaisow Congou 90c. to 108c.; 234 lots were bought in. Of the Java tea offered in the same auction was sold (trading mark Tjikoppo Mayak); 35¼ chests Boei sold at 60c. to 61c.; 62¼ chests Congou sold at 76c. to 78c.; 228¼ chests Souchong sold at 87c. to 95c.; 55¼ chests Pecco Soanahong sold at 97c. to 98c.; 46¼ chests Pecco sold at 160c.; 20¼ chests Pecco Kempoi sold at 76c.

PARLIAMENT.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

(June 19th.) Sir J. LAWRENCE (L.) asked the Under Secretary of State for the Colonies if his attention had been called to a statement in the China Mail that evidence had been given before the Chief Justice of Hong Kong of Chinese having been kidnapped and shipped at Macao to be sent to Peru as slaves, and that a kidnapped coolie named Kwok-a-Sing had with others risen against and killed the captain of a French vessel who was about to enslave him; and having escaped to Kong Kong, his rendition had been demanded by the Viceroy of Canton, which the Chief Justice, after hearing the evidence, refused, and ordered the release of the man from custody, saying that he had committed no offence against the laws of England; and whether, notwithstanding this decision, Kwok-a-Sing had been again arrested upon a warrant issued by the Governor of Hong Kong. He also desired to ask the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether any steps had been taken by Her Majesty's Government to ascertain the correctness of the statement that large numbers of Chinese had been shipped against their will from the port of Macao, and treated as slaves, on board vessels bearing the French and Portuguese flags, and if any communication had been made to the French and Portuguese Governments upon this revival in the Pacific of the slave trade; and if he would lay before the House any correspondence that might have taken place on the subject.

Mr. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN (Under Secretary to the Colonies) said that the first question of the hon. gentleman referred to a question of considerable importance. On the legal point involved he was not competent to give any answer. He would briefly state the bare facts of the case. In January last a Chinese coolie was arrested at Hong Kong charged with murder and piracy on board a French vessel. That vessel had been engaged in the coolie emigration trade from the Chinese port of Macao, and had 800 coolies on board, about 100 of whom had been kidnapped. It was not stated that the prisoner himself was kidnapped, but he was recognised as one of the parties who had risen on board the vessel, overpowered the crew, and murdered the captain and eight of the men. The Chief Justice, after hearing the case, ordered the discharge of the prisoner upon a writ of habeas corpus, the main ground for doing so being that any person who was about to be enslaved had the right to obtain his liberty as he could, and that a person acting as the accused had done had committed no crime coming within the jurisdiction of Hong Kong. The Governor, however, acting upon an information made by the Attorney-General of Hong Kong, ordered the re-arrest of the accused upon a charge of piracy, and the Chief Justice again ordered his dismissal. The Governor then telegraphed home that the opinion of the law officers should be taken. Their opinion was that the man had been rightfully re-arrested, inasmuch as piracy was an offence against the common law of nations, for which a man ought to be committed for trial. According to the latest intelligence received he was now awaiting his trial.

Lord ENFIELD (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs) said that reports had at different times reached Her Majesty's Government with regard to the collection and shipment of coolies, and they had thought it their duty to bring the subject under the notice of the Portuguese Government. That Government had referred the matter to the Governor of Macao, and he had framed a new code of laws which it was hoped would obviate the abuses which had arisen. With respect to the French Government, no correspondence or communication had taken place, except that mentioned by the Under-Secretary for the Colonies with regard to coolie emigration. Any portion of the correspondence which did not involve a breach of national or official confidence would be presented to Parliament.

THE CHINESE CIRCULAR.

(22nd.) Colonel SYKES asked the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, as the Chinese Government in its communication to the French Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, in transmitting the circular respecting missionaries, informed M. Rochechouart that the circular had equally been communicated to the representatives of the other European Powers, "a été également communiqué aux représentants des autres Puissances," why Mr. Wade had not transmitted to his Government a copy of the circular as M. Rochechouart had done to the French Government, copy of which had been laid upon the table.

Lord ENFIELD said it was with some regret and surprise that the Government had not received the communication in question. A telegram had been sent calling Mr. Wade's attention to the omission, but as yet no answer had been received.

CHINESE COOLIES IN DEMERARA.

(22nd.) Mr. R. FOWLER asked the Under Secretary of State for the Colonies whether he had decided to publish the report of the Demerara Coolie Commissioners; and, if so, whether the appendices would be printed either with the report or in a separate form.

Mr. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN was happy to inform the hon. gentleman that he had that day laid upon the table of the House a printed report of the commissioners. The appendices, which were very voluminous, would be printed in a day or two.

Epps's Cocoa is also prepared with condensed milk, and sold in tins, labelled Epps's Milky Cocoa.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Several letters have appeared in the commercial article of The Times with reference to the depth of the Suez Canal. The correspondence originated with a letter dated the 19th from Sir D. A. Lange, announcing that the minimum depth of water was twenty-six feet, and that dredging operations were in full progress to maintain this depth. This announcement was followed by a letter from a shipowner, stating that one of his screw steamers "had only arrived at Suez on the 4th of June, having entered the Canal at daylight on the 1st, during which time she grounded no less than thirty-one times. The draught of water was 17½ ft. forward, and 20½ ft. aft." As confirmatory evidence was adduced a communication from the captain, who says:—"Three days and nights without any rest, constantly getting out anchors, &c., to leave ship off, after pilot had stuck her on shore. Thirty-one times we grounded in the Canal. I had to send for tug the last fifteen miles, and grounded seven times after she had us in tow, with two pilots in charge, special. I shall protest against paying anything for the tug."

The assertions put forward by the shipowner and the captain have been met by counter statements. One correspondent, signing "V," says:—"Our last steamer passed through the Canal drawing upwards of 21 feet water, and only touched the ground once, and that for a few minutes, during the whole of her passage from Suez to Port Said. I cannot but think 'L. M.' has been unfortunate in having his steamer badly navigated or ill-constructed for canal navigation." Another letter says:—"The Canal can be navigated with certainty by any ordinary steamer drawing 24 feet of water. If shipowners wish to make the passage with unhandy vessels of an unreasonable length, sitting three feet by the stern, a detention of three and a-half days must not be considered excessive. They must also be prepared for a claim from the Canal authorities for damage done to the banks by the frequent groundings of their unwieldy cargo carriers. As the navigable part of the Canal is now in all cases in the centre of the visible channel, only ordinary care is required."

Finally Sir D. A. Lange sums up the case as follows:—"I must request your permission to confirm what I have written in my letter of the 19th inst., and if your correspondent will have the goodness to furnish me with the name of his screw steamer, I shall be in a better position to institute the necessary inquiries into the unusual circumstance to which his letter refers, with a view to avoid a recurrence of similar delays in the interests of shipping generally."

Since the publication of the above a further correspondence has appeared. Sir D. A. Lange writes as follows, with reference to what he considers to be an evasion of the tariff. He says:—"It has been pointed out to me by large shipping firms in this country, that the Suez Canal Company, instead of charging the dues on the net register tonnage of vessels, should do so on the gross register tonnage, making the charge somewhat less than it is at present. The reason assigned is that at present every expedient is used by their competitors to make the net register tonnage as small as possible. By British Customs regulations, if the engine-room is of a certain size, one-third part is taken off the gross tonnage; thus, in some cases, a steamer of, for example, about 1,800 tons gross measurement, is made to measure only 1,200 tons for Suez Canal dues, and in other cases steamers are measured as they are, and the 1,800 tons gross represent about 1,500 tons net register. It is, therefore, alleged that with a less costly steamer some owners pay 25 per cent. more canal dues than others do. With every desire to place all vessels on the same footing, it will be seen that I can have no control over the existing Customs regulations, which permit of the 'expedients' referred to being made practically available for the purposes described. Either the Customs must modify their regulations with regard to this matter, or it will simply resolve itself into a question of time for all shippers in self defence to have recourse to similar expedients, in which case I foresee that the Suez Canal Company will experience, not merely a partial, but a wholesale loss in the payment of dues to the extent of 25 per cent. as pointed out to me."

Another letter relates to the financial position of the enterprise. "An Unlucky Bondholder" writes:—"On the 15th of this month M. de Lesseps, on the occasion of the twelfth drawing for prizes, announced, in answer to an interpellation, that there were no funds wherewith to pay either the two coupons due on the bonds, the prizes, or the numbers drawn for reimbursement since the 15th September last. He added that at the general meeting appointed for the 15th of next month a proposal would be made to the shareholders of the canal to authorise the raising of a loan in England for the purpose of paying off these arrears. He likewise referred to the rumour of a projected purchase of the canal by an English company, asserting, however, that no such proposal had as yet been made to him."

THE VISIT OF THE KING OF SIAM TO SINGAPORE.

The following are copies of the telegraphic despatches which passed between his Majesty the King of Siam and Her Majesty Queen Victoria on the occasion of the King's visit to Singapore:—

"We left Bangkok on the 9th of March to see our Provinces, and we have arrived at your Most Gracious Majesty's colony of Singapore, the first time that a King of Siam has landed in an English country. His Excellency the Administrator has received us with the highest honours, and made us most comfortable at Government House. We are delighted to see the country and people prospering so well under your Most Gracious Majesty's rule. We repeat our grateful thanks to your Majesty for your friendly reception of us, and we wish you long life, health, and prosperity in every respect. CHULALONGKORN." The Queen's reply:—"To the King of Siam, care of the Administrator of Singapore. March 10, 1871, 3.20 P.M.—I have received your Majesty's telegraphic message from Singapore, and I am much gratified to learn that you have visited a British possession, and that you have been received by my authorities there in such a manner as to afford satisfaction. I thank you for the renewed expression of your good wishes, and I request you to be assured of my earnest desire for your health and welfare. HER MAJESTY."

We understand that the King of Siam has determined, on the advice of the Regent, to go in November or December next to Calcutta, where it is understood he will be received in state by Lord Mayo. He was accompanied in his trip to Singapore by a small fleet of sea-going gunboats and two corvettes carrying an 80-pounder amidships and two 60-pounders fore and aft, all English built, and another of larger tonnage is now in course of construction in this country. His ships and gunboats are commanded by English sailing masters, who take the rank of Commanders in the Siamese service. Like the Regent, the King's predilections are strongly English. This is the first time that a King of Siam has ever been out of his own dominions, but the Regent is very anxious to extend the relations of the kingdom, especially with this country.

THE SILK SUPPLY ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of this Association was held on the 23rd inst. at the offices, 65, Moorgate-street; the President of the Association (Mr. Thomas Dickins) in the chair. A lengthened report was read, detailing the operations of the Society during the past year in regard to mulberry cultivation, reporting upon specimens of cocoons, the publication of the Silk Supply Journal, the introduction of silk reeling into this country, the establishment of a cocoon market here, and other matters relating to the production of silk. An interesting discussion followed, in which the Chairman, Sir Daniel Cooper, Bart., Mr. W. C. Brocklehurst, M.P., Mr. David Chadwick, M.P., Mr. R. Harrison, Mr. Blakely (Norwich), Mr. S. Brown (Macclesfield), and other gentlemen took part. Special reference was made to the award of a gold medal by the Society of Arts to Mr. Chubb, of Queensland, for the importation into this country of silk cocoons grown in Queensland. These cocoons were sent to Macclesfield, and there reeled and thrown, and the material woven. The latter caused much interest at the recent conversation of the Society of Arts at the South Kensington Museum. The report was adopted, and a resolution, recommending that the trade should consider the advisability of establishing an English cocoon market, and also of carrying out the reeling of silk in England direct from the cocoons.

THE INDIAN PRESS ON THE SITUATION IN CHINA.

The Indian Daily News says:—By slow degrees it has become apparent that the party represented by Prince Kung, in China, has lost influence, whilst the anti-foreign party has acquired a position which threatens to bring on another crisis. India is deeply interested in the development of the movement, inasmuch as upon her must fall, if action should become necessary, the duty of upholding the honour and fame of England. At last the Peking Government has clearly and unmistakably adopted the policy of the fomenters of the Tientsin outbreak of last summer. There can be no room for doubt on this point, since the Chinese Foreign-office has suggested a revision of the treaties and engagements relating to Christian missionaries and their converts. It would almost seem that the Peking statesmen are acting on their knowledge of affairs in Europe. Chung-how, their envoy, has evidently brought before them, in a vivid manner, the misfortunes of France, and the apathy of England. He must have heard many reports unfavourable to England, and have faithfully reported them to Peking. At the Chinese capital these reports could have but one effect. France has always been the protector of the missionaries in China. England has, as a rule, appeared rather ashamed of them. The defeat of France in Europe has thus provoked an attack on her position in the East. The Roman Catholics number in China some 300,000 or 400,000 native converts, under a carefully organised hierarchy of bishops. How will it be possible for missions, which number their converts by thousands, to descend to the limit of forty-five, suggested by the Chinese? The proposal means more than appears on the surface, for, in effect, it is an endeavour to undo the results of the last war. In this respect it is a proof that the Chinese Government believes it is in a position to successfully resist any pressure, if pressure be brought to bear against it. The anti-foreign party believes that the time has come for action, and that it is sufficiently strong to provoke a contest. It is to be hoped that the Government of India will keep carefully on its guard, so as not to be surprised by any eventuality in China. For a full year the Mandarins have advanced step by step to an aggressive position. For a full year they have given both England and India warning of their intentions. To be caught at last unprepared would be both dangerous and inexcusable.

THE SEIZURE OF THE "RICKMERS."

The Hamburg Borsenhalle thus recurs to the seizure of the Rickmers in commenting on our first article on that subject:—"The parallel we drew between the conduct of the British Government in the Arrow affair in 1856, and the recent capture of the Rickmers by the French, has elicited a categorical reply from the London and China Telegraph. We regret that we can find in our contemporary's present argument no reason for altering the opinion we expressed concerning the change which has come over the British Foreign-office and its maintenance of the respect due to the flag of Old England. On the contrary, we are confirmed in our first impression by the reasoning of our opponent. One argument was that, in 1856, in a very questionable case of ownership, the English Government resented the capture of a Chinese vessel sailing under the British flag by the bombardment of Canton; whereas in 1871 England quietly permitted the seizure of two vessels, the property of British subjects, and lying in Chinese ports, by French men-of-war, notwithstanding that an English admiral had acknowledged them to be bona fide British ships. We added that if the transfer of these vessels was illegal, the authorities which had sanctioned it should have been called to account for having permitted it; but that, under no circumstances could England suffer any vessel which was duly authorised to carry a British flag to be captured, without an injury to British prestige. Instead of meeting us on this ground the London and China Telegraph simply explains that in 1856 England had no alternative but to regard the Arrow as a British vessel, because the correspondence laid before Parliament at the time proved that the Arrow was legally carrying the British flag, and was therefore entitled to its protection. Now granting, for the sake of argument, that the British Government was justified in regarding the Arrow as being under its protection, how does our contemporary prove that this was any justification of the bombardment of Canton at that time, or for its Foreign-office acquiescing in the capture of the Rickmers now? So long as it is not proved that the latter ships have ever been regarded as other than the property of British owners, we must maintain our opinion that the views of the English Government concerning the honour of the British flag have undergone a great change in fifteen years. We cannot but think that Her Majesty's Government have learnt to look at the Chinese, as well as the French, with different eyes, and we shall be surprised if the Chinese fail to profit by the contrast between their past and present policy."

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The following notice has been issued from the Hydrographic Department of the Admiralty:—

Carimata Strait, Tallack Shoal.—On the 2nd of March, 1871, the British barque Mary Tatham, on her passage through the Carimata Strait, struck on a shoal not shown on the charts; this shoal is steep-to, as a cast of 22 fathoms was obtained just before the vessel struck, and when aground there was a depth of 15 fathoms under the main chains. On examination of the danger 20 feet was the least water found, with 20 fathoms close to on all sides. The following bearings were observed from the shoal, Soeka, the southern of the Melapies group of islands, N.W. $\frac{1}{2}$ N., distant about 2 miles, Pyramid island S.W. $\frac{1}{2}$ S., and Zet-tak point half open of the north side of Meledan or Button island. The position of this danger is therefore in lat. 1 min. 21 deg. S. and long. 109 min. 6 deg. E.

THE MALOO MIXTURE.—We have already drawn attention to the report that the cargo of the Sydenham, lately arrived, contained a consignment of tea known by the above name. We are glad to see that the subject was yesterday brought before the authorities—in this case, most appropriately, the Commissioners of Sewers—and that they seem determined to take vigorous measures for the repression of a dangerous nuisance, and a great scandal to British commerce. We hope that, on the present occasion, the detection of the offenders will be followed by the prosecution of both shippers and consignees, in fact of all who are concerned in this nefarious traffic. As for the "mixture" itself, it should be destroyed out of hand. Bad tobacco is regularly burned at the "Queen's Tobacco Pipe" in the docks, and there could not be a surer means of checking the present evil than instituting a "Queen's Teapot," where all such abominations as the Maloo mixture should be consumed.

THE GAZETTE states that Her Majesty has been pleased to make Major-General Thomas T. Pears, C.B., the Military Secretary to the Secretary of State for India in Council, a Knight Commander of the Bath. General Pears served in the Kurnool campaign, and was at the affair at Zorapore; served also with the China expedition, and was present at the recapture of Chusan, Chinghai, Ningpo, and Yengau; affairs at the heights of Tsekie, capture of Chapoo, Woo-sung, Shanghai, assault and capture of Chingkeang-foo; was also with the Army at China till the close of the war under the walls of Nanking. Since his advent to the India-office there have been many important measures carried out, in all of which Major-General Pears has shown himself an able administrator, and he well deserves the honour which has been conferred on him.

THE "WILLEM" III.—In the Court of Admiralty, in the salvage case of the steamship Willem III., upon application being made for the release of the passengers' personal effects, the learned judge directed that the matter should be referred to Lloyd's Agent or a Custom-house officer to state whether the effects consisted of wearing apparel, or articles ejusdem generis, in which case they would not be liable to contribute for the salvage, the goods of the passengers, about 200 in number, having been injured by fire and water on the occasion of the accident to the steamer off the Isle of Wight in May last.

NEW STEAMER FOR THE STRAITS TRADE.

On the 24th inst. a new steamer, designed and constructed expressly for the local trade between Penang and Deli, made a satisfactory trial trip on the Thames. The vessel is named the Deli, and is of the following dimensions:—Length between perpendiculars, 90 feet, breadth of beam, 16 feet, depth, 8 ft. 6 in., draft of water, laden, 6 ft. 6 in., tonnage measurement, 109 tons. The propelling power is a single screw driven by compound high and low pressure engines of the inverted cylinder type and of 35-horse power nominal, the diameter of the high-pressure cylinder being 15½ in., that of the low pressure cylinder 27½ in., and the stroke of piston 14 inches. The vessel is fitted with all the most recent improvements, the engines being fitted with surface condensers and every appliance to secure a high rate of speed in conjunction with economy in the consumption of fuel. The engines and cabin being both placed aft, considerable stowage room is secured, and 100 tons of cargo may be conveyed in the hold, while, in addition, there is space provided on the deck for carrying ponies and accommodation for six passengers, including one lady, in a small but airy half-poop cabin. The masts are of such a size as to allow the setting of a considerable amount of canvas, and the vessel's speed under sail may be expected to nearly equal her steaming powers. As we have stated, the Deli made a trial trip on Saturday last, when most satisfactory results were attained. In a series of four trips over the measured mile at Long Reach—two runs being made against, and two with, the tide—the average speed was 11½ knots per hour, with 155 revolutions of the engines per minute, a steam pressure of 60 lbs., and a vacuum of 25 inches. The Deli has been built for Messrs. Leveson, Lewis and Co., by the well-known shipbuilding firm, Messrs. J. and W. Dudgeon, of Cubitt-town. She will sail for the Straits, via the Suez Canal, this day.

NEW STEAMER FOR THE JAVA LINE.

Messrs. Charles Connell and Co. have launched from their new shipbuilding yard at Scotstoun, Whiteinch, a screw steamer of 1,000 tons, built in accordance with Lloyd's new rules. She was named Gouverneur-Generaal Uijer by the wife of Captain Lindemann, who is to command the vessel. The vessel has been built to the order of the Netherlands India Steam Company, Limited, for their line of mail steamers between Singapore, Java, &c.

THE INVASION OF KOREA.

(GLOBE.)

The American expedition to the kingdom of Korea, which has resulted in the collision with the authorities of that country, reported in Monday's telegrams, originated in this way. Some four or five years ago a small American schooner, named the General Sherman, entered one of the rivers in Korea on a quasi-commercial adventure, having on board, besides her crew, one or two passengers, among whom was a Mr. Thomas, a promising young Englishman connected with some of the missionary societies. One story was that the Koreans, who have shown themselves more resolute in defence of their seclusion than even the Chinese or Japanese, had at once set upon and burned the vessel with every soul on board. A year or two later another version of the fate of these people, coming, however, from an untrustworthy source, was to the effect that the crew of the schooner had in the first instance given provocation to the natives, on which a fight ensued, in which eight of the foreigners were killed, the others being retained in captivity. An American ship of war, the Shenandoah, was despatched from Shanghai on March 18, 1868, to make inquiries into the affair, and to release, if possible, those of the General Sherman's crew that might still be alive. The commander of the Shenandoah had communication with Korean officers at different points of the coast, but did not obtain a scrap of information concerning the fate of the General Sherman and her crew. On this Mr. Consul-General Seward arrived at the conclusion that "no negotiations not supported by a considerable show of force would be likely to be successful" in Korea. About this time the American interest in Korean affairs was pleasantly diversified by a trial of an extraordinary character, which the same Consul-General Seward was compelled to institute in his own court against one Jenkins, who, at the instigation of a priest, and in collusion with the master, if not the owner, of a North German steamer, actually invaded the Korea with a force of some scores of coolies, and attempted the desecration of the tomb of a Korean king, in which much gold and treasure were reputed to be buried. This romantic adventure was luckily balked by the vigilance of the natives; an encounter occurred, and blood was shed; but whether retribution actually overtook any of the offenders is not very clear. Later in the year 1868 Mr. G. F. Seward had elaborated his scheme for a visit to Korea, which he propounded in a despatch to Mr. W. H. Seward, then Secretary of State at Washington, dated October 14. The gist of Mr. G. F. Seward's proposal was—(1) To obtain information about the General Sherman and, in case wrong had been done to her crew, to obtain satisfaction therefor. Also, per contra, to offer thanks for the kind treatment which the Koreans showed to the wrecked crew of another American vessel, the Surprise, in 1866. (2) To obtain a commercial treaty, if possible; but, if not, at least such an agreement with the authorities as should provide for the safety of seamen or others wrecked or driven on the Korean coast. In short, having the example of Japan before his eyes, Mr. Seward proposed to take advantage of the catastrophe to the General Sherman to get the thin edge of the wedge into Korea by negotiating a wood-and-water treaty, the first step in foreign relations which savages are usually called upon to make, to be followed up either now or subsequently by a full commercial treaty. The smaller affair would be accomplished, Mr. Seward thought, without difficulty; the larger would require a "considerable show of force" to effect.

Mr. Consul-General Seward's scheme received the formal sanction of the Department of State at Washington on the 20th April, 1870, on which day Mr. Hamilton Fish issued the necessary orders to the United States Minister in China, authorising the equipment of a naval expedition, under Admiral Rogers, to be sent to Korea in 1871, and opening a credit for the necessary expenses with Messrs. Baring Brothers and Co., of London. This, then, is the expedition which we now hear has landed in the Korea, and has commenced bombarding the forts.

The kingdom of Korea is said to be independent of China, although it sends yearly tribute to Peking; indeed, it has been accused of sending tribute to Japan also. As a criterion of independence, however, the tribute is not infallible, for some Oriental States seem to have an abstract love of tribute-paying, perfectly unaccountable. On the occasion of the massacre of a French priest and a number of native Christians, by order, it was said, of the King, in 1866, the French representative at Peking endeavoured to make the Chinese Government responsible, but Prince Kung repudiated the sovereignty of Korea. Hence, we presume, Mr. Seward concluded that Korea was independent.

The population is estimated at six millions; the climate is mild for the latitude; the people are peaceful and industrious; the soil is fertile, gold is abundant. The geographical form of the kingdom is that of a peninsula nearly detached from China on the north by the recent advance of the Russian frontier, which touches Korea on the north.

The advantages to be gained by opening Korea to the trade of the world are thus stated by Mr. Seward:—

"We have three ports in China in the Gulf of Pecheli much frequented by our vessels. There are three of Japan on the west coast similarly available to us. Right down between there juts the Korean peninsula. The steamers of the northern branch of the Pacific mail line run for a distance almost within sight of the Peninsula. To the north coast stretch away the possessions of Russia, having the Amoor as a natural channel and guide of their commerce to the Pacific. Here are regions of China, Japan, and Siberia, which have already a considerable trade. Within a year or two coal will be extensively worked in each, and it will soon be no longer necessary to bring this indispensable article round the Cape of Good Hope. Thereupon would follow a development of trade here which will, I think, surprise the most sanguine."

And the reason why the opening of this eligible region to the commerce of the world devolves peculiarly on the United States is thus given by the same authority:—

"France has been unfortunate in Korea. (Referring to the unsuccessful expedition in 1867.) Great Britain has hardly a greater interest at stake than we, and no grievance to redress. North Germany, with her increasing commerce and great fleet of coasting craft, has yet no determined policy in the East. We are favourably known, and all the circumstances indicate that an attempt to open the country may best be made by us."

It may be well to add that the seemingly unnatural mixture of cruelty and kindness in the reception which the Koreans give strangers is probably explained by the fact that there, as in China, Japan, and other exclusive countries, the people when left free are friendly to foreigners; the opposition comes solely from the governing class, whose craft is endangered by any change, whether in the abstract it be good or bad.

SECRETARY FISH TO MINISTER LOW.

Department of State, Washington, April 20, 1870.

SIR.—It has been decided to authorise negotiations to be had with the authorities of Korea for the purpose of securing a treaty for the protection of shipwrecked mariners, and to entrust the conduct of the negotiation to you. Should the opportunity seem favourable for obtaining commercial advantages in Korea, the proposed treaty should contain provisions to that effect; but the President principally aims in this mission to secure protection and good treatment to such seamen of the United States as may be unhappily wrecked upon those shores. The enclosed copies of the treaties concluded with Japan at Kanagawa in 1854, and at Yedo in 1858, will serve to point out the kind of protection which you will seek to secure, as well as the commercial article which it may be desirable to enter into. Little is known of the shores or internal waters of Korea, or of the people who inhabit that country. Before leaving to carry out these instructions you will endeavour to gather all the information on these subjects that can be obtained in Peking. Some political connection exists between China and Korea which may make it advisable for you to secure in advance the good will, and possibly the good offices of the Peking Government. You will, of course, do whatever can be done in that way. Admiral Rogers will receive instructions, a copy of which has been forwarded you to place at your disposal accommodation upon the flag ship, and accompany you yourself upon this mission with a display of force adequate to support the dignity of this Government. You will maintain entire frankness and unreserve with Admiral Rogers, conferring freely with him in every stage of the negotiations. In arranging the time for carrying out these instructions, it is also desirable, if possible, to secure the presence and co-operation of Consul General Seward, who has had great experience in Oriental character, and who has also made a study of this question. Admiral Rogers has instructions to take that officer with him in case he returns to China before you go. It is not supposed here that you will be able to comply with these instructions before next year, in which case Mr. Seward will be at his post. The Department relies upon you in fulfilling these instructions to exercise prudence and discretion to maintain firmly the right of the United States to have their seamen protected, to avoid a conflict by force unless it cannot be avoided without dishonour, and to seek in all proper ways the harmonious and friendly assistance of the Chinese Government.

OPENING OF THE NEW MINT IN JAPAN.

FROM time to time we have recorded with much satisfaction the rapid progress the Japanese are making in the introduction into their country of foreign institutions, public works, and the like; especially the frank manner in which the Government have adopted railways and telegraphs, as compared with the bigoted exclusiveness of the Chinese authorities. The latest, and one of the most important of these public works, is the successful erection of the New Mint at Osaka, which was inaugurated with great éclat on the 4th April. Should this Mint prove to be a financial success, it is not only an advance in Western civilisation over the Chinese Government, but also the Colonial Government at Hong Kong, who failed in their attempts to coin money for general circulation, by the self-same machinery. It will be remembered that after an experiment of some two years the Hong Kong Mint proved a losing concern, and it was offered for sale to the Chinese authorities, who declined to purchase. Negotiations were then entered into with the Japanese Government, which ultimately ended in their buying the whole plant, and engaging the English Master of the Mint to proceed with it to Japan, superintend its erection at Osaka, and bring it into full working operation. The result is reported in our latest advices from Japan, which record the opening ceremony as significant of its wholesome effect upon the future financial condition of the country by the issue of an honest metallic currency. There were present on the part of the Government two high Ministers of State, two Vice-Ministers, and six other officials; while the Foreign Treaty Powers were represented by Sir HARRY PARKES, and the French, American, and Spanish Ministers, together with the Consuls and Members of the Legations. At the entrance to the building the party formed into a group, while the Government interpreter read the following address:—

"The Japanese Government, in order to meet the gradual increase of the national requirements, and desiring to further the development of foreign commerce, undertook the year before last the construction of a Mint, with the purpose of putting forth a new and pure coinage, in conformity with the system of coinage existing in other countries. The work in question has now been completed, owing to the zealous co-operation of the Oriental Banking Corporation, and of Messrs. KINDER and WATERS. It is a great satisfaction to the Japanese Government that the ceremony of its opening has been celebrated in the presence of the foreign representatives and other gentlemen. It is a proof that the development of commerce will be assisted in the future, and we hope that the friendly feelings existing between our people and those of foreign countries will continue ever to increase."

The plain, unvarnished language of this brief address is not the least significant evidence of progress in Japan, wherein the usual style of Eastern hyperbole has been discarded. Should the coinage issued by the Mint be as pure as the sentiment it conveys, there is great hope that it will not only be a medium of exchange in the Far East, but in Europe and America it will bear its full intrinsic value. This point was gracefully alluded to by Sir HARRY PARKES, who acted as spokesman for the Foreign Ministers. "We trust," he said, "that this success will encourage your Excellencies' Government to persevere steadily in that course of progress, and in that desire to work in cordial and common accord with Foreign Powers, which we cannot doubt you have adopted when we observe the attention your Government is devoting to public works of the most useful and practical kind, and in which the assistance of foreign skill is largely and willingly engaged. May we not see in the purity and excellent workmanship of this coin (holding up a large gold piece just struck off), the product of one of those works, a symbol of that honesty of resolve and thoroughness of action which, we trust, will ever characterise the Government of the Sovereign of this realm! May we not hope that, in obtaining a wide circulation, not only in Japan, but it may be in neighbouring countries also, this country will ever carry with it the confident assurance that the MIKADO's emblems, the use of which is now revived, are an undoubted guarantee of intrinsic worth, and that the policy of his MAJESTY's Government may ever be distinguished by the ring of the true metal as that which is so sterling a recommendation of the new coin."

Knowing the history of this Mint, from its first planning in the National Mint at Tower-hill, and the progress of its varied fortunes to China and Japan, we congratulate the Master, Captain KINDER, who has watched over it anxiously and zealously from the beginning, at his establishing it in a haven of rest, and under a Government where his abilities are sure to be appreciated.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

In another column we give a report of the questions which Sir J. LAWRENCE asked of Mr. K. HUGESSEN and Lord ENFIELD the other evening on the subject of coolie kidnapping in Macao and its consequences, together with the replies of both Under-secretaries. Mr. HUGESSEN's statement had this advantage over that of Lord ENFIELD's, that it showed that at least one high judicial authority, the Chief Justice of Hong Kong, had vindicated a fundamental principle of the British constitution by declaring that any person about to be enslaved has the right to obtain his liberty by any means within his power. This incontrovertible truth, however, seems temporarily to have been over-ruled by the Governor and Attorney-General of Hong Kong, fortified by the "opinion" of the law officers of the Crown at home. According to the latest accounts, therefore, a coolie named KWOK-A-SING, who objected to being kidnapped, and rose against and overpowered the captain of the slaver into which he was decoyed at Macao, the murder of the captain being an unavoidable part of the operation of recovering his own freedom, now lies for trial at Hong Kong, notwithstanding that he had been twice released by the Chief Justice on the grounds we have stated. We have so often recorded our protest against this hateful traffic that we need now do no more than draw attention, not only to the grievous injury sustained by such individuals as KWOK-A-SING, but also to the great prejudice which is caused against the English Government by their interfering to punish as a crime an act done by an unoffending man in obedience to the first law of nature. How this case will be perverted to the injury of European prestige in China in the present excited state of public feeling it is hard to tell. For ourselves, we cannot see what part the English Government have in the affair at all, the murder having been committed at sea. It is commonly supposed that the Portuguese possess the sovereignty of Macao; but we believe that this is so far from being the case that they pay a ground-rent for their possessions there, and that a civil mandarin resides within the town. The slaver, whose captain was murdered in the rising of the kidnapped coolies, was a French vessel. The captain was engaged in a lawless act; and it will indeed be a reproach to the English Government if they should lend themselves to the punishment of any man—or any body of men—for rising to rescue themselves from the clutches of ruffians who have inveigled them into captivity. The great question of coolie kidnapping cannot long escape the Parliamentary inquiry which it demands, in whatever part of the world, where English power is felt, this crying evil may exist. At this moment, we are happy to say, papers lie before Parliament exposing the hateful manner in which the same system is pursued in the South Sea Islands, whence no less than thirteen vessels are now regularly engaged in kidnapping coolies for sale in Queensland, &c.—all these vessels sailing under the British flag. For the exposure of this system in its full deformity the public are indebted to Captain PALMER, of Her MAJESTY'S navy, whose newly-published book, "Kidnapping in the South Seas," we commend to the perusal of our readers, though we must warn them that they will be horrified with the details exposed therein. When these Fiji papers come before Parliament we hope the full question of decoying natives, of whatever country, by Europeans, will be brought before the House, and that our friends who are interested in the preservation of English prestige in the Far East—no less than in the cause of justice and humanity—will not forget that Macao is one of the great hotbeds of this hateful crime. It is certainly an extraordinary feature that the French Consul did not undertake this affair. Notwithstanding this omission, however, we hope that poor KWOK-A-SING will not be made the scape-goat of official red-tapeism, and handed over to the tender mercies of the slave-holding interest, after having been twice set at liberty by that noblest of all characters, an upright Judge, on a charge which no man, with a heart in his bosom, can bear to hear preferred without a blush.

[Since writing the above we have received the revolting details of the burning of the coolie ship Dolores Ugarte, from Macao to Peru, which will be found in another column.]

THE SEIZURE OF THE "RICKMERS."

In another column we give a condensed translation of a third article in the Hamburg Borsenhalle on the capture of the Rickmers. We regret to be unable to resist the impression that our contemporary, in the singular piece of special pleading before us, has framed his argument on the non sequitur principle, for the express purpose of making the insinuation which he drags in by the head and shoulders at the end. There is certainly nothing in his train of reasoning to justify such a conclusion as he draws, for there is no reasoning in his article at all. Whatever show of argument it contains cuts against his own case. The cases of the Arrow and the Rickmers are in no way similar. We resented the capture of the Arrow because, by the law of nations, she was entitled to our protection; and we declined to interfere in the case of the Rickmers because the same law showed that we had no right to do so. We had, in fact, no locus standi. The question is not whether the British Government is conducted in the same spirit now as it was in 1856; the question is whether the Rickmers were British ships in the same bona fide sense that the Arrow was. The answer is that the Rickmers were not British ships in this sense, and if the closing insinuation of the Borsenhalle should have the effect, which it appears designed for, of persuading the Chinese to attempt another Arrow affair, we have perfect confidence, notwithstanding the shortcomings of our Foreign-office, that they will be very soon and summarily convinced of the fatal error into which they have been misled.

THE AMERICAN EXPEDITION TO KOREA.

We learn by telegram dated Hong Kong, 18th June, that the American expedition against the Korea has commenced serious operations. The Koreans had fired upon a reconnoitring party, and it would seem that Admiral ROGERS, interpreting this into an act of defiance, proceeded to bombard the place, and succeeded in capturing one of the Korean forts. It is not easy for us to express an opinion on the prudence or principle of this step, but at first sight it certainly appears as little justified by the provocation of the Koreans as it is likely to add to the reputation of American arms. It is well known that the Korea is the most inaccessible place in the Far East to foreigners. From mutual jealousy on the part of the Chinese and Japanese Governments, the King of the Korea is held in complete subjection, and the commerce of the country is consequently limited to China and Japan. We are at a loss to find any reason for the course of action said to have been adopted by Admiral ROGERS. It is entirely at variance with the instructions given by Mr. Secretary FISH to Mr. Minister Low in his despatch of April 20th last year, when he expressed his anxiety to secure a treaty for the protection of seamen of the United States, who might be shipwrecked on the coast of the Korea, but expressly recommended Mr. Low to exercise prudence and discretion, to "avoid a conflict by force, unless it could not be avoided without dishonour," and to seek in all proper ways the harmonious and friendly assistance of the Chinese Government, who are known to exercise important political influence over the Korean. How far Mr. Low and Admiral ROGERS have acted up to their instructions we must for the present leave our readers to judge for themselves, and wait for further telegrams to inform us. In the despatch to which we have referred, Mr. FISH drew attention to the advantage which Mr. Low would derive if he had the benefit of Mr. Consul-General SEWARD'S advice and co-operation. Bearing in mind the unvarying conciliation and good sense which have marked all Mr. SEWARD'S acts, we feel it impossible, without further evidence, to believe that the present proceedings can have been undertaken with his sanction.

CEYLON HARBOURS.

We learn that Mr. ROBERTSON, the Indian harbour engineer, has inspected the following places:—Mangalore, Cannanore, Calicut, Beypore, Narakal, Cochin, Alleppey, Quilon, Tuticorin, Paumben Passage, Negapatam, Porto Novo, and Coconada. He has also minutely inspected the system of backwater communication from near Beypore to Trivandrum. Considering the exhaustive nature of Mr. ROBERTSON'S investigations, we are at a loss to understand how the ports of Ceylon could have been omitted from the above list. We are far from attributing this omission to Mr. ROBERTSON, who would no doubt have been as happy to have examined Galle and Colombo as on any of the comparatively insignificant harbours in the above list. But we think the residents in Ceylon have a right to know to whom they are indebted for the delay of a year in settling finally the mail-port of the island. Rumour ascribes this loss of time to the intervention of Earl MAYO, who is in such a hurry to appear to be doing something to benefit India somehow that he shuts his eyes to the demands of Ceylon, which he conveniently forgets is the key of the Far East. We should have thought Sir HERCULES ROBINSON would hardly have permitted such an interference with his responsibilities to pass without remonstrance. Certainly the dozen Indian ports above-named seldom, if ever, contain among them so many masts as may be found any day in the roadstead of Colombo, or anything like so much money-value as is continually anchored in Galle harbour. It seems like a mockery to find the Paumben Channel inserted in the list of insignificant Indian ports, while Galle and Colombo are so "conspicuous by their absence."

We have pleasure in announcing that Mr. Russell Brooke Robertson has been gazetted as Consul at Yokohama. Mr. Marcus O. Flowers, we understand, returns to his post at Nagasaki next month. Mr. D. B. Robertson, C.B., Consul at Canton, and Mr. W. H. Medhurst, Consul at Shanghai, have arrived home, Mr. Hughes, from Kiukiang, relieving the former, and Mr. Markham the latter. Sir Harry Parkes and Mr. Fittock, Consul at Ningpo, are passengers by the Pacific Mail, which left Yokohama May 22. Mr. Fittock has been relieved by Mr. Swinhoe.

THE Messageries Maritimes have issued a circular announcing that the transit of goods, &c., will now be conducted as before the war. The weekly line from Marseilles to Alexandria has been resumed, and the fortnightly service to India, China, and Japan will also be resumed next month. The next departure will be from London 7th, and Marseilles 9th July, and fortnightly after that. The homeward fortnightly service does not commence until November. The directors have also arranged for a steamer to convey cargo from London direct for transhipment at Marseilles.

At the next meeting of the Suez Canal shareholders, on the 20th prox., it is understood the opinion of the meeting will be taken as to the position and affairs of the Company, with a view of reorganising the same under English auspices. M. de Lesseps is at present in London, for the purpose of receiving the investiture of K.C.S.I., which has been conferred on him by Her Majesty.

It is rumoured that Sir HERCULES ROBINSON will leave Ceylon in September, and will be succeeded by Mr. W. H. GREGORY, M.P. for Galway. We give it only as a rumour.

THE CHINA CIRCULAR.

THE publication of the translation of the Circular presumably addressed by the Chinese Government to all the foreign ministers in Peking, but, so far as we are informed, sent only to the French Minister, has drawn forth the variety of opinion which the gravity of the occasion might be expected to inspire in the minds of all who are interested, whether from religious, commercial, or official causes, in the Far East. We are gratified to perceive that, in the crisis which seems universally felt to be imminent, all sectarian differences are put out of sight, and the great object of diffusing Revealed Religion among the Heathen is sought to be advanced at the sacrifice of all separate and minor convictions. In the main we are glad to find that our contemporaries entertain the same opinion that we expressed last week; namely, that nothing in the Circular appeared directly or indirectly to point against Protestants—if we could only believe the Chinese Government sincere. But here, as we said, was the difficulty; and it is a difficulty which our contemporaries find as hard to get over as we did. The English press is unanimous on this point. Even the Calcutta papers contain arguments similar to those published in London a week before the arrival of the Indian mail.

The Weekly Review, in which Mr. MATHESON'S letter, quoted by us last week, first appeared, publishes another letter from Mr. CARSTAIRS DOUGLAS, in which that gentleman states that "a more careful study of the Circular has convinced Mr. MATHESON that it contains many dangerous clauses, and he has been preparing a second letter" in consequence. Mr. DOUGLAS proceeds:—

The circular is a very able document, containing many noble sentiments and correct principles, but almost every proposal is vitiated by some fatal flaw, or clogged by some intolerable condition. It includes also a long list of heavy charges against the Roman Catholics (but none against Protestants)—charges which, if true, merit condign punishment, according to the existing treaties, but for which some stronger evidence is needed than the bare word of the framers of this circular, who do not blush to write in the very first paragraph the astounding falsehood—"Trade has in no degree occasioned differences between China and the Powers."

The articles which would press most heavily on missionaries and converts, and which are most distinctly opposed to the stipulations of the treaties are these:—

In Article I. it is recommended that all orphanages should be closed. Article II. forbids the attendance of women at church, and asks for the deportation of the female missionaries.

Article III. appears to subject the persons of missionaries to the Chinese officers; a subjection from which all other foreigners are exempt, even those who are in the pay of the Chinese Government. It also forbids them to "aspersion the doctrine of Confucius"—a phrase which may be construed so as to prohibit all teaching that does not agree with Confucianism.

Article IV. refuses indemnities for future outrages, and screens the "abettors" of such crimes, especially the literati, who are pronounced immaculate, though it is well known that they are the real criminals, who have instigated all the outrages and murders in question.

Article V. proposes regulations about passports, which would generally shut us out of half the Empire, and which, if in force, in recent times would have often prevented travelling in any part of the seaboard provinces themselves.

Article VI. puts it in the power of any mandarin to forbid any one becoming a Christian by simply saying that he is or once was a criminal, or by the same means to order his excommunication. It also places all Christians under a severe and harassing police surveillance, just like a ticket-of-leave man.

In Article VII. it is required that missionaries in the presence of mandarins "must observe the same ceremonies as those exacted from the literates"—a rule which would often require kneeling on both knees, and probably sometimes the ceremony of knocking one's forehead on the ground.

In the same Article it is provided that "missionaries ought to observe Chinese customs, and to deviate from them in no respect"—a phrase of very convenient elasticity, including as little or as much as may be desired.

Article VIII. provides means by which any mandarins or "inhabitants" may prevent the opening of a new chapel when they please; and among these means it is even proposed to legalise the Fung-shuy (a modern superstition unknown to the classics, and actually condemned by Imperial edicts), which is the great obstacle constantly pleaded by the Chinese Government as a bar to the construction of railways, telegraphs, good roads, and all such improvements.

I have only been able to give the merest outline of these dangerous proposals, and have to pass over several other clauses almost as bad—e.g., that forbidding any representations in favour of Christians persecuted by means of false accusations; and that which, specially exempting Christians from two sorts of idolatry payments, may be construed as implying that they are liable for other superstitious expenses.

If sanctioned for Roman Catholics, these regulations would also be applied to Protestants. They seem incapable of being amended, and it looks almost as if they were offered in order to be rejected, so as to throw on the Treaty Powers the responsibility for future outrages, while branding the Christians as destitute of virtue and enemies to the peace of society.

In all this we more than agree. The comments of the Editor of the Weekly Review express our opinions exactly:—

The more we examine this circular the more we are convinced that the first impression in regard to it was nearer the truth than the second, and that it is a document fraught with much danger to all Christian missions. The tone of the introductory letter could scarcely be more threatening. In former treaties much liberty had been granted to Chinese missionaries. There were four Treaties made with the Chinese Government about the same time—English, French, American, and Russian—in each of which there were express articles in regard to missions. Article XXIX. of the American Treaty says that "those who quietly profess and teach the doctrines of the Christian religion, Protestant or Roman Catholic, shall not be harassed or persecuted on account of their faith. Any person, whether citizen of the United States or Chinese convert, who, according to these tenets, peaceably teaches and practises the principles of Christianity shall in no case be interfered with or molested." The British Treaty is much in the same terms, and the French Treaty is even more decided. It permits missionaries to reside in the interior, fortified with regular passports.

There is no doubt that the Roman Catholic missionaries have to some extent abused the privileges granted them, but not sufficiently to account for the terms of the circular now communicated. It is also to be remembered that if the Chinese be allowed to attack unjustly one class of missionaries, and to deprive them of rights secured by Treaty to the others, they will soon come to count the whole of the Treaties a dead letter. It is impossible for Protestants long to retain privileges which are denied to the Roman Catholics. The occasion of the present circular has very probably been the reported defeats of France, but it is impossible that the faithless policy it threatens can long be confined to one nation, or to one class of missionary agents.

The italics are our own, but with the sense of the passages we have underlined we think few of our readers will disagree. The Editor proceeds:—

In China missionaries have done more than any other class to cultivate a good feeling with the Chinese. Any attack made on them and their work would only be the beginning of a crusade against all the European and American population. Their protection, therefore, as secured by Treaty, must be jealously watched over on national grounds. We trust that by the firm action of our own and American statesmen, the Chinese will be convinced that they must respect the Treaties, and need not attempt to escape from their obligation. Any irresolution or weakness will prepare the way for future wars and massacres.

The Rev. G. JOHN, writing to the Nonconformist, expresses similar views:—

It is a fact, I sincerely believe, that the Chinese Government has, for the last three years, been pursuing a policy which has for its sole object the present restriction and the ultimate dissolution of all existing relations; that the recent troubles are to be ascribed to that policy; that the present attempt to suppress missions is only a part and parcel of it; and that, if the Chinese succeed in this particular, they will simply be encouraged to proceed with their anti-foreign measures, and another crisis will become inevitable.

Mr. JOHN forcibly adds:—

Our difficulty is not with the people; they are not ill-disposed. In no part of the world could the missionaries be treated with greater civility and cordiality than they were treated at Tientsin only two years ago. Three years ago I completed a tour of nearly 3,000 miles through a region which had never been visited before by a Protestant missionary. I entered most of the cities and towns on my route, preached the Gospel, and sold copies of the Bible in the streets and open spaces, and returned home without having created a single tumult, or received the slightest injury.

And sums up his views thus:—

The societies and the missionaries may, I think, justly and reasonably look to the Government for genuine sympathy and legitimate support in the present crisis. The fact that the lives of thousands of innocent men and women (whose sole offence is that they have embraced Christianity) are in danger, is a powerful reason why a Christian Government, such as ours is, should not treat the matter lightly. "But what will be the use of moral aid unless backed by a menace of physical force?" Perhaps not much; perhaps a great deal. I cannot ask for more; but I do most earnestly ask for this, and hope that it will be given heartily and sincerely. Let the English and American Governments evince an intelligent, earnest, and heartfelt interest in the matter, and the Chinese Government will pause before taking the next step; for it is now calculating on their utter indifference to the question of missions.

In the same journal the Rev. G. M. MURPHY urges a different policy, but his arguments seem directed rather against Mr. JOHN than in furtherance of any practical views.

Our own opinion is entirely with Mr. DOUGLAS and Mr. JOHN. We regard the Circular merely as meant to make religion the lever by which to oust the foreigner from China. True, it is couched in the most plausible language, but every point in the argument is directly contradicted by well-ascertained facts, which it is the express object of the style to keep out of sight. Decipimur specie recti, as HORACE says. We are deceived by a semblance of candour, and led to form hasty opinions, from false assumptions put on merely for the purpose of deception by the "Chinese wolf in sheep's clothing." Thus the Circular tells us that "the first Catholic missionaries were recognised as the literati of the West, and the greater "part of the conversions took place at that time"—many hundred years ago—"among respectable people. On the other hand, since the conclusion of the Treaties (1860)"—mark how the cloven foot peeps out here—"the majority of the converts are persons without virtue. Veteran rebels, beyond the pale of the law, amateurs in intrigue, seek a refuge in the Church, and lean upon her influence in order to commit disorders." Now, this would be legitimate ground of complaint indeed—if there were a word of truth in it. But compare this statement with that of the latest of the explorers of China, Mr. T. T. COOPER, who tells us in his new work, reviewed in these columns a few weeks ago, that there is now in Sz-chuan alone a native Christian (Catholic) community said to amount to 100,000 souls, recruited principally from the well-to-do middle class. Mr. COOPER admits that he does not think they can be so numerous as 100,000, but adds, "in the villages there are many little Christian communities whose members belong to the industrious peasant class. They at present enjoy complete toleration, and, indeed, command respect; while in Chung-Ching the numbers and wealth of the converts give them, as a society, considerable weight." Mr. COOPER, it should be borne in mind, is not a missionary. He explored the country at great risk, solely as the agent of the Chambers of Commerce, to which the mandarins are just as much opposed as they are to missionary enterprise, because the spread of both alike tends to circumscribe their means of fleecing the people by sham taxes and illegal transit rates. Unless this fact be kept steadily in view, we lose sight of the whole point and purpose of the present Circular. It is not directed against the French alone, but against all Europeans. It is not directed against Catholics alone, but against members of every creed except that of the litterati. And if the French pioneers of Christianity are suffered to be deprived of the treaty rights, the English will have only themselves to blame if they find it "their turn next," whenever CHUNG-HOW thinks he may venture to drive the wedge a little nearer home.

THE HONG KONG QUESTION.

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I think that I am not singular in the opinion that some of the principal causes for the interruption of peaceable intercourse, and, consequently, trade, are, first, well-meaning, but over-zealous, imprudent missionaries, such as the one alluded to by the first Consul of Shanghai, then Captain Balfour, in his evidence before the select committee of the House of Commons of 1847 (4,434), and even that missionary admitted that "it is easy for a European living amongst them, and acting with a common degree of forbearance, to overcome prejudice, and gradually to win a favourable opinion of himself;" and whilst knowing that he did that which in many European countries would have cost him dear, if not his life. I remember the late Dr. Medhurst, in the preface of one of his works, strongly recommends missionaries to be cautious, &c.

That in a country like China ignorance may cause, as it has done on more than one occasion, great injury and harm to the innocent and even prudent missionaries I freely admit, but let us look to places nearer at home, even in the year of our Lord 1871, where His teachings have been taught for centuries, and to what effect.

In the early part of 1858 a series of letters was published in the Daily News by "Sinensis," in which the missionary question was well discussed by one who, I should think, next to Mr. Wade and Mr. Williams, knows more about it than most men who write and speak about it.

I greatly feel for and sympathise with the missionary, knowing what good some have done, and what with self-denial, patience, perseverance, and prudence, they can and have accomplished. Yes, to quote the words (but not accepting the meaning of them) of one of the missionaries, who writes in 1870 from Tungchow, "Is it not apparent, then, that an urgent necessity exists to teach China what the Christian religion really is; and can any candid and intelligent man doubt that a pure Christianity is the great want of this Empire?" Verily, let us look nearer, and see how the teachings of our Lord are practised in Europe.

So far back as 1852 Mr. Chisholm Anstey, then member for Youghal, and now the leader of the Bombay bar, opposed the vote incurred by colonial bishops in visiting several places in their dioceses. Mr. Anstey said, "The rapacity of ecclesiastics was like the horse-leech, which had three daughters that were continually crying out 'Give, give, give.' Those three daughters were the Church of England, the Church of Scotland, and the Church of Rome, not one of whom ever retired unless plena cruoris."

I quote this for the sole object to give me an opportunity to correct an error under which I, with many of your readers, have been labouring, and which I fear I helped to propagate, viz., that a former missionary of whom, in "The China Question,"

London, by Effingham Wilson, 1870, at page 65, it is said—"And he died leaving ever so many thousand pounds."

You, as well as others, know that this was an exceptional case, as the gentleman held an office under Government, and thus could perhaps have saved something to purchase East India or other stock, which many believed. But such is not the case, since on the best authority I am informed that his late Majesty, King Frederick Wilhelm IV., gave the widow six thousand pounds sterling, because of having been left without any fortune to support her.

The next cause of anxiety has always been opium, the export of which from India, notwithstanding the native growth, has been going on increasing from year to year. In 1870 the East India Government derived therefrom a revenue of eight millions of pounds sterling, and I just see the same amount is estimated as the revenue from the same source for the year 1871-72. Add to this the revenue derived by India from the other trade carried on between India and China, and you will admit that it is rather India than poor Hong Kong that should and ought to contribute towards the military expenses incurred by this country in China for the protection of a trade from which India derives the lion's share of profit. True, Great Britain gets over five millions or thereabouts from the duty on tea, but this amount is only taken out of the pocket of the consumer, whilst the revenue on opium is paid also out of the pocket of the consumer, but he is a subject of a foreign state, and to enable to reap such a harvest military must be maintained in Hong Kong, or China. Therefore, I say let India pay that which is now levied unjustly and injuriously upon Hong Kong.

If, with the high rates for police, lighting, water, fire, and whatever other names they have, which are now levied in Hong Kong, it may come again to pass, as some twenty years ago—when, for example, in 1849 alone, costly buildings were abandoned by the owners to avoid paying the ground rents, by which the revenue sustained in that year alone a loss of £1,751 16s., and in a late report of the Registrar-General of Hong Kong it is stated that rents have fallen 25 per cent., and that the native population is decreasing. In former times the East India Company paid £8,000 annually towards the expenses of the diplomatic service in China. According to the Estimates and Civil Services for 1870-71 one-third of the expenditure for diplomatic services in China is contributed by Indian revenue. The total expenditure being £24,071, exclusive of Supreme Court.

Hong Kong was not favourably viewed by the diplomatic body in China, I believe, and that chiefly on account of being always mixed up in the debate in Parliament when the vote for Hong Kong came on; and now the Chinese Imperial Customs seem to blockade it more effectually than the French fleet did during the last war the German ports in the North Sea.

"I thought this to be a free port," recently said the Chief Justice of Hong Kong. So I thought once, and wondered how Mr. Brown, M.P., a merchant and member of the ever-to-be-remembered Committee of 1847, in answer to the very last questions put by it, on the authority of the London Custom-house officers, could say that "Hong Kong was not a free port."

If our diplomatic agents and the Chinese Government would agree to open some ports on the west coast of China they would promote legitimate trade and reduce smuggling; but Canton will have it all to itself, and England would have to pay a few Consuls more, so Hong Kong must be the victim.

As the Governor of Hong Kong is now in this country, he might perhaps find some inducement to plead for the remission of the military contribution, which is, after all, the burden that presses most heavily and unfairly on it.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, Hamburg, June, 1871.

R.

THE "RICKMERS."

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I fully agree with you that there is no comparison between the case of the lorcha Arrow and the ships Rickmers.

Further, I think the transfer of the Rickmers should not have been effected, and this for more than one reason; but the transfer (I speak of only one vessel, the one which changed flags at Singapore, not knowing the particulars about the other) having been effected, after due and mature reflection and consideration by the English authorities, inasmuch as captain and mates had to pass an examination as to their qualifications to command, as prescribed by the Act, it certainly seems strange that the French did so little respect "the flag that braved a thousand years."

No doubt, since the captain returned with other fellow sufferers from captivity the other day in the Pera, we will yet hear more about this matter. But my principal object is to draw your's and your readers' attention to the following extract from the Shipping and Mercantile Gazette of the 12th inst., which says:—"A letter from Havre, of Saturday, announces the arrival that morning of the Adolphe Thiers, above spoken of. After leaving London it called at Cherbourg. The same letter mentions the arrival from New Orleans of the large steamer Mercury, under the English flag. Before the war it was Francois I. and was under the French flag. It is to re-assume its old name and nationality. It belongs to Messrs. Quesnel Freres and Co."

Now does it not seem strange that the British authorities in the East and those in America sanctioned one and the same thing; does it not indicate that the law on the subject is either not well defined, or so framed that superior authorities can repudiate the acts of their executives at the cost of those who relied on the protection to which they thought themselves entitled, and which it was generally believed the English flag would give? Lord Palmerston, I think, would have supported the acts of his subordinates. That they acted to the best of their belief and knowledge seems evident by the fact that ships of both belligerents have been transferred, and received the English flag by authorities residing, the one in the old, and the other in the new world.—Your obedient servant.

London, 20th June, 1871.

THE STATE AND CLAIMS OF HONG KONG.

(SECOND ARTICLE.)

In 1852, in Committee on the vote of £12,000 for Hong Kong, Lord Dudley Stuart replied to some observations of Mr. Hume—"That Hong Kong was not ceded with reference to trade. It was of importance to have a place where British subjects might take refuge in the event of a breach of the treaty with China, and where measures could be organised for the defence of British interests."

The Report of the Committee on Expenses of Military Defences in the Colonies, presented to the House of Commons in 1860, contains these words:—"The ground on which we hold that England is bound to contribute towards the defence of her colonies is, that the Imperial Government has the control of peace and war, and is therefore in honour and duty called upon to assist them in providing against the consequences of its policy." But, on the whole, the majority of the Committee (Messrs. Hamilton and Godley) are of opinion that the colonies should contribute according to their wants—as if it depended on every one of them what garrison they get. Then they say, "It would stimulate the patriotism, self-reliance, and military spirit of the colonists, by throwing on them the responsibility of directing their own military affairs." One of the members of that Committee, however, Mr. T. Frederick Elliot, who knows more about colonies than his colleagues, dissented from both, and said:—"Three main principles appear to me to be laid down in the Report; first, that we cannot expect our colonial possessions to be made defensible at all points and at all times; secondly, that some few posts, especially valuable for Imperial purposes, should be dealt with exceptionally, and not included in any general scheme of colonial contribution; but, thirdly, that the whole remainder of our colonies, without distinction or exception, ought to pay one uniform proportion of their military expenditure."

Among the colonies which Mr. Elliot classed as "places which, irrespectively of any intrinsic value as colonies, may be deemed stations important to the general strength of the Empire," was Hong Kong, and, as he said, "The force in 1857 was 826 men; the expenditure on the spot was £67,180. This colony has only recently been able to defray its civil expenditure, it has contributed nothing towards its military expenditure; and I suppose that the garrison will always be within the limit of the amount deemed indispensable for general national objects." And, he might have added, "But the colonists have no voice—or, as Lord Palmerston said, and every day proves, the troops are for the British interest in China generally, and may be required at any moment to proceed for the protection of life and property."

And, indeed, what voice has the Legislative Council in a colony like Hong Kong? Did not the Duke of Buckingham, in his despatch to the acting Governor of Hong Kong, say—"I expect that any member of the Council who is in receipt of a salary from Government will, under all circumstances, support Government with his vote, and I trust that in case he finds it impossible to reconcile such a line of conduct with his conscience or honour, he will not hesitate in resigning his situation." Who, after this, can doubt the consistency and infallibility of Government? Even Earl Granville said to the deputation of the Straits Settlements, "There would be certain occasions when I confess (the official members of Council) would be bound to vote with the Governor. There is no doubt that they are out there for that purpose, &c."

On the 6th September, 1864, the Legislative Council of Hong Kong granted, by the casting vote of the Governor, at the injunction of the Duke of Newcastle, the sum of $92,000 as a year's military contribution. It was, however, generally believed by the community of Hong Kong that the contribution of £20,000 should last for a term of five years only.† That period is now past, and still the contribution is levied on Hong Kong, without any prospect or even promise of relief. It is an evil to which there seems no end. Will not some member of the House of Commons take up this question of military contributions, and attempt to relieve the colony from an impost which is gradually becoming as intolerable as it is unfair?

As the Governor of Hong Kong is, I believe, at present in England, I beg to draw, through the medium of your journal, the attention of his Excellency, as also of those gentlemen who take an interest in the colony, to the subject of the tax—"military contribution"—which Her Majesty's Government now enforces from that colony, as I believe, contrary to the original intentions, assertions, and promises of Her Majesty's Governments, and I hope to support my opinion; but first permit me to allude, as shortly as possible, to the rise, progress, decay, and revival of that colony.

The infancy of the colony from its first occupation, 1st May, 1841, to its being declared a Crown colony, 1st July, 1843, was promising and happy, all hope. No taxes, rents, or other dues to pay, except £56 5s. for spirit licences, £541 8s. 2d. for market rents, the rest of the £2,230 collected during that period being fines of magistrates' courts, penalties for breach of contract, proceeds of sale of a house, and rents of quarters occupied by military officers. Yes, one witness of the well-known Select Committee of 1847 says, "Hong Kong was literally a free port up to 1843" (1943); so, indeed, has it been, and is to my knowledge still to this day as regards port charges, Custom duties, and the like. The same happy state existed up to 31st March, 1844, although, for the first time, under the revenue collected during these nine months—£1,215 13s., the sum of £441 4s. 11½d. appears as rents of lands and land fees, £411 10s. 6½d. being rents of markets and spirit licences, the rest as before, fines, &c., of courts, consequently, say in three years minus one month, the revenue collected was £3,449, or at the rate of £1,182 per annum.*

From 1st April, 1844, to 31st March, 1845, the revenue was £14,523—certainly a difference. Thereof was £9,386 for land rents and fees, £917 market rents, £1,062 fines and fees of Courts, £137 fees for registration of boats, £1,537 post-office collections, sale of house and stores, &c., and, finally, £1,482 from licences, principally publicans and spirit dealers and pawnbrokers (£911); but from that time, as the land rents had to be paid, the question of the tenure and sale of land agitated the public mind, and great discontent prevailed about it then and some years afterwards. However, the question was finally settled by an extension of the term of leases from 75 to 999 years, and the fees on the grant of leases the then Governor had already reduced by Ordinance No. 3 of 1844.

Expectations not realised in the general trade with China, I believe, reacted also on Hong Kong, and increased the discontent. The reasons then given for the apparent stagnation are so various, and must at this time appear now to some of those who expressed them to have been far-fetched and rather fanciful; so a well-known writer on colonies, who, I think, arrived in Hong Kong at the commencement of May, 1844, wrote already in July of the same year:—"A sort of hallucination seems to have seized those who built houses here; they thought that Hong Kong would rapidly outrival Singapore, and become the Tyre or Carthage of the Eastern hemisphere; three years' residence and the experience thence derived have materially sobered some of their views." In short, the purpose of his long report was to give up Hong Kong and to take Chusan. Although mistaken, he was sincere in his opinions; but according to him Hong Kong was utterly worthless.

Great complaints were made against various sources of revenue as fatal to the progress of the colony, but how little trouble the people gave themselves to be exactly informed about the rate of the dues levied may best be shown by citing one or two more instances from the Blue-book of 1847. About fees on marriages one witness says:—"They are very heavy . . . The fee on a marriage is 50 dollars," and then says that he has known instances where people have gone from Hong Kong to Macao to get married there, in order to avoid the fee (2043.45). The fee was under Ordinance 3, five dollars! Yes, even a member of this very select committee gave evidence that Hong Kong was no free port, and as his authority gave the Custom-house officials in Liverpool (4911), and that in 1847.

In 1845 a duty of 2½ per cent. on sales by auction was imposed, which, however, was afterwards abolished, and an increase of the payment for licences of auctioneers substituted. Afterwards were added rates for water and for the fire brigade, &c., which four rates produced in 1868 no less than $221,230, but in 1869 fell to $178,717; more about this hereafter.

Notwithstanding these imposts, the revenue, which for the calendar year 1845 was £22,242, reached, in 1847, £31,079, but began to decline in 1848, till in 1852 it declined to £21,331, but it recovered itself in the subsequent years, and reached in 1855, by the sale of lands, £47,973; the next year it was again £35,500, but from 1857 it was with little variation steadily on the increase, till, in 1869, it reached the total of £192,428, but still the population has not increased in the same proportion since 1861, if at all.

The expenditure for the first period till the island was declared a colony was £38,812 13s., and from July 1, 1843 to close 1844 about £71,203; after that date the returns published in the Government Gazette, &c., give us the data, the heavy expenditure in 1844 to 1847 is in a great measure for public works, roads, streets, drains, &c. Yes, in 1845, or commencement of 1846, a road was completed round the island, with the exception of about five miles, but then afterwards, 1849-52 or 1853, the public works had to suffer with the general reduction,—so that in 1850 only £1,289 and in 1851 £330 more were spent on public works—leaving afterwards an increased expenditure to put things again in repair and making them fit for use; but such was the will of Parliament, moved in a great measure by some persons from the colony, as evidenced by "statements and suggestions about Hong Kong," addressed to the Honourable Francis Scott, and other M.P.s on which to ground their opposition to the votes in aid, yet it happened that just at that time, when the revenue was at its lowest, and no other buildings going on except Government House, the inhabitants of the colony, with a true appreciation of the future importance of the colony, for the first time, to the best of my belief and knowledge, and at the same time Lord Palmerston gave it as his opinion that the civil and military authorities were agreed, that "a freedom from all taxation and monopoly would be the only way of making Hong Kong flourishing."

The depression was increasing and general—firms gave up their expensive buildings and godowns to save the ground rents,—and in the year 1849 alone the annual rental on lots resumed by Government amounted to not less than £1,751 16s. The revenue, which in 1847 amounted to £31,079, dwindled gradually down to £21,331 in 1852, and would, but for the remission of some rents and taxes consequent on the fire at the lower Bazaar at the close of 1851, have been perhaps one thousand pounds more, only in 1854 the revenue reached again within two pounds the amount collected in 1846. The influx of population, Europeans, Americans, and natives, in consequence of the disturbed state of the Canton province, and an extending coasting trade, which had at last sprung up, were the causes of this favourable change. In 1855 £47,973 was collected, the land revenue alone producing £27,634, or more than the total revenue of any previous year, with the sole exception of that of 1847. The land sold during that year comprised 190 lots, and added £3,802 to the permanent revenue in the shape of annual rents, whilst the premiums once paid produced £15,720. It was the first year that the colony dispensed with the aid of Parliamentary grants, and also remarkable on account of the opposition created by the memorandum of the Colonial Secretary of 10th November, about the then projected praya, and which now, as I read a short time ago in your journal, is what it was intended for, a great improvement.

For 1857 and 1858 Parliament made again grants of £10,000 each, but that was for measures of defence and prevention, during the "lorcha war." The revenue in 1856 was less than the previous year, simply for the want of premiums, as obtained in 1855, as otherwise the revenue had generally increased, and has ever since been doing particularly so, since 1860, with more or less variations, but also so has taxation till in 1869 the income from all sources was £192,428. (I calculated, for uniformity sake, the dollar throughout at 4s. 2d., when my information was obtained in sterling).

Will the colony be able to stand the present high rate of taxation? Already we have indications and signs, which cannot be misunderstood, and it behoves the authorities not to disregard them, or the consequences may be even more disastrous than in former years. In 1869 the decrease in land revenue is $17,390, and in police, lighting, and water rates, but $42,513, as compared with the previous year, which, for want of other explanation, I can ascribe to the decline of the value of real property. The estimate for 1871, published in your No. 381, shows a further decline on land revenue and rents, exclusive of land to the extent of $5,261, on licenses $2,700, and fees of officers (registration I presume) $2,270, also indications of anything but improvement, in fact the Colonial Secretary of the Colony on the 11th November last, stated to the Council "many Crown lots had been resumed by Government." How, under these circumstances, an estimated increase of $11,471 under the head of taxes can be justified, is to me inexplicable, except it be under stamps, although they also produced in 1869 $5,953 less than in 1868. The fees on registration of junks, on passes for same, in cargo boats, &c., and registration of householders all have fallen off, indicating less business. The apparent increase under reimbursements, miscellaneous and special receipts, proves nothing to the contrary, and this more so as revenue and expenditure is made to balance within $966 in the estimate for 1871.

Last summer, when in London, a proprietor of property in Hong Kong, tenanted by Chinese, showed me an account from his agent, according to which it is almost incredible how high the various assessed taxes are—making the whole property almost worthless.

As regards the expenditure, so was the same at the time when the disciples of Joseph Hume and other members of Parliament regularly opposed the grants demanded by the Ministry in office at its highest in 1846, viz., £42,776, and already in 1849 down to about £34,636, and kept to about £30,000, till it reached again in 1856 £31,800, for all purposes except public works; afterwards it began to increase, when it reached in 1861 £68,415, by a population as large as that in 1869, or thereabouts, whilst the expenditure has increased to £153,619; yes, in 1865 it was £182,355, exclusive of public works.

From 1844-49, but particularly in 1844-47, the expenditure for public works was chiefly for roads, drains, &c., only subsequently the larger buildings as offices and Government, although the first previously projected were built. In 1845 a bridge round the island was almost completed, when in 1848 still £22,601 could be devoted for public works, the expenditure for same in 1849 had to be reduced to £4,350; yes, in the years 1850 and 1851, £1,200 and £1,600 was all that could be devoted to the so necessary works, and that on account of the opposition to the grants, which opposition, strange it may seem, was fostered by some of the colonists, as justices of the peace, members of the Council and others (statements and suggestions regarding Hong Kong, 1850, published by Trelawney Saunders); yes, even in "further statements and suggestions,"—a letter, with extracts from others, addressed to the Honourable Francis Scott, M.P., speaks of Hong Kong as an "island of about twenty miles in circumference, and with as many acres of productive soil. For the rest it is barren, barren, all—without trees or vegetation of any sort, except dry, bent, and stunted brushwood." A managing partner of a leading firm, and a justice of the peace, states:—"Hong Kong has really no redeeming point at this moment. The little trade that existed from 1843 up to 1847 has gradually become dissolved." "Positively the colony of Hong Kong, month by month, is becoming of less use to the few merchants that still abide there," and so on, and eleven months after this the writer signed an address to the Governor, who was about proceeding home on sick leave, in which, amongst others, is said, "the duties of governor in a rising colony like this!" No wonder that M.P.s, who were so influenced, believed, like their informants themselves, that the colony would best be served by withholding aid,—and the consequence that in future years the expenses for public works of all nature had to be much larger, and sanitary measures had to be postponed. Only from 1855 could the local Government again think to devote more money to public works than what was spent the few previous years, and even that was chiefly for Government House, and still convict labour was employed in the repair of roads, and trees were planted along some roads and on the hill.

The following is a resume of the total income and expenditure of the colony from its earliest date to the close of 1869. For the year 1844 the amount is only approximate,—but I know I am not far out; for all other periods the figures are taken from Blue-books and other official publications, according to that summary, have been collected from May 1, 1841, to December 31, 1869, on revenue (excepting that collected from playhouses, and which was included in the returns published in the Government Gazette of April 16, 1870, at $267,166.66) the sum of £2,027,573

Estimated for the four years at £30,000 120,000

Add to it the value of convict labour,—say twenty-five years at £700 £17,500

Probable costs of public works, exclusive of those for military purposes £553,562

From these figures it will be seen that, the childhood passed, the colony walked alone, the assistance given in 1857 and 1853, in consequence of the war, was for measures of defence and the like nature. The revenue, which had in 1856, for reasons of non-receipt of premiums on sales of land, apparently declined, increased from year to year without any great variations, but certainly more than the increase of the population would warrant; so in 1869, the revenue from 117,078 or 121,979 souls—I cannot make out which of the two is the correct census return—is £192,428 (I calculated, for uniformity's sake, the dollar throughout at 4s. 2d.), whilst, say, in 1857 only £53,842 were raised from 77,094. Will the colony be able to stand the high taxation? I fear the consequence may be more permanent now than it was on former occasions. In 1869 the decrease of $17,390 in the land revenue and $42,513 in the police, lighting, water, and fire-brigade rates, as compared with 1868, are sure indications that real property loses in value. The estimate for 1871, published in your number 381, shows a further decline on land revenue to the extent of $1,261, over $4,000 on rents, exclusive of lands, $2,700 on licences, and $2,270 on fees of offices, all indications of anything but an improvement; in fact, the Colonial Secretary, on the 11th of November last, said in the Council, "Many Crown lots had been resumed by Government." How, under these circumstances, an increase of $11,471 in the estimate under the head of taxes can be justified is to me inexplicable, except it be that an increase under stamps be expected, but they produced in 1869 also $5,953 less than the previous year. The falling off under the heads of fees for licences for junks, passes for same, cargo-boats, and registration of householders, all show that Hong Kong is not more advancing than an apparent increase under reimbursements, miscellaneous, and special receipts proves nothing to the contrary, and the more so as the estimate of revenue and expenditure so nearly balance that the former shows a surplus of no more than $966.

THE CHINESE CIRCULAR.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

Since we briefly noticed the contents of the two papers issued by the Foreign-office, many conflicting opinions respecting the missionary question and the present situation in China have been given to the public in the columns of our contemporaries. This diversity of opinion, and the importance of the interests at stake, induce us to return to the subject, with a view to show the main points at issue and the true bearing of the leading facts. Now that the long-looked for circular is textually before us it is possible to form an independent opinion as to its significance. And Mr. Wade's despatch of the 29th of March appears opportunely to give us not only an authoritative statement of his conviction of present security, but the grounds on which it rests. "We can certainly not afford," Mr. Wade says, "to diminish our naval force in these seas, but, this precaution observed, I think I am justified in maintaining that so far as the temper of the people is concerned Her Majesty's Government may be safely guided by my official telegram." But what the merchants, and all interested in the position of affairs in China desire, is not the mere assurance, however often repeated, of the absence of outrage or overt acts of hostility. So long as the causes are in operation which led to such a massacre and onslaught as Tientsin witnessed just twelve months ago, it is felt that there can be no well-founded sense of security. What is wanted is trustworthy information as to the progress making, or already made, for the removal of the original causes of danger. We miss in the periodical telegrams, and even in this last fuller despatch, anything which is calculated to throw light upon the present temper or the views of the Chinese Government and the official class. It is true we are left to infer, in the absence of any more explicit statement, that neither the French nor English Chargé d'Affaires sees cause of anxiety or ground for complaint in this direction.

We are told that M. de Rochechouart has more than once assured the latter "he remembers no time when there were so few complaints from the missionaries scattered through the empire." And so far this is well. But we cannot help observing that nothing was more likely to happen after such an explosion of popular violence as took place in Tientsin than a feeling of alarm in which both authorities and people would participate. The Chinese Government was unquestionably alarmed, and gave very plain tokens of anxiety as to the consequences. Under these circumstances, and while Chung How was despatched on a propitiatory mission to Europe, and France lay prostrate after a death-grapple with Prussia, the Chinese authorities on the one hand and French officials as well as missionaries throughout the interior on the other, would be mutually disposed to abstain from all avoidable provocations to violence. But, the original causes of quarrel remaining unmodified, there is no reason to suppose this much-trusted quiet is anything more than a temporary suspension of hostilities. There is no evidence that we can see of any steps having been taken for a permanent adjustment of differences, unless the circular on the Chinese side may be considered a first move to that end. True, it has been described as a Chinese edition of the Gortchakoff Note, and looked at rather in the light of a defiance to Europe, or at least to France, on the missionary question. And there is so far a family likeness, that certain clauses of existing treaties are declared to be no longer endurable. Such a declaration as this on the part of China must not be taken too literally. However, without underrating either the importance or significance of such an appeal to European Powers, the document must be read by the aid of what is known as to the ulterior intentions of the Chinese Government and their means of giving effect to an expressed desire of withdrawal from the obligations imposed by several treaties and as many different Powers. In this light it cannot be regarded as an ultimatum, which China has determined to abide by without further negotiation. And, stripped of this minatory and compulsory character, it loses much of its importance, if not of its significance. In substance the circular says nothing more in regard to the missionaries than the Yamen has been declaring any time these three years past, and put into formal shape in an official note during the recent revision of our treaty. In plain truth, they say very little which cannot be fully established against the Roman Catholic missions and French authorities, by evidence given under their own hands and published in the "Annals of the Propagation of the Faith."

To the readers of the Pall Mall Gazette there can be little novelty in these charges, for attention has been called in more than one article to the mistaken and dangerous course followed by the Roman Catholic missionaries, as shown by the letters of their own bishops and vicars apostolic in China, from which numerous extracts were given. The circular truly states that "Trade has in no degree occasioned differences between China and the Powers. The same cannot be said of the missions, which engender ever-increasing abuses. Although in the first instance it may have been declared that the primary object of the missions was to exhort men to virtue, Catholicism, in causing vexation to the people, has produced a contrary effect in China. (This regrettable result) is solely attributable to the inefficacy of the plan of action (followed in this matter). It is, therefore, urgent that steps should be taken to remedy this evil and to search for a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. In fact, this question is one bearing upon those which influence the leading interests of the peace of nations, as well as those of their trade, which are equally considerable." And they go on to state as fairly and as temperately as possible their specific grounds of complaint, but concluding with a sentence far from reassuring in its purport:—"Veteran rebels, beyond the pale of the law, amateurs in intrigue, seek a refuge in the Church, and lean upon her influence in order to commit disorders. At this moment the animosity of the people, already deep, degenerates gradually into a hate which, at length, reaches its paroxysm."

If this means anything it must be held clearly to declare that the present situation is one of great tension and a cause of great anxiety to the Chinese authorities. In the draft of regulations, consisting of eight articles, which the Yamen "submit for examination," they further cite under each head specific cases in support of the chief charges. These have reference mainly to the orphanages, which have proved so fertile a source of suspicion and danger; the free intercourse of men and women among the converts, so contrary to all Chinese ideas of decorum or morality, even apart from the confessional and secret cloistering of priests with their female converts; the usurpation of authority, and interference with the magistrates; and, lastly, the reclamation of confiscated property formerly appertaining to the Roman Catholic Church or communities, together with the acquisition of land and houses under conditions similar to those which led to laws of mortmain in every country in Europe. Our space will not permit extracts, but we strongly recommend the perusal of the document to all who desire to be informed on the subject.

The acquisitive tendencies of the missionaries in regard to houses and land, and the reclamation of Church property after a couple of centuries of alienation, are at the root of much popular distrust and hatred. It is impossible to read the Chinese statement of the case without a thought of what would be the popular feeling in this country if, after a Battle of Dorking, our Government was compelled by a treaty dictated by our conquerors to restore all the Church lands confiscated by Henry VIII. What has been going on for the last twenty years in China is only different in degree—not in kind—as Monsiigneur Faurie, and his colleague, Monsiigneur Chauveau, vicar-apostolic of Thibet, have given abundant evidence in the published accounts of their labours proceeding from their own pens. All this, it must be confessed, points to a state of things the reverse of reassuring or satisfactory. Either Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires or the Yamen are clearly mistaken as to the absence of any real danger—since no ingenuity can reconcile views so much opposed to each other.

The Chinese, it would appear, are now only proposing to do what we and many other States did for themselves in the sixteenth century—resisting an attempt at foreign dictation and Papal dominion. The Roman Catholic religion is to them a cunning agency masking a system and a policy subversive of the civil power, and fatal to the stability of existing institutions and the Government. We need not stop to inquire how far this is a true estimate of the tendencies of the Roman Church or of Ultramontaniam as it is worked in China under a French protectorate. It is enough that it certainly subjects them to perpetual and irritating interference, destructive of all independence; and the existence of such a wide-spread feeling of anger and suspicion constitutes a grave cause of anxiety. It was as protector of the Christians in the Turkish empire, as Mr. Gladstone lately said, that Russia obtained certain powers of interference between the Sultan and his subjects, and we went to war to stop this interference as incompatible with its independence and a source of danger to the rest of Europe. No doubt it masked other and more ambitious designs of territorial aggrandisement; but it was none the less a proximate cause of war. The wrangle between France and Russia about the keys of the Holy Sepulchre, and dissensions between the protected Greek and Latin Christianised communities which precipitated the rupture, could have had no existence except for this right of interference between the Sultan and his subjects on the ground of religious wrongs.

It would not be pleasant to meet either Russia or France on this other field of proselytism, and find a repetition of the same pleas and complications. France has already made war once in China, and a second time in Cochinchina, on missionary grounds. As to the direction in which a remedy should be sought for this untoward state of affairs in China, the proposition of the Peking authorities to withdraw from missionaries, whether Roman Catholic or Protestant, the protection they are entitled to, in common with all foreigners, by the exterritorial clauses, cannot be entertained. Neither public opinion nor the state of feeling in Christian States would tolerate this. But it is not equally clear that the Treaty Powers might not abstain from all further attempts to extend exterritoriality to Chinese converts as a policy calculated to allay jealousy and hostility to them. The objection would be, of course, that this would be to expose them to religious persecutions. Granted even that this might be the result, has Christianity ever taken root when of such doubtful character or delicate growth as to require the protection of foreign Governments and their authoritative interposition between a native Sovereign and his subjects? No State or nation will submit to such interference if it is strong enough to resist; and is it quite certain that China, if driven to extremities, might not, with Russia and a Greek Church behind her, defy France to ultramontanise her people against her will? Could Protestant Powers consistently throw their weight in such a cause against her? Finally, may it not be possible, and even probable, that this constant interference with the civil power, which the French protectorate of the Roman Catholic missions in China and the virtual denationalisation of their converts foster beyond doubt, is the main if not the only cause of the bitter hostility of the Chinese authorities and literati to Christianity?

If this cause of alarm and irritation were withdrawn, the disposition to persecute on religious grounds might wholly disappear with it. But, of all the arguments favourable to this view, there is one more conclusive than all the rest perhaps, and that is the impossibility of protecting Chinese converts effectively by any interference of Foreign Powers. Neither missionaries nor consuls can go behind the judgment seat of magistrates, even when resident on the spot, as they scarcely ever are, to ferret out false evidence and prevent litigation and law proceedings under some pretext other than religious persuasion, which would be the one cause never ostensibly brought forward. The thing is, on the face of it, impossible, and we do but embitter the feud and add to the troubles of the converted pagan by attempting it. Religious persecution, and even martyrdom, must be faced if Christianity is ever to take root in a pagan country. If it has any independent vitality or power it will do so, and triumph as it has often done before. It is quite in vain to seek for any less exacting conditions of success.

(GLOBE.)

Whether or not the "Chinese Despatch" just laid before Parliament "turns out to be totally different from what had been expected" will depend very much on what expectations had been formed of it. For our part we cannot but look upon it as a document of the highest interest and importance, notwithstanding that a favoured correspondent of The Times has rushed to the front to assure us that it is "all right" and of "no consequence." It deals a heavy blow certainly at the Romish, Jesuit, or French missionaries—whichever be the most correct designation—and it hits them in their weakest place. The Roman Catholic missions in China may possibly be in the position of the dog who got a bad name; but it may be safe to assume that if they do not deserve all that is said about them in this Chinese despatch on this particular occasion they have deserved it at other times. In a loose, general way, writers and speakers in this country have habitually accused the Jesuits of mischief—of insidiously undermining the allegiance of the people to the civil power. That the propaganda in China were engaged in similar practices was only too probable, and if actual proof were wanting, the missionaries themselves have furnished it in the somewhat boastful announcements they have occasionally made of the dignified position they have taken up in the face of the Mandarins, the civil authorities in China. When, therefore, we find the Prince of Kung and his Ministers of their own motion formulating the identical complaints against the Catholic missionaries that have been so often heard elsewhere, how can we escape the conclusion that the complaints are well-founded? It is somewhat remarkable, however, that though hostility to the Catholic missionaries is of old standing, there is considerable novelty in the form in which the accusations against them have now been brought forward. In the publications by which Chinese officials appeal to the passions of the people, the base and secret immorality of Christians and priests is the point which is sought to be pressed home. To Foreign Governments, who could not be expected to believe in crimes which it requires the imagination of an Asiatic to conceive, the clever Chinese have bethought themselves of representing the political assumptions of the missionaries as the cause of their jealousy, while praising the religion which exhorts men to virtue. Thus each party is plied with the arguments which are best calculated to influence it. Remembering that the Chinese Government has two astute Irishmen in its pay who have had access to the diplomatic secrets of more than one of the great Powers, it would not be a very wild conjecture to suppose that the recent despatch is an agglomeration of leading articles and occasional notes of English newspapers, and of despatches, published and unpublished, from the British and American Legations at Peking, for there is nothing in the despatch that may not be gleaned from these sources.

But apart from the good or bad faith in which the charges against the missionaries are put forth, and apart also from the truth or falsehood of the matters in question, the fact that the Chinese Imperial Government has come forward openly to make such a complaint is of the highest significance. The rulers of three hundred millions of people virtually tell the world that they are competing with a score or two of foreigners, scattered widely over the vast area of the empire, for the affections and the respect of the people, and that unless strong measures of repression are resorted to, such as what occurred at Tientsin a year ago, only "more terrible," they fear the foreigners will beat them. The thing would be as ludicrous as a scene in a pantomime, were it not for the bloodshed and other horrors which loom behind. The mandarins, who delight in the endearing name of "fathers and mothers of the people," assemble in their shoes at the influence which the Roman fathers are gaining over the people of China, nor is it likely to assuage their wrath that in their consciences they know too well that the people make a reasonable choice. The "fathers and mothers" evince their parental love in thousands of little ways, all tending to the depletion of the pockets of their sons, and taking on themselves the burden of those accumulations which would otherwise become the instruments of luxury to the frugal classes. The Romish father at least keeps his hands off the flock. It is not so very wonderful that here and there a marked preference should be shown for the most merciful shepherd. That it is so we have on the authority of the Chinese Government itself, and it is now resolved to put a stop to the growing abuse. There are two ways of destroying the influence of the foreign priests; one is to imitate them in some degree, and so fight them with their own weapons; the other is to repress them by force or fraud. Of course the latter is the only solution that has occurred to the advisers of Prince Kung or his Irish friends, and perhaps it is the only one that is really open to them.

In order, however, to curb the pretensions of the French missionaries, and prevent their assuming sovereign power in China, the Tsung-li-yamen proposes to commit certain violations of its foreign treaties. Unexceptionable as the object may be, it ought not to be sought by illegal means, and the denial to all missionaries resident in China of the treaty privilege of "extritoriality" is tantamount to subverting the treaty altogether. Those who comfort themselves by the illusion that this manifesto is directed exclusively against the Catholic missionaries must be easily deceived. The Prince Kung, while patting the Protestants on the back, ventures to tell them that the stupid people, much to his regret, of course, cannot distinguish between the two kinds of Christians; and as he repeatedly in this despatch predicts massacres like those at Tientsin, and that in several provinces where no disturbances have as yet occurred the Protestant who thinks he is safe from the consequences of the fulmination must be wise with the wisdom of the ostrich.

(THE ENGLISH INDEPENDENT.)

Let us hear no more complaints against the Chinese Government. That it is a just, sensible, and liberal Government, shaming many Governments of the Western world which profess to be civilised and Christian, can scarcely be denied after a perusal of the circular which it has addressed to the representatives of Foreign Powers, but especially to the French Minister in China. We avail ourselves of the following précis of this document drawn up by Mr. Hugh M. Matheson, whose commercial relations with China are very extensive, and his interest in missions to that country not less than in its trade.

The complaints in this Circular are entirely directed against the assumptions and illegalities of the Jesuits, which no nation blessed with any self-respect could endure. The Romish priests demand for their converts complete shelter from the operation of Chinese law, and there is too much reason to believe that many of those who have professed Catholicism have done so for the sake of the immunity which they supposed that such a profession would afford. The Government voluntarily offer that all Christian converts shall be excused from contributing to idolatrous festivals and to the taxes for the support of the worship of local divinities, thus showing a respect for conscience and a perception of its rights at which many Western nations have not yet arrived. How few years have elapsed since church-rates were enforced on Dissenters in our own country by distraint and imprisonment! It needs no years of agitation by anti-church-rate societies to convince the Chinese Government of the injustice and impolicy of such taxes. In a word, they are in advance of us. There is nothing in the requirements of this Circular to which Protestant missionaries will not be willing to submit, and we must take care that our authorities do not in any way assist the French Government if it should interfere to support the preposterous claims of the Jesuits. Henceforth the Protestant missionaries ought to manifest entire confidence in the good faith of the Chinese Government; and, although they may have reason to complain of the mandarins and provincial officers, they should be ready at all times to await the result of an appeal to Peking.

Monetary and Commercial.

The "Maloo Mixture," per Sydenham, has not up to the present time been brought forward; the consignees, whoever they may be, seem to have been deterred from putting them up for sale. This course is a great injustice to the consignees of sound and proper teas, as, until the rubbish is really traced, all parcels in the Sydenham are suspected, and the consignees have consequently found great difficulty in getting bids.

Mr. Eaton, M.P., and Mr. Brocklehurst, M.P., accompanied by Mr. D. Evans, of the firm of David Evans and Co., of Wood-street London, had an interview with Earl Granville at the Foreign-office, with the view of impressing upon the Government the strong feeling entertained on the part of the silk trade generally against any proposal that may be made by the French Government to impose tariffs on raw, thrown, or manufactured silk exported from this country to France.

The tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £350,000; and to Bombay, £50,000. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 10½d. on all the Presidencies (an advance of 1 per cent.), and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 31 per cent., and on Bombay, at that price, in full. These results show a further increase in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

Information has been received that the Hong Kong-Shanghai cable of the Great Northern China and Japan Extension Telegraph Company, which was broken twenty miles from Hong Kong on the 11th inst., has been repaired, and that direct communication with Shanghai has thus been restored.

The Court of Exchequer Chamber, in the case of Byrne v. Schiller, has held the doctrine to be established that a payment of freight in advance could not be recovered back in the event of the freight not being earned through the ship being lost.

The German Bank of London have appointed as manager Mr. G. Pietsch, who was till recently manager of the agency in London of the "Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris," but who, being a German, was obliged to leave that establishment with all its other German officials in consequence of the war.

The following is from Mr. W. E. Rowlinson's Tea Circular:—

"On the 21st inst. a sale of China teas, per Windermere, was held in Rotterdam, consisting of 3,817 chests, 3,388 half-chests Congou, 200 chests and 1,930 half-chests Souchong, and 375 chests flowery Pekoe. The bulk of the Congou was of low medium quality, and brought from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 4d., a break of 336 chests going at 1s. 6d., and one of 225 chests bringing as much as 1s. 8d.; this latter parcel was good Kaisow. The Souchongs were of medium quality, and brought from 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 8d., 200 half-chests common selling at 1s. 3d., and a small parcel of 70 half-chests finding a purchaser at 2s. 3d. 45 chests flowery Pekoe realised 2s. 5d., 107 chests 2s. 7½d. to 2s. 9d., and the two finest breaks of 78 and 40 chests respectively brought 3s. 2d. to 3s. 3d. On the whole, the prices may be quoted a decided improvement on the last sale."

CEYLON COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the Ceylon Company was held at the offices, Palmerston-buildings, Mr. Lawford Acland presiding. The report presented to the shareholders stated that the net profit, after deducting all current expenses, amounted to £53,712, inclusive of £9,968 brought over from last year's account. The directors proposed a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, referred to the position of the company. The profits had not been quite so large as anticipated, but, taken as a whole, the outturn of the year might be looked upon as more satisfactory than could at one time have been anticipated. The low prices for coffee which had prevailed during the year in consequence of the war on the Continent materially affected the profits realised on this branch of the company's business, which, but for this circumstance, would have been nearly equal to those of last year. The small crop of sugar in the Mauritius had also adversely affected the profits of that branch.

It was a matter for congratulation that an improvement had recently taken place in the coffee market, and that the advices arriving from the Mauritius in reference to the coming year gave more favourable accounts. The dividend was maintained at the rate of 6 per cent., and making that payment, providing for the interim dividend already paid and the interest on debentures, as well as a sum of £5,000 carried to reserve fund, would absorb a sum of £49,445 out of the total net profit of £53,712, thus leaving £4,267 to be carried forward. The board, acting upon a resolution passed by the shareholders at the meeting held about this time last year, had disposed of some of the estates in Ceylon which the company had acquired by foreclosure, but which the board found could not be worked profitably. A difference between the amount at which they stood in the books of the company and that which they realised had been written off from the reserve fund, which had also been credited with the reduction of the cost of mortgages foreclosed in Mauritius. The report was adopted and the dividend declared.

BRITISH INDIAN SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH.

The half-yearly meeting of this company was held at the City Terminus House, Cannon-street; John Pender, Esq., in the chair.

The report stated that the gross receipts of the company for the six months ending March 31, less £1,086 loss on remittances from India, amounted to £42,645, and the expenses, including income-tax, to £17,316, leaving a balance of £25,329 available for distribution. The directors declare a dividend on account for the half-year of 4s. per share, free of income-tax, which would absorb £23,750, leaving £1,579 to be carried forward to next account. The receipts for the months of April and May in the current half-year amounted to £21,797, being at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, after deducting working expenses. The amount reserved for repairs in the last balance-sheet was £3,495. The cost of the repairs of the Suez-Aden section amounted to £2,771, leaving a balance of £723 still remaining to the credit of the reserve fund.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, regretted that the dividend was not larger, but they had passed through an exceptional half-year. The disturbances on the Continent had entirely stopped the Continental traffic to India from Marseilles, and there had been a breakage in the Falmouth cable lasting from November to February. The dividend to be paid was, in fact, derived from three months' instead of six months' operations. There was the competition of other companies, and they were not fairly treated by the Indian Government, who were working a competing line, without any profit to themselves, but to the great injury of this company. He trusted the Indian Government would before long see the impolicy of this course. Since the last meeting the cables of the British Indian Extension and the China Submarine Telegraph Companies had been laid, and were working in the most satisfactory manner. As a great part of their traffic must pass over the lines of this company, that would be another source of profit in the future. The British Australian line would shortly be opened. The raising of the rates from £2 17s. to £4 10s. for messages of twenty words between England and Bombay had decreased the number of messages, but had increased the revenue of the company.—Lord W. Hay seconded the resolution.

The report was unanimously adopted, and it was resolved that in future the company should hold its meetings half-yearly. The proceedings concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Since our report of last week the TEA market has exhibited no alteration. At a public sale of 8,420 packages about 4,600 were sold, all being "without reserve"; Foochow siftings and broken leaf brought 5d. to 7½d. per lb., and leafy kinds 8½d. to 9d. per lb., prices being occasionally in favour of buyers. Some breaks of medium to fine black-leaf Congou realised from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 10½d. per lb., and one break of fine Kaisow from 2s. 2½d. to 2s. 3d. per lb.; several parcels of common Green Tea sold at about recent rates. The public sales of SILK terminated yesterday, and as is now frequently the case the transactions in the sale room were insignificant; privately, however, a very large business has taken place; it having been rumoured that a duty was likely to be levied upon silk entering France, merchants have eagerly bought, and to avoid the expected impost their purchases have mostly been cleared at once, and the deliveries are consequently larger than they have been for some time past. The markets for COFFEE and SUGAR show no change. MANILA HEMP is firm, and at public sale nearly all offers have been bought in at high rates, only a small quantity of fair roping being quitted at £46. A limited business has been done in CAMPHOR, China realising 72s. 6d., Japan 80s. COCOA-NUT OIL is steady at £40 for Ceylon. A large business has been done in PEPPER at the advance noted last week. RICE is very dull. SPICES are quiet. TIN continues active, and has again advanced, Straits being quoted £131 to £131 10s., Banca £132 10s.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

EXCELLENT PILLS.—The resources of medicine and chemistry were long and fruitlessly tried before they yielded a remedy which could overcome disorders of the stomach and nerves, till Professor Holloway discovered his purifying and tonic Pills. They are the safest and surest correctives of indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, torpidity of the liver, twitchings, nervous fancies, despondency, low spirits, and declining strength. Holloway's Pills supersede all irregular action in the body, and so strengthen and support the system that disease departs, and leaves the patient not at all shaken. This is the grand aim and object of medical art, to regulate disordered functions without damaging the constitution by the remedy, and admirably is this end attained by Holloway's Pills.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN. YOKOHAMA.

Advices are to the 22nd May, via San Francisco; the outward mail of the 24th March, with telegrams to May 1, was received on May 12.

The following items are from the Japan Herald:—

The prospects of the silk-worm season of 1871 are said to be so highly favourable as to indicate a better export than has been known since the opening of Japan to foreign commerce. The weather has been as favourable to the tea growers as to the silk-worm breeders, and if the latter but adopt the simple suggestions regarding reeling and making up for sale recently offered by the Chamber of Commerce, Japan silk will have a fair chance of again returning into favour in European markets.

By this mail Sir Harry Parkes, K.C.B., the English envoy in Japan, returns home for a short time, and will probably receive instructions respecting the points to be discussed at the revision of the treaties next year. It is not improbable that differences of opinion will arise amongst the Ministers here, in which case it is earnestly to be hoped—though perhaps it cannot rationally be expected—that the present English Government will instruct their Consul-General for Japan to pursue a policy directly calculated to benefit both natives and foreigners in place of that hitherto adopted, and which has led to such unsatisfactory results.

Rumours of disturbances still continue. Troubles and minor revolt appear rife, arms are being still bought up by country princes, and troops passed into the capital.

Trouble has been caused at Yedo about Arima, a Daimio of about 200,000 kokus revenue, whose principality is in Kiusiu. It seems he has harboured all the Samurai lately belonging to Tosa, Chosiu and Hizen, who were driven forth because their revenue was reduced to one-tenth of their former allotment.

It is reported that three or four of the smaller Daimios whose territory is in the southern island have been confined to their houses by the Government on account of the assistance rendered by them to the Ronins during the late disturbances in the South. Care has been taken by the Government to secure the retainers of these Daimios now residing in Yedo and Yokohama, and the entry of these Daimio's men into Yedo is forbidden. The chief of the Ronin band is reported to have been captured, and the Daimio who has been secretly keeping others of late will be tried, and the probability is will lose his territory. The name of this noted Ronin is Daraki; he was formerly a subject of Chosiu, and was the great mover in this insurrection in this Prince's territory last year. He fled from his country when he saw there was no chance of success, and then Cosiu issued to his neighbouring Daimios a request to send him back should he visit their territory, but this Daimio alluded to in a previous paragraph was compelled by the Government to own to his whereabouts.

The barbarous custom of trampling on the Cross has been very recently observed at Higo,—in which province an edict has been posted informing the people that they will be periodically called upon to perform this ceremony, or suffer severe punishment.

Should the Korean expedition meet with an unfriendly reception, it is believed it will be assignable to Chinese intrigue. China is at present the only country trading with Korea, and even her intercourse at the three trading places is barred and restricted by absurd regulations.

The speech of President Grant proves that he assumes that whatever the Japanese tell him is unquestionably truth, as Mori, the Japanese Charge d'Affaires at Washington, laid all the blame on Prince Aizu for the attack on Messrs. Ring and Dallas, while it is notorious that the assassins were of his own clan—Satsuma men. Prince Ito has been duly received as such by our American cousins, the President showing him attention due to his rank. There are foreigners in Yokohama who employed the said "Prince" as kodokai (house servant), and are quietly looking on to see how far the joke can be carried out, and foreigners be imposed upon. The Japanese Government itself, however, receives all the contempt for sending such irresponsible people abroad.

A Protestant Church is about to be erected at Hiogo; a building site has been presented by Messrs. Llewellyn and Co. of the Medical Hall, Hiogo and Shanghai, and $3,500 subscribed to begin building. Hiogo appears to be progressing in public estimation far beyond other towns in Japan. A jetty is about to be built into the bay, alongside which ships can discharge, a camber for small craft, and a sea-wall along the beach. Since our last mail issue two screw steamers have been launched at that port.

An important meeting of residents connected with the silk trade has been held at the Chamber of Commerce, and a series of recommendations, presented by a committee appointed to consider the question, adopted. The report will be translated into Japanese and extensively circulated through the silk producing districts. The inferiority of Japan silk appears to increase each season, but as a correspondent points out, so long as the silk inspecting of Yokohama continue to buy bad silk, the Japanese will continue to reel it.

Another lightship has been launched from the Government slips, intended for service at Hakodadi. She has been built at a cost of $15,000, and will exhibit a white light, visible for ten miles.

A circular has been issued in reference to Bluff Gardens Flower Shows, a project to which we heartily wish the success, which, if it is attained, will be mainly due to the exertions of Mr. W. H. Smith. Exhibitions of flowers, plants and vegetables will be held on or about the 2nd or 3rd of every Japanese month during the summer. The first exhibition will be held on the 2nd and 3rd of the 4th month (20th and 21st May). Japanese gardeners are invited to exhibit in the Bluff Gardens, where proper accommodation will be made for the display of plants and flowers; such as stages for the plants (tana), and mats to protect them from the sun (yoshidzu). Foreigners will also exhibit, and the name of each exhibitor will be placed with his plants, written in English and Japanese.

The following is from the Japan Mail:—

A farewell ball was given on the 19th May at the English Consulate by the members of the community anxious to pay a tribute of respect to Sir Harry and Lady Parkes. It was very numerous attended by representatives of many nationalities, and went off with the greatest spirit and success. The health of the guests in whose honour the ball was given was proposed by Mr. Hooper, as Vice-Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and Sir Harry Parkes replied to the toast on behalf of himself and Lady Parkes, to whose assistance in his labours he paid a feeling and admirably deserved tribute.

The church organ has at last arrived. The guarantors for the ultimate payment of the debt due on it have been called on for the amount of their respective contributions, and the matter has been so far settled. It is proposed to erect the organ in the church, when the trustees will most probably advance the necessary sum to clear the guarantors. The erection of the instrument will occupy some little time—possibly three weeks or a month.

One of the Pacific Mail steamers, the Arizona, despatched from New York via the Suez Canal and Hong Kong in view of the proposed fortnightly line between this port and San Francisco arrived on the 16th May. Now that the increased subsidy has been refused, and the line between this and San Francisco is to remain on its present basis, we hope that the steamer will be used on one of the branch lines. The steam communication with Hakodadi is very deficient, and the Ariel can now resume her monthly trips to the north, the Arizona filling the vacancy on the Shanghai line.

Last autumn efforts were made by a large section of the community to obtain the lighting of the settlement. The agitation was continued throughout the winter, and at last we had an announcement that preparations were being made for the establishment of gasometers and the supplying of both private houses and the public thoroughfares with gas. And there, we regret to say, the matter has ended. Whether or not the Japanese authorities have given the necessary concessions we know not, but it seems at the present moment that unless the material is already on its way to this—and the list of cargoes afloat up to latest dates gives us no hope that it is—we shall have to pass another winter in the darkness which was one of our greatest grievances during the past season.

We are anxious to call attention to a matter, not of the first importance indeed, yet well worthy of some attention. We allude to the orthography of the names of Japanese towns, provinces, districts, produce, &c. At present much diversity exists, and this will continue until some authoritative settlement is arrived at and generally promulgated. If the Chamber of Commerce would refer the matter to three or four Japanese scholars, and adopt the orthography they would agree upon, it would be an excellent and authoritative basis to start from.

We have been requested to publish the following Notification from H. B. M. Minister relative to the punishment of the men implicated in the attempted assassination of Messrs. Dallas and Ring:—

The undersigned hereby informs Her Britannic Majesty's subjects in Japan that, in the case of the murderous assault committed on Messrs. Dallas and Ring, in the main street of Yedo, on the night of the 13th of January last, two Japanese of the Military Class, severally named Higo Sohichi and Kato Riukichi, have been convicted of an attempt to murder, and have been sentenced, first to degradation to the common rank, and then to death by strangulation. A third man of the same class has been convicted of being accessory to the above crime, and has been sentenced to degradation and to penal servitude for ten years.

These sentences were delivered this morning in the presence of the Japanese Secretary of this Legation, who also verified the bodies of the two criminals condemned to death, immediately after their execution.

The sentences have been made known this morning in the annexed Proclamation of the Supreme Government, which was at once posted in various public places at Yedo, and will be published throughout the Empire in the manner in which the decrees of Government are usually notified.

(Signed) HARRY S. PARKES, H. B. M.'s Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary in Japan.

Yedo, May 17, 1871.

Proclamation—(Translation.)

On the night of January 13th certain persons wounded some Englishmen in Nabecho in Canda. Vigilant search was made for them, and having been arrested they have been punished in the manner shown in the annexed documents.

Intercourse with foreign nations is a matter of the highest moment, and his Majesty has therefore issued repeated proclamations on the subject. That such acts should be committed in spite of them not only involves the credit of the Government, but is a disgrace to the country.

Every measure must be taken throughout the jurisdictions of the Fu, Han and Ken, to prevent the occurrence of such offences.

3rd Month.

(Signed,) DAI JO KAN.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.

We have advices from this port to the 17th May; the P. and O. mails, with London dates to the 24th March, arrived out May 15.

We learn from the Hiogo News that the works of the Hiogo and Osaka Railway are steadily progressing, and everything bids fair for its completion by the commencement of next spring. About eight hundred men are employed in preparing a site for the station near the old Fukuwarra, and contracts have been entered into for the completion of this portion of the work. A vessel, with a cargo of rails, &c., is expected to arrive from Yokohama in a few days. Some ballast trucks are being made here from designs furnished by the local railway staff. The wheels will be cast and the rest of the ironwork manufactured in the neighbourhood. The whole of the culverts required between the station site and the Ikuta river are being proceeded with simultaneously. They are being constructed of brick, with stone covers. As soon as these are finished the earthworks will be commenced, and the rapid progress of the works will be more tangible to the uninitiated than it is at present. These culverts are far more numerous than those upon the Yedo and Yokohama line, owing to the greater proximity of the hills in this vicinity. Besides which, while two or more of the watercourses in a cutting on the northern line may occasionally be carried through a single culvert, here each stream has to be taken in hand separately. European implements of various descriptions have been distributed among the workmen employed on the railway works, and we hear that they take kindly to them. Of the tunnel under the Ishiya river, sixty feet is finished, and by the end of next week forty feet more, it is expected, will be completed, leaving another hundred feet to be done. As soon, however, as half of the two hundred feet of tunnel is built, the river can be permitted to flow through its natural channel, as all danger from freshets will then be removed.

The steamer Migoto, Captain Grange, which arrived the other day from London, via the Suez Canal and Yokohama, has been sold by Messrs. Hughes and Co. to the Prince of Higo, for $85,000.

The British Consular Trade Report for Hiogo and Osaka for 1870 exhibits satisfactory evidence of the progress of the twin ports, and there is abundant room for belief that were the Custom House statistics kept with greater accuracy, the figures representing it would rise considerably higher still. The following figures will be useful to all who take an intelligent interest in the advance of the trade of the port:—

The shipping returns show a considerable increase over those of 1869.

In 1870 the total foreign shipping entered and cleared amounted to 1,417 vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 1,054,172, against 1,241 vessels and 924,189 tons in 1869.

The amount of duties paid by the merchants of all nations was $585,318, against $601,075 last year.

As regards manufactures, the quantity of Grey and White Shirtings sold is slightly below that of the previous year, and is lamentably small. The increase in Yarn is much more satisfactory, and to some extent atones for the poverty of the trade in manufactures.

NAGASAKI.

Dates extend to the 15th May; the French mail of March 17 arrived out May 6, and the English mail of March 24 on the 14th May.

Judgment in the case of "Jackson v. Tombruik (trustee of the estate of Glover, Dow and Co., in liquidation) was delivered by Mr. A. A. Annesley, Acting Consul, on the 10th April. Mr. Annesley said:—

On 15th March, 1870, it appears Glover and Co., of Japan, wrote and sent to the manager of the plaintiffs' branch banking establishment at Shanghai a letter, in which they stated that they had been informed by Glover, Dow and Co. that they had deposited with such manager their lien of apothecation (meaning thereby the letter above alluded) to upon 122 packages of arms and ammunition, and further informed the manager that they (Glover and Co.) had sold six cases of the goods mentioned in said letter, and handed to the manager a cheque for Tls. 513 for proceeds of the same, which sum they requested should be considered as specially on account of the lien in such letter, and releasing six of the cases of goods.

The plaintiffs further state that the sum of Tls. 513 has alone been repaid to them out of the Tls. 7,500 first alluded to, and that a balance of Tls. 2,618 is still owing and unpaid on general balance of account.

The defendant on the other hand maintains that the lien on the 116 cases of arms and ammunition mentioned by the plaintiffs was removed by the payment of Glover, Dow and Co.'s draft No. 479 on Glover and Co., Hiogo, for $8,000, for the payment of which Glover and Co.'s letter of hypothecation was given as security, and was lodged with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, who undertook the collection of the said draft. The defendant therefore repudiates the right of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation to again charge the 116 cases.

The Court finds that the defendant has not proved that the balance due on advances made by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation to Glover, Dow and Co., has been repaid by the payment by Glover and Co., of Hiogo of Glover, Dow and Co.'s draft No. 479 for $8,000, and therefore the Court considers that the plaintiffs have made good their claim, and decrees that the defendant either delivers over unto the plaintiffs the goods enumerated on the letter of hypothecation (less the six cases already sold) or else pay to the plaintiffs the balance of Tals 2,618, together with $100 for detention of the said goods.—Defendant to pay costs of Court.

The following items are from the Nagasaki Express:—

The Kurume official who absconded from Yedo after assassinating Hirosawa Sanji, the member of the Mikado's Council, in a most ferocious manner, has been traced to Chickugo, at which place he was by last accounts concealed. It is reported that the Prince of Choshu has demanded the surrender of the murderer, and that in the event of his request not being complied with, he will enforce his demands by force.

On the 8th May an explosion took place in Okeyamatch situated nearly in the centre of the town of Nagasaki, by which sixteen persons were injured, three of them very seriously. The accident occurred at the house of a native gunsmith named Gotto, who was engaged at the time with some of his workmen in opening a large number of damaged Snider cartridges, which had been intrusted to him by one of the native Shogunes at this port to remake. We hear that the local authorities have taken measures to punish the owner of the house for carrying on a dangerous business, which might have resulted most seriously; as at the time the explosion occurred some twenty quarter barrels of gunpowder were stored in a room underneath the one in which the workmen were engaged.

The chief topic of conversation amongst the natives has been the news recently arrived from the districts of Kurume and Yanagawa reporting that disturbances have taken place there. These threatening demonstrations of armed force, we are informed, are provoked and encouraged by the anti-foreign feelings of a certain faction, who intend them as a protest against the present Government policy, and are no doubt viewed in this light, as they have caused considerable anxiety to the authorities. A very high officer has been despatched to make enquiries, who has ordered the local officials to appear before him at Bungo and give an explanation respecting recent events. It is said that these disturbances have been brought about by the changes which have taken place, having greatly diminished the revenue collected in these districts for local purposes, since the establishment of the Government of the Mikado.

The approaching departure of the United States squadron for the Korea has naturally been the topic of conversation, and as an inevitable result, commercial men have directed their attention to the question, as to the probable extent of the trade likely to ensue, if the subjects of the Western nations were allowed to take up their residence there. Most of the published accounts differ very materially on this point, but one thing is certain that, however small the trade of a sealed country may be previous to the introduction of civilisation, it can be of little use as a guide, as the march of events not only create new wants amongst a people, which can only be supplied from the outer world, but it also tends to develop the resources of the country in which the new order of things are introduced. If the Americans manage to successfully repeat in the Korea what they did in Japan some years ago, they will certainly merit the thanks of the civilised world for establishing friendly relations with a people who are not less exclusive than the Japanese; the visit will doubtlessly, if successful, be followed by one from the English fleet; unless the authority given to Sir Henry Keppel and his predecessors, has not been extended to Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Kellet. There is no doubt that a considerable trade in foreign manufactures is carried on between the Koreans and the Chinese from Newchwang, notwithstanding that these goods not only have to be conveyed by land carriage on zigzag roads, over the Leaou Mountain range, which interpose very serious obstacles to commercial traffic, but also have to bear the heavy squeezes imposed by the Chinese mandarins before they reach the hands of the consumers. This state of things might be considerably changed to the advantage of both buyer and seller if goods were taken direct in foreign bottoms to the terra incognita.

NAGASAKI, May 15.

My last, via Brindisi, dated 29th ult., left this by H.B.M.S. Ringdove. On the 6th inst. the French mail of the 17th March came to hand by H.M.S. Juno, from Hong Kong direct, fifty days, and on the 14th inst. the English mail of the 24th March was received by the Pacific Mail steamer New York, fifty-one days.

The Bishop of Victoria (Hong Kong) arrived here by the Pacific Mail steamer New York, yesterday morning, and preached here in the Nagasaki Episcopal Church. The congregations, both in the morning and afternoon, were numerous, considering that the residents have decreased considerably. He leaves again to-day at noon, on his visitation tour.

During the interval little, if any, public events, have transpired, and this community have directed their attention to the probable result of the visit of the United States squadron to the Korea, which has been an agreeable topic since the only other one they could find is the late heavy shipments of cotton goods from England to these parts. These heavy shipments have, of course, had their effect upon this market, and the result is that they have completely frightened dealers, who candidly confess that they are not inclined to make purchases, lest their goods should decline further, in which case later purchasers would be able to undersell them. The nominal quotation is $2.45, but it is doubtful whether $2.25 could be obtained if sales were forced.

Every Consul in China and Japan and the Commissioners of Customs at the various ports in China endeavour as much as possible to make the state of trade in their particular district look prosperous, and do so without thinking whether the state of the godowns would warrant them in taking such sanguine views. Even politicians will point to the Board of Trade returns as sufficient proof that trade is extending in China, and as these figures are considered to be the only infallible index, the excessive shipments made on a previous year must undoubtedly be taken as a standard for future guidance, notwithstanding that at least twelve months' stocks may still be on hand in China. This has been the case with woollens and certain stuffs, yet a full supply seems to annually come forward and supplies all wants, and most effectually prevents any rise from taking place, although every commercial circular issued has been deploring the action of shippers for years past. It would seem that nothing short of losses will convince people that even China has limits at which demand for goods must cease unless prices are lowered, and as the late shipments have caused a fall, there is not the slightest proof that shirtings have gone into consumption amongst persons who would not have purchased had the price been a paying one to shippers; but this is very poor satisfaction to those who wish to do business.

The movements of war vessels have been as follows:—viz., the French corvette Saigon, from Foochow, arrived on the 29th ult., and left again on the 2nd inst. for Hiogo, &c., The U.S. corvette Benicia arrived on the 30th ult., from Yokohama; Monocacy, and Palos, gunboats, arrived from Shanghai on the 11th, and the Colorado, also from Shanghai, on the next day. H.M.S. Juno arrived from Hong Kong on the 6th inst., and the French corvette Duplex, from Yokohama, on the 10th inst., and left again yesterday for Saigon, en route for France. French gunboat Catlogon arrived yesterday afternoon. Remaining in port:—British: Ocean and Juno. American: Alaska, Benicia, Colorado, Monocacy, and Palos. French: Catlogon.

The British barque Albyn's Isle now occupies the berth for London; rate £3 10s. for tea, and £3 15s. per ton of 50 feet for sundries.

Exchange on London and Nebus both nominally unchanged.

SHANGHAI.

Dates from this port, by the American mail, extend to the 11th of May, six days later than the advices received by the last mail. The English mail of March 24 arrived out on the 9th of May.

We learn from the News Letter that business during the month has been somewhat brisker than during the previous months of the year, but no extraordinary activity is to be noticed, and it is questionable whether the telegraphic communication, which has now been fully inaugurated between here and Hong Kong (while in other respects a decided boon to the community at large), will contribute in any way to improve the aspect of affairs.

The weather has been very changeable of late; now sun-shiny, now rainy, sometimes damp, and then a tropical heat, as at one time when Fahrenheit's thermometer showed a maximum of 88 degrees in the shade. Although the climate of Shanghai has been more than once pronounced unhealthy, still the improvements the Settlements have undergone, together with the admirable system of drainage now being carried out, have in no slight degree contributed to make it as healthy a climate as any other situated in the same latitude.

The following items are from the same paper:—The depreciation in the value of real estate property in Shanghai has been brought prominently into notice from the fact of a well-known property (called Teng-yu), consisting of two dwelling-houses, with out-houses, three godowns, and the land on which they stand, having been put up to auction a short time since by Mr. Nils Moller, and knocked down for Tls. 27,000. During the real estate mania in 1863 the same property was valued at somewhere near $200,000.

Mr. Annecke, of Shanghai, is to proceed shortly to Peking, to act as Minister for the North German Confederation, in lieu of Baron Rehfuess, who goes home on leave. Mr. Annecke has been Consul for Germany here for some time, and his place is to be filled up by the German Consul at Tientsin, Mr. Wentzel.

The Chinese Government are about building a powder magazine on the old execution grounds inside the city walls. There is now powder enough stored in Chinese houses near the old North Gate to blow the whole city to pieces.

As "signs of the times," we may mention that two 200-pounder Blakeley guns, muzzle-loaders, with carriages, &c., complete, came over in the P.M.S.S. Oregonian, on her last trip from Japan. These guns have been sold to the Chinese Government for service on the Taku Forts. The Chinese Government Works at Kiangman Arsenal are turning out several 90-pounder guns for the Taku forts. The double-decked frigate at the Arsenal shipyard will be ready to launch on the 1st September next. The planking for this man-of-war came out from the United States. The Chinese officials have given orders to build as many as sixteen additional vessels of war or transports at this arsenal. Admiral Woo's new iron steam launch is being built at the same ship-yard. The Chinese gun factory continues to turn out the Remington carbines, finding them superior to all other arms for their purposes; 12 and 24-pounder brass howitzers are also manufactured at this place.

A meeting of land-renters in the Anglo-American Settlement of Shanghai took place on the 6th May, and was attended by about sixty rate-payers, representing over 200 persons, qualified to vote by the Land Regulations. Geo. F. Seward, Esq., was elected chairman of the meeting, and Mr. Lloyd as secretary. Business was then proceeded with. Mr. Gubbay proposed "That the Report and Accounts of the Council for the Foreign Community of Shanghai, for the year ending 31st March, 1871, be approved and passed," and on the resolution being seconded by Mr. Jellicoe, it was carried without opposition. Another resolution, stating "That the incoming Council be desired to draw up some definite scheme relative to a general water supply for the Settlements, and to publish the same three months before the next annual meeting of ratepayers," was duly seconded, and the chairman having put it to the meeting, it was unanimously agreed to. Some discussion ensued regarding a design for a seal for the municipality, which was submitted for the inspection of the meeting, and as this did not give satisfaction it was agreed "That the present seal shall remain as the common seal of the Council until the production of a more satisfactory design." After some further discussion on the subject of licences and general municipal rates, as well as voting by proxies, Mr. Jellicoe's proposal, "That the estimated expenditure in the municipal Budget for the year commenced 1st April, 1871, and ending 31st March, 1872, as proposed by the retiring Council for the foreign community of Shanghai, together with the recommendations attached thereto, be hereby approved and adopted," was carried, after some short discussion.

HONG KONG.

The Legislative Council met on the 3rd May, and went into Committee on the Bill amending the Summary Court Ordinance and providing for the trial of cases summarily in the Supreme Court. The Attorney-General explained that it was proposed, therefore, to give the Chief Justice power to hear cases in a summary manner up to a sum of $2,000, with a reduced scale of costs. The Chief Justice had kindly signified his readiness to take this power, and to sit in that capacity. A conversational discussion then ensued on the various suggestions in the Bill. The speedy trial of cases of $2,000 was a great boon, and the costs were not high. But there arose a difficulty in the minds of members whether the Chief Justice would try these cases by the rules of the Summary Court, and with the aid of the Summary Court officers or those of the Supreme Court.

The Colonial Secretary remarked that this measure was to extend the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. The Chief Justice admitted that it was so worded, but it was also to make further provision relating to the Summary Court. It seemed to him, therefore, that amendments could be made, and this was the legitimate and constitutional time to do so. He thought he had a right to add that every member had, not only a mere permission, but a right, to advance what views he held upon any measure. He was not to say that the Council should adopt such view—it might be absurd—he had often proposed what had been thought as absurd—but surely they had the power of conferring together on all such questions; else they were no legislative council.

The Attorney-General stated that the important matter for consideration was that proposed by Mr. Rowett, viz., trial by jury. It was thought undesirable to encumber the Summary Court with a jury system, but it had been rendered available in certain cases under the provisions now drafted. Mr. Ball read the marginal notes. The first extended the jurisdiction of the Small Court to $1,000. Others gave powers concerning ejectment, to Chief Justice to order cases to be tried in the Summary Court, to summon a jury of five if desired in cases of slander, libel, and other cases exceeding $500 in amount, and to go by agreement beyond the usual jurisdiction in trying a case. Another section gave the Court jurisdiction in equity; he had frequently to send away partners and cases of disputed account, because the Court had no equitable jurisdiction. There were other provisions—as to injunctions, specific performance, &c.,—which, if introduced, would save much time and expense in the Supreme Court. These were all founded on the Imperial Act, vesting similar powers in the County Courts in England; and he concluded by proposing the amendment. Further minor amendments were made on the draft, and a discussion arose as to the time of its proclamation. Some conversation likewise took place regarding the power given to the Chief Justice to compel the parties to come to an issue on the facts. It was stated that the system worked well in Shanghai and in India; besides, it was left considerably to the discretion of the Chief Justice. The sections were then numbered, and the Ordinance having been passed, was classed as No. 1 of 1871.

The Lieutenant-Governor called the attention of the Council to the fact that the $10,000 recently voted for repairs to Government House was inadequate. Mr. Moorson, who was asked to superintend the building, found it impossible to do so at all; and the sum imperatively necessary for the repairs was $12,600. They had better be quick about it, too, as it was now six months since he left the House. They would have to commence at once, as the rain would spoil the interior of the house, while there would be no place for the Governor, whoever came out. The Colonial Secretary said there was some complaint made by the Chinese that they could not get their Government bills paid at all promptly. He could not understand it, as the money was always at hand.

The vote was passed, and the Council adjourned. The resumption of the session has been delayed, owing to the illness of his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor.

Judgment was given in the "Min" case on May 2. The Hon. Chief Justice decreed the full rate of interest at 12 per cent. His Lordship said his hands were tied by the order of the Privy Council, the words being "the rate of interest usually allowed by the Court." The rate allowed by this Court was invariably 12 per cent., so that the practice was more than usual, it was universal. The banks might have left the money in Court or they might have laid it out, but they were so confident of their case that they took the money without stipulating the rate of interest. The plaintiffs to bear all costs of these motions.

In the case of Reynolds v. Remedios it was arranged that an issue should be come to in Chambers, and that the suit be set down for trial by a jury at an early day. It arose under a petition by the defendant for an injunction to restrain the plaintiff from proceeding with the suit, and the question whether the deed of absolute assignment executed by the plaintiff in favour of his creditors would deprive him of the right to sue, was gone into. In the course of the evidence, Mr. J. A. Remedios said:—Up to 25th May, 1867, I was manager to Reynolds and Co. There was no partner. The firm traded also in Manila. I produce power of attorney under which I acted. I ceased to be manager in 1867. I closed the accounts and handed them to Mr. Reynolds. In the month of April 1867 I was served with a writ of foreign attachment at the suit of Mr. D. Sassoon. Upon my giving up the money in the banks to Mr. Sassoon, the proceeding was discontinued. I wrote to Mr. Reynolds, who was then in Singapore. The present action against me was quite recent, since Mr. Reynolds's arrival in the colony. The subject of this action was for the recovery of the assets of the firm that I had retained in my hands when the accounts were closed. I was aware that there had been a written agreement between Mr. Reynolds and the Comptoir d'Escompte, John Burd and Co., Olyphant and Co., Agra and Masterman's Bank, and D. Sassoon and Co. The agreement was followed by a deed of assignment two months after, viz., June 18, 1867.

His Lordship said he could not see how the case could end here, because Mr. Reynolds denied the trustees' right to this money. If the present action were gone on with, and a judgment come to, then the trustees could file a bill against Mr. Reynolds for the money. This would entail litigation and expense, but his Lordship could not help it; he was sorry for it, and he wished the parties would come to an arrangement. Mr. Remedios might sustain his case, and could show that nothing was due to Mr. Reynolds. If no arrangement could be come to, the case must go on to judgment, as it was the universal practice to allow such cases as the present one to go on to judgment. He could not decide that whether the money, if any, recoverable from Mr. Remedios, belonged to the trustees or not, without their being a party in Court; at present they were only witnesses, and they were not bound by his Lordship's decision. From what his Lordship could see, there was a ruling feeling against Mr. Reynolds, but it was a very hard case. The Attorney-General then said he wished to prevent litigation; it was unfortunate that so small a sum should involve so much expense. If his suggestion of referring the matter to arbitration had been accepted, a great deal of litigation and expense could have been saved. His Lordship hoped that they would discuss the matter over quietly and come to some amicable settlement.

The following account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong, during the month ending 30th April, 1871, is published for general information:—

Banks.	Average amount.	Specie in reserve.

Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China ...	394,625	150,000

THE CENSUS OF HONG KONG.

The census, taken on the the night of 2nd April, 1871, shows the following result:—

Total of Europeans and Americans ...	5,931
Total of Indians and others of mixed blood...	2,823
Total of Chinese ...	115,424

which would show an increase of 2,219 in total population as compared with the previous year, apparently indicating a prosperous state; but as it includes

British military ...	821
British Naval Establishment ...	1,022
Indian military ...	1,123
Crews of shipping—Europeans ...	1,109
Crews of shipping—Indians, &c. ...	708
Total... ..	4,777

souls not included in former censuses, it follows that the population of the island, in comparison with former censuses, is 119,421, or just 100 more than it was ten years ago (in 1861), but 2,558 less than in 1869.

The resident European and American population was 2,736, of which British 869, Portuguese 1,367, Germans 170, Americans 133; the rest, of 199, is composed of fifteen different nationalities.

One point in this census is that of the Chinese children in Victoria—5,469 are boys and 5,964 girls; but the children of the villagers and boat population are only 3,853 girls to 5,278 boys; whilst the Chinese infant population of Victoria counts 425 more girls than boys, that of the villages and boats has, on the other hand, 1,425 more boys than girls. Therefore, the total difference between the sexes of the Chinese children shows 930 fewer girls than boys.

CEYLON.

—o—

Colombo, June 4, 1871. f

Mr. Robertson, the marine engineer sent out by the Duke of Argyll to report on Indian harbours, and of whose services we were promised a loan to inspect the Paumben Passage and the Colombo Harbour, has after all given us the slip. Having looked at a few harbours in India, he has returned to England to look after his multitudinous other engagements, and to make out his reports, which the Indian Government have agreed with him can be done as well in England as in Hindostan. The fact is, Mr. Robertson has too much to do, and having been engaged for two years on behalf of the Indian Government, and being able to give them only a scant share of his time for their very handsome pay, it was not to be supposed that he would care to tuck in Ceylon to his other engagements. This is not to be regretted, however, as if he had come here, with so many larger and more important projects engrossing his time and attention, he would most likely not have been able to give our matters that consideration to which we islanders think them entitled. Both projects have taken so strong a hold of the public mind here that there would have been no rest for the authorities till they secured an able professional opinion on the feasibility of both schemes. Without waiting, however, for any public manifestation of feeling on the subject, the Governor, with that promptitude for which he is distinguished where a great public question is concerned, telegraphed at once to the Colonial-office to send out immediately an able marine engineer to inspect the proposed works at the sole expense of the colony; so that we fully expect that within three months a professional engineer will be on the spot making his inspections, and whose report will be in the hands of Government during the next session of the Legislative Council. If it be satisfactory as to the practicability of both undertakings, and if the means of their accomplishment be within reach, there can be no doubt but that they will at once be undertaken, and their construction will raise Ceylon in importance and value to an extent not dreamed of by the most sanguine supporters of both schemes; for with a harbour will come docks, wet and dry, where the shipping of all nationalities eastward bound can put in for supplies, coal, shelter, or repair; while to vessels bound to the Bay of Bengal the Paumben Passage will shorten the voyage two or three days.

Those works therefore will be a great benefit to the world at large while they will be the making of Ceylon. The very fact of the money they will circulate in the place will give an impetus to trade which at present it sadly lacks, while their permanent benefit is not to be measured by money value. To the general shipping of the world voyaging in the Eastern seas they will prove an immense convenience, for however much we were impressed before with the desirability of making Galle the port of call, and therefore anxious to have a good harbour there, it is a fact that since the opening of the Suez Canal the great majority of steamers Eastward bound make for Colombo in preference. If, therefore, this port can be made a safe and accessible harbour, with the perspective adjunct of the Paumben Passage made suitable for vessels of any size, the preponderance of interest, opinion, and feeling in favour of Colombo will be very great; and if Sir Hercules Robinson be fortunate enough to remain here to inaugurate those great works—after having seen completed the Grand Colombo and Kandy Railway, introduced the Gampola and Nawalapitiya continuation, expended large sums for the benefit of the native cultivation, and works of irrigation, besides having greatly extended our Island roads and rivers, improved our jails and hospitals, introduced enlarged schemes of education, and many other matters which need not be recapitulated here, he will be the most fortunate Governor who has ever held rule under the Colonial-office.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been an almost entire absence of transactions in all classes of imports—Cottons, Woollens, and Metals—and prices must be considered as nominal.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—Business in Imports had been extremely dull, in consequence of continued unfavourable reports from Shanghai, and many of the principal holders refused to sell at current rates. Resales by native dealers had contributed towards keeping prices down. Cotton Yarn: 28-32's were saleable at the reduced rates quoted, but there was no demand whatever for other counts. Grey Shirtings: A parcel of 8½ lbs. had been offered by a Japanese merchant as low as Rios 2.53, but the market had since slightly recovered. Holders were disposed to refuse current rates. Turkey Reds and Black Velvets were in moderate demand at quotations. Victoria Lawns difficult of sale, and prices tended downwards. Taffetelashes almost unsaleable. Woollens remained as last quoted, with a somewhat improved inquiry for Black Lastings. Blankets neglected. Blue Cloth asked for. In Metals small sizes of Nailrod Iron were saleable. Quotations (in dols. at 101 rios per 100 dols.):—Cotton Yarn: Nos. 28 to 32, per bale, 122.67; G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., per piece, 2.23; 8½ to 8½ lbs., 2.52 to 2.57; Chintz, Turkey Red, 2.47 to 2.72; Turkey Red Cambrics, 3 lbs., 2.47 to 2.50; Velvets, Black, 6.43 to 6.93; Victoria Lawns, 1.17 to 1.24; Woollens and Woollen Mixtures; Camlets, SS Scarlet, 13.86; Black, 9.90; Assorted, 12.37 to 13.36; Lastings, Black, 30 yards 31 inches, 10.89 to 11.38.

NAGASAKI.—Messrs. Gribble and Co. report as follows:—During the past month import business has consisted mainly of barter transactions. Grey Shirtings have been disposed of to a fair extent in this manner at gradually receding prices; other manufactures have changed hands to a very limited extent only. White Camlets, Plain Lustres, black and white, and Victoria Lawns are saleable. Grey Shirtings, 8½ lbs., $2.53 per piece; Dyed Shirtings, Indigo and Gentian, $3.20 and $3.10 per piece. T. R. Cambrics, 3½ lbs., $2.53. Camlets, SS White, $15 per piece. Plain Lustres, 30 yards 32 in., best, Black, $5.44; White, $5.94. Victoria Lawns, 12 yards 42 in., $1.57. Metals: Nail Rods, small size only, $3.45 per picul, wanted.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Settlements since last American mail had amounted to about 3,500 piculs, consisting chiefly of the commoner grades. A few small parcels of the new season's teas had been purchased at nominal values. Propitious weather had favoured the coming crop, which promised to be fully equal to former years. Messrs. Hudson Malcolm and Co.'s Circular says:—This market was closed for the season, the last ship for New York having been finished. The tone was very quiet, owing to the unfavourable advices from New York, and the new season was expected to open at moderate rates. Settlements for the month were estimated at 3,800 piculs, nearly all of common kinds. The prospects of the new crop were favourable, and as the cultivation has increased we may look for a larger export next season. A few small parcels of garden-grown tea had been brought down and settled, but these cannot be regarded as any criterion of the condition of the crop. The Percy Edwards, with 114,799 lbs., and the Oslo with 390,447 lbs. Tea, had cleared for San Francisco and New York respectively, leaving no vessels loading. Prices were entirely nominal.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—Only 150 piculs of old leaf had been settled during the month, leaving a stock of 6,000 piculs on hand. The weather being favourable for picking, the quality of the new crop was expected to be fine. The usual garden musters had been shown, but buying to any extent had not commenced in the interior.

NAGASAKI.—The stocks consisted of about 2,500 bales of common to medium, and the new crop was not expected in the market for two months. The quotations were—common to good, $12 to 15; medium to fine, $15 to 17; fine to finest, none.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Settlements had amounted to about 800 bales, more than one-half of which had been shipped on native account. Since the receipt of news from Europe of continuation of trouble in France, but few operations had taken place. Prices were extremely irregular, and almost nominal. Stocks amounted to 1,800 bales.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—No transactions had taken place during the month.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

HART V. VON GUMPAICH.

The appeal case "Hart v. Von Gumpach" came on for hearing in the Privy Council, before Lord Justice James, Lord Justice Mellish, Sir Joseph Napier, Sir William Colvill, and Sir Laurence Peel. Sir Roundell Palmer, who appeared for Mr. Hart, moved for leave to appeal to Her Majesty's Council against the order and decision of the Supreme Court of Shanghai upon the demurrer to the defendant's pleas, delivered 29th March last. In the course of the argument it transpired that both Mr. Hart and Mr. Gumpach are English subjects, the latter having been naturalised. Mr. Myburgh, on behalf of Mr. Gumpach, opposed Sir Roundell Palmer, as he explained, with "great reluctance," which, however, Lord Justice James requested him to lay aside. Mr. Myburgh, however, did not press the point after some observations from Lord Justice Mellish and Sir William Colvill. Lord Justice James said the whole record must be brought up again, and that the costs of the application would be costs in the cause. With enormous accumulation of appeals before the Council, it is very uncertain when the next hearing will be taken.

SPURIOUS TEA.

A deputation, representing the wholesale and retail tea trade waited by appointment upon the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., President of the Board of Trade, to present a memorial, asking that some action shall be taken to prevent the trade in spurious tea. Mr. H. Peek, M.P., introduced the deputation, which consisted of Mr. W. Lawrence, M.P., Mr. Charles Magniac, M.P., Mr. Debac, Mr. Holborn, Mr. Teetgen, Mr. J. D. Betts, Mr. King, Mr. Abby, Mr. Tullock, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Struggnell, Mr. Ward, Mr. Slater, Mr. Piper, &c. Mr. J. C. Betts submitted a memorial from the Tea Dealers and Grocers' Association, representing the retail dealers of the metropolis, setting forth that they desired to draw serious attention to the continued importation of spurious tea, and earnestly requested the intervention of Government to prevent the same from coming into consumption by directing the customs officers to refuse to receive the duty on any so-called tea, which from well authenticated information and subsequent examination shall be ascertained to be unfit for human food. The memorialists were informed that a large quantity of this spurious tea had been recently imported, and they felt strongly that immediate action should be taken by the Government, not only on account of the public health, but also for the protection of the revenue, as the consumption of tea will be considerably interfered with if the public mind become imbued with the notion that any rubbish may be imported and sold under the name of tea. They would also submit that it was an injustice to receive the duty on any article which was liable to seizure when offered for sale in the same condition as passed by the Customs. Mr. Betts said Dr. Letheby, as the officer of the City Commissioners of Sewers, had made an analysis of various specimens of adulterated teas. In one case he found 25 per cent. of steel filings. Tea was adulterated with willow and other leaves. With respect to one tea, called Maloo mixture, it was principally composed of spent or used tea leaves. It was mixed purposely with earthy and other matter for colouring purposes, and was exposed to the sun to dry, and gathered a great deal of dirt and filth.

THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE.

It is reported that the following important changes and appointments will be made:—Lord Blomfield will retire from the Embassy at Vienna, and will be replaced by Sir A. Buchanan. Lord Augustus Loftus will succeed Sir A. Buchanan at St. Petersburg, and Mr. Odo Russell, who fulfilled with so much distinction the functions with which he was intrusted when accredited to Prince Bismarck at Versailles, will be appointed Ambassador in Berlin. Lord Tenterden will replace Mr. Odo Russell as Assistant Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

The statement that Mr. Morier will be promoted from Darmstadt to Stuttgart is premature, the arrangements with respect to the minor Courts of Germany not having yet been perfected.

THE ST. ANDREW'S MISSION AT GRAVESEND.—We have received the report of the St. Andrew's Waterside Mission, Gravesend, for 1870. The supporters of the institution will be glad to learn that it has weathered another stormy and anxious year, and is now sailing in quiet waters. At this time last year the promoters suddenly received an offer of £1,000 to build a chapel, under circumstances which led them to determine to raise another £1,500 to meet it. Accordingly, the first stone was laid on St. Peter's Day, on the rock, and a building committee appointed, consisting of the then Vicar of the Parish, the Rev. C. E. R. Robinson, the Rev. John Scarth, and Rear Admiral Inglesfield, C.B. To these three the arduous enterprise of building was entrusted, and they set to work at once. The land and the Mission premises were bought, and the enterprise assumed thenceforth a permanent character; while the work for the sailors is thus put on a firmer footing, the Chapel for the waterside population takes a new foundation. The honorary secretary and treasurer, the Rev. John Scarth, of Gravesend, to whose exertions the mission owes so much of its usefulness, is trying to form a body of subscribers of five shillings a year, a sum neither extravagant nor difficult to collect, though of incalculable benefit to the Institution, and we hope that his appeal will be numerously responded to.

THE STEAMSHIP WILLEM III.—The recovery of cargo and stores from the hull of this vessel, or, more correctly speaking, from the remains of the hull left unconsumed by the fire, which broke out on board when off the Isle of Wight, on the voyage from Amsterdam to Batavia, a short time since, has been much greater than was anticipated at the time the remains of the ship were towed in from the Channel, and scuttled upon the Spit shoal to extinguish the fire.

Upwards of 1,000 tons of coal have been taken out of the hull of the ship since it has been removed into Portsmouth harbour, and will be sold for the benefit of those concerned. The principal of the other items recovered are about 1,000 cases of cargo, which have been forwarded from Portsmouth to London. The ship was burnt out to the water-line, but below that the greater part of the goods, coals, &c., stowed away in the ship's hold, apparently escaped any great damage from the fire.

A SPECIAL telegram of the Eastern Budget, dated Constantinople June 27, is as follows:—"Lord Dalling (Sir Henry Bulwer) has arrived here. He represents that it will be impossible to keep the Suez Canal open much longer if it continues in the hands of its present possessors, and recommends the Porte to purchase it, as the Khédive is not disposed to do so. He says that the means of the company are insufficient to prevent the accumulations of sand, which will inevitably choke up the Canal unless additional capital and labour are provided. Lord Dalling also urges the Government to undertake the construction of a Euphrates Valley railway, for which purpose he offers to place English engineers at the disposal of the Porte."

We learn that some hitherto unsuspected difficulties have presented themselves against an early opening of the Mont Cenis Tunnel. It is stated that the smoke evolved from the locomotives is a great evil, for the tunnel is not efficiently bored through, until it is ventilated. At the first trial two out of three engine-drivers perished from suffocation, and a third nearly so. The temperature is extremely high, and engines consuming their own smoke have been ordered from England. An accident has just occurred in the tunnel by the fall of about sixty feet of the masonry work forming the arch; several workmen were killed.

Mr. Chichester Fortescue said at present he did not see how he could take action in the motion. He had inquired into the law on the subject, and he was of opinion that the Commissioners of Customs had no power to prevent the circulation of tea after the duty had been paid. He was in possession of a great deal of information on the subject, and was in communication with the Chancellor of the Exchequer in reference to it, and the matter should receive his most earnest consideration.

The following vessels passed through the Suez Canal between the 21st and 27th June:—Indus, steamer; Una, London to Japan; Marsala, Port Said to Suez; Apis, Austrian Lloyd's steamer, Trieste to Bombay; Parana, Mangalore to London; Principissa Clotilda, Suez to Port Said; Curlew, English gunboat; Povence, Messageries mail steamer, Hong Kong to Marseilles.

The report of Mr. Adams, on the deterioration of Japanese Silk, noticed in our issue of the 5th ult., has just been published in the form of a Blue-book.

Dr. Williamson, of Chefoo, and Mr. Carstairs Douglas, of Amoy, had an interview on the 29th ult. with Lord Granville (introduced by Mr. Magniac, M.P., and at which Mr. Consul Robertson, from Canton, was present), when their views on the subject of the Chinese Circular were fully expressed. A meeting was held on the 30th of the representatives of the missionary bodies, to consider what further steps are to be taken in the matter. It was resolved to postpone any action until the receipt of definite intelligence respecting the missing despatch.

LITERATURE.

Macmillan opens with an exceedingly comic dramatic scene in blank verse, entitled "Armgarth." It is written by the lady who is best known by the pseudonym of "George Eliot," and whose forte, the thorough knowledge of the world, the vivid colouring and truthful delineation of character evinced in her other works, would certainly have forbidden us to expect in burlesque but for the present singular production. It is impossible to miss the point of the following droll allusion. The speaker is an opera singer, describing her own triumph. She says:—

"The house was held
As if a storm were listening with delight,
And hushed its thunder."

A little further on she expresses her intention to

"Sing a hundred trills
Into a deep-dug grave, then burying them,
As one did Midas's secret, rid myself
Of naughty exultation."

There are some five-and-twenty pages of this style of writing, and every page is crammed with passages like those we have quoted. We will not extract any more of them, however, because, though we have read "Armgarth" carefully through ourselves, we agree more with the author in her last line than any other sentiment in the poem—

"'Tis better that our griefs should not spread far."

There are a good many poems of which the last line is always most admired, and, "long looked for," it "comes at last." There is no pleasure like the cessation of pain, and that gratification is certainly achieved in the last line of "Armgarth." We cannot, however, lay down the paper without suggesting to the fair writer that her wit and talent for burlesque are so eminently developed that they can certainly receive no assistance from bad grammar, which she may leave to such humourists as Artemus Ward. Therefore, we would recommend the excision of such lines as

"It is hard
To take the little corpse and lay it low,
And say, 'None misses it but me.'"

"Patty" is spiritedly continued in an instalment of four more chapters. "How Literature may Illustrate History" is a paper in Professor Masson's best style. "Pope and Cowper" is a critical essay which is worth reading, if only to disagree with it; it is evidently the production of a writer who is capable of better—because more independent—things. "Der Ruhm, or the Wreck of German Unity," is a clever squib in the beaten track of the "Battle of Dorking," the "Second Armada," and other brochures of the day. The present production differs from these only in reversing the catastrophe. In "Der Ruhm" Germany is completely overcome, France regains Alsace and Lorraine, and England triumphs in the Fatherland.

The People's Magazine sustains its reputation for variety and information. One of the best papers in the present part gives some entertaining statistics of the London Press, from which we learn that "There are now published in London 316 newspapers in all, 21 of which are issued daily, 12 of them being morning, and the other 9 evening journals. There are also 215 weekly papers, of which 109 are published on Saturday, 63 on Friday, 16 on Thursday, 15 on Wednesday, 8 on Monday, 3 on Tuesday, and 1 on Sunday. The actual days of issue, and not of the dates that the papers bear, are here given, and the reader will not fail to notice the very decided preference given to the later over the earlier days of the week in the publishing of these weekly journals. As to the rest, 46 appear monthly, 12 fortnightly, 3 four times a month, 2 three times a month, 2 three times a week, 1 five times a week, and 1 four times a week. The prices at which 288 of the papers are issued are:—15 at 4d.; 73 at 1d.; 42 at 2d.; 37 at 3d.; 24 at 4d.; 28 at 5d.; 42 at 6d.; 13 at 1s.; 4 at 1½d.; 3 at 7d.; 2 at 8d.; 1 each at 2½d., 4½d., 9d., 1s. 6d., and 2s. Of the entire number, 31 are of a distinctly religious character, including among them 7 Church of England of the Evangelical school of thought, 4 organs of the High Church section, 5 of the Roman Catholics, and 2 of the Jews. There are also papers published in the interests of the Wesleyans, the Congregationalists, the Baptists, the Presbyterians, the Unitarians, and the Society of Friends. Twenty-two are illustrated papers, and 9 appear in foreign languages, 5 of them in French, two in German, 1 in Spanish, and 1 in Portuguese."

The illustrations are exceedingly good in the number before us.

Art is constantly improving. The July part presents us with a capital reproduction of Albert Durer's masterpiece, "The Knight and Death," "Poesie," a photograph from M. Coomare's painting in the French Gallery, Pall-mall; "Sir Walter Raleigh in the Tower," a really life-like study from a drawing by Mr. Henry Wallis; and a portion of alto-relievo on the podium of the Albert Memorial, including likenesses of Beethoven, Purcell, Lawes, and other eminent men.

The May number of the Phoenix opens with an interesting paper on the Western Mongols, by Mr. H. H. Howarth. Mr. Carroll gives another instalment to his translation of the "Cure for Jealousy," and Mr. B. H. Hodgson continues his account of the Buddhists. The Rev. S. C. Malan contributes some more chapters of "Misawo, the Japanese Girl," and Professor Hoffman, in a practical and interesting description of "Rice-beer, or Lake Brewing in Japan," makes up the contents of a good average number.

PARLIAMENT.

THE CHINESE CIRCULAR.

(June 30th.) In reply to Mr. LIDDELL, Lord ENFIELD (Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs) said he would repeat the answer he had given on this subject before. Mr. Wade telegraphed some time ago that he had received a circular with regard to missionaries, addressed by the Chinese Government to the various foreign representatives; but, by some strange oversight or accident, the circular had not yet been received at the Foreign Office. Through the courtesy, however, of the French Government they had received a copy and translation of the despatch, and it had been presented to Parliament fourteen days ago. He held it in his hand, and would let his hon. friend see it.

(July 3rd.) In answer to Mr. MACFIE, Lord ENFIELD said that, through some strange oversight, the Government had not received from Mr. Wade either the original or a duplicate of the despatch or circular lately addressed by the Chinese Government to Her Majesty's Government through him.

SPURIOUS TEA.

(3rd.) Mr. G. GREGORY asked the President of the Board of Trade whether his attention had been called to the importation of spurious tea; and whether he had ascertained if the law, as it at present stood, prevented such importation or provided for the summary condemnation of such tea; and, if it did not, whether he was prepared to propose legislation upon the subject.

Mr. CHICHESTER FORESCUE said he had lately received an important deputation on this subject from the sanitary authorities of the City of London, who explained to him the great abuses which occurred in the importation of those spurious teas. They exhibited to him various samples of a very remarkable character—one consisting of matter so decayed that it was offensive to the smell, and another sample containing such a quantity of iron filings that they were visible to the eye by the use of a magnet. There were other specialities of that kind. He had since then inquired into the state of the law, and had reason to think that the Commissioners of Customs had no power to prevent these practices provided that the duty were duly paid. Whether it would be right to give the Commissioners of Customs such powers, which were beyond their usual functions, he was not then prepared to say; but he would undertake to consider the question, and was now in communication with the Chancellor of the Exchequer respecting it.

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, June 27.

In my previous letters I have more than once had occasion to mention the great social revolution that is about to take place by the alteration of the different systems of weights and measures in the various states of Germany, and the introduction of the French simple decimal metric system. The law has been nominally in force for a year and a half, but neither the Government nor the public have hitherto done much to prepare the way for the change. Practically it is a dead letter, as in England, and a purchaser going into a shop and asking for a metre of ribbon or a litre of wine would only be stared at, and could not obtain it, for the simple reason that the vendor is not in possession of such measures, as, indeed, they had not been issued by the authorities, by whom they must be tested and stamped. The Governments now perceive that they have been somewhat dilatory in making the needful arrangements, and, indeed, it has been under serious consideration whether, in consequence of the interruption occasioned by the war, it would not be expedient to postpone the introduction of the new system for another year. But the Federal Councillor and the Chancellor of the Empire have decided—and I think very properly so—to let the law take its course and come into obligatory effect on the day originally fixed on, which is the first of January next. In the meantime the executive Governments of all the different states have enough on their hands till that date. A public office is created in each, called the Eich-amt, with the needful staff of functionaries, whose business it is to prove and test the contents of all vessels for liquids, and the measures of weight and length, and legalise them by the official stamp for public use, without which the vendors become liable to a heavy fine. There can be no doubt that such a radical change of system in a population of nearly forty millions of inhabitants will at first create much inconvenience and perhaps almost hopeless confusion, especially among the lower classes in the towns and the agriculturists in the country, to say nothing of the helpless old ladies of both sexes who are to be met with everywhere. Here at Hamburg the controlling officers have been appointed and have entered on their functions. They advertise in the papers that they receive weights and measures for examination, adjustment and stamping, every day till noon, and they can be fetched away in the afternoon of the following working day; but that for any large quantity a special arrangement must be made with the director, so as not to interfere with the interests of the tradesmen in general. It is said that there are in this city twenty thousand shops where goods are sold by measure, ten thousand by weight, and ten thousand by cubical contents. If these figures are correct—and I should think they are not far from the mark—and allowing only three sets for each, one can form a rough idea of the enormous deal of work the Eich-amt will have to get through before the end of the year. And, indeed, in their advertisements they invite the public not to leave it to the last moment, as they foresee will in many cases be done, and, therefore, give notice that they exonerate themselves from all blame, and the unpleasant consequences that will not fail to fall on those tradesmen who omit to supply themselves with the new weights and measures at the period fixed by law. It is not at all improbable that the confusion will at first be increased by persons undertaking for the nonce the not very creditable but certainly lucrative profession of regular informers, as they can claim a part of the fine imposed.

The festivities and rejoicings at Berlin on the return of the Guards from France were supplemented with more or less eclat in all the cities and garrison towns of Germany. Here, although the number of the troops was comparatively very small—consisting only of the two battalions of the 76th Regiment of Infantry, numbering about 2,500 men—the preparations for their reception and welcome were on a very extensive scale; and in every part of the city the houses were gaily decorated with flags, wreaths of flowers, and garlands of evergreens ornamented with ribbons of many colours and hues. After marching on foot all through France, they were conveyed on from Frankfort to Hamburg by railway, and thence by a squadron of steamers to this city. On their passing the guard-ship at Altona, the ironclad frigate Prince Adalbert, which had “dressed ship,” the crew manned the yards and cheered lustily, and the appearance of the harbour was exceedingly pretty and animated, as every vessel of all nationalities was profusely showy in bunting. Tribunes were erected for the Senate and other authorities, for the combined singing clubs, for the families of the returning soldiers, and for the general public, where about twenty thousand persons found accommodation, and the seats were sold at a dollar each. There was a deal of speechifying, music, and a banquet, at which each soldier was furnished with a bottle of claret and a bottle of champagne, and the festivities concluded with a display of fireworks and a general illumination of the city.

This is the bright side of the picture; let us now look at the obverse. The regiment, which left Hamburg last year with about its present numerical strength, has been in no less than sixteen larger or lesser actions, including the two battles of Orleans and Bazoches-les-hautes. Though they had never been under fire before, they behaved with the greatest courage and steadiness—for which they were several times mentioned with praise in the despatches and bulletins—but their losses were very heavy, amounting on the whole to 1,281 men and officers killed and wounded, or very nearly one-half of the regiment. On one day alone they lost 441 men. But the organisation of the German army is of so perfect a description that preparations for such contingencies were made beforehand for every regiment; and no sooner had a telegram arrived announcing the losses of the 76th, than an equal number were sent off the same day from the Reserve Battalion here to replace those put hors de combat. At the battle of Loigny the regiment lost 441, at Bazoches-les-hautes 258, at Villejouan 103, at Meung 120, at Preteval 69, at Grands Baynes 62, and the remainder in various minor engagements. The total losses of the German armies are thus given officially:—Officers: 1,105 killed, 3,795 wounded, 30 missing, total 4,900; non-commissioned officers and privates: 18,132 killed, 87,742 wounded, 6,165 missing, total 112,038; giving a grand total of 119,297 killed, 91,537 wounded, 6,195 missing, altogether 117,028 men.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 28.

The members of the Second Chamber reassembled some days ago for the despatch of business. The sitting, however, will not last longer than three weeks, so that only the most pressing matters can be dealt with. The Ministers of the Colonies and Foreign Affairs have replied to the section report upon the treaty with Great Britain regarding the transfer of our settlements on the west coast of Africa, and that with the Sultan of Siak, by which England acquires rights in Sumatra. You will remember that in the report a good deal of opposition was manifested against these treaties and against the principle of selling our colonies. The Ministers defend the treaties, and seek to demonstrate that they are quite in our interest. Our settlements in Africa, they say, are very costly and of little profit to us, as they do not promote our trade; an assertion which they prove by returns of the imports and exports. Moreover, we are involved repeatedly in difficulties with a friendly Power (England) in consequence of these settlements. Not only is a good deal of money wanted for the maintenance of our colonies in the West, but even our East India colonies are waiting for improvements which cannot longer be delayed; consequently it is bad policy to expend money upon our settlements in Africa, which do not pay at all, and so the Government wishes to get rid of them. It was observed in the section report that it was unjust to withhold our protection from the negroes, under which they have lived for so many years, but the ministers say that if that protection had been what it ought to have been the Government would have taken care for the improvement of the material and intellectual state of the negroes, which would have involved an enormous expense. It is further demonstrated that great discontent prevails amongst the English and Dutch negroes, resulting from the fact that the authority was divided between the two protecting Powers. Now that there is a question of the transfer, the native population are in better harmony. The Ashantees seem more inclined towards peace, and their attitude will have a good influence upon the inhabitants of Elmina. The transfer is also advisable because we are put to enormous costs in order to maintain our position with the honour due to our colours; and if we did not make these sacrifices we should be obliged to abandon our settlements, as the French did years ago. In this difficulty it was thought wiser to sell our fortresses for a moderate amount to England. The sum fixed is so trifling that it could never be said that Holland had sold a colony. There is still another motive for the transfer. The Government seizes this opportunity to effect a reform in Sumatra. For years England has made complaints respecting our policy there, and it was found necessary from time to time to extend our authority. The ministers demonstrate that the possession of Sumatra, with its rich coal mines, is of much more importance to us than that of the West Coast of Africa. At any rate there is a good equivalent for the transfer. The ministers give further extensive particulars about the negotiations with Great Britain concerning this transfer of rights.

The report of the Dutch India Railway Company was published some days ago, and is very satisfactory. Many particulars are given about the financial operations which were entered into in order to obtain the two millions of guilders necessary to complete the line of railway in the Samarang-Principalities, for which the Government was only willing to grant a further delay of two years. The war which broke out made it impossible to raise this loan in the market, so that it became necessary that the company should be assisted by the State lending money. At last, however, the loan was raised, and there is now no fear that the railway will be appropriated by the Government. The returns of the transport of passengers and merchandise are said to be very satisfactory. The receipts in 1870 amounted to f.656,070.11, and the expenses to f.451,751.84, leaving a favourable balance of f.204,318.27. The number of passengers was 172,810, whilst 276,803 kilo. luggage and 793,108,109 kilo. merchandise were transported. The profit per day and per kilometer were f.17.75, whilst the net profit was f.5.67. The completion of the Batavia Buitenzorg line is delayed because it is very difficult to obtain the necessary land. Mr. de Bordes had asked—as was stated by the report—to resign, in order to assist the company in its financial difficulties by giving up his lucrative position; he, however, will continue to assist the company as engineer. At the meeting of shareholders which was held yesterday, at Amsterdam, Mr. E. H. Jacob was elected commissary in the place of Mr. van Beek Vollenhouen, who had resigned, and Mr. W. A. de Haas was re-elected. The Chairman stated that the position of the company was very sound, and that the future was very promising.

Owing to the fact that business just now on the Bourse is almost at a standstill, quotations present few changes. The home funds remain devoid of the slightest variation, and only foreign stocks present a slight improvement. The introduction of the new French loan, coupled with the requirements of other States, checks any animation or any renewal of actual activity. For money a good demand prevails, both at the Bank and in the open market.

The epidemic of small-pox is decreasing, and notwithstanding the weather has been very unsettled—a sort of November temperature prevailing—the general health is very satisfactory. It is, however, feared that the continued showers of rains, with the sharp northerly winds, will have a very bad influence upon the crops; so much it is certain that the fruit crop will be almost entirely lost.

Princess Marie and the Prince of Wied will be married at Wassenaar next month.

The Vaderland says that some creditors of the Oost Indische Maatschappij van Lyfrenten have moved to declare that company insolvent, in consequence of information which they have received from Java. A demand for this purpose has been addressed by them to the Provincial Court at Amsterdam.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

There is but little change to report in the general features of our Produce markets, which, upon the whole, look healthy for most of the leading articles, without there being much business doing, as the demand is in general mainly confined to requirements for consumptive wants. The Trading Company's Coffee sale, which will be held to-day, holds out favourable prospects, but in anticipation of this auction scarcely any business of note has been doing. Sugar, also, is quiet, but firm. Cotton and Tin continue in good demand, and both have advanced, whilst some improvement has also taken place in Nutmegs and Mace, especially in consequence of the telegram stating that the whole crop of Banda, valued at £500,000, was lost. This telegram, however, is thought by many to be a canard, because the average crop of that island is only one million of guilders.

COFFEE is firm, and the Trading Company's sale promises well. The brokers' valuations are based on a price of 33½c. for good ordinary greenish Java.

SUGAR exhibits but little activity. About 1,400 baskets Java, medium numbers, afloat, changed hands at about the parity of the May sale.

TEA.—The public sales held here on the 21st inst. went off flatly, on an average of 5c. to 10c. below the valuations, whilst about one-fourth of the quantity put up was bought in.

TOBACCO (JAVA LEAVES).—For account of the Netherlands Trading Company the following parcels have been sold: 222 bales Ketjen, at 88c.; 81 bales K. K., at 45½c.; 58 bales B. L. Kedirie, at 21½c.; and for private account, 668 bales E. T. B. Malang, at 27c.; 191 bales E. T. B. Kederie, at 32 1-5c.

MANILA SEGARS.—Of 360,000 Manila Cheroots offered, 2a Cortados, 10,000 were sold at f.36½, and 350,000 bought in. 20,000 Manila Cheroots 2a Habanos 1870 sold by private treaty prior to the public sale.

SPICES have been in better request, and prices are tending upward. A shipment of 65 cases Nutmegs, ex Jedo, has been realised here at a full price, which has been kept secret.

RICE.—The market continues dull, and prices look downward.

RATTANS.—Since my last report there have been sold 220 piculs ex Medea, and 300 piculs ex Metis.

TIN has been in fair request at a further advance; Banca has sold for usual prompt at f.78½ to f.79, and for delivery, ex the next autumn sale at f.76½ for a few small lots.

HIDES.—The sales by secret tender, held at Amsterdam on the 21st inst., met a current result, the whole of the 14,647 Java Cows and 9,829 Buffaloes put up, having been adjudged at the highest bids made for the same. A steady demand also prevails in our market; the sales closed comprise lots, ex Louise, Nestor, Albert Victor, Granite City, Maria Elizabeth, Nyassa, Magdalena, Gutenberg, Padang Packet, and Vraetzoeker.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—June 21, at Texel, from Batavia, Alma Elisabeth; 22, at Brouwershaven, from Rangoon, Jane Rowlands; 25, at Zierikzee, from Passareoang, India; 27, at Texel, from Sourabaya, Fanny.

THE CHINESE IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE future policy of the general and State Governments of the United States towards the Chinese labourer can only be matter of conjecture. If the American people adopt the policy of selfishness, and regard the Chinese as the mere raw material to be consumed in the production of goods, the development of the wondrous resources of the Pacific slope must be sensibly retarded. At present, we find China existing in San Francisco and Sacramento as palpably as in Canton or Hong Kong. In San Francisco, the Chinese quarter is a distinct and separate locality, and certain squares of Sacramento are exclusively Chinese markets, where the parties engaged in each store are Chinamen and the customers Chinese. There are theatres, in which the actors are Chinese, the audience of the same nationality. The picture is not all couleur de rose. The Chinese have their gambling saloons and their resorts for the victims of opium. With few exceptions, the Chinese women who have immigrated have been brought over as articles of commerce. As yet the Chinese in California appear to have been morally unaffected by American civilisation, and a strong conviction prevails that if they continue to maintain their feeling of clanship with their individual and national characteristics, their presence as a distinct and separate people when they pervade the country will become a constant source of annoyance and disturbance.

As to employments, they do the washing and ironing of the coast, and act as cooks and as servants in every department of household service. Several thousands are engaged in San Francisco at the Pacific and Pioneer mills, where they manufacture woollen clothing and blankets. At these mills they perform every part of the labour, from the opening of the unwashed wool to the packing and marking of the boxes containing the finished fabrics prepared for shipment. Other woollen mills are springing up for which their labour is sought, and thus the wool of the Pacific coast, instead of being exported at the rate of twenty cents per lb., is made to conduce to the comfort of the people on the coast. Thousands more are engaged in tobacco manufactories. Besides competing with the producing classes in manual labour in San Francisco, the Bank of California employs them as experts for the detection of base or light coin. The Chinese took a large share, as is well known, in making the westward portion of the Pacific Railway. In the interior portion of California they are largely engaged in agricultural pursuits, and tens of thousands are likely to find, a few years hence, congenial occupation in the culture of tea and the growth of silk. They are to be found as fishers on most of the large streams and rivers, and find a never-failing source of occupation in the gold mines, or in reworking on their own account auriferous alluvial deposits, a very small percentage of the golden grain repaying their efforts. The treatment of the Chinese in Cuba and Peru has, however, frightened them from entering largely into the labour market in the cotton fields of the Southern States.

WE are enabled to confirm the report of Mr. H. GREGORY'S appointment to the Governorship of Ceylon. Mr. GREGORY will not leave England until the close of the present year.

THE latest information we possess with reference to the American expedition to Korea is derived from a telegram which tells how, after a desperate defence and the loss of five hundred Koreans, the stronghold of the Korea has been captured by the Americans. The question now is—"What will they do with it?" In his first despatch Mr. FISH dwelt on the advantage which Mr. Low would derive from Mr. Consul-General SEWARD'S advice and co-operation. Bearing in mind the unvarying conciliation and good sense which have marked all Mr. SEWARD'S acts, we feel it impossible, without further evidence, to believe that the present proceedings can have been undertaken with his sanction.

The Times of the 30th ult. says:—"An Old Resident in China" wishes to call attention to the fact that the Chinese despatch is directed against the Roman Catholic missions exclusively, the Protestant missionaries having no extra-territorial privileges beyond those claimed by all foreigners under the Treaty, and asking for none; whereas, on the contrary, the Bishops of the Roman Catholic missions have been constantly making claims and assuming an authority in the North and West of the Empire which has exasperated both the people and the Government. The Roman Catholic Church has now a cathedral overlooking the Palace itself in Peking.

THE Straits Settlements Association may be congratulated on the success of their attempts to check the expenditure at Singapore, as evidenced in the speech of Colonel ANSON. There has been no meeting held lately, but we understand that the matter of the judicial arrangements in the colony is under consideration. We believe that the result will give satisfaction in the colony. We have more than once pointed out the urgency of this question and the necessity of finding a thoroughly efficient successor to the late Chief Justice of the Straits Settlements.

At the next meeting of the Suez Canal shareholders, on the 20th ult., it is understood the opinion of the meeting will be taken as to the position and affairs of the Company, with a view of reorganising the same under English auspices. M. de Lesseps is at present in London, for the purpose of receiving the investiture of K.C.S.I., which has been conferred on him by Her Majesty.

THE EXPEDITION TO KOREA.

The mails from New York bring some details of hostilities between the Chinese of the Korean Peninsula and the combined naval forces of the United States and France:—

A despatch from Washington says:—"About the 1st June our Minister in China, with Admiral Rogers, made an expedition to the Korean Peninsula. This expedition was undertaken for the purpose of endeavouring to make a treaty with the Korean authorities for the protection of shipwrecked sailors of civilised nations, who, when hitherto cast upon the shores of the peninsula, have been made slaves, or murdered, or otherwise ill-treated. The expedition was also accompanied by a French, an English, and a Prussian vessel. Our Minister and the Korean Envoys exchanged professions of amicable intentions. The Koreans made no objection to a survey of their waters, and the Monocacy, Palos, and, on June 1, four steam launches, under Commander Blake, were sent to examine the River Sable at a point called Difficult Passage, where navigation was most perilous. Masked batteries, manned by several thousand Koreans, were unmasked, and opened a heavy fire without warning upon our people. The French ship in advance fought gallantly, and our vessels bearing up drove the enemy from their works. The tide swept all the ships past the batteries, after which they anchored, and commenced throwing shells amongst the retreating enemy. The eight-inch shells were evidently not expected by the Koreans. The Monocacy was slightly injured by striking upon a sunken rock. The vessels were but slightly damaged, and only two men were wounded. A communication was received June 3 from the Korean Government which may open negotiations. Otherwise, since the Koreans have met peaceful overtures with unprovoked war, our forces will land, and, destroying the forts, will take such other measures as the interests of civilisation require."

A Cabinet meeting was held at Washington on the 16th ult., at which Secretary Robeson read the above despatch. As Admiral Rogers received full instructions before starting on the expedition, his despatch did not require the consideration of the Cabinet.

THE CHINA CONSULAR SERVICE.

We have received the first Report of the Select Committee on Diplomatic and Consular Services. Among its contents, most interesting to our readers, is the following despatch from the Secretary of the Treasury to Mr. Hammond on the question of the increasing expenditure of these branches of the public service:—

Treasury Chambers, April 1, 1869.

SIR,—The Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have had before them your letter of the 12th ult., respecting the Diplomatic and Consular Estimates for China and Japan.

The increasing cost of that branch of the public service seems to them to demand attention; and the larger question of expenditure to which allusion has been made in the letters which have recently passed between the two departments will need further discussion and consideration on the part of the Secretary of State and this Board.

At present, however, my Lords will deal only with the Estimate for the financial year 1869-70, which must be presented to Parliament without delay.

1. Newchwang.—It appears to their Lordships that justice is scarcely done to St. Petersburg, Odessa, or Hamburgh, when those places are lowered to the level of Newchwang. They defer, however, to the opinion of the Secretary of State in favour of an efficient consular establishment at the latter point. They would, indeed, be most reluctant to urge upon his Lordship a hasty change of system in order to secure a small immediate reduction of expense. Provision will therefore be made in the Estimate for a consul at the rate of £900 a-year.

2. Salary of Consul at Amoy.—Their Lordships regret that they have been unable to see sufficient reason for the proposed increase of salary to the consul at Amoy.

3. Shipping Clerk at Shanghai.—Their Lordships are most unwilling to assent to any increase of the total cost of the consulate at Shanghai, and they cannot, therefore, sanction the salary which has been proposed for Mr. Tapp, unless a corresponding reduction can be made in some other quarter.

They would ask whether the employment of that gentleman without notification to their Board was not irregular.* The practice of charging salaries upon the sum allotted to contingencies is objectionable; their Lordships will not, however, require a transfer to be made during the ensuing year in the hope that a more satisfactory arrangement may be agreed upon before the Estimates for 1870-71 are put in draft.

4. Temporary Allowances.—Their Lordships cannot think that satisfactory reasons have been adduced for the payment of these allowances after the date originally named. In deference, however, to the wishes of Lord Clarendon, they will make provision for them up to 31st March, 1870, upon the understanding that they are then to cease, unless sufficient cause be shown for their renewal, and that if any of them be renewed they be considered de novo each year.

I am to request that Lord Clarendon's attention may be directed to a question asked in the letter from this Board of the 8th ult., whether any general rules have been laid down for the guidance of Consuls in the entertainment of guests at the public expense.

5. House Allowances (extra) to Officers of the Supreme Court and Rents of Consular Buildings.—Their Lordships would remind Lord Clarendon that the extra allowances in question were granted to this by this Board on the recommendation of the Secretary of State; they would not, therefore, feel justified in altering them, except after consultation and in concert with him. They understand Lord Clarendon to have no objection to the discontinuance of these allowances after March 31, 1870.

As regards the rents of consulates, it is to be observed that my Lords have inserted in the estimates, year by year, the sum of £3,000 for the rent of the Legation in Japan, and £2,600 for the rents of consular buildings in China and Japan, upon the authority of the Secretary of State.

They are anxious to know the grounds upon which the estimate is based, in order to be certain that an estimate would not be taken for the same service twice over. It is difficult, moreover, to reconcile that sum with the accounts so far as they have been rendered to the Audit Office.

Their Lordships feel sure that Lord Clarendon will be anxious that the most accurate figures obtainable should be submitted to Parliament, and it was for that end they asked for any information it might be in the power of his department to afford.

They now propose, in the absence of any details, to ask a lump sum of £5,600 for Legation and Consular buildings in China and Japan.

6. Consular Chapels.—Their Lordships are glad to find that Lord Clarendon is of opinion that the assistance given to chaplains and churches requires careful consideration, and that he proposes to intimate, through Sir R. Alcock, to the communities assisted, that they must be prepared for a reduction of the Government grants. My Lords are of opinion that it is desirable to make some such reduction on the face of the Estimate at once.

Such a measure would serve to convince all parties that certainly a reduction, and possibly a withdrawal, of grants is contemplated by Her Majesty's Government. Their Lordships trust, accordingly, that the Secretary of State will not object to a diminution of the Estimate from £4,000 to £3,000.

If, contrary to the expectations of their Lordships, it should be found impossible, without unnecessary hardship or breach of faith, to effect the whole of this reduction within the financial year, they will not object to provide, out of other votes, for the excess.

7. Medical Assistance.—The Secretary of State has misunderstood the observations of this Board, both as to revision of salaries and as to "eleemosynary" medical assistance. It is not, however, necessary in the present letter to trouble his Lordship with explanations on these heads.

8. Japan.—It is with great regret that their Lordships have felt unable to accede to the appointment of an additional assistant in Japan. The very large increase which has taken place in the services of China and Japan during the last few years, make them most unwilling, as at present advised, to sanction any further addition to the total cost of either branch.

9. Form of Estimate.—Their Lordships do not wish to recommend a change in the form of Estimate. They think, however, that Parliament ought to be furnished with a statement of the distribution of the staff, at the latest date available; and that such statement should be appended to the Estimate.

10. I am to express a hope that the information asked for in the letter from this Board, dated 8th ultimo, may be obtained, as promised by Lord Clarendon, as soon as it can be collected.—I am, &c.

(Signed) WILLIAM LAW.

On the 5th May, 1869, the Earl of CLARENDON, writing to Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK, for the purpose of transmitting copy of the estimates for Consular Services for the year ending March 1870, said:—

My principal object in writing to you on the present occasion is to intimate to you the desire of Her Majesty's Government that you should make the most searching inquiry into the expenditure on account of the several Consulates, with the view of ascertaining whether it may not be possible to bring it within narrower limits, or at all events whether it might not be distributed in a different manner so as to make it suffice for the expanding demands of commercial development.

Our intercourse with China is subject to a condition differing in a very essential point from the condition under which intercourse is carried on generally with other countries, and which involves a considerable expenditure, namely, that at every port to which British trade and shipping are admitted, there must be a duly appointed Consular officer, qualified to deal impartially with questions which may arise, as having no personal interest in their solution, and of sufficient judgment and discretion to admit of the magisterial duties, whether of a civil or criminal nature, which he is called upon to perform, being safely entrusted to his hands.

In dealing, therefore, with this state of things with a view to economy, the first point to be considered is, whether the British trading and shipping interests at the different ports where consular officers are now stationed, are of that amount as to make it worth while to incur the expense of maintaining them, or whether the alternative of breaking up the Consulate, and with it putting a stop to British trade at any particular port, may not be resorted to.

The expediency of withdrawing a Consulate from a port, and thereby abandoning it as a place of trade, suggests a further doubt how far such a course is prudent. Her Majesty's Government cannot forget that for many years after the port of Foo-chow-Foo was open to British trade it was opened to no purpose. But fortunately a small Consular establishment was kept up, and the right to frequent the port maintained; and it appears by the last return that the aggregate amount of direct British import and export trade at that port was, during the last year, £5,890,936, finding employment for British ships, entered and cleared, to the number of 574, with a tonnage of 274,441 tons. The same promises to be the case at Chinkiang, where the Consulate was hardly abolished, and the port made an outpost of Shanghai, when the prospect of a large trade has been opened, and you have found it necessary to advocate the re-establishment of an independent Consulate at the port.

Still, and notwithstanding these warnings, I wish you to consider whether it might not be advisable and practicable to suppress the Consulates at some of the smaller ports, and either by doing so reduce the general expenditure, or take advantage of the saving so effected to open other ports more promising, and especially the one in the island of Hainan, to which we have already a treaty right of access, of which, from motives of economy, we have never availed ourselves, but which, looking to the position of the island and its immediate vicinity to very important districts of China not yet opened up to foreign intercourse, might form the seat of a most valuable and important trade.

Another point for consideration is whether, on vacancies occurring, the rates of salary assigned to officers of the ranks of Consul and Vice-Consul should be maintained on their present footing. And this brings me to the question of special and temporary allowances. These allowances, amounting in the aggregate to £2,400 a-year, were granted at your recommendation, and that of Sir Frederick Bruce, to various persons employed in the Consulates at Shanghai, Hankow, Kiu-kiang, and Foo-chow-foo, to enable them to meet the increase in the cost of living, occasioned by special circumstances, which at the time you laid before Her Majesty's Government.

I fear there can be no hope of any reduction being made in the numbers of interpreters and assistants now borne on the establishment, looking to the fact that, not to mention consuls and interpreter who have lately died, the number of public servants in China of all classes, exclusive of those attached to the Supreme Court, now absent on leave, on account of sickness or for reasonable indulgence, after many years' continuous residence in China, is no less than eleven, divided as follows—viz., one Secretary of Legation, two Consuls, one Vice-Consul, two interpreters, and five assistants; and that a premature diversion of the student interpreters from their studies of the language would be destructive of the very object for which they are appointed. The number of these should be fifteen; but casualties of one kind or other so frequently occur that it is difficult to maintain them at the full number. But at all events I am aware that only a very few of the senior students who may have completed two years' residence at Peking can be available for employment in the Consulates to supply deficiencies occasioned by the absence of assistants. I am aware that you are desirous that the number of assistants should be increased to enable you to meet unexpected calls for assistance at different Consulates. Without, however, any intention to disturb the existing arrangements as regards the junior classes of the service being considered available for general employment at any Consulate as they may be wanted, I should wish to receive from you a statement, made up to the 31st December in each year, of the actual distribution of the general staff in China at that date, with a list of the names and position of officers who may be absent on leave.

The aggregate amount estimated for writers and linguists at China is stated at £2,800 a-year. I should be glad to receive from you a statement showing the exact nature of duties performed by each class, the numbers employed in the Mission and at each of the consulates, and the salaries paid to each individual.

Another item of expenditure stated in general terms in the Estimate is that for wages and allowances to gaolers, constables, watchmen, boatmen, porters, coolies and others. I should wish, as in the case of the writers and linguists, to receive from you an annual return specifying the number of persons in the several classes employed in each Consulate, with the rate of wages given to each individual, and distinguishing, more especially in the case of gaolers and constables, those of European or colonial origin from those of Asiatic origin; or of other European or of Chinese nationality.

There is one special point on which I should be glad to have your opinion, arising out of the altered character which the trade is assuming and is likely to possess to a still greater degree. I mean the tendency that it appears to have to pass out of British into Chinese hands, in the same way as in the Levant it has in great measure passed out of British into Greek hands. Now, however, this change may affect the interests of British merchants, it will probably, as in the Levant, tend to a larger development of trade in British goods; but the question will arise to what extent Consular protection will be needed to protect that trade in Chinese hands. As long as British shipping is employed in distributing British goods, however owned, to Chinese ports, it would indeed be scarcely consistent with prudence or with our international engagements towards China to withdraw the protection and control which, irrespective of trade properly so called, the British Consular authorities now exercise in behalf of British shipping.

I wish you to send me with your report an account of the rents paid at each of the Consulates during the year 1868, and also of the expenditure on Consular buildings and furniture.

I have deferred till the close of my letter the question of medical assistance and Consular chapels. On the first point the Board of Treasury entertains a very decided opinion that as a general rule it should be placed under great restrictions. The appointment of a medical officer to the mission at Peking rests not only on the consideration of the large number of British public officers (the Minister and his diplomatic staff, the student, interpreters, and the escort) assembled at that place, but also on the political value at which the presence of such an officer, attached to the mission and available at the orders of the Minister to afford medical relief to Chinese patients, may rightly be estimated.

I should wish you to accompany this report with a return for the year 1868, showing the numbers of British subjects, distinguishing those of European or Colonial origin from those of Asiatic origin, confined in the lock-ups or gaols of each Consulate, with the average length of confinement in each case, and also with an account of the moneys expended in medical assistance at the different Consulates for the same year.

The remaining question is that of Consular chapels. It is not unattended with difficulty, but at the same time it requires to be very closely looked at, to avoid incurring an expenditure on Government account in excess of what the public should be called upon to defray.

I am aware that a larger amount of salary than is required at ordinary places either in the old or new world may be required to secure the services of competent chaplains in China. But, on the other hand, the wealth of British mercantile establishments is doubtless far greater than what it is in most countries. This consideration should regulate the amount of assistance to be given in any case, and in some it would militate against giving any assistance at all. The congregations are too much in the habit of calculating on receiving from Government the full amount of contributions made by British residents. You will undeceive them in this respect. In no case will Her Majesty's Government hereafter grant more than sufficient to eke out the local contributions from whatever source they may proceed; and even that they may do so much, Her Majesty's Government must be satisfied that communities have themselves contributed what, in proportion to their means, may be considered a fair sum.

In the course of his evidence before the committee Sir Rutherford Alcock said he had been thirty-one years in the service, and was the only survivor of the five original consuls sent to China in the establishment of consular ports. His staff at Peking consists of a Chinese secretary and two second secretaries of legation; the Chinese secretary and the first secretary of legation are in one; Mr. Wade, on account of his attainments in Chinese, combining the two offices. Then there is an assistant Chinese secretary, a chaplain (a missionary who performs the duties there), and a physician. The employees in the consular service, nominally fifteen in number, receive £200 a year, and are required to pass through the student interpreterships and pass an examination in the Chinese vernacular after two years' service. This system works well, and these gentlemen are likely to fill the higher posts in the Consular Service in China as they grow older. The general establishment under Sir R. Alcock's control is thirteen consuls, five vice-consuls, eleven interpreters, and twenty assistants, making forty-nine in all, exclusive of student interpreters. The year before last there was a careful revision made in the establishment, in consequence of instructions from the Foreign-office. The staff was not so much reduced as the contingencies, the chaplaincies, medical attendants, writers, linguists, &c. The staff at Peking is very hard worked. The mission has a house selected in Lord Elgin's time, but rebuilt since, for which a rent of Tls. 1,000 is paid to the Foreign-office. The expenses of living have increased within the last ten years, but, on the whole, the Consular Service is considered a liberal one. Society in China was formerly very extravagant. The merchants used to keep large establishments, some of them princely establishments, and upon a very lavish scale of expenditure. The last four or five years has seen a great change in that respect. A great many of the houses have been bankrupt and ruined, and competition is increasing daily. Germans and others come there who can live upon very moderate means, and there is great competition from the Chinese also, who are getting a large portion of the trade of distribution into their own hands,—and they can live where Europeans would starve. All these things have tended to curb the lavish and extravagant expenditure which was ruining everybody. The Germans have a representative at Peking. Their business has extended very largely, principally in the coasting trade from the greater cheapness in working their ships. They take a very large proportion of the coasting trade; principally because they can work their ships cheaper than we work ours. In the British service it is generally understood that, unless ill health should compel it, leave should not be asked for under four or five years. It is entirely at the discretion of the Secretary of State; but after five years' continuous service generally a twelvemonth is not considered an unreasonable allowance, which would come pretty much to what it is in Europe supposing the leave were cumulated. The first secretary is also Chinese secretary, in consequence of his attainments, and receives combined pay; that is to say, considering that the first secretary of legation would have £800, and that as the Chinese secretary he would have £800; instead of receiving the £1,600, when the two officers were combined, he received £1,200. Thanks to Mr. Wade's labours, who has devoted twenty years of his life to the subject, we have now a whole course of progressive lessons for the assistance of the juniors. There are forty progressive lessons to commence with; and as there are two years given for the acquisition of the language, any one who studies the whole series with diligence and ability will have a very competent knowledge of Chinese for a beginning. The British Legation is the largest in Peking. The guard, selected from the police force, is essential to the dignity of the Legation. A great amount of entertaining falls on the British Minister. Visitors cannot come in the winter, but during the whole summer there is one continuous stream of visitors of all ranks and descriptions. Sir R. Alcock received two of the French princes, the Duke of Edinburgh with his suite, and every year visits from naval officers, from the Admiral, and from the Chief Judge. These are in our own service; but there are, besides, visitors from India, and visitors from Australia and Europe; some foreign, but many English going through Mongolia. Others, again, merely coming to see Peking, and merchants who wish to have information and to see the country. No well-frequented hotel could be better filled than the British Legation. Sir Rutherford Alcock had, on one occasion, the Austrian Mission, consisting of Baron Petz and several officers with their servants, to entertain for many weeks. Mr. Hart is not in our service now, but in the service of the Imperial Government. He is Inspector-General of Maritime Customs; but we educated him for the Consular Service, in which he served four years. He left the service of the Queen for the service of the Celestial Empire, and we have lost two or three more in the same way. The service which he is in now pays him well; he gets quite as much, probably, as any Minister of a foreign Power, but I do not believe that it exceeds £6,000 a-year. It was said that the treaty which was not sanctioned by the Foreign-office would have made a difference of something like 30 per cent. to that large income, that is assuming that he was paid by a percentage, but he is supposed to have a fixed salary. It is a great advantage to a minister to know Chinese, unquestionably—as it is in any country to be able to speak direct to the authorities and transact your own business. Rather a contrary opinion has been given by a gentleman who was examined before; he said that he would prefer taking an officer from the general service for the highest appointments. That is an idea that has been very much encouraged by the merchants; they think that they would like new blood; that when a man has been a great many years in China he gets orientalised, and a fixed set of ideas, or a bias which is not always in accordance with their views or their supposed interests; and therefore they would like to see some entirely fresh blood brought in. The dangers and the wear and tear of a residence there, are far beyond what any mission in Europe is exposed to. Then, on the other hand, the salaries are much higher, so that, to a certain extent, compensates in the higher retirement it secures. But it is a fact that the pension is generally calculated on the amount of salary, and in that sense, the members of the Chinese and Japanese services do get a certain amount of compensation, inasmuch as they have higher salaries.

Sir R. Alcock's examination closed with this reply to questions put by Mr. Kinnaid:—Do you think that the recent events that have taken place, the massacre there, and the failure of negotiations, have rather shown that all the benefits of the centring of the embassy at Peking have not been realised?—I think that depends very much upon what was anticipated as the likely result of a minister at Peking. If it was expected of it that there should be no breaches of treaties and no popular outbreaks, and no violation of treaties, why certainly it has not answered that purpose. The unsatisfactory result depends on so many causes. First of all, the Central Government is weak in the provinces, and has a very weakened hold over its own people and provincial authorities. The Emperor is in his minority, which further weakens the central administration. They have just come out, if indeed they are out, of a vast insurrection, which devastated the whole country and weakened all the springs of government; and they are in a state of transition themselves, from having been brought into contact with foreign Powers who have their own exigencies, and with foreign merchants who import among the people fresh ideas, as well as goods. Their position is something like that which a government in a neighbouring state now is; and they feel unequal to grapple with its difficulties and exigencies. All these are causes why no diplomacy can lead to perfect results, as far as absolute security to life goes, or the getting full redress whenever any wrong is done.

But you admit that the end has been, in this instance, unsatisfactory; but you say that it is owing to the causes that you have mentioned?—I do not think it is at all a satisfactory result, but I think it is inevitable with a country in such a state as China is in.

Would not it be a very wise thing to have the present system extended to employing native Chinese as a guard; has it ever been suggested to you that it would be desirable, at the principal consular ports, for the English representatives to have a small force at their own disposal, which was strongly recommended by Admiral Sir James Hope, so as actually to defend them in this lawless state of matters?—I do not know that there has been any distinct proposition on the subject ever before me.

THE HONG KONG QUESTION.

SIR,—Permit me to correct an unintentional error committed in my letter from Hamburg, which appeared in your issue of the 28th inst., viz., that the East India Government paid one-third of the expenses incurred for the diplomatic service in China, and which I estimated at about £8,000. I now find in the estimates for Civil Services, viz., Colonial and Consular Services for 1871-72, under extra receipts, on account of Her Majesty's Mission in China, an amount equal to one-third of the net expenditure (diplomatic), estimated at £2,700. Again, under Consular Services, one-third of the expenditure in China, repayable to the Exchequer out of Indian revenue, is estimated for 1871-72 at £22,676; making a total of £25,376. Still, this does not affect my argument for the payment of a share of the military expenditure incurred in China by the Imperial Government, out of Indian revenue, to the relief of Hong Kong.—Your obedient servant, 30th June, 1871. R.

(THE GLOBE.)

The American expedition, under Admiral Rodgers, is making rapid progress in the conquest of Korea. Mr. Consul Markham's telegram from Shanghai reports the capture of a stronghold on King Hoa Island, after a desperate resistance, with the loss of ten killed and wounded on the American side against 500 of the Koreans. Except as regards the latter number, the simultaneous telegram from Washington is confirmatory of Mr. Markham's despatch to the Foreign-office.

Here, then, is the opening of a new chapter in the history of that forced intercourse between civilised and semi-civilised races, in which it has fallen to the lot of our own country to play so prominent a part; and while the matters in question between the United States and Korea are yet simple, it is worth while to note these first beginnings of their international relations. We are so apt ourselves to shake our heads over the faults of our fathers, to look on our position in India, China, and elsewhere as the fruit of violence and immorality, to regard our possessions in the light of an illegitimate offspring, which it was wrong to call into being, but which it would be also wrong to desert, that we are satisfied, could we only have our national life over again, we should act very differently from our predecessors. There is, of course, a strong smack of well-to-do hypocrisy in all this; a repentance by proxy is not edifying, and is generally false in proportion to its demonstrativeness. But even the sleek traffickers in Brummagem virtue among ourselves have not been so hard upon us for our overbearing demeanour towards Asiatic races as the Americans have been. With regard to China, in particular, a thread of self-laudation runs through the whole series of despatches, and it is self-laudation at the expense of the Britisher, who is always held up as the representative of violence.

No matter what the provocation may have been, all the collisions we have had with the Chinese are held to be unjustifiable. Our treaties are condemned as having been made by force, without any reference to the fact that the use of force may have itself been forced on us; and American representatives have been always fluttering about the Chinese Court with the olive branch in their mouth, and making political capital out of the contrast they were enabled to draw between their own meek and Christianlike behaviour and the "tyrannic policy" which was the special distinction of the British. This maudlin attitude was safe enough, and might even be profitable, so long as it was felt that Great Britain could be trusted to protect the common interests of all foreign residents in China, American among the rest. It was impossible, indeed, for our Government to defend the interests of its own subjects without at the same time extending its protection to all other foreigners, and under these circumstances there was considerable "cuteness" in the Americans seeking credit for their submissiveness, while leaving their interests with confidence in other hands.

It is somewhat remarkable, however, that in proportion as the British Government has become indifferent to its own interests in China the American Government has become alive to the possibility of having to do something for itself. As the British fleet in the East has been reduced, so has the American been increased. The tone of communications with the Chinese has likewise undergone a change. The present Minister, Mr. Lowe, harping on the old string of unmitigated love, has been gently warned by Mr. Hamilton Fish that a change may come over the traditional policy of the United States in China—in other words, that as some Power must undertake to keep the Chinese to their engagements, the abandonment of this duty by Great Britain might cause it to devolve on the United States, in which case the humble and submissive mask would have to be laid aside.

Their action in Korea leaves no doubt of what is now the policy of the American Government. It is no unforeseen accident that has precipitated matters there. It is not the impulse of some hot-headed officer that has plunged two countries into war. The expedition, as we lately pointed out, has undergone a long period of gestation, something over three years. It is more than twelve months since the fiat went forth from Washington which is now being fulfilled. Korea must be opened. Had France or England undertaken this task, it would have been opened to American politicians to denounce the tyranny and what not, and to share the benefit. But as it happens, America has taken the whole onus on herself, and must henceforth hold somewhat different language concerning the doings of England in the East.

Mr. G. F. Seward had some carefully-prepared "arguments," which were "to be advanced to show the Koreans that a juster consideration of Eastern States is prevailing in the West." How far he got in expounding those arguments we shall, perhaps, hear by-and-by. In the meantime, the "argument" of 481 cannon captured, and 243 Koreans killed, old-fashioned as it is, will probably have been found more efficacious in convincing the Koreans, if not of the "juster consideration," at least of the determination of the West to bring the kingdom of Korea within that happy family which American statesmen are so fond of calling the comity of nations.

Monetary and Commercial.

The Salvage Committee—probably the name by which the Association for the protection of commercial interests as respects wrecked or damaged property is best known—has published a valuable circular, drawing attention to the numerous unreasonable and unfair clauses of exemption which are now being introduced into bills of lading for the Far East. These new conditions, if they carried any weight with them, would really deprive shippers of all control over the treatment, delivery, and destination of their goods. According to these new clauses, ships are to be at full liberty to call and stay at any ports out of their customary route, to sail without pilots, and not to be held liable for any damage resulting from defective machinery, careless navigation fire caused by heedlessness, injury from other cargo of a deleterious nature, dishonesty (mildly called "pilferage") on the part of the shipowners' servants, or any other wrong (equally euphuistically catalogued as "misdoing, error in judgment negligence, and default") by the same would-be privileged class. It is hardly necessary for us to remind our experienced readers that not one of these monstrous stipulations would "hold water" in the event of a case depending on them being brought into Court. We have the highest legal authority for stating that no stipulation or condition, however couched, can supersede the English "law of carriage" in the British Empire, or any of its dependencies. But, lest any of the recent innovations in the forms of bills of lading should fulfil their design of imposing on the unwary or the inexperienced, we recommend our readers to consult the work commonly called "Abbott on Shipping." The full title of this compendium of English law, which remains the standard of reference, is "A Treatise on the Law of Merchant Ships and Seamen," and has been repeatedly edited by distinguished lawyers since its first publication, which laid the foundation of the deserved reputation of the future Lord Chief Justice Tenterden. To consult this invaluable book will save any of our readers, who may be uncertain as to the law, from all the responsibilities now most unfairly sought to be imposed on them. The above association has made a general canvass of underwriters and merchants on the subject, and the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce has also taken up the question.

The report of the Assam Company, presented on the 30th ult., states that the favourable turn announced last year has been maintained, and that the profits for 1870 are estimated at £43,342, out of which a dividend of 10 per cent. is recommended, making, with the interim dividend already paid, 15 per cent. for the year. Should the prices recently obtained for the teas of the company be upheld, a good result is anticipated for the current twelve months. At the meeting on the 30th the report was carried.

The report of the Jorehaut Tea Company (Limited), presented on the 3rd of July, states that a dividend of 10 per cent. was paid from the profit of 1869, and that a final dividend of 10 per cent. from the profit of 1870 is now recommended, which with the 5 per cent. interim dividend paid in January last, will make a total distribution of 15 per cent., although the quantity of tea made in 1870 was smaller than that in 1869.

The Beechlands Coffee Estates Company is announced, with a capital of £75,000, in shares of £10 each, of which only one-half, or 3,750 shares, is to be issued in the first instance. The object of the company is stated to be the working and extending the cultivation of the Beechlands Coffee Estate, in the district of Coorg, East Indies, and of acquiring the Government grant and buildings upon the estate.

The traffic receipts over the China Submarine Telegraph Company's line for the twenty-three days ending June 30 amounted to £3,438. The traffic receipts over the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company's line for the month ending June 30 amounted to £5,093.

Messrs. Arbuthnot, Latham, and Co. have announced the admission into their firm of Mr. Charles George Arbuthnot, a son of their senior partner, as successor of the late Mr. George Latham.

Mr. Edward Pettit has been admitted a partner in the firm of Messrs. E. and A. Deacon, of Rood-lane.

The directors of the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Company (Limited) have issued their report, previously to the meeting to be held on the 11th inst. The accounts furnished show that the gross revenue for the six months ended March 31 amounted to £42,291, and the working expenses to £10,227, leaving a balance of £32,064, or nearly 10 per cent. upon the capital, which, under ordinary circumstances, would have been divisible among the shareholders. This result would be still more favourable but for the break in the cable mentioned in the interim report, which occurred November 28, and lasted for seventy-five days. The cost of repairing this break, less the reserve fund of £2,296, amounts to £13,554, which has been written off, together with income-tax, £274, leaving £18,236 as the available net profit on the half-year's operations. The directors, under the provisions of the 160th article of association, have declared a dividend on account of 5s. per share—being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum—amounting to £16,500.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

We have to report a very quiet market during the past fortnight, with but little alteration in prices, except that common red-leaf kinds have sold rather lower. The grades ranging from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. still remain scarce, but finer qualities have been offered freely from second hands at prices in favour of buyers.

Red-leaf Congous: Sitings show no change. Broken-leaf kinds have been dull of sale. Fair common, from 9½d. to 10½d. per lb., show a slight decline. Good common have been taken at 11d. to 11½d. per lb., being former prices. Fair qualities, from 1s. to 1s. 2d., have been steady, with a fair amount sold. In good to fine and finest transactions have been limited; Pak Lins remain firm. Black-leaf kinds: low qualities continue depressed, fair common have been sold from 10½d. to 10½d., showing no change. In good common there has been but little done in the absence of export demand. Fair to good medium have been wanted. Good to fine have been sold at a decline of fully 1d. per lb.; a parcel of finest sold at public sale from 2s. 2d. to 2s. 3d. Amoy kinds have been neglected, but prices show no change. In new-make Canton Congous further supplies received overland have sold at 1s. 6d. per lb. for fair, and 1s. 10½d. to 2s. for good to fine quality. Oolongs have been dull of sale, at previous prices. In Souchongs and Flowery Pekoes but little has been done. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been difficult of sale, and prices have ruled in favour of buyers. Foochow kinds remain steady. Canton Orange Pekoes have been taken more freely. Imitation Foochow kinds have sold from 11d. to 1s. 2d., and long-leaf kinds from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 7d. per lb., being rather better prices. Foochow kinds remain steady at previous prices. In Uncoloured Japans there has been nothing of interest to report. Green Teas: The demand for the finer grades has been good, and prices of these show some considerable advance. Common to medium grades are still difficult of sale at the low prices current. Canton Gunpowders have been sold from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. for fair quality, the lower kinds being difficult of sale.

SILK.

A very large business has been doing during the fortnight, attended by deliveries of considerable magnitude—the expected duty to be placed upon silk imported into France having induced operations on an unusually large scale; prices have stiffened in consequence, and the market is exceedingly firm (though there is less doing at the close) at the following improved rates from the recent lowest point of 1s. on China, 6d. to 1s. on Canton, 1s. on Filature Bengals, and 2s. to 2s. 6d. on Japans—the chief demand having been for China, Tealce, Cantons, and Japans.

The deliveries from 1st to 29th ult. were as follow:—

China	3,876	2,808
Canton	2,005	712

COFFEE.

The market for Ceylon has shown but little change during the fortnight; a fair demand has been shown for both Plantation and Native, and a considerable amount of business has been done at rates showing slight variation from those quoted in our report of the 19th ult. The public sales have been extensive; Plantation has met a good demand, and coloury kinds have sold readily at firmer prices, other qualities selling steadily. A rather large supply of Native has been chiefly bought in. The latest prices paid have been:—Plantation: Triage and ordinary, 48s. to 56s.; small, 57s. 6d. to 61s. 6d.; low middling rather small and grey kinds, 60s. to 64s.; middling coloury, 65s. to 71s.; good middling to fine middling, 71s. 6d. to 80s.; pea-berry, 79s. to 82s. Native: Ordinary brown, 48s.; small, 48s. 6d. to 50s. 6d.; fine pea-berry, 60s. to 61s. 6d. Of Singapore 529 bags sea-damaged bulked have been sold—good at 60s., mixed at 52s. to 55s., sound being bought in at 60s.; a subsequent offer of 465 bags partly sold—mixed at 55s., first-class sea-damaged Bonhyne at 59s. 6d.

The movements for the past week are of greater magnitude than for a long time past; the landings, which include 940 tons of foreign, are 500 tons in excess of last year, but the total deliveries, owing chiefly to the large exports to France, amount to 3,286 tons, and are 1,770 tons larger than in 1870, so that the stock is again importantly diminished, and the deficiency increased to the large amount of 6,000 tons. Stock, June 17, 16,095 tons, against 20,583 tons; June 24, 14,473 tons, against 20,503 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 269,648 cwt., against 234,700 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1870; Native 37,024 cwt., against 24,532 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 14,410 cwt. Plantation, against 12,853 cwt., and 3,301 cwt. Native, against 5,147 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-five weeks ended June 24, 1871, was, of Ceylon, 14,007 tons, against 15,913 tons during the corresponding period of 1870; of all descriptions, 26,382 tons, against 24,295 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 5,112 tons, against 5,156 tons; of all descriptions, 9,245 tons, against 8,708 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 14,077 tons, against 12,212 tons; of all descriptions, 27,462 tons, against 19,303 tons. The stock on June 24 was, of Ceylon, 8,423 tons, against 12,409 tons; of all descriptions, 14,473 tons, against 20,503 tons.

We learn from Holland that the monthly auction of the Dutch Trading Company was held on the 28th ult.; 89,600 bags Java, &c., were offered, and with a good demand were all taken off, prices being generally ½c. to 1c. above the valuations, good qualities being 1c. to 2c.

above; good ordinary sold at 84½c. to 85c., against 83½c. to 84c. in May. The following is the result of the sale in detail:—

COIR GOODS.—The market has been generally steady, except perhaps for the lower descriptions, which on account of abundance of supply meet less demand. Public Sales have embraced of Yarn 90 bales and 13 tons in dholls Cochin, sold—the former at £27 to £50 per ton for common to superior, and the latter at £23 to £23 15s.; 41 bales and 112 tons in dholla Ceylon, the former placed at £40 to £55 for fine to superior, and the latter very common to very fine £23 15s. to £47 per ton. Lemon Grass quiet; 21 cases at sale part sold at 2½d., being the former value. Aniseed has been in steady demand, but business has been limited to retail sales at 8s. 9d., 2 cases sold at auction at same price, and higher figures now demanded. PEPPER.—BLACK has been largely in demand for France, and a considerable business has been done on the spot, and to arrive. A speculative demand has also sprung up, and recently considerable excitement has prevailed, some 3,000 bags Singapore and Penang having changed hands on the spot, the former up to 5½d. per lb., and the latter up to 5½d. At public sale, 1,975 bags Singapore, and 1,641 bags Penang were partly sold up to the prices before named. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

STRONG AND HEARTY.—Every man, whatever his circumstances, station, or occupation, aims at attaining health at any price, though unfortunately many are too careless, or too confident in the strength of their constitutions, to bestow a thought on this all-important subject till sickness fairly sets in. Holloway's Pills now stand so very high in public estimation for purifying the blood and promoting the appetite and digestion that it is unnecessary to do more than name them as the surest and safest means of retaining or regaining robust health and corresponding strength. They act as purifiers, tonics, diuretics, and aperients, and they exercise over every organ the most wholesome influence.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

Our advices from the Japan ports have been anticipated by those which reached us via San Francisco, on the 1st inst., and were published in our last issue. The present mail brings dates from Yokohama to the 16th May.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 20th May; there had been no mail arrival since the 9th May, the English mail of the 7th April not being due until May 23. Telegrams from London had been received up to May 9.

Considerable excitement had been caused by reports from Tientsin of a fracas having taken place there between the suite of a Chinese official and a party of foreigners. The correct statement of the facts shows this report to have been exaggerated. It appears that while some gentlemen from H.M.S. Salamis were riding through the native city one of them flourishing his whip rather carelessly as he went along; the lash struck the Chentai—who chanced to be coming out of his yamen to get into his chair, as they passed—on the side of the face. No one of the party could speak Chinese to explain the accident, the guards made demonstrations of battle and murder, but the Chentai checked their excitement, and sent an escort with the officers back to the settlement, asking who they were and stating what happened. Of course an explanation and expression of regret for the accident were at once conveyed to him, whereupon he expressed himself quite satisfied; he had assumed that it was an accident, and only wished to be assured of the fact. If it had happened in the case of some petty ill-tempered mandarin, very likely he would have allowed his men rein. The Chentai acted properly and calmly, and the matter was explained and settled at once.

An unlooked for catastrophe had occurred to the new iron bridge over the Soochow Creek. While a number of people were assembled in the Gardens, listening to the Hertha's band, attention was attracted to the bridge by a somewhat prolonged crashing sound, and the first two sections of the structure, at the Hong-qew side, were seen to have fallen from their proper position. The cause of their fall was easily discovered, the two screw piles upon which they depended for support having, from some cause which is still matter of conjecture, given way about six or eight feet. The end of the section uniting with the shore portion was thereby displaced, the roadway had fallen into the creek, the girder on the north side was left pendant, threatening to follow the centre portion, while the girder on the south side was only saved by butting up against the point of the corresponding girder of the shore section and maintaining a slight hold on the pile. The shore section fortunately went down even with the piles and did not swerve in the slightest, though it descended so quickly and from so considerable a height. The most probable reason which can be assigned for the accident is that the solidified mud yielded suddenly to the pressure of the structure, and that the piles then entered a soft treacherous bed, into which they were driven some distance before the weight became partly thrown off, or some harder bottom being reached, they stopped, as on good a level each with the other as when they started. The flanges may have given way, but that is less probable, because they form almost an integral part of the piles. The damaged sections are being taken to pieces, and the girder in danger is meanwhile supported by chains to the sound portions of the bridge. The next couple of piles, nearer the centre, have been slightly displaced on the north side, no doubt by the jerk.

The first meeting of the new Municipal Council for the French

Concession was held on the 9th inst. Mr. Morel was elected President, and Mr. Forbes vice-President. Le Nouvelliste suggests planting the French Bund with trees, and improving various roads, as among the works which claim the new Council's attention.

The Shanghai Yacht Club has held a regatta, at which three races were sailed—the Falls' Cup open to all yachts, won by the Charm; a House-boat race, open to all except centreboard boats—did not fill; and a Scurry race for houseboats, open to all comers except centreboards, won by the Pangosfin.

A general parade of the Volunteer Corps was also held, to witness the distribution of prizes to the successful competitors at the rifle meeting. The prizes were delivered by John Dent, Esq.

The Shanghai officials had been excited by the prospect of a visit from the Futai. Rooms were prepared for him at the Arsenal, and for a week the Taoutai and his subordinates were daily in attendance expecting the Governor's arrival. One day they even took a steamer and went up the river to meet and bring him down; but, though report says they met him, he disappointed them after all.

The Chinese have a report that a steamer is being built at the Arsenal, to ply between Shanghai and Soochow, at $1 for the return trip. We fear that they are mistaken; a small steamer yacht is being built which is to take mandarins between Shanghai and Soochow, but steam carriage for the people is yet distant.

Another compradore case has come up at the Mixed Court. The culprit was one Wong-yet-san, who entered the service of Messrs. Oliveira and Co., French Concession, in November last. On the 12th of February he absconded, being at the time in possession of over Tls. 1,700 of his employers' money. He had also, it was found, failed to cash certain drawbacks allowed to constituents of the firm, thereby doing its credit serious injury; while he had, it was alleged, disposed of 18 piculs of lotus-nuts out of 150 piculs under his control, in order to meet a request for a portion of the money which should have been in his hands available on demand. The deficiency in the lotus-nuts was made up by putting in a corresponding weight of beans, the latter being worth Tls. 2 a picul against Tls. 12 for the other; and the deception was not discovered till the goods had been sold and delivered. After keeping out of sight for a month or two, the compradore came forward to relieve his relatives from pressure, and offered to pay two instalments of Tls. 100 a month, to be followed by payments Tls. 25 a month. Seeing that this would barely pay interest on the defalcations, the arrangement was declined, and the case brought before Chen. After much investigation the magistrate found the compradore liable for Tls. 1,100 of the whole amount of about Tls. 2,000, as some transactions by which the compradore lost were on joint account, and with this finding the plaintiffs were fain to be satisfied. The compradore was ordered to be locked up till the money was paid.

An interesting case has been decided before H.B.M. Supreme Court. Some years ago Mr. Jose Loureiro confided certain valuable documents to the care of Mr. H. P. Hanssen. After the latter became a partner in Dent and Co., he detained these as set off against an alleged claim by Dent and Co. The question of his right to do so was submitted to arbitration, and decided against Dent and Co. The present action was to recover damages for the detention. It was given against the plaintiff, on the ground that the question came within the scope of the reference to arbitration, and could not again be raised.

A form of census return has been circulated among those who have had the privilege of paying $5 to qualify themselves as British subjects—to be filled up with reference to the census taken in Great Britain in April last.

Ningpo has been busy "speeding the parting" British Consul, Mr. W. H. Fittoch, who has gone home on leave, most probably for good, after twenty-five years' residence in China. Addresses have been presented to him both by the foreign and native communities.

A number of steamers have gone up to Hankow to load the new season's tea. One of them, the Lord of the Isles, got ashore on a sandbank called the Dove's-nest, but floated again with the night's tide.

The Peking Gazette announces a glorious victory over the Mahomedans, in which one of their chief leaders was captured, with a number of his followers, and, of course, beheaded. Terms seem to have been subsequently made with the remainder, and quiet to be temporarily restored in Kansuh.

SHANGHAI, May 12, 1871.

Before this reaches you it is not improbable that the telegraph will have conveyed to you the news of the success or failure of the United States Expedition to Korea. The early-expected completion of the telegraph from Singapore to Hong Kong will facilitate such a communication from this port to London; but it may not be altogether uninteresting to offer one or two brief observations on the expedition, which will be carried out by nearly all the American vessels of war on this station, under the direction of Mr. Low, the United States Minister, and Admiral Rodgers. The flagship, with the Admiral and Minister on board, is to sail for Nagasaki, the place of rendezvous, and it is certain that little time will be lost in starting for Korea. Before leaving Peking Mr. Low addressed a letter to the Korean Government explanatory of the peaceful objects of his contemplated visit to Korean waters; but it was with considerable difficulty that he succeeded in inducing the Tsung-li-yamen to undertake to forward it, although Korea is one of the tribute-bearing principalities of the Chinese Empire. This does not, in my opinion, augur either well or ill for the result of the attempt to enter into relations with the Koreans; it is rather a marked indication of the Chinese habit of exclusiveness, a proof of the fact that no sincere co-operation is possible on the Chinese side with ourselves, and a manifestation of that profound indifference which ignores us and knows us not, except in so far as we have compelled our existence and our wishes to be acknowledged and respected. I presume there was no precedent for such a humiliating act as that of the great Chinese Emperor condescending to become the intermediary between two of his tributary States, and it was only when Mr. Low insisted that they were refusing the most reasonable request, and rose and left in displeasure, that they followed him to the gate and agreed to forward the letter. Too crafty and obstructive to yield with a good grace, too weak and vacillating to persist in refusal when a firm attitude is maintained, such has been the invariable character of Chinese policy.

The objects of the expedition are pacific, namely, to enquire into the fate of the persons who were on board the American schooner General Sherman, to secure protection for shipwrecked mariners, and to try to establish some means of intercourse with the Koreans; and as the American Government do not intend that hostilities should be resorted to unless the fleet should find itself in such peculiar circumstances as to render fighting inevitable, we may infer that the expedition will succeed or fail according to the goodwill or otherwise of the Korean Government. However much we should desire success, unfortunately we can scarcely hope for it. There is no faith to be placed in the spontaneous tendencies of semi-civilised races towards free intercourse or international relations, and I cannot but feel that the United States Minister does not possess the discretionary power by which alone the expedition could be made successful. If the United States Government had instructed their Minister to assume a resolute attitude towards the Korean authorities, and to insist on their entering into engagements as to the treatment of shipwrecked sailors, we can hardly doubt that this could have been accomplished without any resort to force. But without such authority and such pressure in reserve we may be certain that the Koreans will offer such objections and obstacles as will throw upon the Minister and Admiral the onus of deciding whether they will risk a forward movement in which they may have to resort to force, or retire from Korean waters, the object of their visit remaining unaccomplished. In such circumstances the latter alternative will be the only one that they can fairly adopt, and thus if such should prove to be the upshot one more failure to open up relations with Korea will have to be recorded. Five or six shipwrecked Koreans who had been blown off their own coast and picked up and brought to Chefoo go back with the expedition, but I doubt if even this peace-offering will be of any service in breaking down the exclusiveness from which no Oriental nation seems to be able voluntarily to emancipate itself. One thing, however, will be set at rest by the expedition. If success attends it an important beginning will be made; if it fails, the foreign Governments will have the clearest demonstration as to the conditions on which success cannot be obtained.

REPORT OF THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

The report of the Municipal Council for the year ended 31st March, with appendices and estimates for the current year, have been published. The cost of the erection of waterworks sufficient for the daily supply of a million and a-half of gallons is estimated at about Tls. 300,000. The affairs of the municipality are in a prosperous state. The expenditure is Tls. 11,120 in excess of the receipts; but this was to be expected from the unlooked-for burden falling on the funds during the year just concluded.

The proposed disbursements for the current year are estimated at Tls. 211,836, or about Tls. 22,000 less than in 1870-1. The most important variations are the increase of the police establishment from Tls. 40,707 to 45,170; and the reduction of public works from Tls. 80,894 to 72,563; the fire department from Tls. 11,746 to 2,000; and the Volunteers from Tls. 14,930 to 3120.

The health officer's report describes the persistence of the small-pox epidemic, which first manifested itself among foreigners, in November, 1869, as the leading feature of disease during the past year. The death-rate is, however, believed to be lower than in foreign populations in most other Eastern towns, and it is suggested that on this account the extra premia demanded by life assurance offices should be reduced. The foreign population in Shanghai seems to have considerably diminished since 1865. In the English and Hong-qew Settlements there were in the former year 2,297 individuals; last year there were only 1,666. In the French Concession the number had also fallen from 460 to 316; and, in the navy and merchant shipping, from 1,513 to 1,101. It is satisfactory to observe, however, that the death rate had fallen from 58.5 per 1,000 in 1865 to 33.4 per 1,000 in 1870; but it must be remembered that the mortality in 1865 was exceptionally high. From 1866 to the present year the average death rate may be estimated at 34 per 1,000. The drainage of the settlement has engaged much attention, and an account of all the works executed from the year 1862, when regular drainage operations were commenced in Shanghai, was compiled by Mr. Johnston, and published in September last. It appears to require great improvement in order to discharge the sewage directly into the river.

The health officer has also published "A Report on Prostitution in Shanghai," in which he has dealt with a difficult and repugnant task with the skill and tact which might be expected from him. The result of Dr. Henderson's observation is to convince him of the advisability of founding a lock hospital, and introducing into Shanghai an ordinance similar to our Contagious Diseases Act.

HONG KONG.

We have advices from this port to the 26th May. The outward mail—P. and O. of the 7th April was received on the 17th May, and the following French mail of April 14 on the 25th May. The latest telegrams were dated May 16.

Kwok Asing, the coolie formerly charged with the murder of the captain of the Novelle Penelope, coolie ship, has been again discharged by Chief Justice Smale. Having narrated how prisoner was arrested immediately on his discharge by this Court, the Chief Justice remarked that it was open to the prisoner to contend that such arrest vitiated all subsequent proceedings. His Lordship then set forth, clearly, the exact sameness of the charges upon which (1) prisoner was first committed, (2) on which he was committed the second time, and (3) on which the information against him was founded. As he was deprived of assistance from any precedent, his Lordship had to give his own construction to Section 6; and from this construction, as given at length in the judgment, the prisoner is freed from the commitment and the information. He was discharged, and effect was ordered to be given to the decision at the risk of a contempt of Court in case of noncompliance. His Lordship remarked strongly on the case of the Dolores Ugarte, and said that the inquiry into its circumstances ought not to be left entirely to the conductors of newspapers. Touching upon the other points relating to the Ugarte case, his Lordship said—"It would be useful to know what ship, and flying what flag it was, that towed the Dolores Ugarte out of the Macao road, and whether any and what insurers, and of what nationality secured as a debt of honour to the slavers the value of the living cargo in the event that has happened." His Lordship concluded by again laying down the general legal principle that if a number of the men are not in lawful custody they are not guilty of the murder of those de facto in authority over them; being prisoners they have a right to regain their freedom by any means in their power. The man was discharged.

The junkman, who acted so laudably in rescuing the unfortunate coolies of the Dolores Ugarte, is to be rewarded by the Government with a gratuity of $100.

Another victim has been added to the list of mortalities from small-pox—Inspector W. L. Auningson, senior inspector in charge of Showkewan village.

The Chinese in the Holy City are on the tapis of preparing a grand procession on the occasion of presenting a farewell address to Lieut.-Col. Leite, the superintendent of police there. The address is to be richly embroidered on satin, and is sentimentally expressive of the gratitude of the people for the efforts Lieut.-Col. Leite has been making to promote their interest. The whole affair is likely to cost some 3,000 or 4,000 taels, and the money is raised by voluntary subscriptions.

There has been a meeting at Canton of those interested in the Silk trade. The first resolution, proposed by Mr. Crace, and seconded by Mr. Nye, was as follows:—"That the Foreign Consuls be applied to in order to induce the Viceroy of the two Kwangs to issue a proclamation, recommending the country dealers to send none but good conditioned silk to market." This resolution being put to the vote, there were 14 ayes and 6 noes. The second resolution was proposed by Mr. Mestern, and seconded by Mr. Hulze:—"That all foreign buyers shall conform to an old-established custom, partially fallen into disuse, that is, of claiming compensation of the native seller for any loss in weight on fine raw silk, sold in Europe or America, in excess of 3 per cent. on the net weight, previous to shipment, and on waste in excess of 5 per cent. This resolution was carried nem. con. The third resolution, moved by Mr. Crace, and seconded by Mr. Smith, was to this effect:—"That the silk dealers be invited to consider that contracts duly entered by a foreign firm in its books in presence of the dealer, shall be binding not only as to the amount of the article, but also as to the quality to be delivered, and that, should they fail in the latter particular, the matter to be arbitrated in such a way as shall, hereafter, be agreed upon." Carried nem. con. Mr. Thomas then proposed:—"That a committee of three silk-inspectors, with power to add to their number, be formed, to take the foregoing resolutions into consideration, and to report progress at a future time." This was unanimously carried. After a vote of thanks to the Chairman, the meeting separated. The subject of robberies of silk-packages, when on transit, both to Europe and America, also came before the meeting. This matter, —a very grave one in its nature—was referred to the Committee.

The only item of news we can collect from the Courier is that the Colonial Secretary, having been compelled to resign from ill-health, was replaced by a gentleman under whose management the books have become embarrassed to twenty million francs.

BANGKOK.

An American circus has been opened and patronised by both the Supreme and the Second King.

On the 6th May a steamer, belonging to H.M. the Second King, was sent to the German Consulate, to convey an autograph letter from H.I. Majesty the Emperor of Germany to H.M. the Second King. The letter, resting upon a gold vase, which was double, was very reverently placed by the Siamese conductor upon a round table in the audience hall, and four iron guns, which were dexterously served by sprightly Siamese gunners, vociferated twenty-one loud shouts of welcome. The audience was short and interesting. His Majesty rose, bowed, and, pacing backwards, returning the bows of the Consular party, disappeared. At the same time all the prostrate princes and nobles of the Second King's court, who were present, each with his palm-joined hands, raised his body resting on his knees, lowered it again to a resting position upon the knees and elbows, and abjectly touched his forehead to the carpeted floor of the hall; this prostration was performed thrice at the opening and the close of the audience.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings: Little demand for 7 lbs., and prices again slightly lower. With less pressure by importers, ordinary 8½ lbs. improved to Tls. 1.80 to 1.83 per piece, at which considerable sales were made, but the advance was subsequently lost. Heavy makes quoted a mace lower, closing at Tls. 1.58 to 1.63 for 7 lbs., Tls. 1.78 to 1.90 for 8½ lbs., and Tls. 2.20 to 2.42 for 9½ lbs. T-Cloths: A good quantity forced off at a decline of a mace per piece, and lower offers made. Good Mexican 7 lbs. quoted Tls. 1.40 to 1.45, 8 lbs. sold at Tls. 1.80 to 1.85 per piece. Drills: Previous rates no longer obtainable; only small sales made. Fancy Cottons: All descriptions are out of demand; quotations nominal. Woollens and Worsteds: No inquiry. Figured Orleans: Large supplies; prices declined about two mace per piece, at which sales were difficult to effect. Metals: Lead weaker, without any inquiry. Quick-silver nominally quoted Tls. 80 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—Since the departure of the last (French) mail there had been considerable activity in the Import market, especially for Shirtings, very large transactions had been entered into, and a fair advance in rates had resulted. The upward turn the market had taken was chiefly due to a private telegram dated London, May 3, to the effect that Shirting shipments had almost stopped. Grey Shirtings: The telegram just alluded to had caused considerable excitement amongst foreign and native speculators, and had led to the settlement of upwards of 100,000 pieces, chiefly of 8½ lbs., at an advance of 5 to 6 candareens per piece. Common chops 8½ lbs. sold at Tls. 1.78 to 1.80 per piece, good at Tls. 1.81 to 1.85 per piece, and best Eagles at Tls. 1.90 per piece; 7 lbs. had not received much notice, and there had been comparatively little done in them, but the market was firmer; heavy weights were unsaleable. White Shirtings: At from Tls. 2.00 to 2.05 per piece fair settlements of 64-reeds had been made; for other counts little inquiry existed, and prices were nominal. T-Cloths: The market had shown great irregularity; best kinds of Mexicans both of 6 lb. and 7 lb. weights had been most wanted; but a fair business had also been done in the commoner descriptions at about former prices; 8 lbs. lower; best quality offering at Tls. 1.80 per piece, without attracting notice. Drills had likewise shown great irregularity, prices fluctuating between Tls. 2.55 to Tls. 2.65 per piece for English, of which the bulk of the settlements consisted. Dutch had also found buyers to some extent at Tls. 2.45 to 2.60. More enquiry manifested for Jeans, sales of about 10,000 pieces reported at Tls. 2.08 to 2.10 per piece for common to good. Sheetings: A small parcel of English sold at Tls. 3.95 per piece, other sales at Tls. 3.80 to 3.85, and "to arrive" at Tls. 3.70 per piece. Fancy Goods: Great quietness had pervaded the market, and quotations were nominal. The same may be said of the Woollen market; small sales of Camlets, Long Ells, Figured Lustres and Spanish Stripes had been made, but rates had favoured buyers in every instance, and the tendency was still downward. Lead: Total stagnation prevailed; Chinese brokers holding speculative purchases offered to sell L. B. at Tls. 4.30 for cash. Quotations nominal. Coals: Without improvement; Cardiff, from absence of demand, easier; Newcastle has declined, sales at Tls. 7.30 per ton.

HONG KONG.—The market, although without actual improvement, had shown more steadiness, owing to importers having shown less anxiety to effect sales. Business had been extremely limited, dealers holding off in anticipation of a further decline. Cotton Yarn: Quite neglected and prices nominal. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., trifling demand; 8½ lbs., weak; sales as low as $2.25 of inferior chops; most importers decline selling at quotations; heavy goods, little doing. White Shirtings: Nothing doing, prices nominal. T-Cloths: Little doing, and prices slightly lower. Other Cotton goods unsaleable. Woollens: Nothing doing. Metals: Iron Nail Rod: Forced sales and large stocks had caused a decline of 20c; market closed weak. Lead: Little or nothing doing. Coals: Of Cardiff coals 4 cargoes had come to hand, 2 for consumers, 1 sold previously at $12, and the other for sale. Owing to sales for distant arrival of about 2,000 tons at the low price of $10½, quotations were with difficulty maintained for supplies on the spot. Quotations—Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., $2 to 2.05 per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.27½ to 2.32½; 9.12 to 10 lbs., $3.20 to 3.35. White Shirtings, $1.90 to 2.80 per piece; fine, $3.10 to 4.70 per piece. T-Cloths: 6 lbs. ordinary, $1.40 to 1.42½ per piece; Mexicans, $1.60 to 1.65 per piece; 7 lbs. ordinary, $1.62½ to 1.67½ per piece; Mexicans, $1.85 to 2 per piece; 8 to 8.4 lbs., $2.30 to 2.45 per piece. Iron Nail Rod, $2.20 to 2.35 per picul; Lead, $5.60 to 5.80 per picul.

BATAVIA.—Maddapollams: Dutch White: Little doing; narrow widths neglected. Grey: Stocks reduced, moderate enquiry. English white 31 inch 48 reed overstocked; Grey 32 inch 3, slight demand. Shirtings: Dutch White 6/4 in little demand; prices lower: English White 45-inch in little demand; 36-inch fine, sales at very low rates; Grey: Large stocks. Cambrics: Little doing; No. 15/16 offered at low rates. Drills: Both Dutch and English neglected; large stocks. Jaconets: Without transactions. T. R. Cloth: Almost without any demand. Dyed Cloth: Only Orange in some request. Prints: Stocks, large, sales at lower prices. Mule Twist: Small sales, prices weak. T. R. Twist: Some enquiry. Sewing Thread: Saleable to a small extent. Batticks: Without any improvement. Wove Goods: Still dull. Blankets: Woollen, little doing; Molton, trifling sales.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—The market has continued very dull during the fortnight, and though prices generally show little change, still in some staples a further slight decline has taken place. Grey Shirtings: 8½ lb. only in moderate demand; but there has been more firmness amongst holders, and rates show a slight advance; small transactions at $2.30 to $2.35; stocks large; 7 lb. in little enquiry at $2; 6 lb. in no demand, and quoted $1.70; 45 inch: 9 lb., moderate sales at $2.67½ to $2.75; 8 lb., very dull at $2.30; other weights quite neglected. White Shirtings: Stocks of all descriptions heavy. For common and medium hardly any demand; fine, of favourite makes, saleable at about last rates, but demand not brisk; 45 inch, 64 reed, nominal at $3.45 to $3.50. White Spots: To effect sales lower prices have been accepted, transactions at $2.37½ to $2.40 for 14 by 15; for 16 by 16 there is no enquiry. White Brocades: unsaleable and nominal; White Cambrics: 15-16s limited demand at lower rates transactions at $26½ per corgie; low and medium continue excessively dull; stocks heavy. White Maddapollams unsaleable; no business reported. Imitation Irishes dull; at $1.50 to $1.60. T. Cloths: Inquiry moderate without any change in prices. 5 lb $1.17½ to $1.22½. 6 lb. $1.42½ to $1.45. 7 lb. very dull at $1.65 to $1.70. Light weight are in no request and nominal at $1 for 4 lb. and $1.10 for 4½ lb. Maddapollams: A trifling demand for 2½ lb. at $16½. 3 lb. quoted nominally $17½ to $18 per corgie. Grey Yarn: Moderate demand for 40s at a reduction in price, sales made at $107. 30s nominal at $100 to $101. 18-24s nominal at $85 to $86. 24s saleable to a small extent at $92 to $95. Coloured Yarns: Turkey Red, Glasgow dye; 12 lb. in fair demand at $135 to $137½. 10 lb. quiet at $128 to $129. German dye in no demand. Other colours are dull. Woollens of all description continue excessively dull, and small sales are reported at lower rates.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Rain with but occasional fine weather had prevailed for some weeks, and by last accounts seems to have been general in the neighbouring districts, thereby delaying the picking and firing of the new Teas: musters (exclusive of Ningehows) were not expected to be shown before the 22nd to 24th May. Regarding price there was no reliable information, but in most of the Oopack districts high rates are reported as being paid.

SHANGHAI.—With the exception of one small settlement of common Green there had been nothing done during the fortnight.

FOOCHOW.—Information had been received through the teamen of the commencement of business in new Congous in all the country markets. Prices had, on the whole, been about the same as those of last year for all qualities excepting the finest, for which latter from one to two taels more had been realised. At first it had been believed that the new season would be a much earlier one, so far at least as regarded the receipt of new teas from the country, the favourable reports sent in by the growers from time to time having induced that anticipation. This, however, had not been borne out, as thus far only four musters of Congou and one of Oolong had been shown, and the total stock of new tea at this port did not amount to 2,000 chests. Under these circumstances no idea could be formed of the crop, and the teamen's reports were conflicting. There appears to have been some excitement at the opening of the Oolong market, the result being an advance of two taels on the prices paid last year. Later news, however, reported a much quieter feeling, and a consequent decline of from two to three taels from early values. It was said that this season's supply would probably be much heavier than that of last. Considerable quantities of Scented teas were being packed, and would shortly be placed on the market.

CANTON.—The arrivals of New Season's Leaf, from the near districts had been on a much smaller scale than in former seasons, and this, combined with an absence of any inclination on the part of foreigners to enter the market, and the exorbitant prices demanded by holders for their scanty stocks, had prevented anything like a commencement of business. The Scenting Flower still remained very cheap. The only transactions reported during the fortnight had been 270 half-chests District Congou, at Tls. 20 to 26, and 1,000 half-chests Pouchong at Tls. 14; the former, it was reported, for the London market, and the latter for Australia.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skezgs and Co.'s Circular:—There has been only a small business doing in the article during the past fortnight, as most of the dealers have been away up-country; some few have returned and report very favourably of the progress of the worms. In some districts spinning has already commenced, while in others they are in their fourth stage. Small musters are expected in about a week, and some few bales will in all probability be down in time for the first mail in June. Buyers, both foreign and native, are not at all anxious to make contracts; on the contrary, much coldness is exhibited on both sides, and the latter affirm if foreigners will only have patience and not buy for the first month we may see a reduction of 20 per cent. or perhaps 30 on last season's opening prices. This under ordinary circumstances might appear favourable, but as most of the men estimate the yield at from 45 to 50,000 bales, and there is every prospect of an exceedingly large crop in Europe, it is highly improbable that prices, even with the above reduction, can prove remunerative, especially in the unsettled state of political affairs on the Continent.

CANTON.—About 300 bales of the first crop have been placed on the market. Heavy rains, which had fallen during the fortnight, were considered favourable to the development of the second crop, but rather unfavourable for the purchases of the first, which was offering. The latest news from France also had a tendency to check buying, and this, with the heavy stock in the London market, would tend, it was considered, to lower the prices demanded.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack: f.88 to f.90 per leaguer; small sales; stock reduced. Cloves: f.25 per picul, nominal. Coffee: Nominal. Cubes: f.15 per picul; offered at quotation. A cutter left on the 21st to look for the ship but returned the next day without success. GOVERNMENT ADMINISTRATION IN THE STRAITS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The Straits newspapers mention that the Colonial Office has disallowed a vote of 1,680 dollars, or about £400, which was granted last year by the Legislative Council, for the supply of gas to the new Government House, and the Colonists will not fail to appreciate an act which shows that their interests are more considered by Lord Kimberley than the interests of the Governor. But his Lordship would render the Colony a still more important service if he would ascertain how the gas was paid for in former years. Certainly no vote for it appeared in black and white on the Estimates, but it is generally believed in Singapore that it was charged to the Colony under the head of unforeseen charges. If this be true, it would remain for Lord Kimberley to determine whether such a payment could be properly charged to such a vote, and indeed whether such a vote ought ever to be allowed.—Your obedient servant,

July 10, 1871.

LITERATURE.

The Rev. Ernest J. Eitel, whose exhaustive treatise, the "Handbook for the Student of Chinese Buddhism," attracted so much attention at the time of its publication by Messrs. Trubner last year, has just published three introductory Essays on the same highly interesting and popularly educational subject. The Essays before us, also published by Messrs. Trubner and Co., appear to have been first given in the form of lectures in Hong Kong in the course of last winter. The style of the author is pure and eminently suggestive. Most of our readers will no doubt procure the little volume for themselves. We will not therefore spoil their perusal of it by the extracts which we should willingly make if we were addressing a community less informed on the subject. We cannot, however, lay down the pamphlet without congratulating Mr. Eitel on the service that he has rendered to the causes of religion, religious toleration and literature, by the pains he has bestowed on a subject which, though evidently congenial to his own intellectual perceptions, is as yet, we are sorry to say, "caviare to the multitude" of English readers at home. But Mr. Eitel may comfort himself with the reflection that his "Handbook of Buddhism" has made its mark on the minds of the educated few, and that his present production is a most welcome and useful complement to it.

We have received the report of the Oriental College of Paris, containing an interesting introductory lecture on the Japanese, by Professor Leon de Rosny, with a note explanatory of the derivation of Japanese words, by M. Charles de Labarthe. We also perceive the announcement of a new German-Tibetan dictionary, by M. H. A. Yaeschke. This will be the fourth work of the kind compiled by an European. From Japan La France en Orient reports movements so threatening on the part of the Buddhists to the foreigners that, unless checked, it may lead to a revolution.

BREAKFAST—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet of tin is labelled—JAMES EPPS & CO., HOMEOPATHIC CHEMISTS, LONDON. Epps's Cocoa is also prepared with condensed milk, and sold in tins, labelled Epps's Milky Cocoa.

THE BISHOP OF VICTORIA ON MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

Bishop Alford arrived in San Francisco on the 13th ult., and, on the invitation of his clergy, he delivered an address in the Church of the Advent, San Francisco. His subject was "Position and Prospects of Christian Missions in China and Japan."

The Right Rev. Prelate said:—"As regards China, I think it right to tell you that the Chinese Imperial Government is at this time making a very serious and determined effort to rid the country of Christian missionaries. In view of the manner in which the Tientsin massacre and the Yangchow riot have been apparently regarded by Great Britain and the United States the Chinese Government has become emboldened to make demands of Europe and America in reference to missionaries and their converts, which, if acceded to, must greatly curtail mission work in China, if not eventually expel all missionaries from the country. I am informed by those who have seen the despatch (for the document has not been made public, though it has already been forwarded by the representatives of the Great Powers, European and American, residing at Peking, to their respective Governments) that it is drawn up in a way eminently calculated to attract attention, and that it is in some respects as directed against Roman Catholic missions in China (apparently so reasonable, that—especially in the estimation of those, and they are not a few—who fail to recognise the distinctive principles and practice of the Roman Catholic propaganda and of the Episcopal Church in America and England in reference to missions) it is greatly calculated to prejudice the credit and therein the stability and extension of all Christian missions in China, Protestant as well as Roman Catholic.

The Bishop next gave a statement of the demands made by Prince Kung. It was while the Foreign-office had in course of final settlement the Tientsin affair, and when all demands of the Catholic Bishop, including the erection of a monument to mark the reprobation of the assassins, that the unexpected manifesto was launched forth. The French Government, the Chinese well knew, were unable to obtain redress by force, and agents in Europe furnished information as to the distractions existing among the great Powers. England would not act; Mr. Low, the United States Minister, was, to say the least, neutral, and the German representative could not be expected to enter warmly into a defence of French rights. Prince Kung found the time favourable, and gave expression to the real sentiments of the mandarins respecting Christian missionaries. The Tientsin treaties were in full force; but the treaties negotiated by Mr. Burlingame were never ratified, and remain unratified unto the present day. The demands are briefly to the following effect:—Missionaries residing beyond the limits of a consular port shall be subject to the judicial decision and treatment of the local mandarin instead of the nearest consul. All mission establishments shall be supervised by Chinese officers appointed for that purpose. In case of a riot by a Chinese mob no compensation for ruined property shall be demanded of the place where the riot occurred. All foreign ladies shall be sent home, such teachers being injurious to the peace and retirement of Chinese female society, and no native woman shall be allowed to attend meetings for Christian worship. No missionary shall receive more than forty-five converts. No native children shall attend Christian schools. A public registration office shall be established, in which all baptisms shall be noted, and the history, residence, and condition of the applicants recorded.

Such are the leading features of Prince Kung's despatch, and which in a few words wipes out of existence all the treaties concluded with China since 1844. There are a few more provisions of a similar character, to grant which, in whole or in part, would be to expel the missionary from China and close the door for ever against him in the discharge of his office. The amount of property, consisting of churches, schools, asylums, cemeteries, &c., belonging to the missionaries reaches millions of dollars. This money was invested on the strength of treaties, and, of course, if the new policy of exclusion be carried out, this property becomes almost a total loss.

His lordship next alluded to the condition of Christian missionaries in Japan. In that country the hostility of the Government to Christianity is more marked and offensively declared than in China. At this time, said the Bishop, not only is Christianity forbidden in Japan, but a baptised Japanese is held by Japanese law to be a rebel against his sovereign, the Mikado. Christians are now deported by hundreds. A few years since several thousand Christian families were seized and scattered among the provinces. They were condemned to work in mines, and, were it not for the active interference of the representatives of the Treaty Powers, these poor people would undoubtedly have suffered death. The mines are now manned by Roman Catholic Christians, where they are held in a kind of bondage. The narrative of the Sir Harry Parkes (steamship) at Nagasaki, in 1869, which was to have taken a crowd of Christians out to sea to drown them, will be remembered in confirmation of the bloodthirsty designs of the Mikado's officers against Christian converts; nor are the Roman Catholic missionaries and their converts the only objects of such barbarous practices. Our Protestant missions are almost rendered nugatory by the jealous espionage of the Japanese authorities. At Nagasaki I saw a guardhouse erected opposite our English missionary's residence, so that all who entered might be noted and reported. The missionaries may not preach to the people. A missionary attempting to preach in Japan would be immediately proceeded against for disturbing the peace.

The Bishop concluded by hoping that America and Great Britain would ere long "teach China and Japan better." In this view the speaker held the views entertained by all enlightened foreigners. The Celestials only understood force, and the arguments that could be used most effectively should be backed by force.

NEW CLAUSES IN BILLS OF LADING.

WE beg to call the attention of our readers to the announcement in another column of some resolutions to be proposed at a meeting of merchants interested in the Far East, which will be held at the London Tavern to-morrow morning for the purpose of protesting against the insidious clauses now sought to be introduced into the bills of lading of a certain clique of steamship owners. It is quite unnecessary to dwell on the importance of the question, or to point out the unfairness of the proposed clauses. We may, however, be permitted to remind our readers of the necessity of taking action promptly to repel the attempted abuse, which, we may be sure, will be turned into a "precedent" at the very first opportunity with the sharpest possible practice, unless immediately repudiated by those whose interests it is designed to sacrifice. The movement being supported by such names as those of Messrs. MATHESON, Messrs. BARING, Messrs. GREGSON, Messrs. GIBB, Messrs. FORBES, Messrs. DENT, and Messrs. HUTH, there can be little doubt of a large attendance and complete unanimity at the meeting.

THE "MALOO MIXTURE" SCANDAL.

THANKS to the perseverance of Mr. MAGNIAC, Mr. PEEK, Mr. W. LAWRENCE, Mr. J. C. BETTS, and other honourable representatives of the China trade, there is at length some probability that the dangerous nuisance of spurious tea will some day be removed. It certainly seems discouraging to find Mr. CHICHESTER FORTESCUE informing the deputation which waited on him, and told him that Dr. LETHEBY had found twenty-five per cent. of iron filings in this sort of "tea," that the Government have no power to prevent the circulation of such poison after the duty has been paid on it. But, on the other hand, there is hope—though rather dim and roundabout, seeing that the question has been bandied about from Circumlocution-office to Circumlocution-office from the Commissioners of Sewers to the Board of Trade—that "the subject should receive the earnest consideration of Government," and that, in the meantime, he "would be glad if the deputation would supply him with additional facts and information." Seeing that the deputation had already mentioned the startling fact that Dr. LETHEBY had detected iron filings in about the proportion of a moderate-sized crowbar to every chest of "Maloo Mixture," and that other authorities equally reliable had drawn attention to the circumstance that the great bulk of the remainder of this "tea" consists of willow-leaves, spent tea-leaves, and animalculæ (which last probably assist the general adulteration on the voyage, from the inevitable fermentation of the hateful stuff, and are certainly the only blameless parties engaged in the transaction), we are somewhat at a loss to understand what more "information" Mr. FORTESCUE wants. Surely he did not expect the deputation to drink any of the decoction, and tell him how ill they were afterwards? Were not the facts brought under the notice of the President of the Board of Trade sufficient to engage him to promise without more ado that he would put an end to a shameful—or shameless—system which is corroding the stomachs of young and old, for no better excuse than that "duty" has been paid on an article with the distinct representation that it was what it was not? We remember very well that Mr. BRIGHT, on the accession of the present Government to power, declared that "adulteration was only a form of competition." But, if adulteration is to be carried on with impunity in the ratio of the "Maloo Mixture," it seems to us that poisoning will soon become only "a form of competition" too. In the meantime the deputation will scarcely be satisfied with the assurance that our just and comprehensive legal system condemns the ignorant retail vendor of an ounce of this abomination to heavy fine if as much iron as would make a shot is detected in it, while it protects the "merchant" who consigns us the same article five thousand cases at a time from any penal consequences so long as "duty" is paid on it.

THE "BURMESE ENVOYS."

A LETTER has appeared in the Standard under the above title, and with the signature of "SCRUTATOR," who dates from 14, St. James's-square, in which the writer refers to "certain Burmese gentlemen at present in England, who are definitely, or rather indefinitely, described as 'our guests—the 'Burmese,' or 'The Burmese Mission,' or 'The Burmese Envoys.'" He proceeds:—

It ought not to surprise us to find that, with the object of entering upon direct diplomatic relations with the Foreign-office in this country, certain Burmese gentlemen of the King's household (whatever that means) should have arrived, as it were, in a private capacity and on a private visit, without being officially accredited to any Government, but bearing with them certain instructions and a letter or letters from the native Government to our Prime Minister, and something in the shape of a present or decoration (?) from his Majesty the King of Burmah to Mr. W. H. Gladstone. But it is matter for surprise to find that the letters and presents so insidiously designed should have been received, accepted, and duly acknowledged on the part of Her Majesty's Government. Let us not shirk the conclusion to which such courteous imbecility on the part of our home Government by undue interference with Eastern affairs (which they cannot reasonably hope to understand) inevitably points. It simply means mischief and danger to the efficiency of our local administration within and beyond British India. The so-called "Burmese mission," or Burmese envoys, must be pronounced an illusion, for the following reasons:—1. Because it is a sham to call the Burmese gentlemen "our guests," when they are not so, or describe them as "envoys" as long as they are not officially accredited to our Government. 2. Because it is a sham, and an affront to our hospitality towards foreign visitors, that the Burmese gentlemen referred to should be represented to be what they really know they are not. 3. Because it is a sham on the part of these Burmese gentlemen, in their intercourse with public bodies in this country, to pretend to an influence and authority at the Court of Burmah, which they know very well that even the ministers themselves do not possess. 4. It is a sham to call the King of Burmah's present to Mr. Gladstone a decoration, when we know it to be a mere bauble, without any significance at all, which the King lately amused his courtiers by telling them he copied from a portrait of one of our ministers, arrayed in stars and decorations, as pictured in a late number of the Illustrated London News.

We have given this lengthy extract because our readers will remember that we were the first to draw attention to the composition of the "mission" a few weeks ago. That it will appear in its true colours is merely a question of time; but, even if our Government are content to bear with such idle displays as the present is supposed to be, the following words of SCRUTATOR deserve to be closely weighed, for they apply to China more than Burmah, in the same ratio that China exceeds Burmah in relative importance to Great Britain.

It is the greatest sham of all to assume in our arrogance that our civilisation and power, though they are so superior to that of Burmah, justify us in displaying an unusual magnanimity towards those (who in ignorance be it supposed) come to us with unclean hands—whilst we blind ourselves to the fact that this very magnanimity in matters of political etiquette is not only laughed at by our friends as a sign of imbecility, but is positively mischievous in its results, by inducing acts of outrage and aggression, similar to those which necessarily lead to hostilities, and which have (little as we are inclined to acknowledge the fact, mainly contributed, within a century of our Indian history, to add nearly the whole of Hindostan to our eastern dominions. Do we intend that history should repeat itself, with reference to Burmah, and, probably also, the great Chinese Empire?

THE QUEEN has appointed Admiral Sir HENRY KEPPEL a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, and has invested M. DE LESSEPS with the insignia of a Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India.

No further progress has been made in the negotiations between CHUNG HOW and the French Government. The Embassy is still in Paris, and its future movements have not yet been decided on.

CHINA TRADE RETURNS.

The "Returns of Trade at the Treaty Ports of China for 1870" appear most opportunely at the time when the Treaty rights of foreigners are menaced, though only indirectly, by the recent circular of the Chinese Government. It may be reasonably hoped that the English public will be awakened to a sense of the great value of our trade with China when they read the résumé of the figures before us. The first table shows us that the imports into what we may fairly term "Free China" have risen from fifty-one million taels in 1864 to sixty-nine million taels in 1870. In the same six years the exports advanced from fifty-four million to sixty-one million taels. The Customs revenue has risen from eight and a-half millions in 1866 to nine and a-half in 1870. The table of the annual value of the trade with each country speaks even more eloquently of the growing importance of our commerce in the Far East. English imports are here shown to have more than doubled themselves in value in six years; while exports have fallen off nearly 20 per cent. in the same time. The Chinese are therefore twice as good customers to us as they were six years ago, and we are considerably less good customers than we were to them at that time. Can anything speak more forcibly in favour of our maintaining our Treaty rights inviolate than such figures as these, which prove that the advantages of communication and trade with us is more appreciated by the Chinese than by ourselves? All the animosity and special pleading of the Mandarins cannot get over the hard dry facts of the statistics before us. We hope the lesson they read will not be lost on the Government, and that they will not fail to see that any concession of our Treaty rights would not only inevitably plunge us into war, and exercise a prejudicial influence on trade, but that it would be absolutely totally opposed to the wishes of the Chinese people themselves, who are most anxious and ready to encourage the import of our manufactures.

Passing down the list we find the value of imports from India has declined in the six years under review from twenty-six to twenty million taels—an item which forcibly corroborates the view taken in these columns of the present transition state of our Opium trade.

In the course of the same six years the United States have failed to increase their exports to China from less than half a million taels value to that modest sum; on the contrary, they have allowed their exports to fall off, though they have increased their imports of Chinese produce from six million taels to eight and a half millions. The Australian trade, never very considerable, also shows a marked falling-off.

The gross trade with Singapore and the Straits, we are sorry to see, has been reduced in the same time from three million taels to one million; we hope, however, that the last year was an exceptionally bad one. The trade with the Philippines, Java, Cochin China, and Canada, has also declined; that with the Amoor Provinces and South America shows a considerable increase.

The gross import of opium for local consumption in Shanghai shows a reduction from 19,709 piculs in 1864 to 11,641 piculs in 1870. In Canton the quantity fell in the same time from 2,490 to 754 piculs; in Amoy from 4,037 to 3,098; in Foochow from 6,246 to 4,256. On the other hand it rose in Swatow from 4,712 to 4,840 piculs; in Ningpo from 3,305 to 5,024; in Hankow from 1,999 to 3,678; in Chinkiang from 1,693 to 6,943; in Chefoo from 1,314 to 3,914; in Tientsin from 2,875 to 7,161; and in Niuchiang from 504 to 2,445. The total amount imported in 1870, of all sorts, seems to be about the average value of the previous six years.

Turning to exports we find the quantity of black tea sent to Great Britain was 821,856 piculs; of green tea 71,498 piculs. The United States took 77,389 piculs of black, and 159,455 of green tea. The most noticeable of the other places of export are Australia, which took 83,194 piculs; Siberia and Russia, which took 83,355; and Hong Kong and other ports, which appear for 57,659 piculs—all black.

The number of vessels entered and cleared in 1870 stands at 14,136, against 14,802 in 1869, 14,075 in 1868, 14,704 in 1867, and 15,612 in 1866. The Customs Revenue, which was, in 1869, Tls. 9,880,189, was, in 1870, Tls. 9,545,847.

The approximation to the value of the whole trade is stated to be Tls. 26,306,295, or a little above the average of the preceding three years.

The pamphlet closes with a special table for Shanghai, from which it appears that the gross value of the trade of that port was, last year, 106 million taels, against 110 millions in 1869, 112 in 1868, 97 in 1867, and 91 in 1866.

HONG KONG CUSTOMS.

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Sir Rutherford Alcock, in his despatch to the Earl of Clarendon, dated 28th October, 1869, whilst arguing, on the one hand, the advantages gained by him; by the new Convention he had concluded, concludes by saying, "Finally, these three concessions constituted the price demanded for all the Chinese were willing or could be induced to grant in the interests of foreign trade. Have we paid too dear? I think the advantages we have gained so far preponderate over the little that has been yielded as to leave no doubt on the subject." The three concessions made were an increase of duty on opium and silk, and last, the appointment of a Chinese Consul to Hong Kong, "controlling the smuggling propensities of his own countrymen in league with the foreign merchant."

The community of Hong Kong, in a memorial presented to Earl Granville in March, 1870, protested against the admission of such an official to reside among them.

The influential deputation which waited on Lord Clarendon in the previous February had already explained the law as regards Hong Kong, and showed how to reduce smuggling, to foster an increased trade yielding more revenue to China without such an objectionable appointment. Ultimately the Convention was rejected, and thus the threatened evil avoided.

The Overland China Mail of May 12 last had an article headed "The Blockade of Hong Kong." It says, "The practical question, what is to be done in regard to the ruinous proceedings adopted by the Chinese Provincial Government towards this port is deserving of the attention of every person who has any stake in the prosperity of Hong Kong, and we are not wholly without hope that members of the Government or the Chamber of Commerce may be led to see its importance." Would the authorities in Gibraltar permit the Spanish navy to blockade the port?

Mr. Hamilton Fish wrote to Mr. E. B. Washburne in despatch No. 182 of Oct. 4, 1870, thus:—"This Government desires and intends to maintain a perfect and strict neutrality between the two Powers now unfortunately engaged in war. It desires also to extend to both the manifestation of its friendly feeling in every possible way, and will allow to the vessels of war of each Power equally the hospitality of its ports and harbours for all proper and friendly purposes. But this hospitality is liable to abuse, and circumstances have arisen to give rise in the minds of some persons to the apprehension that attempts at such abuse have taken place.

And after saying that he had called the attention of M. Berthemy, the French representative at Washington, to the current rumours, sustained as they are by the presence of a number of French vessels upon the coast of the United States, and as to their appearance near some of the harbours and entrances of Chesapeake Bay, &c., he continues to say:—

"The appearance of French vessels in these immediate neighbourhoods in such numbers and force does not fail to excite the alarm of these vessels (Germans), and must have the effect, to a greater or less degree, to diminish that trade.

"The United States are not prepared at present to say that any actual violation of international law has been committed, or that the hospitality of these waters has been positively abused. But the hovering of the vessels of war of a belligerent on the coasts near the entrance of the principal ports of a friendly Power does interfere with the trade of the friendly Power.

"Although the vessels of either belligerents may not actually shelter within the jurisdiction of the United States, and proceed thence against the vessels of its enemy, this Government would regard as an unfriendly act the hovering of such vessels upon the coast of the United States, near its shores, in the neighbourhood of its ports, and in the track of the ordinary commerce of these ports, with intent to intercept the vessels of trade of its enemy."

To the latter part of this despatch I would, through the medium of your journal, call the attention of the residents of Hong Kong and others.

The China Mail says any hope of a rough and ready solution of the difficulty must be laid aside with an unavailing sigh, and then, in short, advocates the ingenious suggestion of Mr. Dick, Commissioner of Customs at Shanghai, "who proposes that a branch of the Foreign Customs should be established at Hong Kong, for the purpose of taking an account of, and a bond for, all opium imported, of passing under certificate all opium re-exported in foreign vessels to treaty ports, and of collecting duty only on opium taken over by Chinese purchasers for shipment in junks, whether to treaty or non-treaty ports."

Of course this offer is made palatable by the offer of a percentage of the duty ($1,000,000) thus collected to the Hong Kong Government. Of course Mr. Dick seems not to wish to interfere with opium landed in Hong Kong, but collecting duty only on such opium as should be shipped in Chinese junks, and further temptation is held out by the suggestion that the opium trade might be transferred to foreign bottoms at the expense of junks.

The number of Chinese junks (Government Gazette of March 12, 1870) which entered and cleared the port of Victoria in 1869 was 45,968, of 2,767,684 tons burden, with a crew of 602,203 men. Does the China Mail believe that by having a Chinese Custom-house in Hong Kong it would solely transfer the trade in opium to foreign bottoms? Does it not strike the editor that by advocating what Macao strove so hard to get rid of, it would inflict the greatest injury imaginable to Hong Kong, whose prestige rests on its being a British colony (not leased Chinese territory as Macao used to be)—and a free port? I cannot for a moment believe that any person, only a little acquainted with China, can for a moment entertain such a preposterous proposal as to lower a British possession to a Chinese dependency.

It is perhaps natural that Mr. Dick should advocate the interest of his service, but how the China Mail could now advocate a proposed measure which, if carried into effect, would be ten times more injurious to Hong Kong than the proposal of the appointment of Chinese Consul repudiated at the time by the people and the press of Hong Kong, is inexplicable to me, and all who take an interest in Hong Kong should unite to oppose such a proposition.—Your obedient servant,

R.

"MALOO MIXTURE."

SIR,—In answer to some inquiries of a friend in Shanghai on the subject of the spurious tea yclept "Maloo Mixture," I have received the following information. Writing on the 21st April last he says:—"No doubt the Maloo trade existed for some time, but now, I think, has ceased, simply because the great outcry in England made it unprofitable. Tea leaves that had been once used were collected in Shanghai, under our very noses—from tea shops, theatres, brothels, &c., and, no doubt, from the cooks and cooks' mates in European houses. The leaves were spread out to dry on plots of waste ground round the settlement, and particularly on that very dirty spot on the old race course bounded on the west by the defence ditch, and on the north (south?) by the Maloo, where pigs and mangy dogs most do congregate. The new trade was, as far as I could make out, confined to two or three German houses. I have heard no talk about the 'mixture' lately, but I will try to find out before I write you again whether the tea-shopkeepers still find a market for their used leaves. The trade may to some extent be conducted less openly, more prudently than before—a smaller per centage of bad mixed with good."

On the 5th May, a fortnight later, he writes thus:—"The Maloo tea trade is still carried on. The 'heathen Chinese' collect, mixes, scents, doctors, and packs the article. The 'heir of all the ages' for a commission, acts as agent in forwarding it to London for sale to Englishmen. A parcel went home in the . . . I believe."

Identically with the receipt of this I read your remarks of the 28th ult., anent the cargo of the Sydenham, and rejoice with you that the Commissioner of Sewers has taken up the matter vigorously. I also hope that detection of the offenders will be followed up by the prosecution of both shippers and consignees; but while rejoicing and hoping, I can but fear that all which the commissioner can do will be of little avail, nor can I see how we are to prove guilty complicity in the nominal shippers and consignees. That something should be done to "repress a dangerous nuisance and a great scandal to British commerce," all will admit—but how shall we go about it—that is the question. Taking my friend's letters as texts, we learn that, with [Chinese as tools, two or three German houses are the Shanghai originators of the fraud, and what will astonish some people is the circumstance of the China press being so silent in regard to their names. It does not astonish me, because I know that in China and Hong Kong Germans are so clannish that if an editor offends one he offends all—this being specially marked towards the China Evening Mail a short time ago. The editor had spoken freely of the way the war was going on, and as a reward for his temerity every subscription the Germans could influence was at once withdrawn; and a similar thing occurred at Shanghai. The Friend of China had passed some satirical remarks on German clipper ships, and every German in the settlement was induced to withdraw his support; the skipper of the ship ridiculed going to the publishing office with a whip to punish the offender, but when there thinking better of it. And so of Shanghai municipal matters. Germans were perfect dogs in the manger, and would help in nothing for the good of all, until absolutely forced into it by Consular dictation.

On one occasion a perfect cargo of spurious "Schellings" was placed on the market, and for months it was hardly possible to change a dollar without getting a false coin. But like to the Maloo Mixture import—who could prove the identity of shipper or consignee? With these facts before us, the only remedy I can suggest is this—Let such respectable German houses in China as Postau and Co., Trautmann and Co., Scheibler, Matthei and others make common cause, and denounce publicly the known shippers (preparers) of Maloo tea. If that is not sufficient to stop the game, let Berlin be asked to do a little legislation. No doubt but Bismark's Government is willing to punish swindlers with promptitude, this being exhibited the other day in the case of a Mr. Oppert, who was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for having, with some Americans, landed from a Prussian-flagged steamer on Korea, and despoiled a royal tomb. An attempt by the United States Consul-General to punish his countryman (son of his colleague the Vice-Consul) failed—Not so in the North German Court; and the audacious adventurer obtained such deserts as would well befit our Maloo Mixture compounders.—I am, Sir, yours, &c.,
TAV.

SPURIOUS TEA.

The Standard says:—"Englishmen are not very eager to experience the blessings of 'paternal government,' but they certainly regard it as the function of the Executive to protect them from abominations of this kind. Alum in bread, horsebeans in coffee, and sand in sugar are bad enough; but what are these to iron filings in one's tea and the horrible mess called 'Maloo Mixture?' It is the poor who suffer from these infamous practices, and common humanity demands that something should be done to save them from being poisoned in their daily food. Mr. Chichester Fortescue, however, does not see the matter in this light. It is pointed out to him that the City authorities have already done their utmost, and have effected large seizures, but that a considerable amount has escaped out of their hands pending judicial proceedings, and that the only sure way of putting a stop to the traffic is by instructing the Customs officers to refuse to receive the duty upon any tea which shall be authoritatively certified to be unfit for human food. But the official mind is aghast at such a proposal. It contemplates a reduction in the revenue proportioned to the vigilance with which it is carried into effect, and Mr. Fortescue really does not see how he can "take action in the matter." It must be confessed that the influences which surround the President of the Board of Trade are not of a character to inspire him with a genial or humane sense of his duty. He succeeds to a post which was recently filled by Mr. Bright, and he has taken counsel in this matter with the Chancellor of the Exchequer. We are all familiar with Mr. Bright's views upon this and cognate questions. He takes what is called the large-hearted statesmanlike view of adulteration. It is "merely a form of competition," and to repress it by pains and penalties would be a cruel interference with the liberty of trade. Moreover, are we not told, on the same authority, that articles of food are sometimes the better for being adulterated, and it is not within the region of possibility that there may be wholesomeness disguised under the repulsive ingredients of "Maloo Mixture," and much hidden virtue in steel filings? Such might quite possibly be the view commended to Mr. Fortescue, by the traditions of the Board of Trade, and the corrective could hardly be looked for at the hands of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. All is fish that comes into Mr. Lowe's net. There is no taint of adulteration, no reek of the "filth and dirt of the Maloo Mixture" upon the sterling coin which is paid as duty into the Exchequer. What matters it if people are poisoned so that the bane brings its quota to the Customs treasury? "Maloo Mixture" is as the choicest Bohea to the practical mind of our Finance Minister, so long as it contributes to swell the revenue, and the proposal to employ the Customs officials to detect and reject the delectable stuff, which pays the duty on tea as if it were really tea instead of a diabolical concoction of filth, would shock him as an affront to his moral sense. No wonder, with such counsellors to guide him, that Mr. Fortescue is unable to see his way to do anything in the matter. But we take comfort from his promise that he will give it his "earnest consideration." The assurance which has been so fruitful in the case of the Home Secretary should hardly be of less worth when tendered by the Minister for Trade. We trust that the tea merchants will pay another visit to Mr. Fortescue.

VICE-CHANCELLOR'S COURT.

DE MONTIGNY V. SCHMIDT.

These two suits have occupied the Court for three entire days; the evidence was voluminous, but the following is an outline of the facts.

The plaintiff, Dominique Remi de Montigny, whose original name was Pauvrehomme, in early life followed the occupation of a working watchmaker. In the year 1843 he went out to China, and established himself as a general merchant at Macao and afterwards at Shanghai. His business was very successful, and in course of time he established branches in Japan, Siam, and elsewhere, carrying on business under the firm of Remi, Schmidt, and Co. The profits of the business were so large as to have amounted in one particular year (according to his statement in cross-examination) to £20,000 by the export of silk to Europe.

From the outset the principal defendant, Henry Schmidt, who is a tailor in Clifford-street, and the brother-in-law of the plaintiff, bought and sent out to him goods of various kinds, and in 1847 these consignments assumed large proportions, and comprised, among other things, wines, arms, soft goods, hardware, and coals, and amounted between the years 1847 and 1856 to about £50,000. In 1856 the plaintiff executed a deed whereby, after reciting that the defendant had for several years acted as the agent in Europe for the plaintiff's business without receiving any remuneration, whereby large sums were saved to the business, the plaintiff covenanted to pay to the defendant an annuity of £1,000 during the continuance of the business, and an annuity of £350 to his wife in case he died during the continuance of the business. In the years 1856 and 1857 the business sustained heavy losses, in consequence of which no payment was made of the annuity, except some small sums for interest. The plaintiff in 1861 married a French lady, and adopted her surname of De Montigny. In 1868 the defendant brought an action upon the annuity deed, claiming arrears to the amount of about £11,000. The plaintiff then filed his first bill to restrain that action, alleging that the deed was intended to have effect only in case of the business continuing to make profits, and that the defendant had been remunerated by the discount he had received. In the course of that suit it appeared that the defendant had not, in fact, been acting without profit, but that upon many of the transactions he had charged a considerable increase of price, averaging on the whole about £20 per cent. The plaintiff then filed another bill to open the settled accounts between him and the defendant from 1847 to 1858, when the plaintiff returned to Europe, and to take account of all the dealings of the defendant as his agent.

The Vice-Chancellor, after minutely commenting upon the evidence, said it was proved that, instead of acting gratuitously, the defendant had charged a profit price, and, as the annuity was granted on the assumption that the defendant's services had been gratuitous, the deed must be set aside. The settled accounts must be opened, and an account taken of all dealings and transactions, the defendant to pay the costs of the first suit and of the evidence, and the costs of the second suit to be reserved.

In our report of the deputation to Mr. Chichester Fortescue on the subject of spurious tea, in our last issue, it is stated to have been from the wholesale and retail tea-dealers. We are informed that the deputation represented the retail trade only.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 5.

The members of the Second Chamber have again discussed the East India Railway Bill (the Samarang Principalities line). The principal purpose of the Bill was to release the company from its obligation to construct a communication line between the railway at Souracarta and the Solo river. A long debate ensued upon the question whether this was necessary, and of course some members made use of the occasion to repeat the story of the company's misfortunes. The Chamber was not, on the whole, inclined to release the company, according to the proposal of the Government, from its obligations, and without doubt the Bill would have been thrown out, if Mr. van de Putte had not brought forward an amendment to give the company a delay of ten years to construct the line, which amendment was carried by a very large majority (40 to 16). The whole Bill was afterwards approved of by 54 against 2 votes.

A discussion ensued on the treaties with England for the transfer of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa and that of Siak. The debate had been postponed till to-day, in order that the Minister should lay before the members the diplomatic correspondence with England on the subject. You will remember that the Government at first declined to produce the papers, but there was evidence that the treaties would not be ratified if the Ministry persisted; they gave way, and produced the correspondence, with a proviso, however, that its tenour should be kept secret. How this will be possible I do not know. The debate being public some particulars must transpire. The opposition is still increasing, but Mr. Cremers stated that there is no doubt that the treaties will be ratified when the members have read the correspondence; he indeed urged the necessity that they should be approved of, because he otherwise feared difficulties would arise with England if the majority should follow the advice given by the leading Liberal papers and refuse to ratify the treaties. The newspapers not only object to the principle of parting with our settlements, but they also disapprove of the concessions made to England with regard to the settlements in Sumatra, and demonstrate that there is no equivalent for the transfer, as the minister stated. On the contrary, they maintain that the treaty of Siak is injurious to our interests, and only promotes those of England and the English residents in Sumatra, who, year after year, complain without just reason. Of the debate on the subject I will send you a full report.

An election is pending in the district of Haarlem, Mr. Fock being duly elected both in that district and in Amsterdam, having accepted a seat for the capital. The Liberal candidate for this election is Mr. J. Kappeyne van de Coppolder.

The statement of the Vaderland about the Oost Indische Maatschappij van Lyfrenten has proved correct. The Amsterdam Court has declared this company insolvent, according to the demand of Mr. Abo, a lawyer in Java, and Messrs. Philips, J. A. Molster, A. S. van Nierop, P. A. van Berensteyn and Colonel J. Seelig are appointed liquidators. The result of the liquidation is expected to be most unfavourable.

The troops which were on board the steamer Willem III. have sailed by the Noach III. for Batavia. They were received here with great honour by our population, in consequence of their gallant behaviour on board of the burning vessel. Military honours were given by his Majesty to the officers of the detachment, whilst, as I stated before, the commander was decorated.

H.M. the Emperor of Austria has conferred the Order of the Star on the well known peintre-artist Radin Saleh.

Some disturbances have taken place amongst the lower classes of the population of Haarlem, because the annual fair is prohibited, owing to the prevalence of small pox, which, however, is gradually disappearing.

The Japanese Government has charged Dr. A. Bauduin to engage two engineers for service in Japan, to superintend the construction of some important works.

H. M. has approved of the appointment of Mr. P. M. Nickerson as consul of America at Batavia.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

In accordance with general anticipation, the Trading Company's Coffee sale held last Wednesday went off with a good result, the prices realised being on an average of 1c. to 2c. above the brokers' valuations. This may be partly attributed to the good assortment of suitable qualities put up, and also to the interval of about two months, which will elapse before the next auction, no sale being held in July as usual. Spices, and more especially Nutmegs, have been in brisk demand, at rapidly advancing rates. Black Pepper has also been in better request, under the influence of reports from London. The late advance in Tin continues to be fully supported, and has even made some further progress. The position of Sugar has further weakened, prices ranging in favour of buyers, say in the proportion of $f\frac{1}{4}$ to $f\frac{3}{4}$ below the currency of the May sale.

COFFEE.—As shown by the comparative monthly settlement, the deliveries from the stores of the Trading Company last month have reached nearly 95/m bags, being about 30/m bags in excess of those in the corresponding month last year. The following shipments of private importation have been sold, viz.:—1,000 bags Java Preanger, ex P. A. J.; 3,200 do., ex Maarten van Rossem; 1,000 bags do., ex Jason; 580 bags do., ex Henriette; 484 bags do., ex Sattara; 2,456 bags Java, ex Nagasaki. Total stock of coffee, 803,700 bags.

SUGAR.—No business has been doing from first hands. The Trading Company's July sale has been advertised to day to take place at Amsterdam on the 25th inst. The same will comprise about 57,600 baskets Java stored in our different ports. Stock of the Trading Company 68,816 baskets.

TEA.—No change has occurred in the market, which looks quiet since the late public sale. Stock at Rotterdam 2,700 $\frac{1}{2}$ -chests.

SPICES.—Prices of Nutmegs and Mace have materially improved. A brisk demand has prevailed on speculation and for export to England and America, and a large business has been doing at almost daily advancing rates; present quotations are for Nutmegs No. 1, 150c.; No. 2, 140c.; No. 3, almost out of stock; No 4, 80c.; Mace D, 240c., and E 235c. No confirmation of the disaster in Banda, lately reported, has yet come to hand. Cloves remain quiet at former rates. Black Pepper has been in better request, under the influence of an improvement in London, and no sellers are to be met with of Lampung under 31c. Cassia Lignea is offered at 65c., without meeting buyers. Cassia Vera unaltered; Padang of good quality is held for 43 to 50c., but the article is in but little demand. Aggregate 1st and 2nd handstocks (unsold and on warrants), Nutmegs 3,450 casks, Mace 615 casks, Cloves 2,880 casks.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—There are no transactions to report. On the 6th some parcels will be offered by private tender. Rotterdam stock of Java 2,432 packages.

RICE.—Prices are tending downward, as the demand remains dormant under the influence of the improved prospects of the grain crops. A shipment of 3,763 bags Java, ex Carlito, has been disposed of at Amsterdam, besides here 2,425 bags, ex Obey, at prices not named.

TIN continues in a firm position, and prices are creeping up. Sales have been closed of Banca, usual prompt, at $f.79$ to $f.79\frac{1}{2}$, and for delivery, ex the coming autumn sale, at $f.77\frac{1}{2}$, whilst Billiton has been sold for early delivery, ex quay, at $f.78$. Stock unsold, Banca 06,002 slabs; Billiton, 2,051 slabs; on warrants, Banca, 64,242. Private stock of Billiton, 4,100 slabs.

RATTANS.—I have to report the sale of 153 piculs, ex Somerset; 147 piculs, ex Obey; 48 piculs, ex Les Deux Soeurs.

HIDES continue in good request, but the business done only includes some lots, ex Le Tacito and ex Samarang.

DRUGS.—Some improvement is to be reported for Camphor, in which business has been doing; Japan has sold at 46 cents, at which price there are sellers; China is held for 43 to 44 cents. Cubebbs unaltered, and quoted 10 to 11 cents. Long Pepper is worth 27 cents. Cassia Fistula would meet buyers at $f.6$. Vanilla without anything doing, for want of stock of fine long sorts. Preserved Ginger is offered at 70 cents. Cassia Oil is nominally quoted $f.2\frac{1}{2}$ to $f.3$. Gum Benjamin is in request; 85 to 100 cents would be obtained, according to quality.

JAPAN WAX has materially risen in value, in consequence of the scantiness of the available stock. Assortment A is worth $f.48$ to $f.50$, and Assortment B $f.46$ to $f.48$.

SAGO.—Siam is quoted $f.10$ to $f.10\frac{1}{2}$. Sago Flour is scarce in first hands, and would be saleable at $f.8\frac{1}{2}$ to $f.8\frac{3}{4}$.

GUTTA PERCHA remains depressed. About 500 kilos, ex Samarang, have changed hands on secret terms.

SHIPPING.

Monetary and Commercial.

In our last issue we had occasion to remark upon a system which has prevailed of late among steamship owners of printing special forms of bills of lading for the Far East, containing clauses which would have the effect of annulling their liability as common carriers of goods. We announced that the Salvage Committee had taken up the question, and that agitation was going forward in other quarters. It has been decided to hold a meeting at the London Tavern of those interested in the trade with the Far East to-morrow, when the following resolutions will be proposed:—

"That a committee of merchants be appointed to consider all the special stipulations that have been introduced into bills of lading for steam vessels, and to confer thereon with representatives of the steamship owners and underwriters, with the view of drawing up a general form of bill of lading, which shall be equitable in its conditions to all parties, and of arranging such a method of settling the freight as may remedy existing irregularities.

"That a small subscription be entered into by the mercantile firms interested to procure the requisite legal advice, and to defray other incidental expenses."

Tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received on the 5th inst. at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were— to Calcutta, £300,000; and to Bombay, £100,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. on all the Presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. will receive about 12 per cent., and on Bombay at that price about 45 per cent.; those above in full. These results show a slight further increase in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

A meeting of the shareholders in the Messageries Maritimes of France will be held on the 1st August.

The following circular, having reference to the present position of the Tea market has, been issued by Messrs. James Steains and Co.:—

The China trade is passing through such varied and rapid changes as to render the custom of addressing you through the medium of a periodical circular of little or no advantage. Nevertheless, we feel that the coming season presents phases which it may be well to bring to your notice. First of all is the important and interesting event of daily telegraphic communication with China having been at length accomplished, by which means importers can regulate their operations strictly in accordance with the requirements of dealers here, and thus obviate the necessity for keeping a large stock in bond in this country. Secondly, the class of importers has undergone a gradual change, until it is now mainly by foreign houses, and those who adopt the wise and economical principle of selling on arrival. Thirdly, Continental buyers, who have hitherto largely supplied their wants from this market, are now, by the aid of steam, and the expeditious route of the Suez Canal, enabled to import direct; and this is most important for home dealers to bear in mind, as it does away with the very uncertain range of value for those kinds which for the time are in demand for foreign markets. Fourthly, is the growing importance of Indian Teas, which are increasing in quantity every year, and from their pungent character are becoming very popular, and largely superseding the hitherto favourite Kaisow, now deservedly getting into disrepute—one of the fruits of sending out inexperienced persons as buyers to China; for at length the Chinese have become utterly careless as to those essential points, quality, preparation, and freedom from dust.

These facts form a strong argument against the custom of some London houses, who go into stock out of the first arrivals, at prices very largely in excess of what is necessary; a course more than ever to be deprecated by the provincial houses, seeing that the hurried way in which all China Tea is now got up for this market makes it a perishable article. Dealers would, therefore, do well to follow the modern wise custom of importers, and not hold stock beyond actual requirements, unless under exceptional circumstances; and if the leading buyers will only act upon this principle during the coming season, we shall enjoy a strictly healthy and legitimate range of prices; a course which will react upon buyers in China, and conduce to a general reduction in the scale of value, on a par with former years, when the rush of inexperienced excitable buyers was unknown, for it has long been an enigma to merchants in every other branch of commerce why Tea should be the only article in which reckless buying, and equally reckless haste in bringing it to this country exists, to the detriment of that careful preparation which this article beyond all others requires. Up to the latest advices, about twenty steamers have left China with 35,000,000 lbs. of New Season's Teas, all of which are due here during the first fortnight in August; and not content with this expedition, so great is the anxiety on the part of some importers to catch the first eager London buyers, that 29,000 chests have been sent by the more costly Overland Route—the P. and O. steamers.

BULLION AND SPECIE.

GOLD.—The recent demand has quite subsided, and all arrivals are now purchased by the Bank, the amount sent in since the 29th ult. being £351,000; on the other hand, Sovereigns to the value of about £90,000 have been withdrawn for transmission to the Cape and Brazil. Some very large arrivals are expected within the next fortnight from Australia and New York.

SILVER.—Owing to the fulfilment of orders the market is now not quite so firm, and the price may be quoted as 60½d. per oz. standard. The demand is entirely for the Continent. We have received about £133,500 from New York during the week, and further amounts are expected. The Tasmanian has taken £3,980 to the West Indies.

MEXICAN DOLLARS continue in good demand for China and the Straits. The amounts to hand during the week make up a total of about £35,000, and the prices remain at present as last quoted, 58½d. for new, and 60½d. for old coinage.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

There has been little or no change in the market since our report of last week; the demand has continued quiet, without alteration in prices.

Public sales of China took place on the 4th and 5th inst.; the catalogues contained 16,580 packages, and on the first day 13,417 packages were offered without reserve; about 7,000 packages found buyers; about 1,100 packages fine Moning sold at 1s. 8½d. to 1s. 9½d., including a chop of 400 chests at 1s. 8½d. to 1s. 9d., prices about equal to those recently obtainable; several breaks of Red-leaf Congou of old import realised 9½d. to 1s. 1d.; old season's Canton Congou of inferior quality sold heavily at 6½d. to 6½d.; Canton Gunpowder, also of old import, brought the low price of 5½d. to 6d., and young Hyson 6½d. to 7d. per lb.; several breaks of Souchong, of old import, sold at 1½d. to 1s. 0½d., Oolong brought 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d., and 500 boxes ordinary Scented Caper at 10½d. per lb. On the 5th the sale concluded; 7,480 packages were offered, and about 6,700 packages sold, all being without reserve; several breaks of fine Moning Congou realised the same quotations as on the first day; a few small parcels of Kaisow siftings sold at 4½d. to 5½d.; a chop of very low Canton Congou of old import realised 5½d. per lb.

SILK.

The month has opened with a buoyant market, large business, enormous deliveries, and prices generally advancing. It must not however be forgotten that these deliveries owe their extent almost entirely to the large quantity sent to France with the intention of saving the contemplated duty on importation. As regards the altered state of the market, too, it must be recollected that the present movement and rise in prices is as much speculative as was the previous depression and inaction. At that time all parties, both buyers and sellers, were under the influence of political and financial difficulties on the Continent and the expectation of large crops in all quarters. Now these political and financial difficulties seem to have vanished for the present, and the expectations of large crops have become materially modified. It is said that Europe will produce 10 per cent. less than last year, and that China will not send more than 45,000, some say 42,000 bales. The result is that best No. 3 Tsatlees are again 28s., and Red Peacock 25s. to 25s. 6d., at which some considerable sales have been made for arrival from early shipments. All classes of silk have shared more or less in the general movement and increased deliveries, but not all classes to the full extent in the advance of price. In Japan silk the advance has been rather more than in China silk, but this class was previously more depressed. In Canton silk the market is materially relieved by the enormous clearances and sales, but the stock was so overwhelming that prices show comparatively small improvement.

The following is from Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw and Co.'s Circular:—An entire change has occurred in the position of our silk market; the extreme depression of many weeks gave place about a fortnight ago to a suddenly active demand for Lyons, and business on a very large scale has since continued; these operations being intended to secure the admission of silk into France before the proposed duty could be levied, there have been, in consequence, daily clearances of considerable magnitude, resulting in total deliveries last month quite unprecedented—say 8,654 bales of Asiatic silk. Prices have naturally improved under this altered state of things, but hardly to the extent which might have been expected, and this is mainly owing to the readiness with which importers and holders generally have met the demand, showing every willingness to sell, and glad to have the opportunity of lightening their stock on the eve of a new campaign. The home demand has not shown any activity during the month, still a fair daily business has been doing, the mills being everywhere fully occupied. The improvement in prices, from the most depressed moment in June, is a good 1s. on China silk, 9d. to 1s. on Canton Tsatlees, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. on Japans, the chief demand being for Chinas, Cantons, and Japans, especially the latter silks, the current rates for which evidently tempting buyers by their comparative cheapness. The present position of the market generally is that of extreme firmness, with an upward tendency in prices, quotations being for Chinas, 25s. to 25s. 6d. for "Red Peacocks,"—28s. for best chop 3rds.,—and 24s. for good common Tsatlees. For Cantons 16s. 6d. for good market Tsatlee, and 17s. to 19s. for superior. For Japans 23s. to 24s. for fair all round My-bash, and for Bengals 25s. to 26s. for best bright first class features. There has been an active speculative business in this market during the last four or five days, and probably 2,000 bales of the new Chinas have been sold to arrive; the crop of North China Silk for the Season 1871-2 is estimated not to exceed 45,000 bales. With regard to the European crops, the result is less favourable than had been looked for, and it is doubtful whether the total yield is equal to that of last year. The prices of Italian and other European Silks have moved in unison with Asiatic, and are fully 10 per cent. higher than a month ago.

COFFEE.

During the earlier part of the week large supplies of Ceylon brought to auction met less demand than of late, and the bulk, consisting of plantation, was sold at a decline of 6d. to 1s. per cwt., and colour quantities rather more. During the past two days, however, although the supply of plantation has continued, a better demand has prevailed, and the decline submitted has been partly recovered, especially for colour, which showed the greater depression. The latest prices paid have been plantation, triage and ordinary 48s. to 55s., small grey and dull 57s. to 58s., low middling ditto 61s. to 64s. 6d., bold 64s. to 70s. 6d., small colour 59s. to 61s. 6d., middling 65s. to 70s. 6d., good middling to fine middling 71s. to 78s. 6d., good to fine bold bright 79s. 6d. to 84s., pea-berry 79s. to 83s. Native, small 51s. 6d., good ordinary 55s., bold 58s., pea-berry 57s. 6d. Of 1,105 bags Bon-thyne Singapore offered 500 bags sea-damaged sold, fourth to second-class 49s. 6d. to 52s. 6d., the remainder being bought in, sound 58s.

SUGAR.

The market has continued dull, although there has been some increase in the demand privately, and the following sales have been effected:—1,820 bags low Taal unclayed Manila at 20s. 6d., 38,000 bags Zebu ditto at 22s. to 22s. 6d., chiefly the latter price, 240 baskets fine Java at 38s., 23,000 bags Java syrups on private terms; and for arrival a cargo of about 700 tons (20,500 bags) Ilo Ilo unclayed distant shipment per Luzon at 20s. in bond ex quay terms for Liverpool.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon is quiet, at £39 10s. to £40.

HEMP.—The demand is still very limited; of 2,156 bales Manila the sound portion was all bought in, good fair at £48, but 430 bales sea damaged sold, first class good fair at £47 to £47 5s., good £49 5s., fair £45 10s., second and third class £42 to £45 15s.

PEPPER.—Black: Extreme rates have again been paid both on the spot and for arrival. In the former position Singapore has been sold at 5½d., damaged at 5½d., and Penang at 5½d. For arrival sales of Singapore have been made at 5½d. Privately Penang has been sold at 5½d. cash, and Singapore at 5½d. cash. White: Without transactions

RICE.—The market is very dull, except for floating cargoes. On the spot the only sale has been 1,700 bags Ballam, ordinary to fine, at 9s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. The floating cargo of Java per Sjöfroken, 460 tons, March sailing, has been sold at 13s., ex quay, for London; the cargo per Tanjore, 1,370 tons new Rangoon, arrived off coast, at 9s. 9d., ex ship, for London; the cargo per Queen of Australia, 1,400 tons new Bassein, early April sailing, at 9s. 6d., ex ship, for London; the cargo per St. Paul's, 1,530 tons Rangoon, March sailing, at 9s. 10½d., Continental terms; and the cargo per Black Prince, 1,050 tons Rangoon, April sailing, at 9s. 10½d., Continental terms.

SHELLS.—The periodical sales took place on the 4th inst., and went off with fair activity, and for the most part at advanced prices. Mother-o'-Pearl: There was a good demand, and the bulk of the quantity offered was taken off at an advance of 10s. to 15s. per cwt. Of 194 cases Manila offered, 80 cases sold; good bold clean at £8 to £8 2s. 6d.; bold, with part medium and wormy, £7 10s. to £7 12s. 6d.; wormy, £7 7s. 6d.; 17 cases Macassar bought in at £12 10s. Tortoise also met a good competition, and 4,507 lbs. offered were chiefly sold at about 1s. per lb. advance. Of 5 cases (536 lbs.) Singapore 1 case sold at 9s., the remainder, good fair, being bought in at 15s. Ear Shells: Of 284 cases Japan offered 110 cases sold at 18s. to 18s. 6d., the remainder being bought in at 20s. to 22s.; also 35 tons at 18s. to 22s. per cwt. Green Snail Shells: 17,000 Penang sold; large, 4½d. to 4¾d.; medium, 3¾d.; small, 2½d. to 2¾d.

TIN.—The activity in the market continues, and prices again show an advance, being £1 to £2 higher than last week's quotations. The current rates are Straits on the spot, and afloat, £133 Banca, £134 10s. to £135 per ton.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Increased business in Liverpool at advancing prices has compelled spinners and manufacturers to further raise their quotations, and few sales are reported either for Yarns or Goods. The market closes firm without any activity in sales, buyers being indisposed to follow the advance to the extent demanded.

THE PRESENT PHASE OF THE CHINA QUESTION.

CONSIDERABLE excitement has been caused during the last few days by the rumour, which reaches us from several well-informed sources, that the Chinese Government have resolved to repudiate all their Treaties with foreign Powers on the pretext that the stipulations in them for the protection of churches and missionaries constitute an injurious interference with the internal affairs of the Empire. Without placing implicit reliance on the truth of the rumour referred to, we cannot but perceive that the Chinese note to the Swedish Commissioner, which will be found in another column, justifies some apprehension. The unaccountable delay in the publication of the Correspondence on the Revision of the Treaty of Tientsin, and the total absence of any official communication from Mr. WADE on the subject of the recent Circular to the foreign Ministers, have no doubt contributed to the present general uneasiness. Within the last two days, however, the Blue-book containing this Correspondence has been laid before the House of Commons, and a résumé of its contents will be found in our present issue. This publication is, unfortunately, unaccompanied by any explanation of the cause of Mr. WADE's protracted silence; and the embarrassment of the situation is increased by the facts that no progress has been made in the negotiations between CHUNG HOW and the French Government, and that no steps are ascertained to have been taken on the part of our own Government to hasten the solution of the questions at issue. There is no doubt that all these causes combined have brought our relations with the Chinese Government into a state of difficulty which may well justify anxiety, but which may easily be cleared away by the enunciation of such decided views as Her MAJESTY's representatives and other British subjects interested can agree upon, and which Her MAJESTY's Government may be persuaded to pledge themselves to support.

BILLS OF LADING FOR THE FAR EAST.

In another column we publish a verbatim report of the meeting of merchants and others interested in the Far East, which was held on Tuesday last, for the purpose of considering the best course to adopt in regard to the unfair stipulations introduced into bills of lading, to which we have referred on previous occasions. We are happy to say that the meeting was largely and influentially attended, and it resulted in the appointment of a committee of gentlemen, whose names are a guarantee that the object they have in view will be accomplished with as little delay as possible. The arguments against the obnoxious clauses were so ably set forth by the chairman, by Mr. MAGNIAC, and the other speakers, that it would be idle for us, who have already expressed our opinion on the subject, to attempt to add anything to them now. We would however suggest the advisability of the Hon. Secretary of the Committee addressing a circular letter to the most important shipowning firms, inquiring whether it is their intention to insist on the retention of these clauses, or whether they disclaim them and abide by the regulations which have been found to work to the mutual advantage of shipper and merchant as long as marine insurance has been established. This step would clear the way for future action, and might, in fact, greatly influence the form of a Parliamentary Bill of Lading, framed with due regard to the interests of all concerned, and made the law of the land.

OUR BURMESE VISITORS.

In our last issue we gave some extracts from SCRUTATOR's letter to the Standard on the character of the so-called Burmese Mission. SCRUTATOR appeared to have fallen into the error, of which ~~he~~ could hardly have expected a member of the East India United Service Club to be capable, that the real status of the PADEN WOON and his friends was for a moment misunderstood by anybody, except, perhaps, the Liverpool Chamber and one or two persons at the Foreign-office. The whole affair was put into its right place immediately after the Liverpool festival drew attention to it; and the only good that SCRUTATOR has done by his letter has been to elicit a reply, signed by the PADEN WOON, which is about as handsome a corroboration of SCRUTATOR's allegations as the writer himself could expect, but which nobody else required. In this communication the PADEN WOON expressly states that he has never in any way, either "by letter or speech, described himself, or assumed to be, an ambassador or envoy accredited by his sovereign in European diplomatic form, the rules of which are unknown at his Court." This sentence, short as it is, comprises the whole gist of the PADEN WOON's lengthy but unsatisfactory letter. The remainder is filled with maudlin thanks for the warmth of "his reception," and saccharine compliments on the "wonderful manufactures of every variety," which are encouraged in our great country, including, no doubt, the encouragement of the manufacture of "missions." The letter of the PADEN WOON reads more like the claptrap appeal of a spry American than of the dignified and experienced representative of an Asiatic Court, educated in European diplomatic forms so recently, and by so great an authority as Lord DALHOUSIE. We hope our friends in Liverpool will not feel aggrieved at the present "lame and impotent conclusion" of their somewhat precocious hospitality, for we can assure them it has had no worse effect than to excite a smile. The PADEN WOON, now that he has been informed of "the rules of European diplomatic form," of which he professes his previous ignorance, will no doubt feel it due to himself to write home to his Sovereign for the credentials—which he appears so unaccountably to have thought unnecessary, but the nature of which some at least of his smile are quite able to inform him of—before he avails himself of any more of the "traditional English hospitality to strangers," which was initiated at Liverpool. In the meantime other less "gushing" constituencies may possibly see the common sense of postponing the "proverbial hospitality, &c.," until the KING's diploma comes to hand. And, lastly, the King of BURMAH, if he be well advised, will lose no time in removing any misunderstanding that may exist with reference to the authority of those of his subjects who have come amongst us, and whom, when our Government is quite satisfied of their position and object, it will be able to receive with the courtesy due to the representative of a friendly Sovereign, and without danger of provoking the resentment or ridicule of his Court.

THE BLUE-BOOK ON THE REVISION OF THE CHINA TREATIES.

The "Correspondence respecting the Revision of the Treaty of Tientsin," which has just been presented to the House of Commons, is a Blue-book of no less than 466 pages. It opens with copies of the addresses presented by British merchants to Sir Rutherford Alcock, on his visit to the ports in 1867, and the circular addressed by Sir Rutherford Alcock to the Consuls in China, requesting them to put themselves in communication with the mercantile communities within their jurisdiction, with a view to the revision of the Treaty for which an opportunity presented itself, by lapse of time, in June 1868. At the same time Lord Stanley, then Foreign Secretary, addressed a similar circular to the Secretaries of Chambers of Commerce in the United Kingdom inviting suggestions from them.

In the following September Mr. Consul Robertson forwarded to Sir Rutherford Alcock translated copies of a circular despatch from the Chinese Board of Foreign Affairs, forwarded through the Acting Imperial Commissioner, Tseng-kwo-Fan, to the superintendent of Customs at Canton, together with that officer's reply. Mr. Robertson on this occasion remarked that the despatch of the Foreign Board was "reasonable enough," but the Haekwan's reply was "an anomaly, and proved either obtuseness or inability to learn anything." The despatch, it should be mentioned, merely requested information and suggestions with a view to the contemplated revision. In his reply the Haekwan suggested that increased restrictions should be placed on foreign vessels engaged in the coasting trade on penalty of confiscation, and that the Governor of Hong Kong should be requested to give instructions to the Consul there to take stringent measures for preventing the smuggling of opium and foreign merchandise. Mr. Robertson explained that this apparent ignorance was the more remarkable because if one question had been debated more than another, it was smuggling, and Mr. Robertson had repeatedly explained that, the colony being a British settlement, Chinese jurisdiction could not prevail there, and that, being a free port, the Governor neither knows nor has anything to say to what either comes in or goes out of it. This being so well known, it is impossible that the Haekwan could have been acting candidly in endeavouring to throw the onus of smuggling, which undoubtedly exists, on the Hong Kong Government as the author of it.

The Memorial of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce explaining the views of that body with reference to the principal points in the contemplated revision—the right of residence in the interior, the satisfaction of unredressed claims on the Chinese Government, the suppression of illegal exactions, the proper application of tonnage dues, the improvement in the constitution of the Mixed Court, and the privilege of inland navigation—must be so fresh in the recollection of our readers as to require no more than the mere recapitulation of the heads of the suggestions contained in it. This memorial showed conclusively that the Treaty had failed, not from its nature, but from its interpretation; not from defects inherent in its provisions, but from the mode in which those provisions had been carried out. It proved the necessity that the principles enunciated in the treaty should be embodied in action; that any attempt on the part of the Chinese Government to evade its stipulations should be speedily checked; that subtle arguments for curtailing its stipulations should be rebutted; that illegal levies should be suppressed; and that the securities for the administration of justice should be held with a tight hand.

Mr. Consul Winchester, in his comments on this memorial, (November 7, 1867) described it as the temperate expression of the views of the mercantile community, with which he sympathised, though he felt bound to differ with some part of it. He proposed that foreigners should have the right of inland navigation, but that the issue of transit passes should be confined entirely to goods and produce conveyed in licensed boats. He expressed his opinion that it was not desirable that the ports formally opened to foreign trade on the seaboard should be multiplied either in China or Japan because of the waste of mercantile capital exhibited in the British concessions at Chin-kiang, Kew-kiang, and Hankow. He proposed that, at the various points along the river which are centres of trade and population, there should be established Customs warehouses and landing-places, which would involve the residence of foreign agents in other places than the open ports, and that the right of inland residence and travel, under passport regulations, should be therefore required. With regard to tonnage dues, Mr. Winchester agreed with the suggestions of the Chamber, and advocated the establishment of a harbour police as a necessary part of the contemplated revision. He also agreed with the suggestion of the Chamber for the revision of the Tariff, except so far as concerned salt, on which he proposed an inland duty of one dollar per picul, payable to the salt department of the province where the foreign article is landed. In conclusion Mr. Winchester deprecated the expression of the Chamber's opinion that the occasional display of something more than moral force would tend to the restoration of the prestige of Her Majesty's Consuls, but acknowledged the advantage and security to the Chinese Government which would result from the establishment of railways and telegraphs.

In a memorial from the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce the same views as those of the Shanghai Chamber were generally advocated with the addition of the claim of the Protestant missionaries to the same immunities as had been granted to the Roman Catholics, the right to live in the interior, to hold property for mission purposes, and to pursue their ordinary avocations without limit of distance and without hindrance. This memorial also urged the necessity for insisting on the rendition of absconding debtors, the reduction of the tariff on imports, the abolition of all dues on coals, the permission to work mines, and some other matters of less striking importance. The mercantile communities at various other ports expressed views similar, in the main, to those of the Chambers of Shanghai and Hong Kong.

In November, 1867, Mr. Acting Vice-Consul Forrest, the Assessor of the Mixed Court, furnished a valuable report of the working of that tribunal. Mr. Forrest expressed his opinion that its powers to punish criminals were not sufficient, and that the punishments actually awarded were often not carried out; and added the stronger the foreign element becomes in the Court, the greater will be the security of the public that substantial justice will be administered.

In the same month Sir Rutherford Alcock pointed out to the Prince of Kung that it was important that the denial of the consideration to which foreign Ministers were by treaty entitled should cease; and that they should be admitted to palaces, gardens, &c., at Peking, from which they had been systematically excluded, notwithstanding the stipulations of the Treaty. Several of the British Consuls, in reply to Sir R. Alcock's circular, expressed their opinion of the importance of obtaining increased privileges in the navigation of inland waters, &c.

In April, 1868, Sir Rutherford Alcock, in a despatch to Lord Stanley, expressed his opinion that it was not desirable to insert a clause in any new treaty to compel the Chinese Government to construct and work railways themselves, or to give the power to foreigners to do so; and he added that, according to his experience, we do not advance but retard great innovations by seeking to deprive the Chinese Government of all free will and spontaneity.

All this time the progress of the Conference for the revision of the Treaty was unsatisfactory; and so lately as the 10th November, 1868, Sir R. Alcock wrote to Lord Stanley that there was scarcely any alternative between weakly yielding to a persistent policy of negation ruinous to our commerce, or firmly and unhesitatingly asserting our Treaty rights, adding, "If I might venture to put in words my present feeling, it is that the Prince and Wen and the Yamen generally perhaps will be chiefly guided in the course they follow by their convictions as to the probability of Her Majesty's Government adopting the views of their Minister, and being willing, in the event of his failure to obtain their acceptance here, to take all the risks and responsibility of resorting to coercive means, and, if need be, actual war, to enforce compliance." Writing to Lord Stanley in the following month, Sir R. Alcock said, "The exaggerated courtesy of the Prince's tone, and the profuseness of his thanks to the American Minister, Mr. Ross Browne, who concurred with Sir R. Alcock for his suggestions and reasonings in every way so good and worthy of consideration, coupled with his refusal to be in any way influenced by them, might seem to have a touch of irony in it. However, the Prince, no doubt, meant to send a civil answer conveying an absolute refusal."

In March, 1869, the Earl of Clarendon informed Sir R. Alcock that Lord Granville approved of his suggestion that a Chinese Consul should be appointed in Hong Kong.

In the previous January Sir R. Alcock had sent to the Foreign Secretary an explanation of his views of the principal point on which the whole question turned. He then said—"The emancipation of foreign trade from arbitrary and unlimited taxation by the provisional authorities in transitu is the first and most essential condition of any free development or large extension. Railroads, telegraphs, and the working of mines by foreign capital and skill, are not in the same degree essential to the extension of trade; and, looking to the resistance their adoption meets with in the minds of all the ruling class in China, these are all objects presenting primary difficulties which render them for the present unattainable. As to inland residence and steam navigation, the same remark equally applies to any progress beyond what has been conceded. These are the three great points of attack and defence round which the whole stress of battle has been from the beginning. But the first was the key of the position, and that gained, the rest must follow sooner or later. There is this distinction, however, to be borne in mind; the first proved to be practicable, and the others not by any forces at my disposal, or which Her Majesty's Government were willing to employ."

In due course the Foreign Secretary (the Earl of Clarendon) wrote to Sir R. Alcock that, while in the hope that the Chinese Government would adhere to what they have already conceded, and record it in some document or convention, Her Majesty's Government were willing to wait for a more favourable and complete revision of Treaties, until all the Powers could act together to procure it. But, if the Chinese would not do this, and should declare that their present concessions constituted the whole of the revision they could submit to, in that case, Her Majesty's Government were content to accept what could be obtained at once; and not wait for "eventualities."

At the same time Count Bismarck sent a note to Lord A. Loftus, stating that the representative of the North German Confederation at Peking would be instructed to support Sir R. Alcock. Mr. Fish made a similar communication, promising the co-operation of the United States Minister in China. M. de Lavalette, on the part of the French Government, concurred in the recommendation of the Board of Trade that the revision should be adjourned till the Emperor of China should attain his majority (in 1872 or 1873), and added, "From now to that date the existing treaties, well observed, suffice to our wants." Senor Silvela, Foreign Minister of Spain, also wrote to say; that he had instructed the representatives of his Government in Peking to support the British Government in their propositions. The Belgian Minister expressed similar views in what will probably be considered the most thoughtful, exhaustive, and well-expressed despatch in the huge volume before us.

On the 30th September, 1869, Sir R. Alcock wrote to the Earl of Clarendon that he had come to an understanding with the Chinese Government that the revision should proceed at once on the basis agreed to the previous year by the Commission, and that such modifications as might be finally agreed upon should be embodied in a formal Convention in which no time should be specified on either side defining a period of duration, and that there seemed a prospect that such a revision as Her Majesty's Government contemplated would be carried through in the course of the next month. A supplementary Convention was consequently signed on the 23rd October, and immediately became the object of such opposition that Her Majesty's Government refused to ratify it on the 25th July last year. The circumstances of the opposition, and the clauses which were the source of it, must be too fresh in the recollection of our readers to need recapitulation. It should, however, be mentioned that, while declining to ratify the Convention, in deference to the representations of the China merchants in London, and various associations in the country, Earl Granville stated that "nothing could be further from the intention of Her Majesty's Government than to impute blame to Sir Rutherford Alcock. On the contrary, they highly approved and appreciated his zealous and indefatigable exertions throughout their long and difficult negotiations."

COOLIE TRAFFIC IN DEMERARA.

"The Report of the Commissioners Appointed to Inquire into the Treatment of Immigrants in British Guiana" has just been issued in the form of a Blue-book. It will be remembered that the Commission was ordered in consequence of a despatch which Mr. G. W. Des Vœux, Administrator of the Government of St. Lucia, addressed to Earl Granville in 1869. Mr. Des Vœux, recognising the wide-spread discontent and disaffection throughout the immigrant population, both Indian and Chinese, especially the latter, and believing that these ill-feelings, which have already vented themselves in disturbances, will ere long, unless checked by remedial measures, result in far more serious calamities, and also relying on five years' experience of the colony, addressed a strong appeal to the Government in order to protect the "immigrants," as they are euphuistically called, from the tyranny of the planters. We are bound to say that Mr. Des Vœux has not only fully made out his case, but that, unless some remedy be immediately applied, it is difficult to understand how the authority of the British Government—to say nothing of the respect which it ought to command—can be maintained in the face of the mercantile coalition in Demerara and Berbice. Mr. Des Vœux states frankly that he "did not please the planters" when he endeavoured to do his duty by protecting Her Majesty's coloured subjects against the merciless usage of a body of planters, who seem to have regarded these poor people simply as so many cattle, or, to borrow a term from a vocabulary now happily exploded, "chattels." Owing to the impossibility of obtaining impartiality from magistrates in Demerara, Mr. Des Vœux suggested the creation of a new and superior class, with jurisdiction in all cases, both civil and criminal, between employers and employed, whether the latter are indentured or free. These magistrates should be required to reside in town, and to hold a Court at each police station once a month. They should, moreover, be invested with the power of summarily punishing illegal stoppage of wages, false arrests and imprisonment, and other abominations which appear to have been not only carried on, but encouraged in British Guiana in a manner which would make the recently-disclosed transactions at Macao and the Fiji Islands comparatively venial, if the abuses at either place could be permitted to continue—which they cannot. Mr. Des Vœux recommends that these magistrates should be selected from persons who have no pecuniary interests involved in the estates on which the "immigrants"—which means coolies, ni plus ni moins—are engaged, and on which the present report leaves no doubt that they are subject to such ill-usage that the mere dry legal account of it cannot be read without emotion, and, we must add, shame, by any loyal Englishman. The great majority of the houses in the "nigger yards" (as these receptacles of animated misery are commonly called among the "gentry" of Demerara) are so intolerably uncomfortable that great numbers of coolies prefer to erect for themselves "huts of mud" rather than avail themselves of the "accommodation" of the "nigger yard"—feeling certain that in the miserable sties they build for themselves, and house themselves in, "they are more secure from attempts on the chastity of their wives." Can anything be more saddening than the suggestion implied in these few words from so high an authority as Mr. Des Vœux? It is painful to reflect that a year and a half has elapsed since the time when he drew attention to the extent of this evil and the publication of the evidence which shows him to have been only too correct. The cruelties and the frauds practised on the coolies entrapped into Demerara are, however, by no means confined to the indulgence of the licentious propensities of the planters. The latter are merely the lever on which the former are raised. Coolies who "disoblige" their masters are frequently kept without water, or, rather, they are made to go a distance of a mile before they can slake their thirst, after a hard day's work, with water which is described as "putrid"—a phrase which all who have resided in the tropics will readily comprehend. And this is in a place where there is no excuse for a want of water, the average rainfall in Demerara being 100 inches, amply sufficient to supply the wants of all the estates if the commonest precautions were taken to preserve it. But the Inspectors of Immigrants who are bound to visit all estates at certain periods, on the part of the coolies, "invariably accept the hospitality" of the planters who are charged with these abuses, and, as Mr. Des Vœux mildly puts it; "they can hardly be expected to perform their duties strictly, regularly, or impartially." Unhappy coolies, whose protectors are under such influences! Quis custodiet custodes? The complaisant gentlemen who now walk through the role of inspectors openly permit the most flagrant abuses. Under the present law an employer is bound to pay to his indentured labourers the same price for his work that is paid to free labourers. It is, however, notorious that this obligation is, as a rule, evaded, and sometimes openly broken. The former is easily done where all field labour, as in Demerara, is done by tasks, by allotting to both indentured and free an equal area for weeding, ploughing, or cane-cutting, at the same price, but selecting the most distant fields—sometimes three and five miles from the buildings—for the indentured “immigrant.” The inevitable consequence of these and other abuses is an immense amount of litigation, wherever they do not lead to actual violence; but the result of appeals to the law are most unsatisfactory to the “immigrant.” Mr. Des Vœux says it is quite impossible even for the most impartial magistrate, under the present system, to do justice in cases, in which immigrants are aggrieved. The manager can always produce a number of overseers, drivers, and others dependent on him, to make an overwhelming weight of testimony in his favour, while the immigrant has not the intelligence, and cannot produce witnesses to present his case clearly. He has thus a direct inducement to supplement his ignorance by falsehood and suborned perjury, which, being usually transparent, of course invalidates other very possibly truthful testimony on the same side. On the other hand, falsehood in court is by no means confined to the coloured races, and the whites connected with estates, whether managers, overseers, or engineers, are often by no means scrupulous about the truth when their interests or their fears enter into the question at issue; and this class of falsehood, as proceeding from greater intelligence, is of course the more difficult of detection. As the result of all these difficulties in the path of a most conscientious magistrate, an immigrant but rarely wins a case against his estate, either civil or criminal, either as prosecutor, plaintiff, or defendant. The magistrates’ returns would indeed indicate otherwise from the large number of cases which appear there as dismissed. But of these but a very small portion have been really pressed by the managers. For it is notorious that very many informations are most improperly compromised by money payments, and in these cases but a slight show of resistance, if any, is maintained in court. These evils and many others like them can only be remedied by the appointment of government officers, whose duty it would be to make unexpected visits to estates, and whenever occasion might require, for the purpose of personally inspecting work assigned and the payment offered to immigrants, and of ascertaining the true facts in any doubtful case where these labourers were concerned, so that there might be always forthcoming when necessary independent and disinterested evidence as a guide to the magistrate in his decisions.

Such is Mr. Des Vœux’s opinion, based on long experience and sympathy, and we think few of our readers will dissent from it. The evidence with which it is supported must, however, be reserved till next week.

BILLS OF LADING FOR THE FAR EAST.

On Tuesday, the 11th inst., an influential meeting of merchants and others interested in the trade with the Far East was held at the London Tavern, for the purpose of taking into consideration the practice among steamship owners, since the opening of the Suez Canal route, of printing special forms of bills of lading, containing clauses which would have the effect of annulling their previously existing liability as common carriers of goods, and throwing every possible kind of risk upon the shipper.

Mr. R. W. CRAWFORD, M.P. (of the firm of Crawford, Colvin, and Co.), was voted to the chair, and in opening the proceedings said:—You are aware that our purpose in meeting to-day is with the object of considering a subject of great importance to us, and to every person connected with the India and China trade, as shippers of goods from this country. You will recollect that in former times we had only to deal with the trade round the Cape, and that we had then no difficulty in settling matters with the owners of ships engaged in this trade. But, as you are well aware, great changes have lately been introduced into our trade, and amongst others the practice, since the opening of the Suez Canal, of sending goods to and fro by that route. As you know, the opening of this Canal has not only introduced a different class of ships into the Eastern trade, but also a different class of shipowners, who send their vessels into the Eastern seas, and who are importing methods of doing business which, though they may be familiar with them in their own trade and elsewhere, are certainly not in accordance with our practice, and introduce novelties to which, if we accede, will be found must become very burdensome to us. I may observe that circulars have been sent out to the mercantile firms interested, and if the circular has not been received by any firms who should have been represented at this meeting, I am sure they will readily believe me when I say that the omission has been purely accidental. I have now stated the cause of this meeting, and I presume that you are, of course, familiar with the paper which has been circulated by the Salvage Association at Lloyds, which states the various changes which have lately been introduced into bills of lading, particularly of goods carried by steam vessels. But I will not take up your time in going over the statements contained in this paper. As you know, there are new conditions as to freight; the conduct of the voyage; stipulations touching the carriage of goods and the discretion of the master of the vessel, and other stipulations to which we are quite unaccustomed, and to which we must address ourselves with a view to placing the whole question on a permanently satisfactory footing. And in this question we have not only our own interests to consider, but also the interests of the shipowners and underwriters. For this purpose we propose that a committee be appointed to confer with the shipowners, if they will meet us; and I have no doubt that if this course be taken we shall find them ready to confer with us, and discuss the question with as strong a desire as our own to settle the points under dispute at once and for ever. There is also the new practice which has been introduced, of requiring payment of freight—in some cases—before the goods are examined, landed or weighed. These conditions are quite new to us engaged in the Eastern trade, and we must give the whole subject connected with them most careful consideration. Mr. Magniac has taken a great deal of interest in the matter under consideration, and he will submit to you the first resolution.

Mr. MAGNIAC, M.P., said:—It will not be necessary for me to go into details with which you are as well acquainted as I am. I may briefly state that we have met here to appoint a committee of merchants interested in the Eastern trade to meet the shipowners, and it is my duty to propose the following resolution:—

“That a committee of merchants be appointed to consider all the special stipulations that have been introduced into bills of lading for steam vessels, and to confer thereon with the representatives of the steamship owners and underwriters, with the view of drawing up a general form of bill of lading which shall be equitable in its conditions to all parties, and to arrange such a method of settling the freight as may remedy existing irregularities.”

I ought to have referred to the underwriters, a very important body, who should have been consulted, and without whom we cannot carry on operations, but some gentleman will no doubt be found to represent their views. It is unnecessary for me to tell you what a bill of lading is, beyond simply stating that it is a formal receipt, on presentation of which the shipowner is bound to deliver the goods it represents; such is the law on the subject as it at present stands. By custom and practice certain exceptions have been provided for in our bills of lading, but these exceptions, if examined, will be found to arise on the occurrence of accident or danger altogether beyond control. When communication by steam was opened with the East the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company took the service, and inserted in their bills of lading such stipulations as were necessary, arising from the transhipment of goods at Suez and Alexandria. But a French company, as you are aware, subsequently imported new conditions into the bills of lading, and it is their pernicious example of which we have now to complain. I do not know whether any gentlemen here are aware of it, but a case before the French courts arising out of the special exemptions in a bill of lading was carried on for some six years, and was only at length settled by effecting a compromise. In fact, they were given to understand that, should any further difficulty arise, other means of transporting our goods to the East would be found; and we have reason to believe that this threat had more weight than all the arguments which we had urged in the law courts. But I am happy to say that we have not arrived at that point with our friends at home, and I trust it will be shown that we shall not have to employ any arguments but those of right and persuasion. What first called our attention to this subject was the shipment of a parcel of tea which had been transferred to another steamer; and when we came to investigate the case we found that the conditions in the bill of lading were so numerous and extensive that, as you will have observed from the Salvage Association’s report, they required to be tabulated. Another important clause we shall have to refer to is that which states that the master shall have liberty to call and stay at any ports out of the customary route—that is to say, if you ship goods for one port, you may hear of them at any other, wherever the master may have thought fit to take the vessel. Another important exception is that the master shall be at liberty to tow and assist vessels in all situations—that is to say, the shipowner may be allowed to earn a large sum in salvage; so you see that the shipper is to have all the risk, and the owner all the profit. Then, again, you will observe in the exceptions relating to damage that the shipper has to bear all the risks arising from the negligence or default of pilot, master, mariners, engineer, or other persons in the service of the ship, whether in navigating the ship or otherwise, and so forth. In other words, the servants of the shipowner are at liberty to put the goods intrusted to their charge to any use, without affording the shipper any redress whatever. Another clause states that goods may be transhipped by any other steamer. What could be a more effectual obstacle to the motives which guide shippers in sending goods by specific routes than such a clause as this? Many vessels at present engaged in the Eastern trade, and using the Suez Canal are, as is well known, among the best appointed ships afloat; but the time may come when such will not be the case, and shippers will then be at the mercy of any ill-found, ill-manned miserable craft which it may please the owner to place their goods in. Then, with regard to the carriage of combustible goods; here is a clause which permits the owners, if they think fit, to ship goods which may at any time send ship and cargo to the bottom. As to the payment of freight, this is a question of vital importance to the shipper, as under the bill of lading he is perfectly helpless, and having paid his freight, he is left without redress. Under circumstances as they at present stand, with every title of liability removed from the shipowner, it will be utterly impossible to conduct business; and if any shipowners are present they will see that what we desire is as much for their good as for our own. What can a good shipowner gain by being placed on the same footing in the commercial world with one who is known to run unsafe and worthless ships? I will not trouble you with any further remarks, but simply propose the resolution to which I have drawn your attention.

Mr. TOZER, secretary of the Universal Marine Insurance Company, as representative of the underwriters, stated that he had much pleasure in seconding the resolution, because he knew the difficulties which arise in consequence of the clauses in the bills of lading referred to. Under an ordinary policy of insurance many of the risks mentioned cannot be insured against; and even were they imported into a policy, the legal technicalities would claim from the underwriter more time than in the ordinary course of business he could spare. Of course, underwriters wish that the insurance business should run smoothly, but these clauses are a great obstacle to them in this respect. To show how completely adverse to the interests of all parties such clauses are, Mr. Tozer mentioned the cases of two steamers, the masters of which, in accordance with these clauses in the bill of lading, exercised their right of towing vessels in distress, during which service both steamers were wrecked. In the one case the claims were repudiated by the underwriters, and in the other, which was reported only a few days ago, the insurers, under an ordinary policy, were entirely at the mercy of their underwriters. Of course such a condition of things tended largely to impede business, and, as a matter of common sense, the policy of insurance ought to express on the face of it all risks which the merchant wished to be insured against; but, under the present mode of wording bills of lading, this was impossible. He therefore readily seconded the resolution, because he hoped thereby such action would be taken as would result in the effectual protection of the interests of insurers, and enable the underwriters to conduct their business without exposing them to the trouble and annoyance to which, under the system at present in operation, they are liable. The resolution was then put to the meeting, and carried unanimously.

Mr. ASHTON moved, and Mr. REISS seconded, the next resolution, which was also unanimously passed:—

“That the following gentlemen, with power to add to their number, be nominated a committee to carry out the objects of this meeting:—One of the firm of Messrs. Baring Bros., Mr. W. H. Crane (Messrs. Crawford, Colvin, and Co.), Mr. Farquhar (Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, and Co.), Mr. Alexander Kleinwort (Messrs. Drake, Kleinwort, and Cohen), Mr. E. J. Halton (Messrs. T. A. Gibb and Co.), Mr. G. Arbuthnot (Messrs. Arbuthnot, Latham, and Co.), Mr. James Macandrew (Messrs. Matheson and Co.), Mr. Wm. Broughall (Messrs. Broughall and Co.), and Mr. John Fleming (Messrs. Smith, Fleming, and Co.).”

Mr. BROUGHAL, as one of the committee, moved the next resolution, seconded by Mr. ARTHUR SMITH:—

“That a small subscription be entered into by the mercantile firms interested, to procure the requisite legal advice, and to defray other incidental expenses.”

This resolution was also carried.

Mr. C. B. SKINNER moved, seconded by Mr. FARQUHAR, “That the best thanks of the meeting be presented to Mr. Crawford for his conduct in the chair.”

Mr. CRAWFORD replied, and after referring to the necessity which he thought existed for an opportunity of their coming together and discussing matters referring to their common interest, spoke of the East India and China Association, a society for their protection which had formerly existed, but was now defunct, and suggested that steps should be taken with a view to its reusucitation.

The proceedings then terminated.

THE STATE AND CLAIMS OF HONG KONG.

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The writer of two articles in your paper, entitled “State and Claims of Hong Kong,” deserves the thanks of the public for the pains he has taken to collate a series of important facts. In brief, he shows us that though during the first eighteen years of Hong Kong’s establishment under the British flag as much as a quarter of a million sterling was required from Parliament to get the island into working order as a colony, not only has the place during the last dozen years been self-supporting, but it has returned to the mother country over £100,000 in the shape of contribution towards paying soldiery, as necessary for the protection of China trade generally as of Hong Kong in particular; the burden of the claim put forward by the writer being an exemption henceforth from further forced contribution of £20,000 a-year garrison.

But, with my thankfulness to your contributor for the pains he has taken to collate interesting facts, there I must stop. I cannot go with him in urging an exemption from further contribution in support of a garrison, and this for the following reasons:

—The Government of Hong Kong is costly, and is costly not more for the benefit of English than of many other residents. To wit—According to a census reported by last mail, of a total of European residents of 2,736, only 684, or a fourth, were British, the rest being—Portuguese, 914; German, 166; French, 57; Danish, 23; Italian, 14; Spanish, 3; other countries, 51; the total number of Chinese, including prisoners, being 115,444; grand total, 118,180.

Now, Sir, all these people benefit by the presence of a strong garrison, and all are assumed to contribute towards it. If they pay rateably, the sum amounts to two shillings a head a-year; frightful to make a row about! Your correspondent may say—but they do not pay rateably. It is the trading houses that pay—not the masses. But this will bear argument. If he be right, we have the following:—In 1870 there were six banks at Victoria (5 English, 1 French), merchants, brokers and professionals, 147, viz., 50 British, 49 British Indo, 20 German, 10 American, 9 Portuguese, 7 French, 1 Russian, and 1 Danish; auctioneers, storekeepers, druggists, &c., 76, viz., 39 British, 11 German, 11 Portuguese, 9 American, and 6 French; and of hotels and taverns 27, kept by British, Chinese, Americans, Germans, French, and Portuguese. To assume that these, and these only, pay rateably, the contribution figures at £78 per house, which is undoubtedly high.

But I repeat, I cannot assent to this as a statistic, and would rather take the contribution as paid by Europeans over all in the proportion of fifteen shillings a-head.

In thus pointing out Hong Kong’s actual position in its relation to a contribution calculated to relieve the mother country. I by no means ignore the circumstance that if Chinese were poll-taxed, and foreign shipping entering the port made to pay tonnage dues, English and other legitimate traders might be relieved of such obnoxious taxes as those on stamps, and a good revenue might be created without such factitious aid as the Government now get by licensing gambling, opium smoking, and brothel keeping.—I am, Sir, yours, &c.,
TAV.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

The following is a translation of a memorandum enclosed in a note from the Ministers of the Chinese Board of Foreign Affairs at Peking to the Swedish Royal Commissioner:—

“Some time ago, for mutual advantage, so that neither party might be harmed, treaties were signed between China and foreign nations, to be handed down to posterity. However, in subsequent years, circumstances have arisen which not only prevent their being permanent, but which render them useless, even now, in certain cases. As regards trade there is no probability of Chinese and foreigners quarrelling, but as regards missions there is a great deal of ill-feeling.

“Although the object of missionaries from the first has been to teach the people what is right, yet, from the defective mode of procedure, the Roman Catholic religion (Tien chu chiao) has met with dislike from the common people, and it is, therefore, necessary to decide at once upon some plan to put a stop to this, as it is most important in regard to good feeling and mercantile relations between the nations.

“Your Excellency cannot but be aware that the missionaries, no matter where they have been, have invariably been hated by the people, in consequence of which there have been so many outbreaks that it is impossible to quiet the country.

“From the first introduction of the Roman Catholic (Tien chu) religion into China the missionaries have always been well educated, and the converts have, for the most part, been known as very peaceable; but ever since the treaties were signed the converts have almost invariably been vicious and ungrateful, and people, therefore, regard the religion for making men good with anything but satisfaction.

“Again, the converts take advantage of the influence of the missionaries to do harm to and oppress the common people, which they will not submit to.

“Moreover, when any litigation or case arises between the people and the converts which the local authorities proceed to deal with, the missionaries follow after and support the converts, thus obstructing the authorities, which the people strongly object to.

“Besides, when turbulent or lawless persons of any kind enter the religion, they use the influence thus acquired to foment disturbances, and this stirs up deep resentment in the people, which gathers until it becomes hatred, and hatred revenge.

“The people do not know that the Protestant and the Roman Catholic sects are separate, and call both the ‘Tien chu’ religion; nor do they know the difference between the several nations of the West, but consider all as ‘foreigners;’ so when a disturbance arises, all persons, of whatever nationality they may be, that are residing in China are equally in great danger. Even in the provinces that are quiet the greater part of the inhabitants are full of ill-feeling. Under such circumstances, how can excitement and riot be avoided? Although the differences between each separate religion and each separate nation have repeatedly been explained, yet it is impossible for every house and family to know them.

“During the ten years the Prince has been in office he has been in suspense night and day, and last year there was an affair at Tientsin. All of a sudden a riot broke out, and, although the local authorities have been tried and punished, the ringleaders executed, compensation made, and everything possible done in dealing with the case, thus closing it, still the Prince cannot help being very anxious, because though on the occasion of this collision between the people and the converts there was only this course to be followed, yet hereafter such outbreaks may become more and more difficult to be dealt with, and each time the excitement will be greater. Considering the circumstances, how are order and mutual good feeling to be obtained, and disturbance prevented?

"But this hatred of the common people has arisen from long-cherished resentment, and because the converts and people are excited against each other. In each province, wherever anything has occurred, the local officials have been unable to restore order. But all this is simply because the high representatives of both China and foreign nations, though perfectly aware that there is a great deal relating to the missionaries, the converts, and the masses, which is not as it ought to be, still did not choose to decide upon a plan for allaying bad feeling. If anything happens [the Ministers of] foreign nations only plan is to settle that one case quickly, never caring whether men's hearts are satisfied or not, but do all in their power forcibly to effect a settlement, and the Chinese local authorities simply endeavour by conciliation to end the affair. They have no alternative, so they merely attend to what is passing under their eyes, never thinking of what will follow hereafter. On former occasions when foreign nations had arranged conferences in order to find out what was wrong, so as to try and decide upon [some way of preserving] mutual good feeling for ever, [from some] unknown [cause] they would not carry on the conference with an even mind, but make use of these mutual meetings to propose utterly impracticable measures, and use all their exertions to recommend them, thus putting a stop to all [proceedings]. This is not at all the right spirit for two nations to carry on relations.

"The Prince and the Ministers have now investigated the whole question, for they greatly desire friendly relations between China and foreign countries, so that they may be on good terms for ever. They cannot possibly help deciding well upon some course of action.

"But still the Western nations have missionaries living in one another's countries, and there has always been good feeling. The cause must be good regulation, whereby neither missionaries nor converts can foment disturbances. Now the Prince and the Ministers hear that when missionaries of no matter what nationality go and live in another country, the practice is for them to submit to the laws of that country—they are not allowed to be ruled by their own. Should they disregard the laws or the orders of the officials of that country, and overstep their proper spheres, or damage men's reputations, or in any way injure or harm persons so that good feeling is destroyed and resentment and hatred called forth, or if they offend against the laws in any way, there are severe penalties to punish them by.

"Now, order would be preserved and good feeling would last for ever, there would be no pulling down of chapels or driving away of religions in China, if when about to build a chapel or teach religion it was first ascertained that the local officials and people were not opposed, and that there was unanimity between the two parties; and if the missionaries would let every one see clearly what they do, and that it is not at variance with the religion [they teach]; also, if they would not do just as their converts direct them, meddling with the official business of the local authorities, and making use of their influence forcibly to harm [the people], thus calling down the hatred of the gentry and common people. If the missionaries would act in this way, as mentioned, the people would be friendly with them, and the officials would be able to protect them.

"From what the Prince and the Ministers hear, the manner in which [missionaries] come into China to teach religion is not the same as that in other countries. When it happens that in one country there are a number of people of different nationalities, who take upon themselves to be their own masters, can mutual good feeling be expected to last, and the officials and people not feel enmity towards them?

"It is the duty of the Prince and the Ministers to guard against [any future] calamity. For since the settlement of the affair at Tientsin [the pride of] the ignorant converts in every place will rise like smoke, and they will boast of their influence, which the people will deeply resent, and this resentment will increase, and is sure to break out into a very serious affair, which [first] the local authorities will not be able to control, and then the Governor-Generals and Governors, and eventually the Tsung-li Yamen will be powerless; and if all China rise together, even though the Emperor should select and depute high officers and order out many soldiers, the people are numerous and cannot all be put to death; besides, when they are all angry they would not bow their heads quietly to be executed. If this happened, no matter how willing the officials of both parties might be to deal with the affair, both would be equally unable to do anything, and neither the Chinese nor foreign Ministers would be able to shift their responsibility.

"The Governments of both Chinese and foreign countries must consider the dispositions of their subjects; if they do not, but forcibly oppress the people, the latter will inevitably turn round, and although the nation has its laws there will be a time when these will be useless.

"If the Chinese and foreign Ministers whose duty it is to do nothing whatever to stop it, but sit still and look on while the Chinese and foreigners are getting excessively dangerous, and are unable to devise any plan for quieting them, they will be unfit to do any other official business properly that may hereafter come to them.

"This memorandum has been drawn up in consequence, and, besides being forwarded to all the other Ministers, this copy is now sent to your Excellency for your consideration."

NEW SEASON'S TEA.

The following are the vessels reported as having sailed from the China ports with new season's Tea.—

From HANKOW.—Australia, Erl King, Ulysses, Enterprise, Craigforth, Cheops, Lord of the Isles, Mongolia.

From SHANGHAI.—Hector, Ziba.

From FOOCHOW.—Abbotsford, Diomed, Glendarroch.

From CANTON.—Canton, Danube.

The P. and O. steamer Australia, which is noticed above as having sailed from Hankow, was at Port Said on the 14th inst., and will probably arrive at Southampton on the 19th; she will be followed by the Mongolia, another P. and O. steamer, which left Galle on the 12th inst., and may be expected early in August. The Enterprise, steamer, from Hankow, reached Aden on the 8th, and Suez on the 15th inst.; the Ulysses, from the same port, arrived at Singapore on the 25th ult.

At the moment of going to press we hear rumours of a typhoon at Shanghai, by which a considerable portion of the Foreign Settlement has been destroyed. Other accounts are said to report the occurrence of a similar disaster at Hiogo, resulting in the loss of seven steamers. We have not been able to trace either of these rumours to an authentic source.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

Mr. Carstairs Douglas has published a letter in the Scotsman in defence of missionaries in China. Mr. Douglas agrees with the editor that "the selection of Catholic missions for particular notice is rather a diplomatic move;" and, "if the Catholic missions be crippled, there will not be much trouble with those of Protestant direction." And he adds:—"For the oppressive, unjust, and illegal rules against which we protest are bad in their very nature, whether applied to the one or to the other; and we feel certain that, if enforced against them, we cannot escape." The writer proceeds:—"Protestant missionaries have never claimed for their converts exemption from Chinese law, and would not accept such a privilege if offered them." In conclusion he repeats the warning that this is not a mere missionary question. The attack, while apparently directed against missions, is really against all foreign interests. If our Government could be so careless and short-sighted as to allow the Treaty to be nullified in regard to the clauses in question, as the result (he it observed) of systematic misrepresentation and organised opposition on the part of the Chinese governing classes, this would certainly encourage them to use the same policy to nullify the other clauses of the Treaty. The success of the circular would and could have but one interpretation in China—namely, "England is weak, and is afraid of China."

We have reason to believe that either the Repulse or the Iron Duke will shortly be commissioned to take the place of the Ocean as flag ship of the China Squadron.

Among the recent appointments to the Order of the Bath were three officers who have distinguished themselves in China. Dr. Charles Abbotcrembie Anderson, C.B., Inspector-General of Hospitals and Fleets, entered the service in 1841. His services during the engagements at Fatahan and Canton were very favourably mentioned in a despatch from Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, K.C.B. For his services in China he was promoted in 1858 to the rank of Deputy Inspector-General, and was subsequently in charge of Hong Kong Hospital. Richard Denton Mason, C.B., Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals and Fleets, was gazetted in 1853 for his services at Canton. Dr. David Lloyd Morgan, C.B., Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals and Fleets was present with the 2nd battalion of Marines at the operations before and in Canton, and was mentioned in the London Gazette, as were also his services in the Euryalus at the engagement at Kagosima, when the ship suffered severely.

TELEGRAPHIC intelligence has been received from Singapore under date of the 10th inst., by which we learn that H.M.S. Rinaldo has made an attack on the strongholds of the pirates in the Straits of Malacca, and succeeded in most effectually destroying them. The casualties among the crew of the Rinaldo were slight.

ADVICES from the Cape of Good Hope state that Her Majesty's screw troopship Tamar, Captain Hickley, arrived at Table-bay on the 21st of May, and, after having disembarked several officers and men of the 86th Regiment, proceeded on the 22nd to Simon's-bay. On June 2 she left for China and Japan, all well on board.

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, July 11.

In my last letter I gave your readers some account of the preparations making for the forced introduction of the French Decimal system of weights and measures, which is to come into operation throughout all Germany on the 1st of January next. Alsace and Lorraine are of course included, but as they were French provinces when the system was first introduced in that country, the inhabitants have the advantage over their new fellow-countrymen in the other parts of Germany of being thoroughly conversant, both by theory and practice, with the system in all its details; so that, there at least, there will be no complaints heard nor any confusion and misapprehension on the subject to be expected. On the contrary, they cannot but rejoice to see the beneficent system extended to Germany on the other side of the Rhine, as it will not fail to facilitate their commercial intercourse and promote their mutual interests. Our neighbours at Altona have also taken a step in the right direction by opening an Exhibition of the new weights and measures, where the objects on show not only bear the official stamp or brand—and are thus suited for immediate use—but are saleable in any quantities; and being made of various substances—brass, iron, pewter, tin, and wood—the prices can be regulated to suit any purchaser's pocket.

There is another subject of equal, if not greater importance for the consolidation and unification of Germany that I wish to lay before your readers, as it is of a kindred character to the foregoing, and is at this moment exciting a great deal of interest in this country. I allude to the reform of the monetary system, and the introduction of one uniform coinage for the whole Empire. It is true that of late years a great improvement has taken place by the goodwill and voluntary exertions of the different Governments; but still it is a melancholy fact that at the present moment there are no less than seven different systems of money existing in different parts of Germany, which may be classified as follows:—The Prussian system, with its thalers, groschens, and pennings. In the south of Germany and on the Rhine they have their guildens (or florins) at 60 kreutzers. At Bremen they buy and sell by gold thalers (about 11 per cent. better than Prussian currency), each divided into 72 groats. Here at Hamburg we are blessed with two exclusive systems, viz., banco and currency, each consisting of marks, schillings, and pennings. The former is the money for accounts, but is not coined, and represents the value of the silver bars deposited in the cellars of the Bank, whilst the latter is the money that circulates for the purchase and sale of articles of daily consumption, and is about 25 per cent. less valuable than banco money; but the coins have now become so scarce, having been melted down from time to time, that we are fain to make use of any other country's moneys, which nobody refuses, and which circulate, not by law but by custom, at certain fixed prices, whilst the coin in most general use is the Prussian thaler. Thus, in making a small purchase at a shop and tendering a thaler, the chances are that among the change he receives back the purchaser will find an American quarter-dollar, an English shilling or sixpence, a Danish mark (which passes here for five schillings currency), a six-kruitzer piece, a five-groschen piece, or one of 2½ groschens, which makes it the more confusing, some Mecklenburg or Lubeck small coins, and perhaps one or two schillings in Hamburg money—enough to bewilder any foreigner who drops in from a distant country. And, lastly, there is the new province of Alsace-Lorraine, where they have the French system of francs and centimes. Besides these there are other parts of Germany where they enjoy a separate subdivision of their currency;—thus in Mecklenburg the Prussian thaler is divided into 48 schillings, in Saxony the groschen contains ten pennings, and in some parts of Hanover the old "guter groschen" is still current as the twenty-fourth part of the thaler.

All this is a serious drawback to wholesale commerce and even retail trade, and it has not escaped the attention of the different Governments as well as thinking men among the financial and mercantile community. Innumerable plans have been suggested and thrown aside in consequence of the opposition they met with from adherents of a different system. But now at length that the unity of Germany is happily accomplished, every one feels that the present insupportable state of things can no longer be endured, and that some remedy must be found without further loss of time.

Last summer it was the intention of the Government to appoint a special commission to investigate the subject in all its details and draw up a report accompanied by definite proposals of some plan that would be found practicable; but as the declaration of war precluded the execution, it was necessarily postponed till more quiet times, and now on the restoration of peace the idea has been abandoned altogether, and it seems now intended to draw up a system of their own and lay it before the German Parliament at their next session, which will be in October next; so that, if it meets their approval, the Bill may be passed immediately and its provisions come into operation on New Year's Day. Though nothing official has transpired with regard to the details of the new project it has leaked out that the unit of the German currency will be the present Prussian thaler, which is to be divided into three marks of ten groschens each, with decimal sub-divisions, and all the smaller coins of less than a mark to be considered as change (Scheidmünze) and not admissible for the payment of any sum exceeding one thaler. At the same time gold coins of five and ten thalers will be struck and put in circulation, which will be based on the proportion of 1 of gold to 15½ of silver, so that the lb. (half-kilogramme) of gold will contain 465 (156 by 30) thalers; and all public offices are to be authorised and bound to take them at their full nominal value. This plan has at all events the merit of being very simple and easy to understand, whilst it abstains from any sudden and arbitrary encroachment on the systems now in use, and to which the people are accustomed, and at the same time it will teach them to appreciate the advantages of a gold currency. As a necessary consequence, the further coinage of silver dollars would be suspended, and those now in circulation withdrawn by degrees and successively. If the relative value of gold and silver remain in the same proportion to each other as at present, the substitution of a gold currency for the present silver coinage can easily be effected without any great expense. This project has also the additional advantage that it requires no special legal enactment to alter existing contracts for money payments, which will all remain undisturbed, or can easily be brought into harmony with the new system.

Shortly before the close of last session the subject attracted the attention of many members of the German Parliament—among whom were several well-known political economists and financial and mercantile capacities, including the representatives of Hamburg, Bremen, Altona, and Frankfurt—who formed themselves into a "Free Committee" to the exclusion of politics, and they held their first meeting under the chairmanship of Herr Miquel. After a sitting of three hours they came to the resolution not to bring the subject before the House, as there was no time to carry any measure, since the prorogation was to take place in a few days, but rather to make their wishes known to the Chancellor of the Empire, with the request to obtain the consent of the Federal Council during the recess to a Bill to be brought in in the October session of the German Parliament. The Free Committee declared themselves (1) opposed to any measure of a temporary or provisional character, or that did not bear the stamp of expressing some fixed principle or system (consequently against the projected coinage of gold five and ten dollar pieces); (2) in favour of the immediate introduction of one uniform monetary system for the whole of the German Empire; (3) in favour of a gold currency; (4) in favour of a double (gold and silver) currency for a certain period of transition; and (5) in favour of a centesimal division exclusively for the new unit of currency.

All this is no doubt very satisfactory and encouraging as far as it goes, showing, as it does, the animus that pervades the minds of the Germans at home, and the general wish of the nation for one uniform monetary system. But, in my humble opinion, it does not go far enough, and I foresee that fierce debates will take place in Parliament in the coming autumnal session on any such half-measure as the one described above; and I firmly believe that nothing will satisfy the nation short of the adoption in all its entirety of the beautifully easy and simple French system of francs and centimes, with a gold currency, which is also founded on the metrical decimal system, and after all only forms the complement of the new system of weights and measures about to be introduced in a few months. Besides, it will facilitate to an amazing extent the commercial relations of Germany with nearly all the adjoining countries, as well as several in other quarters; for it should not be lost sight of that there is now only one currency of francs and centimes used in Belgium, France, Switzerland, and Italy, as well as in Roumania, Greece, and other smaller states, with a total population of a hundred millions of inhabitants; and that, by mutual agreement and international State treaties, the gold and silver coins of one country pass current at their full home value in all the others respectively. I cannot conceive the possibility of any one practically acquainted with the facilities and advantages of the franc-and-centime system voting in favour of the adoption of any other.

COMMERCIAL.

The Tea market is steady, and 2,000 chests of Congou and Souchong were sold by importers at previous rates. The quality of the new Rice is considered satisfactory, and important sales have been effected at rather higher prices. The imports of the first six months of this year were 86,000 bags, against 63,000 ditto in the corresponding period of 1870. There is a brisk demand for Cassia Lignea, for which 11½ to 11¾ sch. bco. has been paid, and none is to be had now under 12. Flores commands more speculative attention, the present price of 14½ to 15 sch. bco. being very low. Nearly all the stock of Pepper has been cleared off at rising prices, 6¼ sch. bco. being paid for Singapore, and 5½ for Penang. Large deliveries of Star Annis have tended to strengthen the market and increase the demand. There being no stocks of refined Camphor in the market, purchasers are content to wait, and have made contracts for later delivery. No more sales of Spelter are reported, but the article is firm at 12½ marks bco.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 12.

Before separating for the recess the Second Chamber has given a most important decision. The treaty between the Governments of Holland and England, for the transfer of our settlements at the West Coast of Africa to England, was passed, but by a very small majority, viz., 34 to 30, sixteen members being absent. The Treaty of Siak, however, regarding our settlements on Sumatra was rejected by 36 against 28. In my last letter I told you that the Minister had been obliged to lay before the members the diplomatic correspondence regarding this matter, and subsequently, at the request of Mr. Fransen van de Putte, the Minister granted the members permission to make a discreet use of this correspondence during the debate. Messrs. van Sypesteijn, Gratama, Nierstrasz and Mirandolle opened the battle with a vehement attack on the treaties. Mr. van Sypesteijn reminded the House that he had protested three years ago against the transfer, and he deeply regretted that the former Minister of the Colonial Department had been weak enough to yield so easily to the demands of England. The Treaty of Sink was in his eyes nothing better than a humiliation; our rights fixed by the treaty of 1824 would be completely annulled by it. Mr. Gratama demonstrated that the transfer was unnecessary, that we should not obtain any equivalent by the Siak treaty; Holland, as a colonial Power, would be humiliated, and its prestige abandoned. Messrs. Nierstrasz and Mirandolle indicated, in very able speeches, that the rights which were granted by England in return for the transfer were of no importance, and that the difficulties in which we were periodically involved in Sumatra would still obtain. The fears evinced by England of injury to the interests of British traders (residents in Sumatra) could have been removed by the positive engagement of our Government to introduce free-trade principles in our colonies, and probably England would then have supported the extension of our authority in Sumatra. The Government had tried to hush discontented traders by making inexcusable concessions to English subjects. The connection between the treaties was also a point of much complaint. Messrs. Rombach, Cremers, Bredius, and 's Jacob defended the treaties. The transfer was not at all, it was said, derogatory to our honour; we lived under circumstances which were wholly changed; the slave trade was abolished, which rendered it unnecessary for us to maintain our position on the Gold Coast; the policy of trade was altered, and free-trade principles enabled Dutch merchants to trade as well in the English as in the Dutch settlements. To establish undertakings of agriculture at the Coast was not thought advisable; a million of guilders would be required, and even this sum would not be sufficient for the purpose. A war with Ashantee would probably ensue if we did not transfer our settlements. It was stated, they further said, that the negroes wished to live under our authority, and they had addressed the Chamber to that effect. But what did addresses signify from natives who do not understand one word of the Dutch language? It is true that they wished most eagerly to be protected by our military force when they returned from their pillaging expeditions; but was that sympathy? Even England had at one time entertained the project to abandon the Gold Coast; why should we not do it now that these settlements are of no use to us? We do not sell them, we only sell our fortresses and other property. It is a beautiful argument that we should keep what our forefathers conquered; but do not bark if you cannot bite. The defenders of the treaties then proceeded to demonstrate that the Siak Treaty did contain an equivalent—namely, the stipulation that England should not oppose the extension of our authority in the States of Siak, Sree-Indrapoura, and Atsjeen.

In the third sitting, Messrs. Hasselman and de Casembroot attacked the treaties, but not so vehemently as did Mr. Fransen van de Putte, who, in the strongest possible language, condemned the behaviour of Mr. de Waal. The transfer of the African settlements he approved of; according to his opinion it was impossible to do the natives a greater service, but the Treaty of Siak he condemned. He demonstrated that we had an indisputable right to establish our authority in Siak. But, notwithstanding his opposition, Mr. Van de Putte feared for difficulties with England, and, after having protested against the expression "Perfidie Albion," used by one of the speakers, advised the ratification of both the treaties. Mr. Gericke, Minister of Foreign Affairs, defended the treaties, and the Minister of the Colonial Department said that in 1867 the Chamber had demonstrated the necessity for the transfer, with which advice he was now acting in accordance; he called the African possessions articles de luxe, meaning that we are not able to defend the native population without a vast expenditure. The Siak Treaty he defended by the argument that it should be ratified tout serait pour le meilleur du monde between the Dutch authority and the English residents. The fate of the Ministerial proposals I have already stated.

In the last sitting of this Session the Minister for Foreign Affairs announced that, in consequence of the rejection of the Siak Treaty (the Dagblad mentions that negotiations for another one will be opened at the Court of St. James's), the consideration of the Treaty with Great Britain concerning immigration into the Dutch possessions is provisionally postponed. Mr. Fransen van de Putte inquired when the Minister of the Colonial Department will introduce his proposals for the revision of the East India tariff; Mr. van Bosse stated that probably it will be laid before the members in September next. The members of the First Chamber will meet on the 18th inst., but of course they will not be a long time together in the Royal residency, which is gradually being filled with princely guests in attendance on the marriage of Princess Marie with the German Prince Zu Wied.

The election in Haarlem of a member for the Second Chamber has proved a success for the Liberal party, Mr. Kappeyne van de Coppello being returned by 894 votes. The Conservative candidate, Mr. W. Baron van Goltstein, formerly a member for Hoorn, only polled 483 votes. To-day the elections took place for members of the First Chamber. Up to this moment the following gentlemen have been returned:—Messrs. G. A. de Raadt, J. W. Hein (South Holland), H. Rahusen, D. C. de Dieu Fontein (North Holland), G. R. G. van Swinderen (Friesland), C. Geertsema (Groningen), W. H. Cost Jordens (Overijssel), Van Pallandt (Gelderland), W. C. Borsuis (Zeeland), C. J. A. van Ryckevorsel and G. A. Vos de Wael (North Brabant), L. L. G. M. de Villers de Pit  (Limburg).

The first seagoing vessels passed yesterday through the new canal from Rotterdam to the North Sea; they drew twenty-eight decimeters of water. If this Canal proves a success, it will greatly promote the welfare of our town. At every point workmen are busy demolishing houses, to make room for the railway, which is destined to cross right through Rotterdam.

Rumours have been spread that the Prins van Oranje, a steamer built for account of the Nederlands Company, was more or less seriously damaged while being launched on the Clyde. These on dits are quite unfounded. This ship arrived at Texel to-day, and in a few weeks will start for Batavia.

From a good source I hear that the fortress of Bois-le-Duc is to be dismantled.

Some days since an examination took place at Delfs of functionaries for the civil service of Netherlands India. Amongst the successful candidates was Mr. Radhen Mas Ismangoen, a grandson of the Emperor of Djocjocarta.

According to official returns of our trade in 1870 the total of our exports during that year amounted to f.938,740,070, and our imports to f.1,162,353,098.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Not much activity has been manifested in our produce market, except in Spices, Cotton and Tin, which articles have been in brisk demand, and pretty large transactions have been concluded at further advanced rates. Parcels of Java Tobacco have also met ready buyers at full prices, whilst Coffee has continued in good request at the late currency; in other articles there has been comparatively but little stirring.

COFFEE.—A firm tone has continued to pervade the market, and pale Java, for which a partial advance has occasionally been paid, has in particular met with a good demand. Sales have been closed since my last of the following shipments of private importations, viz., 2,456 bags Java, ex Nagasaki, 849 bags Bali and Timor, ex Vice Admiral Mayand Obey; 828 bags Macassar, ex Maarten van Rossem, 1,126 bags Java, ex Hollandia, 154 do., ex Annie Fleming.

SUGAR without alteration; but little on offer.

TEA exhibits a quiet appearance.

SPICES.—An animated demand has continued to prevail for Nutmegs and Mace, at further advanced rates, and large sales have been making. The present quotations are as follows:—Nutmegs, No. 1, 158c. to 160c.; No. 2, 148c. to 150c.; No. 4, 90c.; Mace, D, 250c. to 255c.; do., E, 245c. to 250c.

RICE looks dull, in accordance with the slackness of the corn trade, and under the influence of the abundance and cheapness of potatoes and vegetables. The weather has continued most propitious for growing crops.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—The sales include 946 bales Java Blitar, 431 bales without headmark, 455 bales Kendal Malang, and 221 bales F.J.

BLACK PEPPER.—2,770 bags, ex Alblasserwaard, St. Louis, and Schiedam, changed hands.

RATTANS.—Only one transaction is to be reported from first hands since my last report, namely, the sale of 97 piculs, ex Wemyss Castle.

MOTHER-O'-PEARL SHELLS in good demand. Within some days eight tons will be offered.

TIN.—Increased firmness has been shown, and sales have been making at gradually advancing rates, viz., Banca Spot, f.79 to f.80; do., for delivery ex the next autumn sale, f.77½ to f.78; Billiton, for delivery ex quay, at f.78 to f.78½.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—July 5, at Texel, from Samarang, Aristos; from Rangoon, Madeleine; 8, at Zierikzee, from Batavia, Noach I.

DEPARTURES.—July 10, from Brouwershaven, for Batavia, Marie; for Sourabaya, Constantia; for Macassar, Vrachtzoeker; from Texel, for Batavia, Ocean.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java, per Noach I.: Mr. C. Kater and family, Mr. P. Stam and family, Mr. Kol and family, Mr. Bloem and family, Mrs. Belle and family, Mrs. de Groof, Mr. Meyer, and Mr. Hoogwinckel.

Monetary and Commercial.

The meeting to which reference was made in our last issue, for the purpose of taking into consideration the system adopted by steamship owners, of printing bills of lading for the Far East containing clauses which practically annul their liability, was held on the 11th inst., under the presidency of Mr. R. W. Crawford, M.P. Mr. Magniac, M.P., moved a resolution appointing a committee of merchants to consider the special stipulations introduced into bills of lading for steam vessels, and to confer thereon with the representatives of steamship owners and underwriters with the view of drawing up a general bill of lading, which shall be equitable in its conditions to all parties, and of arranging such a method of settling the freight as may remedy existing irregularities. This resolution was unanimously agreed to, and a subscription entered into to defray any expenses that might be incurred. The proceedings at the meeting are fully reported in another column.

It is announced that the half-yearly interest due on the 1st August, on the Imperial Government of Japan Customs Loan for £1,000,000 sterling, will be paid by Messrs. J. Henry Schroder and Co. on and after that date.

The report of the directors of the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company, to be presented at the meeting on the 21st inst., has been issued. The report says:—

The traffic receipts show a satisfactory result. From the opening of the line in January last up to 30th June, the receipts of the company, in excess of its expenses, have amounted approximately to £19,500, which enable the directors to declare an interim dividend, free of income-tax, for the half-year at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. The traffic has increased since the recent opening of the China line on the 8th of June, and the anticipated completion of the Australian line at the end of the present year gives promise of a large increase of traffic over this company's cable.

In accordance with the resolution passed at an extraordinary general meeting of the company on June 26, 1870, the terminus of the line was changed from Point de Galle to Madras, from which latter place the cable has accordingly been laid to Singapore, touching at Penang; the additional cost of this change was met by the issue of debentures to the amount of £14,500. The line was opened for through traffic on Jan. 4 last. Owing to the unexpectedly high temperature of the sea in the Penang-Singapore section, the insulation, which varies very rapidly with temperature, did not in that section strictly comply with the contract standard. The company's engineers advised, however, that the cable was substantially perfect in every respect. The directors have arranged to deduct £7,500 from the shares due to the contractors as a compromise of all questions arising upon the contract by reason of the technical non-compliance with the conditions of specification. An arrangement has been made with the China Submarine Telegraph Company for the joint purchase of the steamship Agnes, which is fully fitted as a cable ship; the vessel is stationed at Singapore, and is available for executing repairs to the cable should they at any time be required. The purchase has been arranged for the sum of £19,300, of which this company's share has been paid by the issue of debentures to the amount of £9,500, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, the balance of £150 being paid in cash. Since the laying of the cable a slight fault developed itself in the Straits of Malacca, about half-way between Singapore and Penang, which did not interfere with the working of the line, and it was repaired in the course of a few hours on the 7th June.

The Telegraph Construction Company has declared a dividend of 12s. per share for the half-year, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

At the meeting of the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Company (Limited), held on the 11th inst., a dividend was declared for the half-year at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for June indicate a continuance of the recent strong revival in nearly every department of business, the declared value of our exportations having amounted to £19,258,233, which is £1,950,309, more than 11 per cent., in excess of the total for the corresponding month of last year, and 15 per cent. above that of June, 1869. This increase has again been distributed over nearly all the principal articles of our produce or manufacture. In cotton yarn it is 14 per cent. in value and 20 per cent. in quantity, in cotton manufactures 1 per cent.

in value and 7 per cent. in quantity, in earthenware 19 per cent. in value, in haberdashery 38 per cent., in hardware 12 per cent., in machinery 10 per cent., in linen manufactures 21 per cent., in silk manufactures 32 per cent., in woollen manufactures 46 per cent., and in miscellaneous 11 per cent. Iron figures for a reduction of 3 per cent., and coal 5 per cent. Much of the prevailing activity has evidently been due to the improved character of our colonial trade. The importations of the month have comprised 2,453,851 cwt. of which, valued at £1,468,647, against 1,944,299 cwt., valued at £1,068,864, in the corresponding month of last year. Of cotton the importations have been 1,016,717 cwt., valued at £3,426,732, against 895,702 cwt., valued at £4,268,871, in the corresponding month of last year. The total declared value of our exportations for the first half of the present year has been £101,637,970, showing an increase of nearly 5 per cent. over the corresponding half of 1870, and about 11 per cent. over that of 1869.

The following is an extract from these Returns of those figures which relate to our Export trade with China and other countries in the Far East:—

TEA.

No change of any importance has taken place in the market during the past fortnight, and the only feature of interest has been the public sales, without reserve, noticed in our last report. The stock in the United Kingdom up to the 30th ult. is estimated at 80,100,000 lbs., against 92,300,000 in 1870, and the quantity afloat at 759,960 lbs., against 2,930,000 lbs. in 1870.

Red-leaf Congous: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds continue difficult of sale. Fair common are unchanged. Good common must be quoted rather lower, sales having been made at 10½d. to 11½d. per lb. Fair qualities have been steady at 1s. to 1s. 2d. In good to fine and finest transactions have been unimportant. Paklins are firm. Black-leaf kinds: all low qualities are much depressed in value, and almost unsalable. Fair common are neglected at lower rates. For good common there is no demand. Fair to good medium are wanted, and no doubt first arrivals of New Teas will command competition. Good to fine and finest have been forced off, at auction, at low rates; but the finest new Teas, if they arrive in moderate quantities next month, and prove of satisfactory quality, will probably meet with ready sale at fair prices. Amoy kinds are altogether neglected. In new-make Canton Congous further supplies, received overland, have sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. for fair, and 1s. 9d. to 1s. 11d. for good to fine quality, being a decline on last quotations. The fair qualities are difficult of sale, and would recede in value on further additions to stock. Oologs are unchanged. In Souchongs and Flowery Pekoes there is no business. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been sold on easier terms, and are difficult of sale. Foochow kinds are steady. Canton Orange Pekoes have been a little more in request, and are firm at last quotations. Foochow kinds are unaltered. In uncoloured Japans there is nothing doing. Green Teas: There has been no business of any importance since our last report. Canton Gunpowders of the lower qualities are most difficult of sale.

SILK.

Business continues on a large scale, and prices have still a decided improved tendency. For Chinas the demand has been very active, and the market is now pretty well cleared of all available descriptions, Tsatlees being particularly scarce; the advance in prices during the past fortnight is 6d. to 1s. per lb. Japan Silk still sells freely at improving prices, the advance from the recent lowest point being 2s. to 2s. 6d. per lb.

Deliveries, 1st to 12th inst. inclusive: China, 1,609 bales; Canton, 690 bales; Japan, 377 bales; total, 2,676 bales.

The market for Ceylon is quiet, and although only moderate supplies have been offered the demand has not been equal, and prices of Plantation have been irregular and occasionally lower; Native has been but sparingly offered. Plantation has sold, triage and ordinary 47s. to 56s., small colour 57s. 6d. to 61s., fine ordinary 53s. 6d., low middling 61s. to 64s., middling 64s. 6d. to 70s., good middling to fine middling 70s. 6d. to 77s. 6d., good to fine bold 80s. to 83s., pea-berry 79s. 6d. to 88s.; bold native Ceylon has sold at 55s. SUGAR.

The market is again extremely dull, there being scarcely any demand, and it is difficult to make sales on previously ruling terms. Holders, however, do not press sales, and there is no actual depreciation in prices to record. Early last week at auction offers of 3,236 baskets good to fine grainy Java, per Chetah, were nearly all bought in, only 62 baskets being sold, fine grey (duty 5s. 8d.) at 38s. 6d., privately 2,000 bags Penang were quitted at 26s. to 27s., and 900 baskets low date at 20s. There were no further transactions until the 13th, when 675 bags Penang in auction sold, colour grey fat 33s. 6d. to 34s. 6d., middling soft grey at 32s. 6d.; privately 650 baskets date sort sold at 20s., including a small portion washed; also 500 bags fine Ilo Ilo Manila at 24s. to 25s. 6d.

CAMPOR.—Up to within the last few days a fair business has been done in China at 71s. per cwt., chiefly for shipment for France, but at the moment the demand from that quarter appears satisfied, and there is not much doing. Japan has not moved during the fortnight.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The demand is dull, and prices of Ceylon have a downward tendency; at auction 325 casks Ceylon partly sold at 39s. to 40s. Privately small sales of Cocchin on the spot are reported at 50s. 6d. for fine; for arrival, business has been done in Ceylon at 40s. per cwt. Stock 5,263 tons, against 7,075 tons. Afloat, about 2,153 tons Cocchin and Ceylon, against 2,620 tons Cocchin and Ceylon same time last year.

COIR GOODS.—The market continues steady. Public sales have been small, embracing only, of Yarn, 12 bales and 18 tons Cocchin sold, fair common to good 27s. to 37s. per ton, and 62 bales and 33 tons Ceylon chiefly retired; of Fibre, 322 bales Cocchin retired, and 6 tons Ceylon sold at £15 to £23 5s. for low to middling.

COPRA.—Market firm; no Penang in stock.

CUREBS.—There is still a steady market at the quotation lately current, viz., 30s. for good quality.

Tanned and Buffalo sold at previous rates. KIPS: 13,989 Singapore and Penang sold, light 6½ to 7½ lbs. at 9d. to 9½d., heavy 8½ to 9½ lbs. at 8½d. to 8½d., extra 12½ to 14½ lbs. at 7½d. to 8½d., thirds 7 to 8½ lbs. at 6½d. to 6½d., second small 4½ lbs. at 9d. to 9½d., third 3½ to 4½ lbs. at 7½d. to 7½d. At auction part of 177 bags dull Singapore sold at 9½d. to 9½d.

RHUBARB.—The market for China continues quiet, but of 139 cases brought to the hammer, the bulk was sold; fair coat middling pale and good fracture at 2s. 1d.; rather more rough 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d.; high dried middling rough fair coat 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d.; low 5d.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—JUNE 28.

TEA.

The market is almost at a standstill, the demand for the moment being quite light and confined to small parcels for immediate use.

COFFEE.—The current quotations for East India kinds are, Java Government bags, 18c. to 20c.; Java mats, 18½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 17c. to 18c.; Manila, 14c. to 15c.; Native Ceylon, 15½c. to 17c., showing no change from those ruling for some time past. The market for Brazil is inactive, but is gathering strength, the views of holders being confirmed by the successive favourable telegrams from Rio Janeiro, advising continued light shipments to United States ports. There are now no sellers except at advanced prices. For the other kinds there is some inquiry from the trade at present low prices, but holders evince more firmness than for some time past, and their views are now generally above those of buyers. The sales include 524 mats Java, ex Louise, and 5,140 mats, ex Agincourt, on private terms. The dealers are jobbing Java at 18½c. to 19c. for pale, 19½c. for medium brown, 20½c. to 20½c. for brown, and 22c. to 23½c. for extreme brown.

CORRAGE.—There is a fair demand for Manila at previous rates.

CAMPOR.—China is quoted 17c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.05; Cassia, $1 gold (in bond).

FIRE CRACKERS.—The market has become very quiet, but as the stock is found to be small, and but few on the way to arrive here before the season for the sale of stock for the Christmas holidays, prices are quite firm at $2.40 for extra No. 1 full count, and about 3,000 boxes have been sold at that price.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is $4 gold (duty free).

HEMP.—The demand for Manila is not active, and the market is consequently quiet, but prices are firm at 11c. to 11½c. gold on the spot, according to quality, and 11c. gold for floating parcels. The sales are reported of 800 bales, ex Horatio Harris, at 11½c., 1,000 bales, ex Bunker Hill (at Boston) at 11½c., 60 days, and 1,000 bales, ex Mariano (at Boston) at 10½c., 60 days; also to arrive 1,500 bales per Canaan, 1,000 bales per Golden Hind, and 400 bales per Isolina, all at 11c. gold.

INDIGO.—The demand is confined to small lots of East India descriptions at previous rates. Sales have been made of 18 cases Manila at $1.05 to $1.15.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 80c. to $1 currency (duty free).

RICE.—Carolina is dull and 25 cents lower, receipts from Philadelphia and Baltimore, in addition to the regular supply from the South, having depressed the market. Foreign, on the other hand, growing in favour with consumers, sells freely at previous rates. The transactions have been 2,150 bags Rangoon at $7 to 7.50 currency (duty paid), and 1,400 bags in bond at $3.25 to 3.50 gold.

SUGAR.—The demand is without activity, but steady and uniform from refiners, and there is no perceptible change in values. The only sale of East India to report is 10,536 bags Manila, ex Kildonan, at 7½c.

SPICES.—The market for Mace and Nutmegs is excited and unsettled, owing to the advices relative to the hurricane, which is said to have destroyed the crop of these spices in the Banda Islands, from whence the larger part of the supply of Government Nutmegs is received. To these accounts there have also come to hand telegrams from Singapore, noting an advance there on Mace to $96 per picul, and on Nutmegs to $70 per picul, with light supplies. Considerable sales of Nutmegs have been made at 92½c. for English cases, and 95 for Penang, and of Mace of $1.50 for prime, with more disposition to buy at these figures than to sell. Stocks are held with much confidence, based upon the fact that, owing to the low prices that ruled for Nutmegs in the primary markets previous to 1863, when, for several years the quotation at Singapore stood at from $28 to 40 per picul, growers became discouraged, and, to a great extent, abandoned the culture of the plantations. More recently, when remunerative prices have been obtained, new plantations have been set out; but, inasmuch as the trees do not bear under from five to seven years, supplies cannot be augmented for some time to come. The consumption for the past two or three years has been largely made up of the old stock that had accumulated in the markets of Europe, but as these have now run down pretty low, it would seem that the expectation of full, if not advanced prices in the immediate future are not without foundation. The other descriptions are steady at our quoted rates, without special movement. Cassia, 31½; Wild Cinnamon, 33; Pepper, 16 for Sumatra, and 16½ to 16½ for Singapore; White Pepper, 22; Cloves, 10½ to 11.

TIN.—The market has become very quiet, and prices have not been sustained; quotations are, for Straits, 33½c.; English, 33½c.; and Banca, 38c., all gold.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Malta, dated June 15, state that the Una (s.s.), Smith, from London to Singapore, &c., via Suez Canal, which arrived there June 13, had carried away head of mainmast during a squall, the previous day, off Pantellaria.

The Rapido, Dougall, from Ceylon to London, which arrived at St. Helena June 11, experienced a hurricane, off Cape Agulhas, May 19, veering from E.N.E. to W.S.W., but she did not receive any particular damage.

Advices from Cape Town, dated June 5, state that the Konigin Augusta (N.G. barque), Pritzkow, from Java to Falmouth, put into Simon's Bay, May 21, in a leaky state, with cutwater started, rudder-head and fore and mainmast heads sprung, several sails blown away, and 4,000 bags of sugar thrown overboard, having encountered very bad weather S. of Madagascar on May 1, and a gale at N.W., May 19, off Cape L'Agulhas; she was discharging.

The Speedwell, Williams, from Bangkok to Marseilles, put into Simon's Bay, May 28, with deck, bulwarks, and rudder injured, and cargo seriously damaged, having shipped much water in a gale off Madagascar, May 1; she would discharge the whole of her cargo.

The Admiral Gourbayre, Viaud, from Saigon to Belle Isle, which went on shore at Cape Town during the night of March 30, but was towed off the next morning, afterwards discharged her cargo in order to go on the patent slip for repairs.

Advices from Fayal, dated June 24, state that the White Swallow (Amer. ship), from Boston to Hong Kong, with ice, was abandoned in a sinking condition, June 17, 180 miles S.W. of Fayal; the crew arrived there on the 20th in their own boats. A cutter left on the 21st to look for the ship, but returned the next day without success.

The Maibit (iron ship), Popken, which sailed from Dartmouth, July 6, for Batavia, has merely been temporarily repaired for the voyage; she will require an extensive overhauling, as many of the plates and frames are broken and otherwise damaged.

A telegram received from Galle, dated July 11, states that the Louisa, from Singapore to Boston, had put into Algoa Bay, leaky; cargo damaged.

A telegram received from Singapore dated July 12 states that the Glenavon, Henderson, from Cardiff to Shanghai, was totally lost in Gaspar Straits on June 23; crew saved.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The following notice has been issued from the Hydrographic office of the Admiralty.

With reference to Notice to Mariners No. 104, dated 10th December, 1869, respecting the Suez Canal and directions for its pilotage, the following additional information, chiefly from Captain Nares, of H.M. surveying ship Newport, is issued for the guidance of mariners using the canal:—

PORT SAID.—No material change affecting navigation has taken place in the approach since the survey made in 1870, with the exception that the detached bank lying 1½ miles to the eastward of the entrance has almost disappeared, the depth over it having increased from 12 and 14 to 20 feet; the buoy marking it has in consequence been removed. At Port Ibrahim the main entrance of the docks and a considerable portion of the north basin has been dredged to 24 feet.

SUEZ CANAL.—By the regulations of the Canal Company all vessels are required to have a head and stern anchor ready for letting go, also hawsers for warps; and all vessels measuring over 100 tons are bound to take a pilot. The deepest water is, in all cases, in the centre of the canal; in passing through, it is therefore more a question of careful steerage to keep the ship exactly in the centre, than of pilotage, and it is probable that the commander will be better acquainted with the behaviour of his own vessel than the pilot, who is a stranger to her. In the broad portions, particularly in the south part of the Bitter Lake, where the shallow water bears a large proportion to the deeper channel, great care is required in the navigation. Between Port Said and Kantara the depth of water that can be relied on at present is 23 and 24 feet, and patches of the same depth are found in other parts of the canal, but wherever these patches occur a dredge is always at work in the vicinity. The channel through Lake Timsah is completed to 27 and 28 feet, and the dredging of the anchorage space on the lake will shortly be commenced. Mooring bollards at a cable apart are fixed in the banks; they will bear sufficient strain to cant the largest ship. In the event of getting hard aground, the best shore anchor is found to be a spar buried horizontally on the inner side of the bank with perpendicular planks in front, the hawser being led through a cutting. The iron beacons on the several lakes are placed 136 feet on either side of the centre of the deep water in the channel. In passing round a curve in the canal, the bow of the vessel should be kept as near the inner, or convex, side as possible, and previous to rounding, the engines of steam vessels should be stopped, that she may pass it at the slowest speed. The only serious damage which vessels are liable to sustain in passing through the canal is from the propeller coming in contact with the bank; it is necessary, therefore, in any class of vessel, to proceed at slow speed, and large ships may find it advantageous to avail themselves of the services of the company's tugs in preference to using their own screws. When the wind blows across the canal care must be taken to prevent the ship drifting to leeward, and all unavailable top gear that will hold wind should be sent down. It would be preferable to stop and secure to the bollards rather than to risk damaging the screw by using it near the lee bank.

SUEZ.—At the mouth of Suez creek allowance should be made for the strong tidal current which sets across the canal, and frequently in the contrary direction of the current in the canal. The tidal stream between Suez and Chalouf turns to the northward two hours before high water at Suez, and runs for seven hours. It commences to run south one hour before low water at Suez, and continues 5½ hours. At full and change of moon the tidal stream runs north from 9h. 30m. to 4h. 30m., and south from 4h. 30m. to 10h. 0m. It has been recommended that this portion of the canal should be navigated with an opposin tide.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

COUNSEL AND COMFORT.—A disordered stomach throws the whole system out of gear, and renders us unfitted both for work and amusement. A few doses of these strengthening and purifying Pills, taken according to the accompanying directions, will, however, speedily restore order, and re-enable the stomach to digest its food without difficulty. These excellent Pills are suitable alike for the peer as the peasant, the soldier and the sailor, and particularly for home and foreign colonists. Holloway's Pills are very useful in checking feverish attacks, bilious complaints, and inflammations. They have also made the most signal cures in cases of dropsy and diseases of the kidneys, heart, and lungs, when the sufferers seemed past the aid of medicine.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, May 25.

Since my letter of the 15th inst., sent via San Francisco, no mails from Europe have been received here, the Pacific mail steam ship Golden Age having left Shanghai a day or so previous to the expected arrival of the English mail of April 7.

During the interval the chief event has been the departure of the United States squadron for Korea, on the morning of the 16th inst. The movements of the fleet were kept very quiet until the last moment, and the first intimation the residents had respecting it was by the Colorado going down the harbour, followed by the Alaska, Benicia, Monocacy, and Palos. Previous to their departure overtures were made to Baron von Riethoven to induce him to accompany the expedition, but he declined to do so on the conditions offered by the American Admiral, viz., to report solely for the information of the Americans. Newspaper correspondents were all refused permission to accompany it, with the exception of Signor Beato.

The movements of the vessels of war in addition to those recorded above have been:—Sailing: the French gunboat Catlogon, for Saigon on the 16th.—Arrivals: British, Adventure, from Hong Kong, 18th, with marines. French gunboat Lamothe Piquet from Saigon on the 16th; ironclad frigate Alma from Yokohama on the 19th, having on board Rear Admiral Gisholme, whose flag was saluted by the Ocean and Tordenskjold. The arrival of the latter vessel from Wladivostock on the 18th completes the list. Remaining in port: British, Adventure, Juno and Ocean. French, Alma and Lamothe Piquet, both detained for want of coals it is reported. Danish, Tordenskjold. Yesterday being the anniversary of the birthday of H.B.M. Queen Victoria, the day was observed in the customary manner, with the exception of firing the salute at noon, which was omitted this year, owing to the Staff Commander of the Ocean being on his death-bed. His complaint is either dropsy or gout, and is such that two doctors have pronounced his case hopeless.

The following properties situated at this port, which formerly belonged to the estate of Glover and Co., in liquidation, but foreclosed a short time since by the mortgagees, in conformity with the terms of the mortgage deeds, were offered for resale yesterday by public auction, by the China and Japan Trading Company, viz.:—

Reare lot 12, Owra settlement, with the buildings thereon, ground rent $117.32 per year, sold for $280; Reare Lot 16, Owra settlement, with the buildings thereon, ground rent $171.92 per year, sold for $580; Hill lot 16, Namenohira, with the buildings thereon, ground rent $175.20 per year, bought in for $225.

The only remaining subject I have to dwell upon is the revival of the jetty question by the Japanese. On this subject I wrote to you some sixteen months ago, when it was before discussed. Ultimately it was abandoned by the native authorities, and, as the residents thought for ever—but it does not seem so, as it has again been brought forward by the new Governor. On its becoming known that the local authorities contemplated reactionary movements; some of the residents who would be the greatest sufferers by the change placed their Consul in possession of ample materials to check the local authorities, and I hear that despatches will be sent to Yedo, which will give but little chance of the annoying changes being carried out. It is most surprising that the Nagasaki authorities persist in periodically raising the same question over and over again, and in the face of such enlightened progress which is being made by the higher officers, it is difficult to believe that the latter know anything about the measures in force here, controlling all classes, from coolies upwards. It is much to be hoped that the despatches sent by the Consuls at this port to their chiefs at Yedo will be such as will lead to investigations being made by the Yedo authorities into the numerous abuses existing here.

Exchange on London stands at 45½, and a small demand exists. Nebus are quoted 400 bus per Mexican $100. Freight to London is £3 5s. per ton of 50 ft. tea; £3 10s. do. sundries.

CHINA.

—o— SHANGHAI.

Dates from this port extend to June 3; the London mail of the 7th April, arrived out on the 23rd May, and the following French mail of April 14, on the 29th May.

The following items are from the North China Herald:—

The Chihhsien has issued a long proclamation giving notice that, henceforth, the law requiring "Bankers to be secured by four of their neighbours and to be properly registered in the Yamen of their district," which has long been in force in the capital, will be carried out in Shanghai, and will be extended to every kind of hong, store and shop. The Chihhsien says that this step has become necessary on account of the extensive frauds which have been committed by various tradesmen. The high provincial authorities have approved of the proposed step, and a despatch has been sent to the foreign Consuls, asking them to notify the change to their nationals.

The new Supreme Court premises have been opened to public business.

It is purposed to have a moonlight parade of the volunteer corps, when the several companies will assemble to defend the different approaches to the settlement. It is suggested that the several commanders of vessels in port should land detachments of seamen and marines to co-operate in repelling the supposed enemy.

The annual meeting of the members of the Shanghai Club was held on the 29th May. The accounts show a profit on the year's working of $5,000. It was agreed to lease the club from the Recreation Fund trustees at an annual rental of $11,000, and to endeavour to raise money to buy the furniture. Messrs. Rennie, Blydenburgh, Hancock, Higson, J. A. Maitland, John Thorne, Jellicoe, Wheeler, Miller, R. Fergusson, Westall, and Ashton were elected a committee for the current year.

A public meeting of the French Municipal Council was held on the 27th May, to discuss the budget for 1871-2. The proceedings were purely conversational, as the electors have no vote on the subject, and are only summoned to give them an opportunity of expressing opinions. The only important matter touched was the discovery of a system of "squeezing" by tax collectors, which is under investigation.

At a meeting of members of the Debating Society, held on the 23rd inst., it was decided to hand over the balance of the society's funds to the promoters of the new public library and museum, on condition that, in the event of the society being reconstituted, it shall have the privilege of meeting in the library building. The stipulated time is now within two months of expiry; but we are glad to learn that a struggle is being made at the last moment to raise the necessary funds, and that there is every chance of a house being built.

A final report has been published of the working of the Sinza Refuge during the past year. The expenditure has equalled the income within Tls. 4. The total sum available, including a balance of Tls. 28 from last year, was Tls. 2,930, of this Tls. 2,898 have been expended, leaving Tls. 32 to go forward.

In view of the dilapidated condition of the old gaol, H.M.'s Consul has decided to open the new establishment on the Soochow Creek on the 1st of June.

A meeting of scrip-holders in the Lyceum Theatre was held on the 26th May. Nine shares were redeemed in full, and the balance in hand, Tls. 1,269, was divided among 196 shares remaining unpaid.

The Pacific Mail Company advertise that they will issue tickets to Nagasaki and back, during the summer, at $50 for the return journey.

Many of the ships in harbour were decorated on the 24th May, in honour of the Queen's birthday. A Royal salute was fired at noon by the Prussian corvette Hertha; the clipper Thermopylae also fired twenty-one guns very regularly, although at rather long intervals. The Yacht Club took advantage of the holiday to hold a race for a cup, value $75, presented by a member. But the day turned out almost dead calm, and the race was another drift, even worse than on the last occasion. The Phantom, by a combination of good luck and good management, succeeded in getting home a winner.

A meeting of the Hongkew Wharf Company was called on the 25th May, but was adjourned until the 5th June, in consequence of an insufficient attendance of shareholders.

SHANGHAI, JUNE 2, 1871.

The plot in China seems to thicken. While our Minister here, and Government at home, cry "Peace, peace," the wily Chinese prepare continuously for war. A German brig in the harbour of Shanghai is now taking on board for the Taku Forts two six-hundred-pounder guns, and a number of soldiers for the same destination. The Taoutai of Shanghai has also received orders to send ten thousand soldiers to Tientsin. This looks like business; scarcely a day passes now without a number of Chinese gunboats leaving or entering this harbour; there are ten or twelve constantly here. Admiral Kellet arrived here from the north two days ago, and report says that he expects work for his vessels very shortly. Nagasaki is now the principal naval station, and, in view of disturbances or hostilities with the Chinese, is a more convenient place than Yokohama or Hong Kong, which are too remote. Mr. Wade seems arousing at last to the fact that material force is the only thing to impress the Chinese Government, and worth a ream of long-winded despatches. It may be, and is argued that the Chinese are only preparing to resist aggression on the part of the French, but it may be replied that those warlike preparations began long before the Tientsin Massacre.

A communication has lately been addressed by the Taoutai here to the foreign Consuls, informing them that all Chinese trading with foreigners are to be licensed by him, and submit to certain regulations. As far as I can learn, no protest has been made by our Consul or Minister against this barefaced infraction of our Treaty rights, which are allowed to slip away, one after the other, without even a word of remonstrance. With all our treaties there is nothing plainer than that the old ex-Hong system of Canton is in as much force now as it ever was in that place. All Chinese trading with foreigners are compelled to belong to some guild, all of which are licensed by the mandarins, and allowed to make their own regulations, one of which is, that no member can buy or sell except at a fixed price. They have unlimited power to impose their rates by expulsion or imprisonment. The result of all this is, that all Chinese produce, tea and silk especially, are 30 to 50 per cent. dearer than they were ten or fifteen years ago, while all imported goods are selling at or below cost price. Even in chartering vessels for coast voyages no Chinaman will offer more than another on any given day, but if any advance is made it must be by previous concert amongst themselves. The Chinese are, in fact, masters of the situation, with all the boasted knowledge of our merchants.

The P. and O. Company take home the first teas of the season, and the Hankow steamers, Erl King and others, will be close at their heels, if they do not outstrip them.

The indemnity paid by the Chinese to the Protestant missionaries at Tientsin for the losses at the time of the massacre has been cut down one-half, partly by Mr. Wade, our own Minister, paid to protect our rights, and partly by the Chinese officials. The whole affair speaks badly for English diplomacy.

The English and French Admirals are both here, also the German frigate Hertha. A sailor named William Williams has been tried in the New Court-house, found guilty, and sentenced to death for the murder, by stabbing, of the master of the British schooner Anne.

A general muster is called of the Volunteers.

HONG KONG.

Our advices are to the 9th June; the outward mail of April 21 was received on the 31st May.

The Submarine Telegraph Cable, connecting this port with Singapore, was landed here in safety on the 2nd June, and the colony was thus placed in direct communication with London.

The following items are from the China Mail:—

An indemnity has been paid to the Protestant missionaries for losses sustained in the Tientsin disturbances. Tls. 8,925 were originally claimed; Mr. Wade allowed Tls. 3,400, and the Chinese have awarded Tls. 2,500. The buildings have been rebuilt, but so badly that they require finishing.

It is stated that Prince Kung's party is again fully reinstated into power at Peking, and good results are therefore looked for.

The presentation of a letter from the German Emperor to the King of Siam has been remarked on in connection with the new Empire's lack of an Eastern colony.

A quantity of opium was thrown over the side of the Canton steamer during her upward trip, a few miles from Whampoa; and the tidewaiters having got wind of the transaction determined to intercept the smuggled drug. Having informed themselves of the intended movements of the smugglers, three European tidewaiters, in two gigs, accompanied by say twenty or twenty-five Chinese, laid in wait for their prey in Macao Passage, near the Bird's Nest Fort. The smugglers came in sight about midnight; when the two gigs made a rush, and the smugglers fired. One of the tidewaiters, named Morritz, received a shot through the lungs; but the smugglers were dislodged, five prisoners taken, and the opium was captured.

Mr. Hippolite Nicaise, is gazetted as acting Consul for Siam at this port, in the absence of Mr. Geo. Crichton. In the absence of Mr. G. F. Heard, also, Mr. G. F. Weller will act as acting Vice-Consul for Russia.

The Viceroy of Canton has issued a proclamation urging the people to contribute munificently towards the maintenance of the Benevolent Societies recently established there, and it is said his Excellency's encouragement will take a more substantial form.

It may be remembered that some weeks ago the Opossum (H.B.M.'s gunboat) returned from a cruise in search of pirates with a few bales of cotton, the property of a Chinese hong in this colony. The business of punishment and capture of the pirates appears to have been effectually followed up and accomplished by Captain C. de Longueville, of H.I.C.M.'s gunboat Tiempo, which vessel arrived here on the 4th June, from Hainan, via Macao, with a piratical prize in tow. The junk was manned by seventeen men and a boy, and armed with nine guns, twenty-two muskets, a number of spears, boarding-pikes, swords, and four barrels of gunpowder. It is a new three-masted craft, valued at, say $5,000 or $6,000, and is therefore a valuable prize.

A feeling is gaining ground that the present summer is to be a season of great heat, and the meteorological returns would seem to bear out this idea so far. The Chinese, it may be remembered, predicted a hot summer; we had an unusually lengthened drought; and now we have the thermometer at a disagreeably great elevation. The average temperature for the month of May, 1870, was 79 deg., while the average for last month (May) was 82 deg.

The gratifying progress made by the Surveyor-General in the works connected with the new portion of the Public Gardens is illustrative of the amount of quiet work and labour done by Mr. Moorsom and by his present active assistants. The greater portion of a tortuous road has been constructed, winding up towards Robinson-road and the coffee plantation known as Duddell's House. At this latter spot the outer gate of the new garden is fast getting into form, and though the unevenness of the ground and the recent rains place great obstacles in the way of progress, a very great stride has been made towards bringing former chaos into order.

The death of Lee Fook Tai, the Lieut.-Governor of Canton, has been announced. The deceased mandarin rose from the rank of district magistrate of Toong-koon, and subsequently of Poon-yu districts. He was then promoted to the rank of Chefoo at Canton, from which he was transferred to Fokien, to be Provincial Treasurer there. He again returned some two years ago to Kwang Tung, in the capacity of Lieut.-Governor. He latterly officiated as Lieut.-Governor of Kwang Si also. The age of the deceased mandarin was between fifty and sixty, and he was said to be rather honest, but inert in business.

In consequence of the change of the monsoon, Messrs. Wilson, Nicholls and Co., of Amoy, have been compelled to abandon all operations on the wreck of the Don. A claim has been made of damages for loss occasioned by the conduct of the natives, but whether it will be recognised or not is still doubtful.

A meeting of the Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steam-boat Company was held on May 29, Mr. E. A. Hitchcock, in the chair. The object of the meeting was to increase the capital of the company for the purpose of purchasing the steamers Spark and Spec, and the goodwill of the business carried on between Macao and Canton. The result of Captain Sands' examination of both steamboats may be thus briefly stated:—Spark is in very good running condition in hull, engine and boilers, and well found. Spec is in good order and condition, excepting canvas on promenade deck; the hull, engine and boilers are in good working order, and can be put to work at short notice. It was resolved that the capital should be increased by the sum of fifty thousand dollars of Hong Kong currency ($50,000), making the entire capital of the company eight hundred thousand dollars of the like currency ($800,000). And that such increase of capital be effected by the issue of five hundred shares of one hundred dollars ($100) each.

THE CANTON SILK TRADE.

The majority of the gentlemen who were present at the former meeting "to consider the conditions under which the Canton silk trade is at present conducted," have held another meeting in order to receive and confirm the report of the committee, Mr. F. W. Coare in the chair. The following resolutions were discussed:—First. That all foreign buyers beg to draw the attention of the silk dealers to the old custom of claiming compensation of the native sellers for any loss in weight on silk sold in Europe or America in excess of 3 per cent. on the net weight previous to shipment, and on waste in excess of 5 per cent.—the weights to be taken being the official weights in England, or the official condition weights in France. Claims for compensation must not be made after six months from date of shipment by steamers, and nine months by sailing vessel. Second. The foreign buyers of Canton silk beg to call the attention of native sellers to the fact that the old custom of contracts will not be adhered to as formerly, viz., That not only will the quantity so contracted for be required, but also the quality in particular. In case of any difficulty arising therefrom, the question to be settled by arbitration.

Both these resolutions were carried.

The resolution passed at the first meeting relative to an application being made through the foreign Consuls, "to induce the Viceroy of the two Kwangs to issue proclamation recommending the country dealers to send none but good conditioned silk to market," was, at this meeting, made to read as follows, viz.: "That the foreign Consuls be requested to ask the Provincial Governor to issue a proclamation, urging the country dealers not to send wet silk to Canton unfit for packing."

This resolution, however, remained in abeyance, and so does the subject of robberies of silk packages, when in transit both to Europe and America. It is, nevertheless, to be hoped that both the important questions will receive the earliest attention of the committee, as to the trade they are matters of the greatest moment.

In order to render the above resolution effective, it will be necessary for all foreign silk-dealers at this port to act in combination.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates from this port are to the 17th June; the London mail (P. and O.) of May 5 arrived out on the 7th June, and the following French mail of May 12th on the 12th June.

The following items are from the Straits Times:—

There have been three meetings of the Legislative Council, the first on the 5th June, and the other two on the 12th and 13th. Little public business was transacted. The Hon. Thos. Scott drew the attention of the Government to the increase of crimes of violence and gang robberies, and the Colonial Secretary replied that Government had taken certain measures to prevent these crimes, and that leave had been asked from the Secretary of State to thoroughly reorganise the police. Among the measures taken by the Government is the appointment of a new acting commissioner of police in the person of Captain Speedy, a military officer but newly appointed to Penang, and the relegation of Mr. Waller, who has held the post for the last two years, to the duties of his regular appointment as deputy-commissioner of police for Singapore.

The last two meetings were mainly occupied with the hearing of counsel and witnesses on the Railway question. J. S. Atchison, Esq., one of the counsel for the long line, was heard against the Tanjong Pagar line and in favour of the other scheme, and a number of witnesses were called; after hearing their evidence, the matter was postponed until the 19th. The Contagious Diseases Bill, as amended, has passed its second reading, but it is desirable that it should be brought into operation with as little delay as possible, for the purpose of improving the temporal condition of the unfortunate Chinese women who are brought to the colony and kept in a state of the most degrading slavery, and subjected to severe castigations and great privations upon the least show of insubordination or desire to assert their natural rights.

The present voyage of the P. and O. steamer Australia inaugurates a new era in the P. and O. mail service between China and Europe, as she goes on direct through the Suez Canal to Southampton, carrying her cargo and passengers without transshipment. She will be followed by the Mongolia, and it is believed this system will be adhered to, keeping the large steamers on the China line. Another item of interest in connection with the present voyage of the Australia is that she carries a cargo of tea and silk, arrangements having been made in advance of her arrival to get the cargo to Hong Kong ready for her. The race between the tea steamers this year will be an exciting one,—the Erl King, Ulysses and Enterprise being hourly looked for. They were expected to leave Hankow on the 3rd June, and it was believed would have been about off Hong Kong when the Australia left.

The only arrival from England via the Suez Canal has been the Nestor, from Liverpool, on the 13th June, and the only departure has been the Kangaroo, for London, on the 9th.

PENANG.

The following items are from the Penang Argus:—

We understand that his Honour the Lieut.-Governor has forwarded to the Chamber of Commerce the plans and estimates for the Penang Wharf, which were drawn up by the Colonial Engineer during the stay he made here lately. The Wharf Scheme Committee are of opinion that the site for the wharf should be near Fort Point, stretching towards the jetty, and that on receipt of further plans and estimates which have been applied for to the Colonial Engineer, through his Honour the Lieut. Governor, a general public meeting will be convened.

On dut that Mr. J. B. Peel, the Assistant Surveyor of Penang, is likely to be appointed in the place of Mr. Wienboldt, at Malacca.

The Pluto, which arrived from Singapore with Mr. Evans, the newly-appointed deputy-commissioner, Province Wellesley, has brought up the appointment of Captain Speedy to the acting chief commissionership of the Straits Settlements, as well as that of Captain Dunlop to the deputy-commissionership of Penang.

We record with regret the death of Mr. John Hogan, senior, at the age of seventy years. Mr. Hogan, the late collector of land revenue for Province Wellesley, was the oldest Government servant in the settlement, having entered in 1817 the public service, which he resigned on the 1st of April last, after an official career of fifty-four years, for a pension to the amount of two-thirds his salary. Mr. Hogan was much respected by his superiors; he was perhaps the best informed servant in the history of Penang whom the Government had, and during the last Penang riots rendered valuable assistance to Government.

The Prangin police-station has been handed over to the police authorities by the Public Works Department, the building being now completed. We are informed that the contractor has executed his work in a very unsatisfactory manner.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. Donald Glassey has been pardoned and released from confinement.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—With improved advices from Shanghai prices had advanced and large sales were made, but the market closed quiet. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., Tls. 1.58 to 1.65 at fair sales; 8 lbs. advanced to Tls. 1.81 to 1.94 per piece, with good demand, freely met by importers; closing quotations: Tls. 1.57 to 1.62 for 7 lbs., Tls. 1.80 to 1.92 for 8 lbs., and Tls. 2.25 to 3.35 for 9 lbs. T-Cloths: Active enquiry for 7 lbs., and last prices obtainable for good Mexicans. Drills: Little enquiry, at very low rates. Fancy Cottons remain extremely dull. Woollens and Worsteds: Small sales of Camlets reported at declining rates. Long Ellis: Unsaleable. Spanish Stripes not enquired for.

SHANGHAI.—The market had exhibited little change during the fortnight. A steady demand had prevailed for some of the principal imports of cotton manufacture, and woollens had been more sought after at improving values. Grey Shirtings: Moderate daily business in 8 lbs., and rates fairly maintained, at Tls. 1.78 to 1.90 per piece for the commonest to the best chops; small enquiry for 7 lbs. at Tls. 1.54 to 1.61 per piece for common to best. Heavy Shirtings enquired for at Tls. 2.25 to 2.40. White Shirtings: Demand chiefly for 64 Reeds, but higher counts also asked for. No change in quotations. T-Cloths: 7 lbs. of best quality in good request at an advance; commoner makes also slightly improved in value, but transactions confined to Mexican descriptions. 6 lbs. of the better class and 8 lbs. had attracted more attention; quotation for Dewhursts M. T. 8 lbs. Tls. 1.83 to 1.85 per piece. Drills: Large quantities of English and Dutch Drills had changed hands, but in American very little done; values improved, Tls. 2.8.1½ being refused for good clean 15 lb. English. Fancy Cottons: The position of these had not improved. Woollens: Telegrams of advancing rates at home, and prospect of a more moderate export, had materially strengthened the hands of holders here. Camlets of C.P.H. were again worth Tls. 11.50 to 11.70 per piece; Long Ellis, C.P.H., Scarlet, wanted at Tls. 4.90 to 4.95 per piece, and assorted at Tls. 4.65 to 4.70 per piece; Spanish Stripes and Lastings were also in slightly better favour, and Figured Orleans had been rather more inquired for at former rates.

FOOCHOW.—The following sales are reported:—900 pieces 6 lbs. T-Cloths at $1.67½ to 1.70, 1,500 pieces 7 lbs. T-Cloths at $1.92½ to 1.96, 500 pieces 7 lbs. Grey Shirtings at $2.25, 500 piculs Lead at $7½ to teamen.

HONG KONG.—The market remains in about the same position as last advised; prices appeared to have reached as low a point as they were likely to touch unless in the event of a fresh rush of heavy shipments from England. Cotton Yarn: Moderate business at recent low quotations, viz., $100 to 106 per bale for 16-24's; $108 for 28-32's; and $122 to 127½ for 38-42's. Grey Shirtings 7 lbs., neglected, worth $2 to 2.05 per piece; 8½ lbs. $2.30; inferior, $2.25. White Shirtings: Hardly any inquiry. T-Cloths, 6 lbs., 32-inch, in rather better request, though at most unsatisfactory prices; the bulk of sales at $1.42 to 1.45; 7 lbs., small sale at $1.62½ to 1.65. Mexicans continue neglected. Dyed and Fancy Cottons: A few Turkey Red Shirtings and Handkerchiefs changed hand at about previous rates. Medium Cloths and Spanish Stripes quite unsaleable. Long Ellis: Transactions confined to one or two sales of Scarlet at $6.20 to 6.30. Camlets: A few pieces of Scarlet placed at $15½. Lastings: A parcel of 200 pieces assorted sold at $12

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—We take the following from Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s report:—Our market was opened on the 20th May by settlement of one chop Oopack at Tls. 30 and two Oonfars at 31½ and 31¾ respectively. Settlements for the first day were 8,590 chests at Tls. 30 to 32½, all Oonfar tea with the exception of the above mentioned chop, and total settlements now amount to 46,269 chests, 43,901 half-chests, 13,400 boxes. The Oonfars, we consider, are better both in make and cup than last season, and they are generally recognised as the best of the Hankow teas. They have been eagerly competed for, the better parcels realising Tls. 32½ to 33½, one very choice lot selling for Tls. 36½. All the finest chops have now been settled. The Oopacks are fully equal to last year's growth. Ping-Kongs and flavoury Oonams are equal in flavour but not so strong: Cheong-sou-kyes, judging from the few musters shown, we make superior in leaf and quite equal in quality. The Ningchows maintain their supremacy, the finest being the best teas we have seen for some time past. They have been nearly all taken for the Russian market at high rates. Prices paid for the Oonfars are about equal to those current for the best chops last season. Finest are relatively the cheapest, inferior qualities realising almost the same prices, and we consider the latter much dearer than last year. Closing rates for this kind show an advance of Tls. 1 to 1½. Finest Oopacks can now be settled at Tls. 27½ to 28½, a reduction of about Tls. 4 from the first prices paid. Ping Kongs and flavoury Oonams have realised Tls. 23½ to 27, say Tls. 3 to 5 higher than last year. A few favourite chops of Cheong-sou-kye have been sold at Tls. 30 to 31½, the same figure at which they opened in the past season. Freight £6.

KIUKIANG.—The market had been opened about Tls. 4 higher than last year, the quality of the leaf being about the same. Owing to the rush of buyers at Hankow all the supply had been sent there, with the exception of a few chops secured at the high rates of Tls. 37 to 38.50, but which, however, is Tls. 3 to 4 below the Hankow rates. Quotations were: Ningchows, Tls. 37 to 38.50. Hohows, Tls. 28 to 30.

SHANGHAI.—There had been no business at this port during the fortnight.

FOOCHOW.—The New Teas had begun to arrive, and the total of the arrivals was as follows:—Congou, 43,315 chests, principally from the lower districts; total arrivals last year to same date, 100,144 chests. Oolong: 10,000 half-chests, against 7,788 half-chests, and no rates of freight had been fixed. Messrs. Westall, Galton, and Co. offer the following remarks upon the quality of the Teas shown:—The quantity of the crop is, on the whole, an improvement on last year's, although it cannot by any means be pronounced good. Much more care has evidently been bestowed on the packing of the low District Teas, and they are less dusty, and not mixed with old tea. The Paklin Congous are very poor, with the exception of one or two parcels, with which especial care has been taken. The Hap Yongs and Yung Hows are strong flavoury teas rather rough in the leaf, but well suited to the home requirements. The Suey Kuts are not as good as last year, and in many cases have a peculiar tarry, smoky flavour. Saryuns are strong and much cleaner, and preferable to the ill-prepared teas that came from this district last year. A few Tchok-si-Kais have been shown, not so good as last year; while the up-country Teas from Sien Mien and Kalsoo promise to be better: but another week will enable a more correct opinion to be formed. The knowledge of the high prices realised for the early arrivals of Oolong last season in London has stimulated the preparation and supply on this side. The crop will be very large, and the musters at present shown are a decided improvement on last year's.

CANTON.—The market for New Scented Teas was opened on the 30th May by the purchase of 3,000 boxes Scented Caper much mixed with old leaf, at Tls. 24 per picul, which was generally considered, however, too high, and no immediate disposition was shown to follow on a similar basis until the Native Teamen being pressed to meet their momentary engagements gave way, and buying recommenced on the 2nd June. Settlements since the opening had reached about 45,000 boxes, chiefly Scented Capers. Prices had been somewhat irregular in comparison with those of last season, and Scented Capers had been bought at from equal value to Tls. 2 higher. In Scented Orange Pekoe, the settlements had been limited by the extreme rates generally demanded by holders for medium and fine qualities, and buyers were somewhat indifferent, having in view the depressed state of this kind in the home market. Canton Greens were too highly taxed, and no business worthy of note had transpired. The steamer Danube, engaged full, was expected to sail about the 15th June.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—On the 1st June our market was opened by the purchase of a few bales of 4½ to 5 Tsaltes at prices ranging from Tls. 400 to 435 per picul, and further purchases were made at the same price, but later on in the day so eager were buyers to obtain a few bales for the first mail that an advance of Tls. 15 per picul was obtained on some of the common descriptions; this dealers were the more surprised at, as they were fully prepared to accept Tls. 20 to 30 per picul less, had foreigners held off until to-day. The following are a few of the purchases:—Phoenix and Blue Peacock chop, Tls. 400 to 445, equal to 21s. to 23s. 3d.; Qui Sute Fee Lie chop, Tls. 435, equal to 22s. 9d.; Old Black Lion Lie chop, Tls. 430, equal to 22s. 6d.; Ku Kee Chin Hock, Tls. 435, equal to 22s. 9d.; Ting Fong Green Elephant, Tls. 430, equal to 22s. 6d.; Common and 5 Tsaltes, Tls. 400 to 415, equal to 21s. to 21s. 9d. The prices show a drop of about Tls. 100 per picul on last year's opening rates. The yield for season is expected to be from 45,000 to 50,000 bales.

CANTON.—Silk of the first crop had been coming in steadily from the country districts, and a very fair quantity was upon the market, but a greater portion of this being damp, it was hardly probable that the settlements for this mail would reach a high figure. The native holders had been rather firm in their ideas, but with unfavourable telegraphic news to hand, including the opening of the Shanghai market at low rates, it was probable that prices would give way before long. A bulk of the settlements of the present fortnight were for shipment per steamer Danube. For America some large orders were in course of execution.

THE CHINA SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH CABLE.

On the afternoon of Friday, the 2nd of June, there arrived, in a heavy fall of rain and fog, a steamer off the quiet little Bay of T'howan, Hong Kong, and, after landing there the end of a cable, left soon after midnight as unnoticed as she had come. The next day, on reaching the neighbourhood of Nut Island, she picked up the end of the cable already laid, and on her completing the junction of the cables Hong Kong was placed at last within speaking distance of London. The wire at the Cable-house, T'howan Bay, reaches to Singapore, thence to Penang and Madras; a lighter line still stretches across the continent of India to Bombay, whence, under the sea, there lies a cable to Aden, up the Red Sea to Suez, across to Alexandria, along the whole length of the Mediterranean to Gibraltar, and crossing the Bay of Biscay, lands at last on our own Cornish coast at Falmouth. Another cable connects Hong Kong with Shanghai to the north. We have three cables from England to America, a line to the West Indian Islands from Florida, and shall soon have one to Australia, so that by the end of this year the whole civilised world will be placed in immediate communication. This great work has been, most of it, designed and carried out within the last three years; and we owe the result principally to the perseverance and energy of those, well known by fame to most of our readers, who carried out the first Atlantic cables—that is to say, the first great ocean telegraph lines.

To return to Hong Kong the cable expedition left Singapore on the 19th of April, four ships being in company; two of these returned to Singapore after completing their work, and two continued together to Hong Kong. The expedition met with most favourable weather on the whole, on one occasion only meeting with a gale, which appears to have been a rotating storm, not approaching a typhoon, but strong enough to force them to cut the cable, and fasten the end to a buoy. The next day the end was recovered, and the cable completed without difficulty to Hong Kong. The whole series of cables from China to England has been laid by the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, and this last work has been carried out with the good success which has attended the other undertakings in question. Mr. London as engineer, and Mr. Laws, electrician, with an efficient staff, have conducted the expedition for the contracting company. We congratulate the China Telegraph Company on the successful completion of their line, and look forward to great commercial advantages from the present near connection of England and China.

THE PEALM MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY (LIMITED).

The formal meeting of shareholders in this company, required by the articles of association to be held within four months of the registration of the company, was held on the 21st inst., at the offices of the company, 16, Cornhill.

The CHAIRMAN explained to the shareholders present that the meeting was merely formal, and called in accordance with the articles of association, but said he would take the opportunity of assuring the shareholders that the anticipation of the directors as to the progress and prospects of the company were being realised in a manner which must be thoroughly satisfactory, considering that the company had only opened its doors two months ago. The quantity and the character of the business brought to the office were such as to be most assuring as to the ultimate success of the company. The amount of risks taken was regulated with a careful regard to the interests and responsibilities of the shareholders. The premises occupied by the company were most eligibly situated for business, and had been secured at an expenditure considerably below their estimated value. Under the 101st clause of the articles of association the company had power to authorise the distribution of a portion of the company's profits amongst contributors of business, and with a view to securing a portion of the large and remunerative business obtained by the local insurance offices in the East the directors would probably recommend the shareholders at a meeting to be called to consider the question to authorise a scheme of distribution of a certain portion of the profits amongst contributors in a manner assimilated to the constitution of the offices in China and India, which he explained to the meeting. It was comparatively a new idea in this country, and he mentioned it now so that it might be considered and ventilated before the special meeting. The funds of the company were invested partly in Consols and partly upon deposit in banks connected with India, China, and the East upon advantageous terms. He stated that the directors hoped they should be able to give the shareholders interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the paid up capital, as an interim dividend at the first ordinary meeting.

In answer to questions put by shareholders, the Chairman stated the number of the shareholders and shares, and the amount of business doing, and that the directors did not contemplate calling upon the shareholders at present to pay the third instalment of £2 per share, thus leaving the amount paid up at £3 per share until further notice. He also stated that no settlement had been yet applied for on the Stock Exchange, as it appeared to the directors that the great majority of shareholders had taken their shares with a view to investment, but if they found any number of shareholders were desirous of obtaining a settlement they would take steps to comply with their wishes. He also stated that, though the compulsory qualification of a director was only fifty shares, upwards of a fifth of the shares now subscribed were held by the directors and officials of the company.

Mr. WM. PATERSON (W. W. Ker and Co., London, and Paterson and Simons, Singapore) said they all must feel that the statement made to the shareholders was most satisfactory, considering the very short time which the company had been in work, and he had much pleasure in moving a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors for their services up to this point.

Mr. STANBROUGH said that as he had asked some questions which had been most satisfactorily answered, he had much pleasure in seconding the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

BRITISH INDIAN EXTENSION TELEGRAPH.

The second half-yearly meeting of this company was held on the 21st inst. at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street; Mr. W. N. MASSY in the chair. The report was published in our last issue.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the report, said that the whole of the share capital of £460,000 had been fully paid up, and to meet the extra expenses consequent on the change of the terminus of the line from Point de Galle to Madras and the part purchase of the cable ship £24,000 had been raised by debentures. From Madras the cable had been laid to Singapore, touching at Penang, and since the opening of the China line on the 8th June last the traffic had largely increased. For the first few months of the opening of the line the messages had averaged 60 per day, but at the present time the average number was 92 per day. He believed there was no doubt about the company paying a steady 10 or 12 per cent. dividend.

Colonel GLOVER seconded the motion, which was adopted.

Messrs. DELOITTE and STRONG, the retiring auditors, having been re-elected, the proceedings concluded with thanks to the chairman.

THE CHINESE CIRCULARS TO FOREIGN POWERS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The memorandum or circular from the Chinese Foreign office to the Swedish "Royal Commissioner," printed in your issue of the 17th, bears a remarkable similarity in its general features to the well-known one addressed to the French Minister, but is even more plausible and dangerous, as it is more brief, vague, and indefinite. Yet through its vague phraseology all the main features of the French document appear; the same plausible misstatements and sweeping general assertions, the same statement that the Roman Catholics and the Protestants are confounded by the people, coupled with heavy charges against the Roman Catholics, while the language is so vague and the connection so uncertain that it is calculated to produce an unfavourable impression against Protestants as well; though if we were to complain of it, we should probably be told that the grammatical interpretation applies to Roman Catholics alone. Then there is the same appeal to mob law—mobs which the mandarins say they cannot control, but which have been clearly proved over and over to have been incited by the mandarins themselves and their satellites. If such an appeal to mob law be admitted, the mobs will soon be directed against merchants and travellers of all classes in China. There appear also in germ several of the French "regulations," especially that which would place all missionaries under the arbitrary rule of the mandarins, from which all foreigners are exempt, even those in the employment of the Chinese Government itself. But this document cannot be understood without using as a commentary the French circular, with the explanations that have been given of it; for it is quite impossible to have different codes of regulations for different nationalities or missions in China.

There are, however, some sentences where the language is stronger and more pointed than in the French circular. It is said, for instance, that in the Tientsin affair "the local authorities have been tried and punished, . . . and everything possible done in dealing with the case, thus closing it;" statements flatly contradicted by Mr. Wade's published despatches. And in one of the concluding paragraphs it is even implied that too much punishment has been inflicted in the matter, so that the pride of the converts "will rise like smoke, and they will boast of their influence;" while the fact is that the so-called settlement is a mere mockery of justice, which has left a deep feeling of insecurity among the foreign residents and the missions in China, and that the present external quiet is largely due to the widespread impression, shared by Mr. Wade, and which he does not hesitate to publish in his late despatch, that "the penalty may yet be to be inflicted by the Power (France) most outraged."

As the Chinese Foreign-office admits in this document that "from the first introduction of the Roman Catholic religion into China . . . the converts have for the most part been known as very peaceable," a state of matters that changed, it is added, only "since the Treaties were signed," it is rather singular that for a hundred years before the signing of the Treaties the Chinese Government kept up an unceasing and sanguinary persecution against them.—I remain, yours, &c.,

CARSTAIRS DOUGLAS.

The Iron Duke has been finally selected to take the place of the Ocean as flag-ship on the China station, and is now being fitted for immediate despatch. The Iron Duke is a double screw iron steam vessel, armour plated, of 3,787 tons burthen, and 800-horse power. Her armament consists of 14 guns.

Foreign Intelligence.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, July 19.

We are now in the midst of the saison morte, and there is not one topic of political interest afloat except that the Royal decree of May 14 was published by the official Staats Courant of July 10, by which Mr. A. Loudon is appointed Governor-General of Java, in place of Mr. P. Myer, who will repatriate. It is so long since I stated that this gentleman was appointed to the post that I read already in the Java papers that the fact has made a good impression in our East India colonies. Mr. Loudon will probably sail in October next. Rumours are making the round of the Conservative papers that Jhr. Van Syepstein is to be appointed Governor-General of Surinam, but I do not think this is probable.

Your London contemporaries have stated most incorrectly that, now the Second Chamber of the States General have ratified the treaty with England respecting the transfer of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa, this transfer will take place in a very short time. Nothing can be farther from the fact. The treaty must first be confirmed by the First Chamber, and in political circles rumours circulate that the English Government declines to have the three treaties—those of the transfer, of Siak, and of the immigration into Surinam—disconnected, and that our Ministry, now that the treaty of Siak has miscarried, have asked permission of the King to open negotiations with the Court of St. James's for another treaty. I have reason to believe that this report is correct.

The Belgian paper Le Peuple Belge has published an article which has made some sensation. This article says:—"We are informed that an influential association will be formed, having for its object the fusion of Belgium and Holland under the name of the Federal Republic of the Netherlands. It appears that this idea meets with numerous adherents in the two countries. The union of Holland and Belgium under a truly Republican Government would be indeed an immense advantage for their common prosperity. Belgium would bring to the association her flourishing industry, Holland her rich commerce and her colonies. United, they would soon form a powerful Republic, which other nations would be compelled to respect." I need not add that the Peuple Belge perhaps states as fact what it wishes may take place. The whole report is pure fantasy; of course there are Flemings who fervently wish that Holland and Belgium should be united, but amongst the Dutch there are none. Our relations are most friendly, so friendly that the band of our civil guard is about to visit Antwerp, to assist in celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the accession to the throne of Leopold I., but notwithstanding we are very content with the actual political state of both countries.

The Trading Company have chartered only two vessels—the Java and the Bato—to convey produce from Java to Amsterdam. This fact proves once more that our shipping trade is languishing. Our harbours are filled with East Indiamen—no less than forty-three having been offered for this public tender—while nearly all the produce exported on private account from Java is shipped in foreign vessels. It seems that our shipowners cannot compete with foreigners. Instead of something being done to revive the old Dutch enterprising spirit, the shipowners prefer to sell their vessels for trifling amounts, as in a short time they will have still less chance of conveying Government produce and passengers, as the steamers of the Nederland Company will ply regularly between Holland and Java. The Prins van Oranje of this Company will start on the 25th inst. with a full cargo and a large number of passengers.

Another fact which has made rather a bad impression in our trading circles is the enterprising spirit of the Russian traders, who have organised steam lines via the Suez Canal to India, Japan and China in order to provide Russia with the produce of the Far East via Odessa, instead of through England and Holland. Of course, this is one more sign that we must be on the qui vive, if we do not wish to lose all. And indeed it would be better if our Government was more inclined to expend the public money in subsidising steam lines, instead of building monitors and fortresses. A subsidy is necessary for a steam line between Holland and America, money is asked for one between Java, Australia, &c., but up to this moment there is a vox clamans in deserto, notwithstanding it being clearly proved that they are vital questions. Will it go better now? Java papers state that renewed endeavours are being made to establish steam communication between Java and Australia, and a Bill has been laid before Parliament to grant a subsidy for steamers between Flushing and New York. But opposition comes from all sides, especially against the last plan. So, for instance, the principal Amsterdam traders have addressed a petition to the Second Chamber not to grant the subsidy if only Flushing Harbour was to be used for the line. Such a petty opposition is the less justifiable in times when we hear that the Spanish Government has offered a subsidy of £100,000 for a line of steamers between Barcelona and Manila, via the Suez Canal.

Although operations at the Bourse have not presented any symptom of activity—the principal dealers are enjoying their holidays in the crowded German watering-places—a firm tone is nevertheless the prevailing characteristic of the leading kinds of public securities. A favourable impression has been produced by the continued favourable weather and the consequent improvement of the crops.

The public health is very good. In some places the small-pox still prevails; but the fatal cases are comparatively small.

The Kosmopoliet II. has been chartered to convey 120 soldiers to reinforce the East India Army.

Mr. Josua Van Eyke, has been re-elected commissary of the Trading Company.

H. M. has conferred the Knighthood of the Netherland Lion on Messrs. P. W. A. van Spall at Passaroean, J. C. Bernolet Moens, and F. C. Willeniz at Ternate.

Princess Marie was married yesterday to the Prince of Wied.

THE REVISION OF THE CHINESE TREATY.

WHEN we closed the Correspondence on the Treaty of Tientsin, the resumé of which has occupied so large a space in our last and present issues, we were forcibly impressed by these considerations—first, that the correspondence was drawn out to an unaccountable and unreasonable length; secondly, that it was protracted over an unreasonably long time, in itself a sign of weakness; thirdly, that it led to nothing, more by reason of disunion in the foreign camp than because of any confirmed basis of resistance on the part of the Chinese; and, lastly, that its utter failure (for postponement means nothing but failure in the vocabulary of Eastern nations) had been taken advantage of by the mandarins, who relied on our weakness more than on their own strength, to get up the revulsory agitation, which culminated in the massacre of Tientsin, and then encouraged the red-handed Literati to take the initiative in a new movement, and to dictate far harder terms now than they had acceded to three years ago. What will be the issue of the present dead-lock in China it would be idle for any one to attempt to predict. It would be even more frivolous to endeavour to trace the cause of our present predicament to a political source; for it cannot be denied that, with the solitary exception of the present Earl of DERBY, not one of our recent Foreign Secretaries has regarded the Far East—to say nothing of our Eastern Empire—as so important as the vast and complicated interests involved in its maintenance and prosperity have conduced to make it. Notwithstanding the gravity of the present situation in China, which has now remained in statu quo for three months of unaccounted time, it is probable that, at this moment, the suggested transfer of Heligoland, or the proposed new Royal residence in Ireland, occupy more of the attention of the Government than all the interests of Great Britain in Asia put together. Now, then, is a time for those whose families, property, and prospects, are at stake to be “up and doing.” It is hardly necessary for us to beg our readers to peruse the imperfect resumé of the Correspondence which will be found in another column. We describe it as “imperfect,” simply because the extraordinary bulk of the Blue-book before us has prevented us from touching (for the present at least) on many circumstances of collateral, though subservient, importance to those which we have selected. But the result of the reading of the epitome which we have given, combined with the experiences of our readers (whom it would be impertinent on our part to remind of the causes of the nullification of the Convention) must, we think, conclusively prove two things—First, that the reason why we did not get all that we could fairly demand in our views of the revision of the Treaty was that there was disunion and indecision in our camp. Our ministers, our merchants, and our missionaries, were all at issue regarding the terms of the revision; and, there having been no general meeting of all three interests, as there should have been, the project which satisfied the first was thrown out by the protests of the other two. This is the pith of our view of the subject. If, instead of a Convention being arranged between the English and Chinese ministers, on ex parte representations by their several clients, a preliminary Convention had been held of delegates from all foreign nations and interests concerned in China, Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK would have been able to have secured all that he could have been persuaded to demand. As a nation, we have only ourselves to blame for the stoppage of the new Treaty. We were dissatisfied with the terms agreed to by our Minister, simply because that Minister had agreed to them alone, and without personal conference with the other parties to the transaction. Thus the question, from being national, commercial, or religious, became simply political; and, a change in the Ministry occurring in its very orgasm, the contemplated revised Treaty, which had received the approval of Lord STANLEY, was negatived by Lord GRANVILLE. As for the suggestion that the ratification of the new Treaty (whatever that might be) should be deferred until the majority of the Emperor, it was apropos des bottes—it meant nothing. Not only was the Emperor at that time very far from being seated firmly on his throne, but he absolutely owed much of his chance of being so placed to the influence and aid of the Power which was then seeking to renew and revise its treaty with him. It was an opportunity not to be lost, because such a combination of advantages could scarcely be expected to occur again in the present generation. It was thrown away, however, and merely, as we believe, through disunion among our representatives in China, and want of faith in the representations of any single party of them by the Home Government. The postponement of the revision of the Treaty was an error which was due entirely to the want of accord between our diplomatists, our merchants, and our missionaries. This disunion was hailed as a sign of weakness by the Chinese; and it produced the inevitable result of disunion on the Oriental mind. “Divide and conquer” became the maxim of the mandarins, as soon as the postponement (which they regarded as a triumph) was achieved. They immediately set to work to attack the weakest of the three—the weakest, not only by reason of their unprotectedness, but also because of their influence being the most open to misrepresentation. Our ministers represented our Power; they consequently could not be disregarded nor impugned. Our merchants represented their commerce—were, in a manner, the very life-blood of their national prosperity;—consequently they could not be openly attacked, though it might be convenient to limit their privileges as far as possible in order to make the greatest amount of profit out of the extortion to be derived from the goods imported by their enterprise. But the missionaries? There was the vulnerable point; and so religion was made the stalking-horse of the new agitation, exactly, as, when the Treaty itself was concluded, commerce had been before. The reason is plain. Foreign commerce had outlived the obloquy they had formerly cast upon it. Its vast imports of goods, and the native demand for them, spoke trumpet-tongued of the good-will of the people to the foreigner who brought them woollens and cottons and cutlery in exchange for their silk and tea. There remained but one way through which our procrastination and indecision, in the terms of the new Treaty, could be turned to account against ourselves. This was to get up an agitation against our missionaries. No sooner said than done. The most wild and wicked charges were invented and secretly circulated against a religion which (in different forms, but the same in substance) had been, not only permitted but welcomed in China for a thousand years, and which now numbers not less than half a million of Chinese believers in its ranks. In the very nick of time, while this fire of the Literati was smouldering, the European war disabled France, the parent and protector (by Treaty) of the only form of Christianity whose priests were allowed to possess property and travel where they liked. The moment of the collapse of France was seized by the Chinese, not to atone for the injuries that had been inflicted on the French Catholics, but to make capital out of their own outrages. Primed and loaded by the arch assassin of Tientsin, the Imperial Government ventured on a declaration (the “Missing Despatch”) which would utterly nullify the suspended Treaty by depriving one class of foreigners of the privileges which were meant to include all. The French Government were reported powerless; the British Government made no sign; and the next step was to declare that all the Treaties with Foreign Powers would be abrogated forthwith. This we have but too much reason to believe has been done; and this, if it is, or is to be done, we must repeat, is the consequence of our own disunion and indecision. Affairs are hurrying to a crisis. Our only remedy for the ill-effects of former disputes and vacillation lies in present union and determination. It will cost us ten times as much to regain what we seem likely to be deprived of, as it would to retain, and even improve, the advantages we are entitled to. If a Conference were held between duly-constituted representatives of the Foreign Office, the mercantile interest, and the Missionary Societies, with the view of arriving at an ultimatum to be proposed to the Chinese, on pain of war, at the time to which the revision of the Treaty is postponed—next year or the year after—no doubt such a beneficial result would be easily gained. Meanwhile, appearances are so menacing, in spite of Mr. WADE's silence, that it is not a day too soon to commence some such organisation now.

It is necessary to call the attention of all passengers to India and the Far East who may have occasion to pass through France and Belgium to Brindisi that a passport, duly visé by the French and Belgian Consuls, is absolutely indispensable. Without such a document and the visas such passengers will have to return to London, and thus lose their passage.

THE rumour to which we alluded in our last issue, of a typhoon at Shanghai and Hiogo, has only been partially confirmed. No such disaster has occurred at the first-named port, but telegrams from Hiogo report that seven steamers have been destroyed and other mischief done.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRAFFIC.

The "Correspondence respecting the Emigration of Chinese Coolies from Macao," just presented to Parliament, opens with a despatch from Mr. JERNINGHAM, Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires in Peru, to Lord CLARENDON, stating that a practice existed of branding with a hot iron certain "contract Chinamen," as if they were slaves, at Lima. Mr. JERNINGHAM proceeds:—

"When Peru was a colony of Spain, of course African slaves were imported hither as into most Spanish colonies, and in considerable numbers. In general they were, I believe, well treated. Since the manumission of blacks, during General Castilla's Presidency, in 1855, thoughts were naturally turned towards where to obtain supplies of agricultural labourers, and, after the practice of other nations, Chinese coolies were brought into Peru, where at present, between those working out their contracts and those who are perfectly free, there must be several thousand—say 10,000."

The difference between the black and the Chinaman is enormous. Mr. Jerningham says:—"The blacks came to this country a raw material; soon picked up the language, and easily became initiated in the religion, customs, and ideas of their masters; but the coolie, on the contrary, has remained in general pre-eminently Chinese in almost every respect, except that of learning easily to speak the language, and making himself handy in general pursuits; the blacks soon became nationalised, but as a race of slaves; the Chinese never lose their national predilections; and although members of an inferior class in their own country, and possessing more intelligence than the blacks or the native Indians, are therefore more keenly sensitive regarding their position, as many cases of suicide and desperation manifestly evince. The coolie trade, under its best aspect, can hardly be looked upon as much other than a kind of white Slave Trade, legalised by certain laws and regulations which there is too much reason to fear are not always conscientiously complied with, especially, it may perhaps be conjectured in the operations of obtaining the emigrants. There may be very good people engaged in it, and there may be others who are sufficiently hardened to consider it nothing more than a commercial speculation, such as importing dry goods or cattle; their chief object being to get the cargo into port in an undamaged state. Of late years, according to reports which are in the papers, the coolie voyages to Callao being in general successful, have not called for much remark or observation. These emigrants chiefly come hither in Italian or native vessels."

On the receipt of the communication which Mr. Jerningham and the Portuguese Consul-General felt bound to make to him, the Governor of Macao issued the following proclamation:—

1. Until further notice the permission granted by this Government to open establishments of emigration for Callao is suspended.

2. In the same manner there shall not be matriculated any Asiatic emigrant or colonist destined for the above port at the Superintendent's office of Chinese emigration; nor shall there be any contracts signed in the Chinese "procuracion" office.

This was dated February 27, 1869. In the following May Mr. Murdoch wrote from the Emigration Board, in reference to Mr.

Jerningham's despatch, that that gentleman's conclusion agreed with all they had heard from other quarters, but that it "required no action on the part of Earl Granville." From this time till the end of 1870 the matter seems to have slumbered. It should, however, be mentioned that the Portuguese Minister denied that the special case of branding brought under his notice was founded on fact.

In November, 1870, Mr. Consul Robertson reported to Mr. Wade another of those coolie tragedies which had then become so frequent, in the capture of the French ship Nouvelle Penelope, with the murder of the master and several of the crew, and the pillage and stranding of the vessel, by Chinese coolies shipped at Macao for the west coast of America.

The Nouvelle Penelope, Levigoureux master, left Macao on the 1st of October, bound to Callao, with 300 coolies on board. All went on well for a day or two; when, suddenly, a rush on deck was made by a body of Chinese, armed with belaying pins, billets of wood, &c.; the master was knocked down, and his throat cut, the crew overpowered, several of them taking to the rigging, and the ship was in possession of the assailants. Those of the Europeans who were aloft, and the mate, and two or three who were forward—eight in all, seven having been killed—were assured they would not be hurt, but must navigate the ship to the land. This they did, and made the Bay of Tienpak, some 180 miles on the coast below Macao. M. Dabry, the French Consul at Canton, demanded the rendition of eighty-three of the coolies as having committed piracy and murder upon French territory, but the Portuguese authorities at first demurred to this. Subsequently, however, they consented to send them on board a French ship in the harbour. M. Dabry then sent the interpreter and the chief in custody on board the gunboat to Canton, with a request to the Viceroy to arrest some ten more who were known to be at Canton, and could be identified by these two prisoners, and required him to send an officer to Macao to examine the men he had in custody; but the Viceroy positively refused, saying he would have nothing to say to Macao coolie affairs, and M. Dabry might do what he liked with his prisoners. Mr. Robertson advised the Viceroy to arrest these men; but he adds, "It is evident, however well the Macao Government regulations may look upon paper, that coolie emigration is simply a slave trade, and a disgrace to any Christian Government that permits its perpetration within its jurisdiction. It is well known how these barracoons at Macao are supplied, and instances are not unfrequent at Canton of the disappearance of people, and that a regular traffic is carried on in human beings for the supply of these establishments. There can be no doubt the Macao Government is honest in its intentions to protect the coolies and put down kidnapping, but there is something more than that required to stop the evil, and, indeed, it may safely be said that nothing short of closing the barracoons and forbidding the shipment of coolies will do so. As regards the surrender to the French Consul by the Macao Government of these eighty-three coolies who were arrested, it is difficult to see on what grounds this was done. The men were arrested within Portuguese jurisdiction, and ought therefore to have been tried in Portuguese Courts of Justice. Perhaps, however, the revelations which must have resulted would have been so damaging, that it was thought better to get rid of them." Most of the coolie ships from Macao assume the San Salvador flag, whether rightly or wrongly, there is no means of ascertaining, and it is not likely the Macao authorities make strict or any inquiries in the matter.

We now enter on a new phase of this traffic. The Honolulu Commercial Advertiser noticed the fact that a San Salvador ship, the Dolores Ugarte Henry VII., which touched a short time before, lost 270 of her chattels between that port and Callao. The captain of the Ugarte, desiring to deliver his cargo in better condition, had applied for leave to land them in squads of fifty for an airing. The ship had all the appurtenances of an old time slaver—barricades, sentinels, &c. The Advertiser objects to making the Hawaiian Islands the half-way house of the slave trade. But the Hawaiian Government has encouraged this very business, only in a milder form. It has introduced coolie labour in the islands, and, while these coolies may have been treated humanely, the precedent was a bad one. These men are brought here bound by a certain contract made abroad, and which is enforced on the Islands. The slave trade is rife in the Pacific. All the atrocities of the African slave trade and the horrors of the middle passage may be found in these coolie ships. The sufferings of the miserable crowd shipped on the Dolores Ugarte must be too fresh in the memory of our readers to need recapitulation. This Dolores Ugarte must not, however, be confounded with the one on which the latest coolie tragedy was perpetrated, and 500 men left to be suffocated or burned alive under hatches. The Dolores Ugarte under notice was infested with contagious disease, and, to add to the misery of the coolies, the ship's stores fell short, and they were put upon an allowance of 1lb. of boiled rice and less than a pint of water per diem. This very insufficient quantity of water, coupled with the crowded state of the hold, produced among them intense thirst, and they eagerly thrust their dollars through the gratings of the hatches in exchange for the cups of water which were given by the crew only in return for these equivalents. As may easily be imagined, disease soon made its appearance among them, and twenty-five died before the vessel reached Honolulu. The condition of the ship on arriving at that port is spoken of as indescribable. The mate himself confessed that the stench from the main hatch was so overpowering that it was impossible to hold one's head over it "one minute with vomiting." Forty-three of those too ill to proceed were landed at Honolulu, where, by the exertions of a kindly resident, they were permanently detained. Their plight was most pitiable. Twelve were in the last stages of decay—some with ship-fever, and others with diarrhoea; two were rendered blind for life by ulcers which had formed in the corners of their eyes, and all were in a dreadfully emaciated condition. If this account be not exaggerated—and we have no reason, judging from somewhat similar cases which have from time to time been made public, to believe that it is—it reflects infinite discredit on the Portuguese Colonial Government at Macao. But further, it is of great importance to the other European States which have treaties with China that the iniquities of this traffic should be put an end to. What account will the wretched survivors of the ship-load send back to China of their treatment by the foreigners? With regard to this ship the Portuguese Minister informed our Government that "nothing whatever was known in the Department of Marine and Colonies in Lisbon." With regard to the capture of the Nouvelle Pendope, the Portuguese Minister at Macao wrote that the fact of the eighty-three criminals presenting themselves afresh for the purpose of emigrating, fully proved that the crime was not committed because they found themselves cheated or forced, but simply and solely through perversity; but proceedings should be instituted against those accused, in order that they might be delivered afterwards to the Viceroy of Canton, or to the French Consul, as the crime was committed on board a vessel of that nation on the high seas. The Governor of Macao, however, stated that the Sixth Article of the Treaty did not allow this, because it requires the previous assent of the Viceroy of Canton. Subsequently, however, all the Chinese ex-passengers in the above-mentioned ship were delivered to the Viceroy of Canton with the assent of the French Consul.

"If the Portuguese Government could be induced to adopt similar rules for regulating emigration as those in force for British emigration, and which have, I see from your enclosure, been communicated to it by Her Majesty's Minister at Lisbon, much would be done to correct many of the existing evils, provided they were faithfully carried out. I trust, however, that the representations made to that Government of the cruelties these unhappy coolies were subjected to on board the Dolores Ugarte will move it to take some steps for the prevention of such atrocities for the future. I must say, however, that the French and Italian Governments are highly to blame for allowing their flag to cover such proceedings, or sanctioning the masters and owners of such vessels adopting the San Salvador flag for the voyage only, as there is reason to believe is too often the case.

"But these countries are not alone to blame. The paper called the Java Handelsblad gives an account of the treatment and disposal of certain Chinese coolies who were landed at Java from shipwrecked or burnt vessels from Macao, and, if true, the same disregard for human sufferings appears to prevail in the Dutch colony of Batavia as it does in the Portuguese one of Macao."

THE BLUE-BOOK ON THE REVISION OF THE CHINA TREATIES.

MR. WADE'S MEMORANDUM.

The correspondence which we summarised in our last issue closes with an appendix, which consists of a lengthy and exhaustive memorandum by Mr. WADE, of which our limits will only enable us to notice the salient points. Mr. WADE says the views of the mercantile communities, which were asked to make suggestions as to the terms of the revision of the Treaty of Tientsin, seemed to be in pretty general accord, save where the interests of Amoy clashed with those of Hong Kong. The changes proposed in the tariff and commercial articles are comparatively few. The bulk of the observations take the form either of complaints of the non-fulfilment of the Treaty provisions by the Chinese in defiance of the remonstrances of British authority; complaints, consequently, of the insufficiency of the powers vested in the British authority; complaints of the misconstruction of certain parts of the Treaty by the British authority to the prejudice of British interests; and suggestions regarding the introduction of many and vast improvements, moral and material, the adoption of which, beyond all doubt, would be as beneficial to China herself as to any foreigner concerned in her trade, but of which the majority could scarcely be brought within the limits of any imaginable treaty. They are consequently the last of the matters under consideration to be noticed. Mr. WADE proceeds:—"The Treaty of Nanking concluded in 1842, which is renewed and confirmed by Article I., is not referred to by any of the memorialists. I think it is desirable that some of the terms under which it is provided by Article XI. of that Treaty that British authorities shall correspond with the Chinese should be changed. The form rendered 'statement,' which is that which subordinate British officers are to use to Chinese officers being their superiors in rank, is unobjectionable; but the term rendered 'declaration,' by which the Chinese officer, superior in rank, is to address the subordinate British officer, should more properly be translated 'orders' or 'instructions;' and used as the Chinese use it to their own subordinates it is of a more peremptory character than befits the relation of the British official to any Chinese functionary, however exalted his position. That the term was left unnoticed by Lord Elgin is the fault of no one but myself. I entirely overlooked the matter until it was too late. I should now suggest that, where a Chinese commences an official correspondence with a British subordinate, he should employ the words, 'ch'en ming,' in lieu of the 'ch'a hsing' now used; and that, when he is replying he should use 'ch'en fu.' But the Chinese Ministers with whom the British Legation is in correspondence at Peking may very possibly propose some other combinations as little objectionable as these, and more in accordance with the requirements of Chinese composition; and the decision can be left to whatever interpreter may be charged with the preparation of the revised Chinese text."

Articles II. to VI. inclusive of the Treaty of Tientsin define the position and privileges of the British Minister in China. It is implied by Article III. that the Minister shall have access to the Emperor. No audience has, as yet, been conceded to the British Minister. The communities are generally agreed that their interests will be advantaged by frequent, some even urge a periodical, repetition of the Ministerial visit of this year to the ports. I do not go this length. An occasional visit of the Minister to this port or that may, no doubt, be useful in more ways than one. In my opinion the Minister's visit to the ports should be a rare occurrence, and his communications with local authorities, no matter how high their grade, confined to an interchange of courtesies, or, at the most, to conversation on general policy. I believe that this would at the same time be found the course best calculated to give weight to the position of the Consul himself.

Under Article VIII. it is engaged that teachers or professors of Christianity are to be protected. To the pursuit of their avocations at or near the ports, or their journeying into the interior with a passport, there has not been, so far as I am aware, any opposition to Protestant missions; but residence is a very different question. I believe their cause will, for a time, be better without it, and I am entirely opposed to any privilege being conceded distinctively to the missionary body. Lord Elgin had serious doubts about the expediency of inserting an Article upon the subject of the Christian religion at all in the Treaty; his belief, if I am not mistaken, being that while the enforcement of Treaty stipulations affecting the propagation of Christianity was offensive to our own feelings, and outraging to the feelings of any nation which might be compelled to accept such conditions, the cause of Christianity itself could be advanced by nothing so little as political support.

It is in reality, to the fear of force alone, that we are indebted for the safety we enjoy at certain points accessible to our force. When our recollection of this condition is awakened by strong startling evidence of hostile feeling, there is a loud clamour for measures of coercion, the end of which no man can see, and almost before action is taken, certainly before it can have borne fruit, it is as loudly asserted that with a little more patience there need have been no resort to coercion at all. I am not reflecting upon Romish missions in a sectarian spirit. I am simply stating what I know to be a grievous burden laid upon the French Government by its acceptance of the responsibility of upholding them in what I conceive a false position for any teachers of religion. And I would speak of Protestant missionaries with all the respect they deserve. I sincerely believe that they do their best; and that amongst the lower orders, the only class to which they have a chance of preaching, their efforts are attended with a certain success; they do not, as a rule, lay claim to a large number of proselytes. But to accomplish what I presume the mission-supporting public of England and America propose, as the ultimate object of their operations, the civilisation which is to me synonymous with the Christianisation of China, their ranks must, in my opinion, be more ably manned, and they must adopt another plan of campaign. The educated class must be taken in reverse. The foreign preacher, though he speak like a native, as yet the gift of few, if of any, will for long have no chance of impressing the lettered men, as a class, from his pulpit; for they will never enter his chapel; nor will they be interested by his works upon spiritual subjects, even when written in a far better Chinese than we can now command; for, except so far as their hostility is provoked by the rival pretensions of the stranger's doctrine, they are indifferent to spiritual questions. But the distribution of useful knowledge, especially in the departments of commerce and politics, if discreetly conducted, would go far towards breaking through the academical conceit in which their minds are now entrenched; and this once even partially broken through, a hearing would be obtained on other matters, and in a few years a new school of thought would be created.

Article X. relates to the three new ports on the river Yang-tse-kiang. It is proposed by some of the Memorialists that the whole shore of this river, from its mouth to Hankow, should be opened to steamers, and that for the more speedy carriage of produce from the tea-grounds near the Poyang Lake to the port of Kiukiang it should be lawful for steam tugs to ply to certain points upon the shores of that lake. The Hong Kong community desire to see the Canton river similarly opened, I presume in the direction of Kwang Si. I am of opinion that we may fairly urge the Chinese to allow us to trade with steamers on any point or points along these waters at which we are prepared to station a bona fide Consular authority.

The Hong Kong community complain that the ports of Chao-chow and Kiung-chow, the latter being the capital of the Island of Hainan, are still closed; and that the Hong Kong trade with Hainan is blighted because the Custom-house of Canton obliges vessels bound to Hainan to clear at Canton. "The west coast of the Canton Province," observes the memorial, "extending from Macao to Hainan, affords promise of being connected with the colony of Hong Kong by a traffic which, if fostered, may, in course of time, attain to considerable proportions." It also suggests the appointment of a Consular Agent at Hainan. I am strongly in favour of this proposition.

The Amoy community would open Wenchow, a port lying about midway between Foochow and Ningpo; they complain that at present their trade is interfered with by native-owned lorchas from Hong Kong, which, under the native system, bring little or nothing to the Imperial revenue. They go further and extend this proposition to all ports on the Chinese coast as subsidiary to the Treaty Ports now open; they would have ships proceeding to such new ports deposit their papers at the Treaty Ports, give bonds, take out special permits, and effect their clearances at the Treaty Port of entry, and then proceed to the port of debarcation. Here again I am entirely in favour of opening ports to shipping at any points at which we are prepared to place a bona fide Consular authority.

The Shanghai community contend, that without the right to reside in the interior there can be no protection against excessive taxation of imports and exports in transitu. The Hankow memorial insists on the advantages enjoyed by Russian firms from their position in the interior; and Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co. would have foreigners open "hongs," but not shops. I am satisfied, as I have stated, that we do not possess the privilege here claimed by treaty, and I am decidedly against any sweeping demand with reference to it; I cannot certainly go the length of the Shanghai community, who have requested concession within a fixed radius of perhaps 200 miles, from some or all of the treaty ports. The addition such appointments would occasion to our already large Consular establishment in China may appear at first sight to Her Majesty's Government a sufficient reason for declining to entertain the proposition, but it is unquestionable that our trade increases with the multiplication of commercial centres. The Treaty of 1858 has in reality been in operation only since the close of the year 1860; yet it is shown by the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce that in the ten years ending with 1866 trade has increased at Hong Kong from less than a million sterling to two and a half millions, and at Shanghai from less than a million to four and a quarter millions, making a total increase of five and a half millions; and this, notwithstanding the deplorable condition of the country. I attribute this vast increase to the fact that we have now more than twice the number of points of access for our steamers than formerly; and it will not, I think, be disputed that the improvement of our trade is a fair set-off against the augmentation of our Consular establishment, the estimate for which, under the new regime, was, if I remember rightly, but £14,000 a-year in excess of the old. I should prefer, however, that, in the first instance, the inland centres selected as Consular stations should, if any, be few; and that the Chinese Government should rather be pressed to open its coast than to make concessions touching residence in the interior.

The Tien-tsin Memorial would open to foreign intercourse not only China Proper but all that part of the Empire which is described as extra-provincial, including Eastern Turkestan, Mongolia, and Kirin. In such portion of Kirin as the Russian Treaty of 1860 left to China, we find, I believe, no difficulty in travelling under passport; but I know nothing in the state of the country or the prospects of its trade that would justify us in pressing for a right to reside in it, or in Mongolia. East Turkestan is scarcely at this moment in the hands of the Chinese Government; a Mahometan insurrection has disturbed it and the North-West Provinces of China for at least the last four years. In the year 1865 there was a massacre of the Chinese authorities in that region; a Mahometan chief now rules there, and it will be long ere it reverts to China again. The same memorial would open Peking to foreign trade. The proposal would be an unquestionably offensive one to the Chinese Government, and, if agreed to, of no value to the foreigner. The foreign community is gradually diminishing even at the port of import.

I think the suggestions of the Shanghai Chamber regarding the constitution of a separate Mixed Court at the larger ports, its division into an upper and lower jurisdiction, and the limitation of the powers of the latter, deserving of attention; but it will be, in my judgment, most desirable that the British community should understand throughout China that however unsatisfactory we may deem the Chinese rules of commercial usage which we are perhaps right in refusing to designate law, the plan that the British subject, if a defendant, is bound to stand or fall by British law will not be held to justify us in demanding a decision in accordance with British law where a Chinese is the defendant.

It is provided by Article XLVI. that the Chinese authorities at each port shall adopt the means they may judge most proper to prevent the revenue suffering from fraud or smuggling. The Shanghai Chamber complains that a too harsh construction is occasionally put on the word "smuggling," and it may be allowed that in ordinary parlance we are disposed to connect the term with clandestine or dishonest proceedings. But it will hardly be disputed that no Customs service could protect a revenue if its action were to be barred, even occasionally, by the plea of an absence of all criminal intention. The rules agreed to by the Prince of Kung and myself, in the first place, protect the goods seized against summary confiscation, and their proprietor is, through his Consul, insured, if he wishes it, a full and fair inquiry into the causes of their detention; but, as a Chinese official agent is the party accused, it is, I think, plain that the inquiry could not be conducted anywhere but in a Chinese Court, and through the competent Chinese authority. The Consul or a Consular officer attends in the interest of the British complainant, and I deny that his position in the Court would be inferior to that which the Chinese authority must occupy were it possible for him to take his seat in a Consular Court, to assist at a similar investigation.

Article XVIII. pledges the Chinese authorities to afford the fullest protection to the persons and property of British subjects, and to take all necessary steps for the recovery of stolen goods, suppression of disorders, and arrest of the guilty parties concerned. It is observed that these stipulations are in many instances set at naught, and that the Consuls are powerless to obtain redress. In regard to the protection we are entitled to, I go, in some respects, farther than the memorialists. I think that the whole of the police required for the security of the foreign community at any port should be paid for by the Chinese. In the present condition of China none but a foreign police would be effective. I would have the Chinese Government support one just as it now supports a revenue establishment formed of foreigners; with this difference—that, while it is essential that the revenue force continue as it now is, subordinate only to the superintendent of customs, who is by treaty exclusively responsible for the protection of the revenue, the police force should be made, by a common understanding, as much the constabulary of the foreign Consuls as of the Chinese Government which pays it. It would be, in short, precisely what the so-called municipal police of Shanghai is at this moment, but paid by the Chinese Government instead of by the foreign merchant, and referring itself primarily to the Consuls or the Chinese officials, instead of to a committee of land-renters, or any other non-official or quasi-municipal body. On the other hand, I do not think that the Chinese Government should contribute, or be called on to oblige its subjects to contribute, to the making or maintaining of foreign roads, foreign drainage, lighting, or other requirements of foreign civilisation. My remarks point more particularly to the condition of things at Shanghai, where the conservancy of the so-called British and American concessions is, I admit, right well cared for by the committee of land-renters known as the Municipal Council. The Chinese Government is, I think, bound to maintain all wharves, jetties, or like constructions essential to the merchant for purposes of shipping or landing; it is withal to the advantage of the revenue that they be maintained; but the quasi-municipal expenses of the community, the expenses proper, that is, to a European town or city, should no more be held to form ground of a claim for assistance from the Chinese Government than the consumption by the same community of its wine and tobacco. I stand, I fear, alone in my estimate of the mischief to be apprehended in time to come, from the continuance of a position so untenable as that of the French at Shanghai; but, with the views I hold, I cannot insist too earnestly upon the expediency of attempting its modification; and no means to that end appear to me so promising as the substitution of a police force, paid and primarily wielded by the Chinese Government, for that now paid by, and responsible to, the land-renters, represented by the Municipal Council. If the Chinese Government maintain a police for all, beside the French, the French will hardly continue to maintain their present gendarmerie, which, I may observe, is far rather the police of their Consul-General than of their Conseil Municipal; and the whole foreign region being brought under the action of one police body, paid and belonging to the Government of the country, a fusion of the French and other nationalities may be looked for, which will never be possible so long as the French claim the right, as at present, to ignore all Consular authority but their own in any part of China which becomes a "Concession Francaise." The adoption of their term "concession" for what is really a "delimitation," in plain English a factory ground, has been most unfortunate.

Article XXIII. provides that if a native of China, having incurred debts at Hong Kong, abscond, the Chinese authorities, in concert with the British Consul, shall endeavour to see justice done between the debtor (he being a Chinese and having returned to China) and his creditors. The Hong Kong Chamber would add to this article a clause requiring the rendition of Chinese debtors absconding from the colony. If the colony have any registration which is really sufficient to establish what Chinese residing at Hong Kong are bona fide entitled to the status of British subject, and as such amenable to British law, the rendition of any persons having such a status is a plain and incontestable right; but it is difficult to suppose the memorialists serious in suggesting that Chinese subjects having fled to China for debt are to be brought by the Chinese Government before a colonial court, in order that action may be taken under the decree of such a court against Chinese property on Chinese ground.

We come now to the payment of duties, maritime and inland, and complaints of the violation of Article XXIV., by which it is agreed that imports and exports shall pay only the duties prescribed by the tariff, a stipulation alleged to be set at naught by the constant disregard of the terms of Article XXVIII., as interpreted by Rule 7 of the Tariff. To accept the provincial limitation would be to surrender the whole benefit of the Article. Ports are open, it is true, in all the coast provinces, and in most of those along the Great River, but the lines along which the foreign merchant will prefer to carry his imports or exports are not always those between the inland district and the port or ports that would seem geographically to be its natural inlets or outlets. The remedy against evasion of the transit duty now legally leviable on exports is in the hands of the Customs, who are empowered by Rule 7 to refuse permission to export produce which cannot be proved to have paid its transit dues, until these dues have been paid. The true cure is alleviation of the burden which places the Chinese in a worse position than the foreigner, and tempts him to avail himself by stealth of the foreigner's privilege.

I am for confining the foreign flag to the Treaty ports, or to such points as may be opened as halting stations for steamers, on the sea coast, on the large rivers, such as the Yangtze, or the great stream which crosses the Two Kwang Provinces, or on the lakes Poyang and Tung-ting. These are great highways of trade, movement along which no more imperil the integrity of Chinese jurisdiction than the navigation of the St. Lawrence imperils ours. For the protection of our goods in transitu against overcharge of dues, I fall back upon Article XXXVIII., the terms of which enforced, we shall pay no more transit duties than are fair. But while I am against the appearance inland of the foreign flag with the extraterritoriality which would interfere unfairly with the surveillance of inland revenue, I see no objection to a limited use of small steamers or foreign rigged vessels, if they are more convenient to our trade, provided that they be not extraterritorialised.

SALT.—Petitions are numerous for leave to import this commodity. The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce suggests that, without abolition of the Government monopoly, its import might be tolerated as the import of tobacco is tolerated in those countries in which a tobacco monopoly is still maintained. The Amoy community would have the export of salt to foreign countries free, with liberty also to carry it coastwise, as copper cash is carried, in foreign vessels under bond. On the coast of Formosa, salt, they say, has been shipped in foreign vessels on mandarin account. I do not think the request to carry salt coast-wise unreasonable, nor should I despair of its being acceded to; but its admission into the regular export or import trade will be opposed tooth and nail.

COAL.—It is proposed by many to abolish all duty on both foreign and native coal. The former pays but 5 candarines (5 100 of a tael, say from 3½d. to 4d.) per ton; the latter 4 candarines a picul, reckoned by the Amoy memorialists to amount to 6 mace, 6 candarines, 8 cash (668-1,000 of a tael), say from 4s. to 4s. 6d. per ton. I cannot recall anything in the history of the Tariff of 1858 that would account for so remarkable a difference in favour of foreign coal. It had been heretofore free of duty, and was doubtless subjected to the nominal duty now charged to bring vessels entering with no other cargo within reach of the tonnage dues. The native trade in coal can hardly be said to have had, as yet, an existence. There is now, to judge from the curious memorial of Tseng-kwo-fan, some prospect of the native coal-mines being worked, and if this comes to pass the import of foreign coal will soon cease altogether.

MUNITIONS OF WAR should continue as at present restricted by Tariff Rule 5, imported only at the requisition of the Chinese Government, or saleable only to agents authorised. On the reduction of the duties on pepper, watches, and tin plates, I can offer no opinion; nor upon the readjustment of the timber duties can I say more than this, that the timber in question is of kinds not as yet procurable in China, and imported, I imagine, exclusively for the use of the foreign house-builder or ship-builder. The importer may justly claim, therefore, that the duty should not exceed 5 per cent. ad valorem; indeed, it would not be unreasonable to ask for a less duty than 5 per cent.

OUR TRADE WITH THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

The following is the translation of a Spanish Royal Decree, dated the 28th ult.—which has been received at the Board of Trade—relating to the Customs duties on foreign goods imported into the Philippine Islands, and which, it will be observed, abolishes the differential duties:—

Art. I.—Foreign merchandise, produce, and effects brought from foreign ports in Spanish bottoms are not to be regarded as appertaining to the coasting trade in the Philippine Islands, even though they may have touched in transit at ports of the Peninsula, adjacent islands, or the Spanish Antilles, and left with the same cargo.

Art. II.—The said manufactures, produce, and effects brought from foreign ports under the Spanish flag will pay the Customs dues, with the following deductions:—25 per cent. on importations from July 1, 1871, to June 30, 1873; 20 per cent. on importations from 1873 to 1875; 15 per cent. on importations from 1875 to 1877; 10 per cent. on importations from 1877 to 1879; the privilege to cease on the 30th June, 1879.

Art. III.—The Government will report to the Cortes on the dispositions on Art. II. of the present decree.

(Signed)

LOPEZ D'AYALA.

It is a matter of surprise with all concerned in the trade of the Philippines that now the differential duties are abolished some of our enterprising shipowners have not proceeded to establish a line of sailing vessels from London, or that some of the steamers en route to China do not call at the port of Manila. Two or three Liverpool houses have for years past had the carrying trade in their own hands, and the rate for fine goods has been at times as high as 90s. per ton. The style in which the business is done is peculiar, a different rate being named for almost all classes of goods instead of an uniform rate, as adopted in London. Again, the great cause of dissatisfaction and disgust is that the rate of freight for the same vessel varies weekly, according to circumstances. If a vessel is at a medium rate of freight, and there is an indication of plenty offering, the "screw" is at once applied and an increased rate demanded; or sometimes a merchant is induced to ship at the current rate, and before the vessel leaves an important reduction in the rate is made to the later shippers. Much annoyance is thus experienced, and it is certain that the best support of both Continental as well as home shippers would be given to a London line.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders were received at the Bank on the 19th inst. for £400,000 in bills on India, of which £295,000 were drawn on Calcutta, £100,000 on Madras, and £5,000 on Bombay. The minimum was fixed at 1s. 10½d. Tenders on Bombay at 1s. 10½d. will receive 24 per cent. on Calcutta and Madras, and 55 per cent. on Bombay; above that figure in full.

The first general meeting of the Merchants' Marine Insurance Company (Limited) was held on the 21st inst., under the provisions of the Act. The proceedings were simply formal, and no accounts were submitted, but satisfactory progress was reported.

Sir D. A. Lange has written a letter explaining the reasons which have led to the proposed change in the mode of levying the dues on the Suez Canal, based upon the practical testimony of some of the leading shippers in this country. The object, he says, was to secure equitable uniformity.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Public sales of China, comprising 21,434 packages, of which 15,000 packages were printed without reserve, were held on the 18th and 19th inst. The prices realised showed no change on those lately current, except for fine Moning Congou, which sold at a slight decline. On the first day 11,577 packages passed, of which 6,800 packages found buyers, all being "without reserve." A large quantity of red leaf siftings offered sold at fair rates, at prices ranging from 4d. to 6d. Two or three parcels of fair old season's red leaf brought 11½d. to 1s. 0½d. In Black leaf kinds, two breaks of low common realised 7½d. to 7¾d., and one of fair quality 1s. 2½d.; Two part chops of fine Moning, together 650 chests, sold at 1s. 7½d. to 1s. 7¾d., showing a decline of ½d. per lb. since last sale; 600 boxes Canton Congou of old import brought 1s. 0½d. Canton Caper sold at prices varying from 5d. to 9½d., and low Gunpowder 6¾d. to 7½d. per lb. On the second day about 6,800 packages were sold, all "without reserve;" a good proportion was printed with "reserved prices," and withdrawn. The bulk of the Congou sold consisted of common to fair red-leaf of old import, which realised previous rates. Further sales of siftings were effected at 4d. to 4½d. per lb. Some parcels of fine Moning Congou sold at the previous decline. Fair to medium black leaf sold somewhat irregularly at 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 3½d. A break of good medium brought 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 5d. per lb.

SILK.

There has been no alteration in the market during the past week; the business continues active, and prices are well supported at the recent advance.

COFFEE.

The supply brought to auction has comprised a various assortment, but has not been heavy, and with a moderate demand has gone off slowly at about previous quotations for all descriptions. The latest prices paid for Ceylon have been Plantation triage 50s. to 56s., small 57s. to 60s., low middling gray and mixed 60s. 6d. to 64s., bold ditto 64s. to 68s. 6d., middling 64s. 6d. to 70s., good middling to fine middling 71s. 6d. to 76s., pea-berry 77s. 6d. to 82s. Native bold 59s., garblings 22s.

Of 369 bags Bonthyne Singapore offered the sound portion was bought in at 60s., but 260 bags sea damaged sold at 49s. 6d. to 54s.

SUGAR.

The market has exhibited a quiet tone during the week, and business has been limited, prices showing little or no alteration. At auction, of 6,672 bags Penang, chiefly fine soft colour offered, 5,000 bags sold at about the valuations—fine grainy yellow (duty 5s. 8d.) at 36s., fine soft colour (duty 5s. 8d.) at 35s. to 35s. 6d., good do. and grey (duties 5s. 3d. and 5s. 8d.) at 33s. 6d. to 35s., soft yellow (duty 5s. 3d.), at 31s., middling do. (duty 4s. 9d.) at 30s., fine brown and syrupy yellow at 28s. to 29s., common soft brown (duty 4s.) at 24s. Privately 550 baskets date Penang have been sold at 21s. to 21s. 9d., chiefly the latter price, and a large business has been done in unclayed Taal and Zebu Manila, comprising 10,000 bags unclayed Taal at 21s., and 800 tons Zebu at about 22s. 6d.

COCOA-NUT OIL still rules £50 to £51 for Cochin, and at £40 to £39 10s. for Ceylon.

HEMP.—In auction 1,020 bales Manila met a moderate demand, and only 100 bales sold, fine brown at £40, fair £45 15s., the remainder bought in, brown £39 to £42, fair to good roping £46 to £49. Since the sale 400 bales of the portion bought in have been sold, fair to good roping £46 to £48, Sorsagun £49.

PEPPER.—BLACK: The demand continues limited, and in auction 2,026 bags were chiefly held for previous rates and bought in, 890 bags Singapore bought in at 5½d. to 6d., except 50 bags sea-damaged, which sold at 5½d. to 5½d.; of 1,022 bags Penang 250 bags sold at 5½d. to 5½d. For arrival 25 tons June shipment, per steamer, sold at 5½d. WHITE: Of 217 bags Singapore 85 bags sold at 9½d., showing an advance, the remainder being bought in at 10d.

RICE.—The market on the spot remains flat, but floating cargoes of soft grain are still inquired for at previous rates. The floating cargo, per Florence Braginton, 520 tons Rangoon, near at hand, has been sold at 10s. 1½d. for the Continent, and the floating cargo, per Sebastian Bach, 830 tons Rangoon, at 10s. for the Continent.

TIN.—Although somewhat less activity has been shown there is still a fair demand, and rates show an advance of 20s., the quotations being Straits on the spot and afloat, £134; Banca, £136; Billiton £134 per ton.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Stettin, dated July 13, state that the cargo of the Konigin Augusta, Pritzkow, from Java to Falmouth, which put into Simon's Bay, May 21, leaky, &c., consisted of sugar, of which 4,000 bags had been thrown overboard; 12,000 were sold at Simon's Bay, and the remainder, 10,000 bags, would probably also be sold there. The vessel would have to be made tight and provided with new masts. The repairs were expected to be effected in the course of three or four weeks.

The Balnaguith, Hankeville, from Padang to New York, which put into Bermuda, Nov. 28, in distress, was still there June 24, and was to sail in about a week's time for London.

A telegram received from Galle, dated July 11, states as follows:—"The Thomas Neckerson, Cronstadt, Yokohama, derelict, towed Algoa Bay seaworthy."

Advices from Amsterdam, dated July 13, state that the St. Antoine, Corimat, bound to Singapore, had been in collision in the Great North Holland Canal and received damage.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

No Medicine can surpass these Pills in their purifying and correcting powers over every organ of the body. Stomach, liver, lungs, heart, and kidneys soon display subjection to their influence, by which all diseases of those organs are arrested, all obstructions removed, and every function is healthily performed. The digestion is by their influence so improved that scarcely any food disagrees; acidity and flatulency alike are checked, nausea and biliousness disappear, firmness is given to every muscle, and tone to every nerve; the mind becomes exhilarated, and the thoughts become cheerful. These wonderful Pills correct dyspeptic habits, whether resulting from residence in hot climates, or over indulgence; they secure by night sound, refreshing sleep, which fits the body for renewed exertions.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.
YOKOHAMA.

The present (French) mail brings dates to 6th June. The Japan Mail has the following:—

A severe shock of earthquake has been felt throughout Yokohama. A godown was seriously injured by the shock, which is said to have been the most severe during the past seven years. The Seismograph attached to the engineering establishment of the Government at Bentsen showed that the shock travelled in the direction of S. W. and N. E.

A school has been established at Yedo under the superintendence of a duly qualified teacher, for the instruction of Japanese youths in the German language.

Mr. De Long, who has recently received his appointment as Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary, was to go to Yedo to present his credentials to the Mikado.

The Silver Eagle, with the draft of the 1st-10th Regt., under command of Lieut. Blake, has arrived. The soldiers enjoyed very good health on the passage out.

The following items are from the Japan Herald:—

The Prince of Higo has addressed a memorial to the Mikado, setting forth his views on ships and trade. He expresses it as his opinion that the navy should be entirely in the hands of the Government; that the Chilianjis should at once be called upon to dispose of their interests in steamers and sailing ships; that these should be purchased by wealthy and enterprising merchants or by companies, and that all trading pursuits should be given up by every Japanese Daimio, and left entirely in the hands of the native merchants of their several districts; and that he is prepared, if his sentiments be approved, to set an example by at once acting upon the doctrines he has advanced.

There is a strong move being made by several of the Kuges, together with the disaffected, to bring about a change in Government, and in this wise:—During the time of Ashkaga, a Joshii Daimio who became Tycoon some five hundred years ago, the present Mikado reign was inaugurated, extending to the present, being thirteen rulers. The old true tree and true line is represented by Fushimino-mia, now travelling abroad in America and Europe with Ninaji-no-mia of the same line. Satsuma upholds the present Mikado, and if Satsuma takes the reins no present great outbreak is apprehended, others rather preferring to act against him in three or four months after his policy shall have shown itself. Arima has been ordered into confinement. The assassins of Kuge Hirotsawa have been apprehended; they belong to the Arima clan. There are twenty-five Kuges imprisoned at Yedo for intrigue against Government.

A great number of officials, both Government and princes' officers, have been arrested within the past few days. The Yashikis belonging to the Prince of Arima have been taken by the Government, and also those of the Yanegawa.

LATER ADVICES VIA AMERICA.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer America arrived at San Francisco on the 15th July, thirty-three days from Hong Kong, and twenty-two days from Yokohama, the advices from the last-named port being to the 23rd June. The following is the summary of the news brought by this steamer, as telegraphed to the New York papers:—

The troops contributed by the Daimios to the Japanese Imperial Army continue to pour into Yedo, but the jealousy between the different clans makes the position of the Government very difficult. The Japanese Senate will soon meet, Prince Satsuma having arrived at the capital.

The United States Minister, De Long, having received his credentials as United States Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary, went to Yedo on the 8th June, where he had an audience with the Mikado.

It is rumoured that the British fleet had been ordered to rendezvous at Chefoo, to co-operate, it is supposed, with the American squadron in the Korea.

A German merchant of Yokohama has absconded with the sum of $20,000, which had been entrusted to him.

The Japanese Prince Choshu died on the 5th June.

CHINA.

—o— SHANGHAI.

We have dates from this port to the 9th June.

The North China Daily News says:—We mentioned, some time ago, that Chen-kwo-jui had been trying to get up another anti-foreign riot at Yangchow; but that Tsen-kwo-Fan had interfered, when the matter was brought to his notice, and restored quiet. A Chinkeang correspondent now writes that Chen has actually been arrested. He says:—"Chen-kwo-jui has been taken by a mandarin at Yangchow, for some unknown offence, and is now tied hand and foot, and guarded by 300 soldiers, at Yangchow. His captor has proceeded to Nanking, to see the Viceroy Tseng-kwo-Fan, with reference to his trial. There are in consequence rejoicings amongst the Chinese here. This is not rumour, but a fact." We, however, cannot guarantee our correspondent's information to be literally correct; though there is no doubt that Chen is in difficulties somehow; and very little doubt that Government is at the bottom of it.

The Courier reports that the German corvette Hertha would leave in a few days, conveying Mr. Annecke to Taku, en route to assume the position of Chargé d'Affaires for the German Empire during the absence in Europe of H.E. Baron Rehfuës, who has left Peking. The Hertha will then proceed to Australia, where she will be the first Government ship to display the national flag. She will be succeeded in Chinese waters by the Albatross, the Nautilus, and others.

THE AMERICAN EXPEDITION TO KOREA.

The following account—received via San Francisco—of the progress of the American operations in Korea had been brought to Shanghai by the American steamer Palos, which was detached from the other vessels of the expedition on the 3rd June:—

The fleet arrived at Jerome Gulf May 20, and was occupied ten days in surveying the channels between the various islands, finally coming to anchor at a point designated in the French charts Isle Boisee for three days. A surveying party, away during that time, met some natives, who sent off a communication asking where we were from, and hoping we were well. Subsequently a number of Koreans of the third and fifth rank came aboard the Colorado, where they were received by Governor Low's interpreters. They were shown about the Colorado, and distinctly told that we meant to send a surveying party up the river, and that our mission was peaceful, and that we should not attack or molest them in any way unless they first assaulted us. They expressed themselves glad to know our mission was peaceful. Afterwards the Monocacy and the Palos, with four steam launches—two from the Colorado, the others from the Alaska and the Benecia—left to go up to and pass Kanghoa, an island at the mouth of the River Salee, and survey. The party from the Monocacy, under Captain McCrea, numbered 170, and that from the Palos, under Commander Rockwell, fifty. The launches were manned by eleven men each. Capt. Homer C. Blake was on the Palos. Accompanying the expedition were Mr. Cowle, Private Secretary to Minister Lowe, on the Palos; Messrs. R. J. McCaslin, and Ed. H. Julsburg. Pay-master Spalding, of the Palos, was with Lieut. Totten, and Capt. Boswell and Mr. Slassen, of the Colorado, were with Lieut. Mead. The boat parties were armed with cutlasses, pistols, and Remington rifles. The Benecia launch carried a twenty-five pounder in the bow. The others were provided with twelve-pounders, all having a good supply of shell, canister and shrapnel.

Availing themselves of the flood-tide, the launches went ahead, abreast, up the Kanghoa river, sounding as they proceeded, the Palos and Monocacy following at a convenient distance. The boats, which were unmolested for some time, prosecuted their work regularly on the river, which is here quite a mile in width. The day was bright and pleasant, and all went well till they approached the narrow portion of the river, about ten miles from the Colorado. Here a great turnout of white-coated Koreans was noticed on a bluff of the left bank with flags flying and presenting quite a martial array. A nearer view indicated their numbers to be about 2,000 men, clothed in the costume of the country, which is a white coat not unlike the present European overcoat; white pajamas tied at the ankle with white socks and light summer shoes, such as are worn by the Chinese. There were two red stone forts visible, one on each bank, apparently armed with upwards of sixty nine eighteen-pounders, and guarding the narrow passage or bend of the river. The one on the right bank was the smaller of the two, and was not noticed at all during the engagement, except by a shell or two, sent to find if anyone was stirring therein. But the main fort built upon a bank, rising nearly a hundred feet from the water's edge, was evidently the stand point of the Koreans, and from which they expected to intimidate or drive away in dismay the foreigners. The launches kept steadily at their business without heeding the spectacle presented on the bank.

The Benecia launch meanwhile dropped astern, owing to her lead-line fouling her screw, so that when the surveying party came opposite the fort she was nearly two miles off. Mr. Cowle took a good observation of the Koreans, and counted more than thirty-six guns in position; besides there were seen countless numbers of gingalls, carried by two men each. These last, with the bannered men, helped to swell the array which formed upon the side and top of the hill behind the stone wall. The turning-point of the river was now almost reached, and when at a distance of about 150 yards from the shore, a stream of fire was poured from the large fort, followed in a few moments by a discharge of guns from the fort on the right bank. The launches at once turned their bows on the main fort, and their guns quickly replied, while the Palos and Monocacy, coming up on a five-knot tide, rattled away over the heads of the flotilla with their eight-inch rifled guns. Lieutenant Commodore Rockwell, with the Palos, made splendid practice with the bow guns, while Captain McCrea, who followed in the Monocacy, gave the enemy the full benefit of his broadside battery at close quarters, so close that the vessel grazed some hidden rocks which formed a reef above the bend of the river. Notwithstanding this accident, which displaced an iron plate and caused a leak, the Monocacy kept up a steady and well-directed fire until the forts were silenced. During the action there was little or no breeze, and the thick smoke from the shore and the river almost hid the combatants. At intervals, however, there was noticed red sand, with mortar from the walls, flying off in clouds as the shells burst in the works; and in ten minutes from the commencement of the firing the Koreans were driven back, helter-skelter, over the hills. Admiral Rodgers had said before the surveying party set out, "Do not fire before you are fired upon; but if you are fired upon, don't be the first to stop firing."

There were no orders given to land, so that after Captain Blake had satisfied himself as to the discomfiture of the enemy, the gun-boats and launches were ordered to move round the bend of the river and anchor a short distance above the scene of action. The only casualties reported were on the Alaska's launch. A sailor was in the act of pointing a howitzer, when a ball struck him on the side of the head and shoulders. Another had two fingers cut off by the recoil of a gun. It seems strange that with the hot, close firing on the part of the Koreans such small damage should result, but it is believed that this fortunate issue for the boats was owing to the larger guns on the fort being elevated too much. The gun-boats and launches were all more or less struck by balls, and many narrow escapes took place, but fortunately none were badly hit. After the boats had rounded the point the Koreans again returned to their guns, and in time to open fire upon the launch of the Benecia, which, as before stated, was delayed and left behind. Master Schroder, in charge of the launch, did not hesitate to force a passage against all odds and join his companions, and as soon as the fire from the boat was delivered coolly returned the fire and pushed on up the river. At slack water the boats were headed down the stream again, but before they started on their return to the squadron a few shells were judiciously thrown over the hill into the fort. This procedure settled affairs for that day. The Koreans finding their forts of no use, even though the Yankees were round the corner and out of sight, concluded to evacuate. They were seen marching out of their works in single file, and making a short route to the woods in the rear. The work of the surveying party being concluded, the vessels returned to the squadron without further molestation.

Admiral Rodgers is said to have expressed the warmest gratification with the spirited conduct of all concerned. There was a general wish to go ashore, spike the batteries and bring away the head quarters flag of the "Generalissimo" Commander-in-Chief, but the expedition having started with merely scientific purposes had no orders to cover such an unlooked for emergency. The impatience of all in the fleet below, who were within hearing distance and could see the flash of the guns, may be imagined. The fire of the enemy's batteries lasted but five to eight minutes, and during the time they must have fired 250 to 300 rounds. In addition to the long 24-pounders in the forts, the Koreans had lashed short "carronades" side by side on platform behind platform, till the place was as thick with guns as an ordnance yard. How any one lived through the first fire will ever be a marvel, and how under such an appalling fire the launches could show such pluck as to put their heads to the batteries and keep up a fire till the tide forced them beyond the hill and out of range, will always be a thing remembered.

The Shanghai Steam Navigation Company's steamer Millet had taken up a supply of coals and provisions for the fleet; also some guns and men from the Ashuelot. It is stated that Admiral Rodgers intends to start with an expedition for Seoul, the Korean capital, on her arrival.

[The attack above described is apparently that alluded to by Admiral Rodgers as the "treacherous attack on the 10th," in his despatch to the Navy Department, which was published in our last issue. The chief adviser of the King it would seem brought the reply to the demand for apology, which was substantially that the Koreans refused to hold any intercourse with foreign nations, and that the crew of the General Sherman had been executed under the laws of the land for piracy and murder committed after the wreck.]

COCHIN CHINA.

SAIGON.

Dates by this mail extend to the 22nd June.

There is no news of importance. The following items are from the Courier.

M. Vial, Minister of the Interior, left Saigon on the 24th May on his return home.

A sum of 300 piastres has been subscribed to carry out the suggestion of Dr. Pichon, published in the Standard, to aid in exploring the ruins of Angkor, and to endeavour to trace the root of the lost languages which conceal the history of the empire of Kmer.

The total amount subscribed in Saigon for the relief of the wounded in the late war is £71,376.

BORNEO.

—o—
SARAWAK.

Dates are to June 16. We find the following summary in the Sarawak Gazette :—

The 3rd June, the anniversary of the birth-day of H.H. the Rajah, was observed as a public holiday. A salute of twenty-one guns was fired from the Fort at 10 a.m., and a large party of Malay ladies of the upper class were entertained at dinner by the Rajah in the evening.

Labour is becoming scarcer than ever in Sarawak. A rise in wages has been granted during the last month to men engaged on public works, but even this fails to produce the number of hands required. Road making is being rather extensively carried on, and the new Government buildings will soon offer employment for a good many carpenters and masons. We shall have to trust as usual to importation for them.

The houses at the end of the bazaar next the Fort, which have long been both unsightly and insecure, have been demolished, with a view to their being rebuilt in a more solid manner and on a larger scale.

The marriage of Dr. Houghton with Miss Hogge was solemnised on June 1. The ceremony was performed by the bishop of the diocese, assisted by the chaplain in charge. A large assembly was present, including the Datu and his son, and many of the leading Chinamen in Sarawak.

A court of inquiry was held on June 10 on the conduct of Major F. A. Walter, late of H.M.'s 97th Regiment of Foot, commandant of Sarawak. The charges brought against him by his Highness the Rajah were :—1st and 2nd. That he had purchased certain quantities of cloth for fortmen's clothing from Singapore, and had sold these at a higher rate than the same quality could be procured for here, and that the said cloth was unfit for use. 3rd. That he had purchased certain cloth from a trader in the bazaar, and had sold it for a higher rate to the fortmen. 4th. That he had sold a quantity of braid to the tailor, and had afterwards made an alteration in the price. 5th. That he had borrowed a sum of money from a Government servant, late a convict from India, owing to which the said convict had been put to great inconvenience in being unable to return to India. 6th. That he had instructed certain fortmen to make inquiries relative to gutta-percha and beeswax, showing them samples with a view to trade. 7th. That he had made use of fortmen for his private purposes, and in consequence excused them from their public duties. After several witnesses had been examined in substantiation of these charges, Major Walter demurred to the regulation of the Court, when the Rajah informed him that in that case he should dismiss him from the service, and if he refused to obey the laws of the country he would even imprison him. Major Walter then again refusing to plead, and uttering most disrespectful remarks concerning his Highness the Rajah and the Court, the members adjourned sine die, and his Highness the Rajah then formally dismissed Major Walter from the Sarawak service.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—
SINGAPORE.

Dates from this port by the present mail reach to the 26th June. The London mail of the 19th May arrived out on the 22nd June. The following is from the Singapore Times :—

A collision has occurred between the Judicial Department and the Executive. By the Gazette it appears that the appointment of Mr. Owen to the position of acting judge has been rescinded, and the consequence will probably be a great interruption to the course of business. We deplore it on much more serious grounds, in so far that the deposition of Mr. Owen from the position of acting judge is due to the simple fact that he declined to comply with the wishes of the executive in regard to the exercise of his office, believing that as a judge it was impossible for him to be influenced by any other consideration than his own conception of the straightforward course of his duty. It seems that a case in which the Government is to some extent a party was about to come before the Court in the ordinary course ; but that as it did not suit the wishes of Executive that it should be brought on at this time, an intimation was sent to the Acting Judge requesting that he should decline to go on with the case then, and postpone it until Sir William Hackett should arrive, or, at all events, until he received further notice. Mr. Owen could not conscientiously be guided by a request such as this, and, we have heard, intimated so much quietly on the first suggestion of the request. This was answered by an authoritative intimation that the wishes of the Executive must be observed, and that, if they were not, Mr. Owen should be removed from his position on the Bench—a threat which has now been carried out. The whole question of the independence of our judges is again raised by this unfortunate affair.

The Legislative Council met on the 20th June, when the new railway scheme was discussed in committee. The following witnesses were examined :—Captain John Lawrence Kirby ; Mr. William Samuel Leicester ; Mr. Aitken was heard in reply on behalf of the promoters of the Singapore and New Harbour Railway, and the Council adjourned to the 26th June.

PENANG.

The following items are from the Penang Gazette :—

Captain Speedy, the Commissioner of Police, Penang, has been posted to Singapore as Commissioner of Police for the colony, and is succeeded in Penang by Captain Dunlop, and the latter by Mr. Evans, from Singapore. Mr. Cox has been confirmed by the Secretary of State in his appointment as Deputy Commissioner of Malacca.

Mr. J. Winbolt, assistant surveyor, Malacca, has resigned the service, and left, we understand, for Japan.

We hear that it is proposed to start a joint-stock company in Singapore to carry on gold mining in Johol and the adjacent territory, wherein gold is known to exist. Mr. Fisher, to whom, we believe, the credit is due of being the first to introduce the telegraph into the colony, is the promoter of the scheme.

The C. Buckland, 630 tons, Captain Barg, is, we believe, the first ship that has sailed up the river Prye to Messrs. Brown and Co.'s rice mill to discharge cargo. The Buckland went up with a cargo of paddy under the guidance of Mr. Pilot Showers without any mishap or hindrance.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor met with a carriage accident on Saturday last, the conveyance and horse having come to grief in a ditch by the roadside. Fortunately Mr. Birch was not hurt, but had to be extricated from the gharry through the window.

At the race meeting the following gentlemen were appointed stewards for this year's races, which will probably take place in the latter end of July or the beginning of August :—Messrs. F. R. Bradford, F. Shaw, I. S. Bond, Koh Sin Tat, A. J. Gunn, N. M. Moordin, T. C. S. Speedy, G. T. Tolson, and M. A. Anthony. The latter gentleman acts as honorary secretary. After the meeting was over, nearly $400 were collected in the room, and it is expected that the amount subscribed this year will enable the stewards to provide a bill of fare fully equal to that of any previous race meeting.

The Penang boat races came off on the 10th June. Since the arrival of the Duke of Edinburgh such a concourse of people round Fort Cornwallis has not been seen. Nothing occurred to mar the sport, but everything went off well.

The Vrede, from Panaroekan to Amsterdam, which put into Surinam leaky Feb. 7, sailed thence for her destination June 30, after repairing, but drifted backward on the Leda and sustained damage.

NEW SEASON'S TEA.

From HANKOW.—Ulysses, Craigforth, Cheops, Lord of the Isles Mongolia.

From SHANGHAI.—Hector, Ziba.

From FOOCHOW.—Abbotsford, Diomed, Gleddarroch.

From CANTON.—Canton, Danube.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Australia arrived at Southampton on Saturday last, the 29th inst., with 2,000 tons of new season's tea, contained in nearly 40,000 packages. The whole was at once landed, weighed, and forwarded to London by special trains. Much interest was excited in the arrival of the Australia, as she was the first of three steamers which left Hankow almost together. Samples of the teas reached London on the day the steamer arrived. The Enterprise and Erl King have also arrived from Hankow; both these vessels reached Gravesend yesterday, the Enterprise at 1 A.M. and the Erl King at noon. The Abbotsford, from Foochow, arrived at Aden on July 26, and the Danube, from Canton, has passed through the Canal, having reached Port Said on the 29th. The Diomed, from Foochow, put into Aden on the 20th ult. to repair damages caused by a collision with the Messageries steamer Peiho; the injuries sustained were not important, and the cargo has not been damaged.

The teas, ex Australia, were brought into the market yesterday; their quality is considered upon the whole very ordinary, as is also that of the teas, ex Enterprise and Erl King, brought forward to-day, and buyers are evincing great caution in their purchases. The prices realised have ranged from 1s. 7d. to 2s. 5d.

There is a fair demand, and prices are firm for China and Canton. The imports for the season are nearly closed, and stock is moderate. We quote:—Tsatiee, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, $8 to 9; China, re-reeled, $8 to 8.75; Taysaam, Nos. 1 and 2, $7.50 to 7.75; Canton, re-reeled, Nos. 1 and 2, $6 to 6.50; Japan, common to superior, $7 to 9 per lb.

There is some inquiry for Brazil for trade purposes, but the market is inactive. Holders, however, retain a very firm attitude, offering their stocks sparingly, in view of present losses insisting on extreme valuations. The market for other descriptions has become quiet, and we have but few sales to report. Java is jobbing at 19c. to 19½c. for pale, 19½c. to 19¾c. for medium brown, 20½c. to 20¾c. for brown, and 22c. to 24c. for extreme brown, and an invoice of 9,699 bags Government, ex Ayr, has been quitted on private terms. There has been a sale of 1,000 bags Ceylon at the quotations given above, and Singapore is selling in lots from second hands at 17½c. to 18½c. for pale, and 19c. to 21c. for brown.

CORDAGE.—Is in good demand, and owing to a recent improvement in Hemp, prices of Manila Cordage have been advanced to 18½c. to 19½c., and Sisal to 16½c. to 17½c., cash.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 17c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.05; Cassia, $1 gold (in bond).

FIRE CRACKERS.—Though the active season is over, prices are firm and higher, the stock being found to be light, with but little to arrive until late in the year; $2.75 is now generally demanded for Extra No. 1.

GUNNY CLOTH.—Sales have been made of 150 bales native at 16½ cents; 150 do. Borneo, to arrive, 12 gold, in bond; and 100 bales, in lots, 17½ for Native, and 18½ for Borneo.

HEMP.—Following our last report sales of Manila were effected to the extent of 1,392 bales, ex Aberdeen, at 11½c., and 1,000 bales to arrive per Isolina, at the same figure; in addition at auction, 200 bales inferior Crown Manila sold at 5½ to 5¾ cents cash, in bond, buyer to pay duty. At the close the market is quieter, late purchases having supplied the immediate needs of manufacturers. We quote as before 11 to 11½ cents gold, according to quality.

INDIGO.—There is scarcely any demand, and we have only to note a few sales of Manila, at $1 to 1.15 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 80c. to $1 currency (duty free).

RICE.—There is a fair demand, but the supply is heavy, and prices have given way to some extent; the sales of Rangoon have been 5,000 bags at $6.87½ to 7.25 currency, and 4,000 bags at $3.12½ gold.

SUGAR.—There has continued a steady good demand for Raw from refiners, who, having found a pretty large inquiry for their product of late, have bought with considerable freedom, the market retaining the features of firmness and strength noticed for some time past. The arrivals about supply the current inquiry, and the stock is nearly as large as at any time this season. The only business in East India descriptions has consisted in the sale of 24,045 bags Manila, ex Samuel Larrabee, at 8½c.

SPICES.—The market for East India descriptions, and notably for Nutmegs, Mace, and Pepper, continues to be more or less agitated by the receipt of telegrams advising scanty supplies and rising prices in the primary markets. The firmness here is also assisted by accounts from the chief points in Europe, stating that values have risen there, and are now fully equal to those current here, thus preventing accession to stocks from that quarter on this side the water. Sales have been made of 200 cases English and Penang Nutmegs at 92½c. to 95c.; 95 do. Penang, 97½c.; 30 casks, averaging 91; 300 to 400 bags Singapore Pepper, to arrive at Boston, 11½c., and in lots to the trade 16½c. for Penang and 17c. for Singapore—all gold; at the above prices holders are not free sellers. In other descriptions there is no change, and prices are steady. We notice sales in lots to the trade—Nutmegs at 92½c. for English, and 95c. for Penang; Mace, $1.50; Cassia, 31½c.; Pepper, 16½c. for Sumatra, and 17c. for Singapore.

TIN.—The accounts from abroad continue favourable, a further advance having taken place both in England and in Singapore, and the market is active and buoyant, with prices a little higher than at the date of our last report. Sales have been made of Straits, including parcels to arrive here and at Boston, 34½c. to 34¾c., 30 days; and of Banca at 39½c. to 39¾c., closing strong at 35c. for Straits, and 40c. for Banca—all gold.

THE CASE OF KWOK-A-SING.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Readers of the report of what took place in Parliament the other day regarding Judge Smale's decision at Hong Kong that a slave is justified, when seeking liberty, in killing his enslaver, will be interested in knowing the latest phase of this question in Hong Kong. Without previous notice, the Colonial Secretary moved in Council that a Bill might be read to remove doubts as to the applicability of an ordinance for rendition of criminals to the Chinese Government, and, despite the protest of the Chief Justice and other independent members, and in abrogation of standing orders, the Bill passed through a second reading; in a word—the Governor and his party disregarded the remonstrances of the Judge, and will, no doubt, follow up their action by giving the Chinese Government all they want.

As this measure appears to me to be nothing less than a successful attempt on the part of the Hong Kong rulers to override justice and humanity in a manner totally repugnant to the spirit of the age, permit me to express the hope that you will not fail to dilate on the subject, and if possible, prevent a repetition of such an act.—I am, &c.,

QUICK PASSAGE OF THE "UNDINE."

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Permit me to draw your attention to the enclosed clipping from a China newspaper, showing the passage of the British ship Undine, Captain Scott, to have been made from pilot in the Downs to pilot in Shanghai waters in the, I think, unprecedented time of eighty-eight days:—

"British ship Undine left the Downs January 23; carried moderate N.E. trades; crossed the Equator Feb. 15 in lon. 23.14 W., carried light variable S.E. trades; passed the meridian of the Cape March 13 in lat. 43.3 S., ran down easting between 43 and 44 S., sighted St. Paul's March 26, Java Head April 10; passed Anjer 13; thence up the China Sea, light winds chiefly from N. and N.E. and calms to port. Took pilot on board 20th; arrived at Shanghai 22nd."

I am, yours obediently,

REPORT OF THE SUEZ CANAL COMPANY.

This report has been looked for with much interest and some anxiety. It was presented on the 20th ult. The following are the points of general interest contained in the document:—

In March, 1870, the monthly receipts of the Canal were stated to amount to £300,000 to £400,000, the assets in hand to twenty millions, and the estimate of expenses, to the end of the year, to thirty millions, which sum included about twelve millions for the cost of work to be executed.

Reference is then made to the rumours which were afloat to the effect that the company would require a loan of 100 to 150 millions, which have been proved to have been utterly unfounded.

The Canal, says the report, has been deepened throughout its whole length to more than eight metres; in fact, the depth was carried to 8m. 30c. or 8m. 50c.; the curves have been improved, and the stations, placed at intervals of ten kilometres, allow large ships to pass each other without inconvenience.

As to the purchase of the Canal, the President declares that no one can participate in the enterprise except by the regular purchase of shares in the stock market. With respect to the very important question of maintenance, the report declares that the amount of soil to be taken out during the current year is estimated at 190,000 tons for the whole length of the Canal from Port Said to Suez, and that four dredging machines will suffice for the work; the quantity of sand brought by the wind is insignificant, and eighteen months' work has produced no appreciable change in the profile of the sides of the Canal.

In spite of the late war, there was a marked increase in the transit, and the preparations for the future are said to be "truly magnificent."

Since the inauguration, to the end of May last, 813 vessels, carrying 745,837 tons, passed through the Canal. The number of passengers was 46,374, yielding the sum of 459,710 francs. The condition of the Canal is shown by the following facts:—The Ajax passed the Canal drawing 6m. 81c. of water, and the Nestor 6m. 80c. As to tonnage, the Australia, of the P. and O. Company, gauged 2,287 tons net; the English steamer Delaware 2,597 tons; the English transport Jumna 3,001 tons. The Nigre and the Donnai, French post packets, made the transit in fourteen effective hours, the Volga, also of the Messageries Francaises, in thirteen hours twenty-five minutes, and the English steamer Carolina in thirteen hours ten minutes. As regards dimensions of vessels, the Peiho was 117 metres long, and the Arizona 23m. 77c. in width.

The company has established monthly returns of the vessels loading, porting, and en route. The following is the return for the 15th July of the present year:—

Number of vessels on the Mediterranean side	...	...	...	76
On the other side	...	...	...	35
Vessels having passed through the Canal and are to return by it	...	...	...	65
Total	...	...	...	176
The like return for the same date last year was only	...	...	...	73

Increase 103

The report includes the returns made by M. Guichard, the Chief Director of the Navigation; by these it appears that the number of vessels in the Canal at one time often reaches six or eight, and that on two occasions, the 16th and 17th February, 1871, it amounted to fourteen and caused no inconvenience. The number of boats carrying the merchandise of the country that paid toll reached 4,266 in the eighteen months, and a great increase is calculated on as soon as the Canal from Cairo to Ismalia is finished, which will now occupy a few months. This Canal, which only yet reaches Zagazig, brought down 7,000 tons of cotton seed in 1870, and 6,000 tons during the winter of 1871; it is calculated that this quantity will be doubled when the Canal is complete.

The company's entrepôts are beginning to receive merchandise, cargoes of tea, cotton, coffee, gum, and pepper are discharged by vessels coming from China and India, to be taken up by the various packet-boats which run to Odessa, Trieste, and Constantinople, to the coast of Syria. M. Guichard says that, in spite of the war, every branch of the service is prosperous, the Canal is now lighted throughout, the Telegraph in full work, and the pilotage and towage completely organised by night and day. The expenses have been reduced to a minimum, the amount for the first half of 1871 being 750,000 francs.

Finally, says M. Guichard, in addition to the 388 vessels already navigating the Canal, each day announces the launching of a new steamer with that view, and the creation of new enterprises in connection with the Canal.

The report dwells on the growing importance of Port Said, and states that besides the vessels passing the Canal, which generally coal at the port, there is a good general business; the tonnage of the vessels which anchored in the port to the 31st May amounted to 948,642 tons.

The finances of the company are declared to be such as to give full guarantee for the execution of all engagements, but not at present to pay the two half-years' interest on the obligations of the company without a loan; the sum proposed is £20,000,000. The assembly is adjourned for one month for the decision of the propositions, which require that 40,000 shares should be represented at the meeting.

COOLIE TRAFFIC IN DEMERARA.

(SECOND ARTICLE.)

Mr. Des Vœux having challenged attention to the great share of the cost of immigration which is paid out of the public purse, and urged that in future it should all be paid out of the pockets of the planting interest, the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the matter (Mr. W. E. FRERE, Sir GEORGE YOUNG, and Mr. C. MITCHELL) conclude their report by remarking that, as the annual amount appears to them to be already high and increasing at an alarmingly rapid rate, the planters would do well to reconsider, not only the devices by which the colony is got to pay a little more than its prescribed third, but also the one-third arrangement itself, with the view of lightening the public burdens. Immigration appears to be doing its work, and the planters are every year placed in a more secure position by it. The following are the principal recommendations which the Commissioners offer:—

They do not consider that the limit of benefit from immigration has yet been reached, the supply of labour being fairly kept pace with by the extension of cultivation. It should, however, be carefully ascertained, year by year, how far the taking up of new land keeps pace with the introduction of immigrants, and when the former is found to flag the latter ought to be checked. The Commissioners do not think that the whole burden of immigration should be thrown on the planters, but they advocate more watchful supervision on the part of the Government, to prevent the abuses complained of, and they think that the community, and not the planters, should be the paymasters for this increase of supervision. The motive of interest will thus be brought to bear in the right direction, for the community will have a fixed sum to pay, and it will be their interest to see that they get money's worth for their money.

The commissioners wish to see the Immigration-office fully recognised as a department of Government; and they propose that, without prejudice to the reductions recommended in the sum total of the Colonial contribution to immigration, the cost of the department, which now stands at $20,000, should be permanently charged upon the public purse. This principle should also cover the case of medical practitioners. They are made Government officers because duties of supervision are required of them; and it is not well that Government should pay its officials by drawing cheques on the managers of estates. It would be easy to find room in the present colonial contribution of a lump sum of $170,000 and upwards, for the specific charge of say $70,000, for the salaries of medical officers, for one of $20,000 for immigration officers and the cost of labour, law, and prisons, and yet leave sufficient margin for any reductions considered advisable.

A third matter which here claims consideration is the degree to which increased prosperity has enabled the planting interest to undertake more of the burden of immigration. Mr. OLIVER's opinion that the profits of the sugar industry as a whole have not, for the last three years, reached 3 per cent. on the capital employed, is considered surprising, notwithstanding his great experience. At first sight it seems obvious to suggest that the fresh capital sunk in extending cultivation has, in this case, been deducted from the profits. But Mr. OLIVER considers that, if that were done, the 3 per cent. would become a minus quantity; and Mr. WINTER, also a leading estates' attorney, considers 3 per cent. too high an estimate.

These statements give rise to some serious reflections. If, in spite of the good prices of the last three years, the sugar industry is so very near the wall, is it not a very perilous thing to go on introducing immigrants at the rate of 5,000 a-year, who are to be absolutely dependent on it for work and wages? Again, if the steady improvement of the last twenty years has left the staple trade of the colony in no better case than this, does not the fact point to some unhealthy forcing which has left it sickly?

From 1820 to 1829 the sugar crop was gradually increasing, and then fell off again till the year 1834, when it was very little more than in 1820. The cotton and coffee crops decreased considerably. In 1820 the return of cotton was 4,536,741 lbs., and of coffee 8,673,120 lbs. In 1834 the production of cotton was only 926,944 lbs., and of coffee 3,056,556 lbs. The cocoa crop of 1820 was 113,956 lbs.; in 1834 there was none at all. Thus, during the last years in which slavery existed, the sugar crop had not increased much, and the other crops of the colony had fallen off considerably. During the years of apprenticeship, 1835 to 1838, the sugar stood at above 100,000,000 lbs.; but, with the termination of the apprenticeship, it speedily fell off one half, and reached its lowest ebb in 1846. From that time it began again to rise, and has continued to do so, with some fluctuations, to the present time. In 1860 the advance was accelerated by the better supply of labour then becoming available in consequence of the introduction of immigrants in larger numbers than before. The exports of the colony in 1870 were 94,944 hogsheads of sugar; 20,716 puncheons of rum; 17,606 casks of molasses; 153,127 cubic feet of timber; 103 bales of cotton; 6,221,225 shingles, and 28,062 cocoa-nuts, by far the largest amount of produce ever shipped from the colony.

A few instances of the value of estates not far from Georgetown will give some idea of the rise in the value of landed property.

"Peter's Hall and Eccles" (forming one estate) were sold at execution sale in 1847 for $26,500, and in 1849 for $12,750,—equal to £8,093 for the two properties. They produce now over 1,600 hogsheads of sugar, worth $180,000 at present prices. The "Great Diamond" estate was purchased in the same manner in 1848 for $9,050; it is now one of the finest properties in the colony, and not worth less than forty or fifty thousand pounds sterling. The "Albion" estate in Berbice, which was purchased in 1847 for $1,000, has, at the present moment, one of the finest sets of works in the colony, and is considered the best specimen of a thriving estate.

The large West Indian houses in Glasgow, Liverpool, Bristol, and London, have nearly a monopoly of the freight of sugar; have possession of the market for supplies; and, through their branch houses, do three-fourths of the attorney's business. They are also very large mortgagees of estates; and, in many cases, a private proprietor is as completely shut out from looking for a cheaper market to buy supplies, or a dearer market to sell produce, as any coolie on his estate, who has a score at the driver's shop.

The Commissioners do not agree with the suggestion that immigration has operated to diminish the enterprise of the cultivator. A great deal has been done to improve the cultivation of the cane of late years. Some estates which used to average from one hoghead to a hoghead and a quarter per acre now make from one and three-quarters to two and a quarter. The use of artificial manure has become more common. Two enterprising gentlemen, Messrs. RUSSELL and CRUM-EWING, have introduced steam ploughs, and thoroughly drained many acres of their lands, with every prospect of successfully carrying out the improvement. Great improvements have been introduced in the machinery and appliances for the manufacture of sugar.

The Commissioners give it as their opinion that if even British Guiana sugars begin to lose their hold on the market through unenterprising management, it will be high time to check that liberal supply of immigrant labour which may have made the planters careless; but, when that time arrives, if it ever should arrive, there will be other and more obvious reasons for doing so. And they add that it is essential to the satisfactory continuance of immigration that the penal and reindenture clauses of the Immigrant Labour Law should be reformed in a liberal spirit, and that the immigration office should be reorganised as a department of the Government, with due powers and responsibilities, and reinforced by uniting to it the medical staff of the estates.

THE JAPANESE MILITARY SYSTEM.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

A letter from a naval officer on board the Prussian ship Hertha, cruising in the Japanese waters, gives an interesting account of a small army which has been found in Kishu, one of the vassal provinces, on the Prussian system. So quietly has the organisation been made that even the Japanese of other provinces know little about it, and the Government at Jeddo has only quite recently informed itself on the character and extent of the force. Knowing what bad soldiers the Japanese make, as a rule, the lieutenant of the Hertha treated the Prince of Kishu's invitation to inspect his troops as a joke, but on seeing the soldiers he was so well pleased with their excellent training that he took three days' leave, in order to observe them closely in their drill and barracks life. It appears that the Prince of Kishu, who is an almost independent Sovereign, on hearing of the marvellous successes of the Prussian system and the needle-gun, some years ago conceived a desire to model his own army on the same plan. He negotiated with the Government of Buckeburg for a number of needle-guns, and, having purchased them, asked as a favour that a man conversant with their use should be sent over to instruct his men. The terms being liberal, a retired Buckeburg sergeant was prevailed upon to undertake the task. At his recommendation compulsory service had been introduced into the province, each man to serve three years. The contingent thus formed comprises eight battalions of 660 men each, 150 cavalry, and some battalions of light artillery. The barracks are built on the Prussian plan; food, dress, drill, all is European. Beds, otherwise unknown to the Japanese, have found their way into the sleeping-rooms, and are appreciated; and the soldiers eat beef and wear boots like so many Germans. The uniform is made of cheap material, the colour being blue for the privates and black for the officers, while braid decorations denote the wearer's rank. The sergeant has proved himself a perfect genius, for he has taught the Japanese to make their own uniforms, saddles, bugles, gunpowder, cartridges, &c.,—everything, in fact, belonging to the military establishment. He put his small army through all their paces before his countryman, and in everyone they gave complete satisfaction. There is also a military school in which sixty ensigns are now undergoing scientific training, and they, as well as the higher officers, have proved wonderfully docile. The Prince has announced his intention shortly to go in himself for his cram, and, if he finds himself capable of commanding his own army, he means to dismiss his master laden with presents. In Kishu the Prussian sergeant is a general favourite; but in other provinces he is regarded with suspicion, for every neighbour fears that the new army may be directed against himself. The Government at Jeddo, having its attention drawn to the military preparations, has sought to secure the old soldier's services for its own army, but while there is anything left to reform in Kishu, the Buckeburgian has refused to leave the Prince. In two or three years he proposes to bring his officer-pupils over to Berlin, in order to show them the model after which they have been formed.

THE SITUATION IN CHINA.

THE telegrams which we publish this morning will be read with deep anxiety by all who have the welfare of our countrymen in the Far East at heart. It is an old saying that "prophets love to find their words come true;" but we, who have urged persistently, though without effect, the necessity of energetic action on the part of our Government, frankly avow that we should have been much more gratified to have found our predictions falsified than confirmed by the news which has appeared in every journal in Great Britain, and which, if it be perused with apparent unconcern by the general public, will owe that seeming apathy to confidence in our Ministers, which the conduct of the Foreign-office, in reference to Chinese affairs, has certainly, of late, failed to justify. From Russia we learn that the feeling of insecurity in China is so great that the Government will no longer be responsible for the safe conveyance of property into any part of the Celestial Empire. From China itself we are informed that a revolution is imminent, and that disturbances have already broken out at Canton. The place where the outbreak is reported to have taken place seems sufficient to check any immediate apprehension for our countrymen, but the movement should not be disregarded as insignificant on that account. For months past we have pointed out that some disastrous result must be the certain consequence of the inaction of the Government in connection with the Tientsin Massacre, and the unaccountable reticence of the Foreign-office with regard to Mr. WADE's failure to send home the "missing despatch." For months past the Chinese have been strengthening the Taku Forts (which we ought never to have given up), purchasing arms and ammunition, and massing forces to defend them. All this the Government could not but have known, in common with everybody who can read in the British Empire. Nevertheless, the stereotyped reply to everyone of the many questions put to the Foreign Secretary has always been that they "have no official knowledge" of anything of the kind, and as soon as they receive any "official communication" it shall be laid before the House. In the meantime, nothing whatever has been done. The threatening preparations of the Imperial Government have been entirely disregarded. The rumours of their intention to abrogate all their treaties, instead of framing a new one on the majority of the EMPEROR, have been put aside as unworthy attention. The presence of CHUNG HOW has been ignored for three months. Mr. WADE has sent us no news that has been allowed to transpire, for the same period. We now learn (through Mr. REUTER, for Mr. WADE is still silent) that the mandarins, and other hangers-on of the Imperial Court, may have enough to do to defend themselves against revolution instead of war. The arms which they have accumulated to attack us, they have now to turn against their own people. While they have been defying the foreigners (misled, no doubt, by CHUNG HOW's complacent despatches founded on Mr. WADE's silence) and lulling themselves in the idea of fancied strength, rebellion, which has never died out in China for eight hundred years, is rearing its head again. The Chinese Government and CHUNG HOW have forgotten, or affected to forget, that it was to Foreign intervention, to British armed protection, that it owed its salvation on many occasions when the throne was on the point of being wrested from them. They have overrated their own strength, and glossed over their own weakness. On the other hand, the rebels have not lost sight of the fact that the imminent disunion between their Government and its Western allies might prove their opportunity to restore their party to the position which they occupied at a period which seems but yesterday to a people whose traditions date so far back. Our chief concern, of course, is for our countrymen in China, who, in such a contest, may be placed in the greatest danger from both parties. As we are at present advised, it is impossible to exaggerate the emergency of the situation; yet the new combination of circumstances seems to suggest an unexpected opportunity, if our Government will only avail themselves of it without loss of time. Not an hour should be lost in placing the British force, as it has been placed before, on the side of the Empire; but with the distinct understanding that the stipulations demanded for the safety and well-being of foreigners in China at the time of Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK's Convention should be incorporated in a revised Treaty without further delay, after our gun-boats, which might remain to witness the ceremony, have quashed the present insurrection, as our forces did the last.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

THE horrors of the coolie trade have so often been exposed in these columns, and the painful details of recent tragedies must be so fresh in the memory of our readers, that we may dismiss that portion of the subject with the summary of the Parliamentary papers which we published last week, and turn our attention to the inquiry—what is the remedy for this monstrous evil? The Report seems to us to point conclusively to the conviction that, although ostensibly discouraged by the Portuguese Government both in Macao and Lisbon, it is virtually encouraged in both places, whether through the venality of the officials, or a mistaken and unscrupulous notion of political economy, is beside the question. Not only from considerations of humanity, then, but also from the prejudice excited against all European nations by the laches of one, it appears to us that combined pressure should be brought to bear on the Portuguese Government to insist on the institution of licensed shipping houses for the reception of coolies willing to emigrate, on the excellent principle so conscientiously carried out by the French in the South Sea Settlements. Each coolie is there registered, questioned alone by the French Commissioner as to whether he knows where he is going, and if he is going willingly; and the voyage of the coolie ship is, so far as is practicable, watched and reported on, in order to make sure that it arrives at the destination for which it is ostensibly bound, when the coolies are checked off according to an official list, and the missing ones required to be accounted for. As our interests are larger than those of any other nation in the Far East, we ought to take the initiative in pressing this proposition, in its integrity, on the Portuguese Government, and, on its being agreed to, it should be issued in the form of a proclamation by placards, &c., throughout the length and breadth of the Chinese Empire, for the information of the ignorant who may be attempted to be kidnapped. At the same time, severe penalties should be attached to any person who removes coolies, or causes them to be removed without a license. If our Government were firmly to make this requisition to the Portuguese, we feel sure they would have the support of the Germans, the Americans, and the Dutch, and such a coalition even Portuguese duplicity could not resist.

WE understand that Mr. F. H. GOTTLIEB, F.S.S., F.R.G.S., Magistrate of Police and Commissioner of the Court of Requests, Straits Settlements, has had a further extension of leave. Mr. GOTTLIEB is not likely to leave England until December next.

MR. MARCUS FLOWERS will leave England on the 5th inst. by the Pacific Mail route, to resume his duties as Her MAJESTY'S Consul at Nagasaki.

It is officially notified that Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK has resigned the post of British Minister at Peking, and that his successor will be Mr. T. F. WADE, C.B.

THE appointments by the German Government of Mr. ADOLPH THEODOR EIMBOCKE as Consul at Hong Kong ; of Mr. JOHN LOUIS VANDERSPAR as Consul at Point de Galle ; and of Mr. ALFRED HASCHKE as Consul at Penang have been approved of by the QUEEN.

WE understand that Vice-Admiral the Hon. G. F. HASTINGS will succeed to the command of Her MAJESTY's squadron, on the China Station, on the retirement of Sir HENRY KELLETT.

Monetary and Commercial.

The first annual meeting of the Colombo Gas and Water Company (Limited) was held on the 26th ult., when the following report was submitted to the shareholders :—

The directors have pleasure in informing the shareholders that the progress made in erecting the Gas Works at Colombo and laying the mains has been extremely satisfactory, and the works will be in operation and a large part of the town lighted about the end of August. The Fitting Department is now busily engaged in fitting up the Queen's House, the Custom House, the General Post-office, the Public Assembly Rooms, the Gallé Face Hotel, &c., so that a considerable number of consumers, in addition to the public street lights, will be ready to use gas as soon as the company is in a position to supply it. A cargo of English coal has been sent, and one of Australian coal has been ordered, and will arrive before the works are completed. Your directors have received the gratifying intelligence that the population of Colombo by the census just completed amounts to over 100,000, exclusive of a floating population of 10,000 souls, as against 55,000, the number named in the prospectus which was taken from the previous census. To Mr. Simpson, the resident engineer, and to Mr. Laurie, the contractors' representative, great credit is due for the able and speedy manner in which the works are being erected.

The following report has been received from the company's engineer :—

I have the pleasure to inform you that all is going on satisfactorily as regards the progress and execution of the Gas Works. I have advice from the resident engineer down to the 12th June last. Upwards of a thousand men were employed at that date in pushing on the works. The network of mains had been laid in the Pettah and Fort, chiefly by native mainlayers, and the mains would be completed throughout as soon as the works. All the buildings of the works and erection of the apparatus were well advanced, and I look forward to delivering gas into the town in August next.

Lord Cairns, who has acted as arbitrator under the Albert Life Assurance Company's Act, has decided that the undertaking is not to be reconstructed. There are, his lordship holds, too many objections to the scheme of the Reconstruction Committee for the course suggested by that body to be adopted.

The advices from Yokohama, received this morning via San Francisco, report the absconding from that settlement of a German merchant with the sum of $20,000. The statement is confirmed by private telegrams, which, however, fix the amount at $40,000.

The traffic receipts over the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company's line for the month of July were £6,165. The traffic receipts over the China Submarine Telegraph Company's line for the month of July amounted to £5,812. This company's station at St. Jacques, near Saigon, has been opened for traffic ; messages can be sent from the Falmouth Company's office, 74, Old Broad-street, and from all the provincial stations in the United Kingdom.

A prospectus has been issued of the Anglo-Indian Tea Company, with a capital of £20,000, in shares of £10 each. The object is to acquire and extend the business of the India and China Tea Company, established in 1868, the capital of which has been absorbed in the formation of agencies and creating a connection, of which the new company will have the advantage, the purchase money for goodwill and premises (£5,000) being wholly taken in paid-up shares.

We are glad to see that the movement of shippers to resist the unfair stipulations recently introduced into bills of lading for the Far East has already borne promising fruit. A circular has been issued, signed by Mr. C. M. Norwood, M.P. for Hull, convening a meeting of steamship owners interested in the India and China trades via the Suez Canal, to be held on Friday next at the offices of the General Shipowners' Society, the object being to arrive, if possible, at a satisfactory understanding on the subject of the forms of bills of lading, and of other modifications of business details, in connection with steam traffic with the Far East.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

We have to report a very dull market throughout the interval, with slightly easier prices for some descriptions. Red-leaf Congous: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds are altogether neglected ; fair common have been taken at 9½d. to 10½d., showing a small decline ; good common have been sold at prices in favour of buyers ; fair qualities are steady at last quotations ; in good to fine and finest business is rendered unimportant by the smallness of stock. Paklins are in a good position, the stock being exhausted. Black-leaf kinds: The low qualities continue depressed. Fair common are unchanged ; a few have been sold at 10½d. per lb. For good common there has been a slightly better demand, and a few small sales have been made at 11d. to 11½d. per lb. Fair to good medium are in request, with very few on offer. Good to fine and finest are in a favourable position, but we fear that large simultaneous arrivals of new teas next week may interfere with their sale at satisfactory rates. Amoy kinds have been sold to some extent at rather lower prices for fair common. Low kinds are unsaleable. In new-make Canton Congous business has been done at lower prices, out of latest arrivals per overland route, the fair to good qualities realising from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d., and fine 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Oolongs are without inquiry. In Souchongs and Flowery Pekoes there is nothing doing of any importance. Scented Teas: Common Canton Capers, received overland, have been sold at only 8½d. to 11d. per lb. The better kinds are unaltered. Canton Orange Pekoes, of fine quality, per overland, have been taken at 1s. 10d. per lb. Of Foochow descriptions there is no stock on offer. Uncoloured Japans are as last quoted. Green Teas: We have nothing of any importance to remark concerning these kinds.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison and Rehden's Circular says :—The market has been inactive during the past fortnight, dealers being anxious to reduce their stocks before the arrival of new Teas. The Australia is expected at Southampton on the 29th, but it is doubtful if samples of her Teas can be shown here before Monday, the 31st, when further steamers, coming direct, are also due in London. Further imports of 14,000 boxes new-make Congou and Scenteds have been received per overland ; the Congous were of inferior quality, and sold from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 9d., Scenteds from 1s. 8d. to 2s. 8d. per lb., and one parcel of 1,200 boxes common Scented Caper at 8½d. per lb. COFFEE.

The market is wholly without activity, and a large portion of the offers of Ceylon, both Plantation and Native, have been bought in. The small quantities which have found buyers have gone off without alteration in the prices ruling last week ; the latest rates paid have been Plantation triage and ordinary 50s. to 55s., small gray to coloury 56s. 6d. to 61s., low middling gray 60s. 6d. to 64s., bold ditto 62s. 6d. to 69s. 6d., middling 64s. 6d. to 70s., good middling 71s. to 74s., 6d., pea-berry 78s. 6d. to 82s. Native has realised 53s. 6d. to 54s. 6d. No business has been done in other East India kinds.

The landings for the week show a deficiency of 240 tons, but as the deliveries are also rather less than in the corresponding week last year, the position of the stocks is not materially altered. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows :—Plantation, 266,392 cwt., against 314,255 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1870 ; Native 34,615 cwt., against 24,927 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 12,555 cwt. Plantation, against 22,952 cwt., and 3,301 cwt. Native, against 9,031 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-nine weeks ended July 22, 1871, was, of Ceylon, 20,371 tons, against 20,600 tons during the corresponding period of 1870 ; of all descriptions, 36,799 tons, against 32,411 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 6,179 tons, against 5,982 tons; of all descriptions, 10,949 tons, against 10,213 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 17,401 tons, against 15,616 tons; of all descriptions, 33,147 tons, against 24,455 tons. The stock on July 22 was, of Ceylon, 10,396 tons, against 12,916 tons; of all descriptions, 17,501 tons, against 21,962 tons.

SUGAR.

The demand during the week has continued limited in extent, but although the business done has been extremely small previous prices have been obtainable, and rates show no alteration from the rates current a week since. The public sales have included 2,200 bags Penang, out of 3,046 bags offered—soft white (duty 5s. 8d.), at 36s.; soft colour (duty 5s. 3d.), 35s.; fine yellow, 33s. 6d. to 34s.; good common brown (duty 4s.), 25s. 3d.; fine white (duty 6s.) being bought in at 87s. 6d.; also 11,069 bags Zebu unclayed Manila, which were bought in at 22s. to 22s. 6d. Privately 100 baskets fine quality Java (duty 6s.) have been sold at 38s. 3d. per cwt.

As against the large landings in the previous year, those last week show a decrease of 4,800 tons, and with an increase of 850 tons in the total deliveries, the deficiency in the stock is again increased to about 27,000 tons. Stock, July 15, 76,225 tons, against 97,493 tons; July 22, 74,469 tons, against 101,359 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 164 tons, against 95 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,043 tons, against 1,775 tons. The stock on July 22 was, of Penang, 1,541 tons, against 3,075 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 22,480 tons, against 33,552 tons.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

GOOD SPIRITS.—Every one has frequently experienced sudden personal changes from gaiety to gloom. The weather often receives the blame when a faulty digestion is alone the cause of the depression. Holloway's Pills can be honestly recommended for regulating a disordered stomach and improving digestion. They entirely remove the sense of fullness and oppression after eating. They clear the furred tongue, and act as a wholesome stimulant to the liver, and as a gentle aperient to the bowels. They healthfully rouse both body and mind. Holloway's Pills are the best-known antidotes for want of appetite, nausea, flatulency, heartburn, languor, depression, and that apathy so characteristic of chronic derangement of the digestion.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN. YOKOHAMA.

We have advices from this port via San Francisco to the 23rd June, ten days later than those of the present P. and O. mail. The outward mail of April 21 was received on the 7th June.

The following items are from the Japan Herald :—

Yedo is crowded with troops, and her merchants delighted with their unaccustomed trade in consequence. It is stated that overtures have been made to Stotsbashi, the late Tycoon, to resume the reins of temporal government, although deposed from his former seat because of the admission of foreigners. Stotsbashi (who appears of a dilettante turn, and may possibly prove to be the Horace Walpole of Japan) declines the invitation, preferring poetical lotus-eating to the worry of eternally adjusting balances of power amongst minor princes, of being ridden roughshod by foreign diplomacy, and looked on as a traitor by his countrymen for such submission, unavoidable as it is.

Another foreigner (Mr. H. King) has been severely wounded at a Ne-e-gata by a two-sworded Japanese, who entered his room, and inflicted seven sword wounds upon him. Private animosity is believed to have actuated the deed.

A census has been published of the population, which shows that on February 1 the entire population was 34,785,321, of which the males exceeded the females in number by 388,079. The literary and military number 1,872,959; the farmers and shopkeepers, &c., 31,954,821; the Buddhist priesthood 244,869; the Sinto priests 163,140, and 6,711 nuns. The total revenue is about £61,118,038, the Government share being about £17,275,000.

The United States Minister has presented his credentials as Envoy Extraordinary to the Mikado at Yedo.

It is asserted that the Government has just received intelligence of the death of Satsuma's uncle, Shimadzu Saburo, who has died at Kagosima. He was a foe to foreigners; arrangements had been made for him to occupy a high Government position. He it was, it will be remembered, who gave the order some years ago to cut down Mr. Richardson on the Tokaido.

It is believed that the murderer of Mr. Hoey, killed in his house in Yokohama in January, 1870, has been discovered. He lies in prison awaiting trial.

The following is from the Japan Weekly Mail :—

We are enabled to state on excellent authority that the silk crop this year gives admirable promise, and that so much more attention is being paid to the reeling that the objections lately made to the silk will disappear, at least to a very considerable extent. Regulations have been made in the interior that if the skeins are found to be cased with inferior silk, the native buyer can return his purchases to the seller, and that the latter shall return all money paid on account of them. Two experts have been appointed in each district to exercise a general superintendence over the reellers. Each reeler has been ordered to affix his name to every hank he produces.

A meeting of the members of the Race Club has been held. Mr. Robertson in the chair. The accounts having been read, it appeared that there remained in hand over $1,700, of which some $400 had been paid by one of the Japanese Ministers. It will be remembered that he had offered to fill up the dip, but finding that it would cost $5,000 he proposed to compromise the matter by payment of $1,000. Of this sum $400 has been received, and forms part of the $1,700 above mentioned. After some conversation, it was decided to continue the steeplechases.

In H.B.M.'s Provincial Court, Kanagawa, the case of "Rickerby v. the Proprietors of the Japan Mail" was heard on the 15th June. This case originated in a petition filed by Mr. Talbot as agent for Mr. Rickerby to restrain Mr. Howell, one of the proprietors of the Japan Mail, from parting with, or transferring any part of, or interest in, the Japan Mail, the said Mr. Rickerby having a certain interest in the paper. Mr. Hill, for the defendant, contended that no such agreement existed as the one which was alleged to give Mr. Rickerby a first lien on the property. His Lordship held that as one party said there was a document in existence and the other said there was not, therefore the plaintiff must prove his document. There was sufficient in the petition and the affidavit to prevent the dismissal of the petition, but the demurrer would be dismissed. On the question of costs his Lordship decided that they should be costs in the cause.

YOKOHAMA, June 23.

The chief event here since the departure of the French mail on the 6th inst. has been the sudden disappearance of Mr. O. Seyd, of the German firm of Ernest Seyd and Co., who absconded by that steamer, and an investigation proves that he owes Japanese about $63,000. Report says he took nearly that sum with him, but it is known that he had a demand bill on the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, at Hong Kong, for $22,000. A telegram was sent two or three days after by steamer to Shanghai, intended to ensure his being arrested on his arrival at Hong Kong, but I do not think it could reach in time. He sold large quantities of goods "to arrive"—which do not appear to exist at all—taking bargain money. He also bought and shipped silk, to be paid for next day by a cheque for $28,000, which was of course dishonoured—body of cheque filled up for twenty-eight hundred, and figures $28,000. He is also said to have shown a telegram from home that 50,000 pieces shirtings had been bought, and were ready for shipment early; the inference is that somebody on your side knows something of the fraud. The assets are about $100,000, liabilities $170,000 or thereabouts. He has lived a very fast life, and entertained Japanese sumptuously, whilst he must have been swindling them. No books were kept—not even a cash book. Mr. Ohl is appointed liquidator, and the estate has been placed in bankruptcy. It is feared that the culprit may escape to Macao or Manila. Of course the affair has greatly checked Japanese confidence in foreigners.

There has been a great uproar about that "white elephant," the church organ; on its arrival it is found as much too large for the church as it is for the pockets of the congregation, and after much squabbling has to be placed at the end of the church where the entrance now is. To this the minister demurs, but the trustees obtained a vote of confidence at a public meeting and they are doing right to put it there. The thing will be an incubus for a long time in many ways; it is not yet paid for, having cost three times what we could afford and what was at first intended.

On the 19th inst. news reached us from Ne-e-gata that a Mr. E. King, an Irishman, and said to be related to an Irish peer, had been cut down and seriously wounded. There is no doctor there, and he may not survive. I hear that he was very harsh with Japanese, and it may be there was some provocation on his part.

The Pacific Mail Steam Company are doing a big business here—the America goes full of cargo and passengers, having shut out a large quantity of both, and it is said that the company will despatch two steamers in July. If the Pacific Railroad Company will afford facilities nearly all the tea from Shanghai and Japan will go that way before long, and then we must have semi-monthly mails.

Politically there is nothing new. Satsuma is at Yedo, and manages things his own way—which way, I fancy, is all for the good of the people and foreigners—so well-informed men think—but Japanese politics are difficult to understand.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.

Dates extend to June 17; the Pacific Mail from New York, April 21, arrived out on the 28th May, and the P. and O. mail of the 21st April on the 14th June. Telegrams from London had been received to June 2.

The news from these places is devoid of interest or importance.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, June 15.

Since my last, on the 25th ult., via Brindisi, the following mails have been received here:—April 7 on the 29th ult., fifty-two days; the one of April 14 on the 4th inst., fifty-one days; and that of April 21 by the M.M. steamer Phase from Hong Kong direct on the 6th inst., forty-six days.

* We learn that Mr. Seyd was arrested at Singapore on board the homeward bound French mail steamer.

The following movements of the vessels of war have taken place during the interval:—H.B.M. steamers Ringdove and Salamis both arrived from Shanghai on the 6th and 8th inst. respectively. Russian corvettes Almaz on the 10th inst. from San Francisco, and the Haydamaak on the 11th inst. The Tordenskjold (Danish) left for Hiogo on the 27th ult., and the French iron-clad Alma and gunboat Amotia Piquet also left the same day for Shanghai, the Junco, H.B.M. transport, left for Yokohama on the 13th, and this afternoon H.B.M. ships Ocean, Adventure, and Salamis left for Chefoo, followed by the two Russian corvettes Almaz and Haydamaak, whose destination I have not yet heard. From the hurried way in which the two latter got up steam it is thought that it was not unlikely that they would give a look in to see how matters were progressing in the Korea. The only vessel remaining in port is H.B.M. gunboat Ringdove, which when relieved by the Blk, which is now daily expected, will proceed to Chefoo.

A Chinaman has rented the tea-firing premises formerly belonging to the estate of Glover and Co., and intends preparing tea for the English market for some of the large native tea men at this port, who, it is said, will not sell on this market, but will ship it to London, through some European firms at Shanghai. The competition is too small to do any permanent injury to firms here, and I do not think that the Chinese can do firing cheaper than foreigners. The new business the natives are going into is likely to do more good to foreigners than to themselves, as it may cause them to fire considerable quantities up country, and bring it down in a fit state for immediate shipment similar to the Chinese. It is thought that the anxiety shown last year, both by Europeans and Chinese who visited this port, for the sole purpose of buying tea, for which they paid very high rates indeed, has led the natives to imagine that they can do very much better by shipping to London, notwithstanding the extreme prices they obtained here. I think that the Japanese by shipping will get more extended ideas of commerce, although it may be dearly paid for, and that after a shipment or two they will learn that falls in value occur, a thing which they either would not or did not understand. Only small parcels of tea supposed to be musters have as yet reached this place.

Two unfortunate accidents have occurred here, both of which have proved fatal. The first on the 3rd instant, when a midshipman of the Ocean knocked down and injured a native, who has since died from concussion of the brain. Compensation of $450 has been given to the friends of the deceased man. The other case is the drowning, on the night of the 5th instant, of a corporal of marines belonging to the Adventure, who, it is supposed, owing to the darkness of the night, must have walked over the Sagamatz custom-house jetty, which at the time the accident took place was without either rail or wall. As no marks of violence could be traced, this was the only conclusion the jurors could come to to account for the man's death, as he bore a very good character. H.B.M. Consul has had the jetty railed in to prevent a repetition on future occasions.

The demolition of buildings in order to clear lots, with a view to throwing them up, still continues, I am sorry to say; two of the rear lots, Nos. 13 and 22, are undergoing this process at the present time.

It is said that the workmen in the Takasima mines are now close upon a new ten-foot seam of coals. Some of the old one-story godowns from Lot 13 have been purchased, I hear, in order to convert them into coal sheds, in anticipation of more extended supplies being raised.

The Albys Isle sailed for London on the 6th instant.

Exchange on London, 4s. 5½d. (nominal); Nebus, 398 to 400.

CHINA.

—0— SHANGHAI.

Dates from this port extend to the 17th June; the outward mail of the 21st April arrived on June 5.

The following items are from the North China Herald:—

We have received a Customs Return showing the trade of Shanghai during the first quarter of 1871. The import of Grey Shirtings was double that in the corresponding quarter of 1870, but still less by 480,000 pieces than in 1868:—

1868.	1869.	1870.	1871.
1,248,418	2,072,808	816,765	1,590,264

The import of T-Cloths was about half that in the corresponding quarters of the two previous years:—

1868.	1869.	1870.	1871.
297,340	981,296	879,608	459,145

The import of English and Dutch drills was also about one-half that of the previous year, that of Americans exactly equal. Jeans, figure for 12,790 pieces, against 109,000; Chintzes 24,000, against 159,000. The import of Camlets and Lastings was only one-half, and that of Long Ells only a fourth of that in 1870; Lustres figure for 31,000, against 89,000 pieces; Spanish Stripes 5,800, against 23,800. Of Iron less than half, and of Lead not a quarter of the quantity was taken as in the previous year; of Tin not a tenth. The import of Coals was 10,000 tons more, of Opium 1,200 chests more, of Sugar about the same. One-half more Shirtings and double the quantity of T-Cloths were sent into the interior under transit pass.

It is notable that the import of raw Cotton into Hankow continued on the same enormous scale as during the preceding quarter; 184,000 piculs were imported, against 21,000 in 1870; yet the Commissioner says only 30,000 piculs remained in stock on March 23, all the rest having gone into the interior.

The News Letter says that, "in anticipation of the early ratification of a treaty with China, now in course of negotiation, the Japanese have made arrangements for a Consulate at Shanghai. C. Shinagawa, Esq., has hired a house in Hongkew for the Japanese Consulate.

A letter has been drawn up for submission to the Foreign Consuls, respecting the last weakness discovered in the interpretation of the Land Regulations. Rule IX., speaking of the Ratepayers' Meetings, says, "it shall be competent to such meeting, duly assembled, or a majority thereof, including proxies for absent owners of land, to impose and levy rates." At the meetings which have taken place since the new regulations came in force, proxies for any ratepayer absent from the meeting have been allowed. The present letter argues that this was not the intention of the clause, and we think the signatories are clearly right. Only absent owners of land—landowners that is who are absent from Shanghai, and therefore unable to attend the meeting—are entitled to be represented by attorneys. Ratepayers or land owners who are in Shanghai can go to the meeting themselves. The indiscriminate acceptance of the proxy system tends to throw all power into the hands of a few, who may collect proxies with a special object.

We have been favoured by the manager of the Great Northern Telegraph Company with a copy of the tables drawn up by M. Viguier for transmitting Chinese despatches by telegraph. The Chinese style of writing cannot be transmitted by the ordinary telegraph apparatus, but to give the Chinese an opportunity of sending messages, M. Viguier proposed a system so as to transmit their messages without translating them into any European language. Of the 44,000 characters composing the Chinese alphabet, only 7,000 are of more common use, and by them every Chinese will be able to express himself quite intelligibly. As every Chinaman knows, at first sight, to which radical a character is to be referred, the 7,000 characters are in the system arranged in columns under their respective radicals, and every character is besides furnished with a number from 0001 to 7,000. By using the book which the Company has got printed for that purpose a Chinese is now able in a very short time to find the characters he wants to be transmitted, and to write down the corresponding numbers; and by use of certain signs, separating the address, the contents of the message, the signature, &c., from each other, his message is now able to be transmitted as well as any other one. The receiving station is furnished with a board containing 7,000 stamps numerated from 0001 to 7,000, and with the corresponding Chinese characters engraved on the other end. When now a Chinese message has been sent through the line the types bearing the numbers transmitted are taken out, the character printed down in a square ruled form, and the message is then ready.

The Chehsien has issued a proclamation ordering the registry of native banks. The foreign Consuls have refused to post it in the settlement. It simply means squeezing.

A meeting of shareholders in the Hongque Wharf Company was held on the 5th June, when the deed of settlement for the company was agreed to.

The steamer Nanxing, in passing Shaweishan, noticed the signal "Disease and Death" flying on the island. Immediately on learning the report, the Chief Coast Lights Engineer, accompanied by Dr. Barton, started for the spot in the Kwaching. They report that the workmen employed in building the lighthouse had poisoned themselves with shell-fish which they gathered round the island. Two had died, and several others were ill.

An important despatch has reached us by the mail from England, from M. Jules Favre to Chung How. Chung How desires to see M. Thiers, to present his letters of credence. The French Minister replied—not until your Emperor consents to see the representative of France. In the meantime we hear M. Flury, an Under Secretary in the Foreign Department, has been appointed, in accordance with the despatch, to conduct negotiations with the Chinese Envoy.

From Nanking we have at last reliable news regarding Chen-kwo-Jui. He was seized and bound by a mandarin named Li-chan-sou while a guest under the latter's roof, but was rescued by his followers, who sacked Li's house and carried off his wives. The cause of the quarrel was a demand by Li for the return of some money he had entrusted to Chen when they were both rebels, but which Chen was disinclined to repay. A violent altercation ensued, in the course of which Chen made reflections on Li's moral antecedents, which so exasperated him that he ordered his guards to seize him. They did so, but Chen was rescued by his followers. Whether higher influence instigated the quarrel, and the design has been frustrated by Chen's escape, remains to be seen. Both mandarins are now at Nanking, complaining against each other. Tseng-kwo-Fan is reported to have recommended that both be degraded.

The French iron-clad corvette Alma left Chefoo for Taku on June 12, with the French Admiral and Count de Rochechouart on board. The Admiral and the Charge d'Affaires will proceed to Peking. The French corvette Cosmao arrived at Chefoo on the 11th, from Japan.

A Tientsin correspondent of the News-Letter writes:—In port we have one French gunboat, the Couleuvre, one British gunboat, the Leven, and one Russian gunboat, the Gornostay. A Chinese gunboat arrived here two days back, having on board Ying-Kwei, the Governor-General of the provinces of Fuh-kien and Chekiang. His brother, Ying-poo, a Keang-soo Taoutai, arrived here about the same hour in another Chinese gunboat from Shanghai. The former official is on his way to Peking to have audiences of the Emperor. The latter stays here to arrange the Japanese treaty.

The Prussian corvette Hertha left on the 10th June, having on board M. Annecke, who goes to replace M. von Rehfuës at Peking, during the absence of the latter on leave. He is succeeded by Mr. Wentzel as North German Consul at Shanghai. The Hertha, we believe, will pass the summer at Chefoo.

The Courier says:—At Hankow there was the greatest excitement as to which of the tea steamers should get away first, and bets were freely made, the favourite being the Erl King, which was understood as likely to be ready by nine or ten p.m. As it turned out, however, the Craigforth got first under way at one a.m. on Saturday, the 3rd June. As she ran past the Bund she was vociferously cheered by the residents, and when she passed the Erl King at her moorings there was a brilliant display of rockets and blue lights. And so the Craigforth got the start of the grand ocean race for 1871. At two p.m. she reached Kiukiang, where she remained, completing her cargo.

HONG KONG.

The advices from this port extend to the 23rd June; the French mail of May 12 arrived out June 22.

The following items are from the China Mail:—

The order prohibiting the shipment of coolies from Shanghai, which followed upon the Dolores Ugarte tragedy, we are given to understand, was withdrawn in consequence of the mischief apprehended from a popular outbreak. The business of the dealers in this detestable traffic being by that order at a stroke suppressed, and their livelihood lost to them, led them, so we hear, to demand some $30,000 to 40,000 from the Governor of the Holy City, as compensation for the injury inflicted on them, and to threaten him, in the event of its non-payment, with active resistance. Finding himself without the ability, and, we would trust, equally without the inclination, to comply with the demand, and acting under the best legal advice at his command, he concluded that it would be injudicious to attempt to enforce so strong and important an edict—one suppressing the principal business, almost the entire business of the colony—until he should have received the instructions of his Government.

The Pokfolum Reservoir is possibly the most gigantic single piece of work which has been performed in this colony, and as it has now been completed, one or two words may not be unacceptable to those who have enjoyed the honour and privilege of "paying the piper" for the past few years. It was a curious circumstance, we may remark in passing, that the drought should have so thoroughly dried the reservoir and tried the patience of ratepayers just as the last finishing touches were being given to the great basin. But the work was dried into proper consistency and the residents attained their English growl at one and the same time, because of the somewhat trying, and at one time serious absence of rain. It has been said, however, that "it never rains but it pours;" and certainly this remark may be said to apply fairly to Hong Kong. The rain, when it did come, poured for some considerable time, and the result was that the huge basin of the water-works was flooded by the mountain streams.

The following account, duly certified, of the amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong, during the month ending 31st May, 1871, is published for general information:—

Banks.	Average amount.	Specie in reserve.
Oriental Corporation...	$390,600	$130,000
Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China ...	326,625	150,000
Chartered of India, Australia, and China ...	180,050	100,000
Hong Kong and Shanghai ...	1,334,470	600,000
Total ...	$2,231,145	$980,000

We suppose that this diocese must bid a long farewell to its Bishop. A Yokohama paper mentions the fact of his arrival there from Shanghai, that he preached two sermons, and on the 22nd May took his departure from Europe via San Francisco and New York. Dr. Alford has been a great traveller since his appointment to the Bishopric of Hong Kong. On his first return home he went through India; on his second he goes through America. Some irreverent individual may be tempted to ask what is the moral, social, theological or ecclesiastical value of a Bishop to Hong Kong.

We understand that the ordinance to amend an ordinance for the Remission of Penalties, laid before the Legislative Council on the 5th inst., is to be withdrawn before the second reading, and the action by Kwok Asing against the Attorney-General, for certain penalties under the Habeas Corpus Act, is to be allowed to take its course and come to trial on its merits. That being so we can say nothing about the case itself in any way; but we may express our opinion that the ordinance has been wisely withdrawn, for it would not have been allowed to pass unnoticed, and that, possibly, its framers and supporters would have found themselves in deeper waters and warmer than they tumbled into over certain ex officio informations not so very long ago.

The following are from the Daily Press :—

It is reported that the prospectus will shortly be issued in Hong Kong of a wharf and godown company. The demand for such accommodation has greatly increased in consequence of the opening of the Suez Canal, and there is probably room for a business of the kind, if properly conducted, to prove a paying concern.

Telegraphic communication between Hong Kong and Shanghai was suspended on the day of the departure of last mail from Hong Kong, owing to a break in the cable, which it turned out had been completely cut, about twenty miles from Hong Kong. The damage was repaired on the 19th, and the wire was open to the public again on the 20th. The company experienced considerable difficulty in effecting the repairs, being disappointed in being able to engage the services of one of the telegraph ships in port, and being afterwards detained by adverse weather. They are, however, completing arrangements by which they will be in future fully provided with reserve vessels for such purposes. It is under contemplation to lay branch lines to Foochow and Chefoo.

The meeting of the Legislative Council, which was to have taken place on the 16th, has been postponed till further notice. The Government, it is stated, have withdrawn the proposed ordinance to enact that no action should be brought for the recovery of statutory penalties to which the consent of the Governor in Council had not previously been obtained. This measure was very severely commented upon, as a direct invasion of the rights of individuals, and as placing the Courts under the order of the Executive.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates are down to the 1st July. On the 22nd June the English mail of the 19th May arrived.

The following Summary is from the Straits Times :—

There has been little business transacted in the Legislative Council during the fortnight. The hearing of counsel and witnesses on behalf of the two rival New Harbour Railway schemes has been concluded, but no decision has been given by the Council in the matter.

The removal of Mr. Owen from the Acting Judgeship to which he was appointed in the absence of Sir William Hackett, so that the business of the Supreme Court might not be stopped, has caused great excitement in the colony. The Bar have held a meeting, and passed a series of resolutions pointing out the grave inconveniences of the situation. The unofficial members of Council, Messrs. Greenshields and Adamson, have given notice of their intention to inquire into the matter in a few days. Generally there is a strong feeling of indignation at the attempt of the Executive to exercise direct control over the business of the Court and the action of the Judge, to the gross disregard of the public interest.

The improvement of the police force is engaging the serious attention of the Government, and under the able direction of Captain Speedy, who has been appointed acting commissioner, good results are expected. Active measures have already been taken to arrest a number of Chinese passengers who are believed to have carried out a concerted plan and mutinied, and taken a junk sailing from Penang to Larote with $3,000 in specie. The suspected persons have not yet been apprehended.

The good folks of Penang seem to have taken warmly to the gold-mining movement, which has been set on foot within the last month or two. The prospectus of the Chindrass Mining Company, Limited, with a capital of $25,000, has been issued. It is proposed to commence operations immediately on the quartz reef lately opened up by Mr. Fisher and his party, and the requisite machinery has arrived by the steamship Dund.

Mr. Barnard, a legal practitioner from Yokohama, has arrived in Singapore with the intention of entering into practice.

An ingenious method of punishing sleepy policemen has been discussed by the Acting Commissioner. Constables who are "caught napping" are now compelled to carry a 56 lb. weight to and fro, in the heat of the day. The new system seems somewhat strangely opposed to our insular ideas.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—A slight improvement had taken place in the market for Cotton Yarn and Grey Shirtings, but although there was some demand for these, prices were lower than at date of last advices from this port. For all other Cotton Goods, and likewise for Woollens, Metals, and Coals there was absolutely no inquiry, and prices were nominal. The current rates for Grey Shirtings were, 7 lbs., $2 to 2.05; 8 lbs., $2.37½ to 2.40; 9 lbs., $2.75; and for Cotton Yarn, 16-24, $30.50 to 37; 28-32, $30.50 to 40; 38-42, $38.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—A considerable portion of the business of the month had been done by Chinese, who had in some instances made sales of Cotton goods at even lower rates than those quoted. Stocks had been but very slightly increased by fresh arrivals. Cotton Yarns: Nos. 28-32 had slightly advanced, and were fairly saleable, but other counts remained entirely neglected. Grey Shirtings: Sales of 8½ lbs. goods by Chinese had been made during the month as low as Rios 2.37½, but the price had since advanced to Rios 2.50 ($2.47) at which, however, there was but a trifling demand. Black Velvets: Somewhat more attention had been directed to these goods, and the price was slightly firmer. Victoria Lawns were lower and more difficult of sale. Drills were likewise neglected. Camlets were in no demand, with nominal quotation. Black Lastings in less inquiry. Mouselines de Laine: Plain weaker, but good patterns figured attracted more attention at higher rates. NAGASAKI.—Messrs. Gribble and Co. report as follows :—Since date of our last prices for imports have not improved as regards staple manufactures. China produce shows a further decline both in demand and value. Incassant rains have prevailed for the past month, which has materially interfered with business. The new coinage has not yet been issued from the Osaka Mint, and we regret to hear that changes are there contemplated which may delay, if not postpone indefinitely, the long-expected issue. Grey Shirtings 8½ lbs. $2.37 per piece; Dyed Shirtings, Indigo, $3.13, Gentian, $3 per piece. Victoria Lawns, 12 yards 42 in. $1.13 per piece. Quicksilver: No transactions have taken place, quotation of Tls. 70 nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Grey Shirtings: Very little had been done, the natives seeming unwilling to operate. Price declined to Tls. 1.72/76 per piece for 8½ lbs. ordinary chops. Dewhursts Eagles also lower, but decline not quite so heavy; 7 lbs. quoted Tls. 1.50 to 1.57 per piece, with little inquiry. White Shirtings: Decline of 4 can. to 5 can. had led to a considerable business in the best 64 Reeds. In other counts little business. FOOCHOW.—No business reported.

HONG KONG.—Owing to advices of an advance in the Manchester market, Cotton Yarn and Manufactures had exhibited considerable activity, and prices showed some recovery from the low range lately current. Native dealers had operated freely with a rising market, while on the other hand importers, anxious to reduce their heavy stocks, had been ready sellers. In Woollens also a greater firmness was apparent, and holders in the face of an advance in Yorkshire were standing out for higher rates. The market generally closed quiet, dealers being fully supplied for the moment. Prices firm. Metals: Iron Nail Rod, prices slightly higher, and market firmer. Bar: Quiet. Hoop: In small supply; rates unchanged. Wire: Lower. Lead: In limited demand and quotations lower. Coals: Large arrivals of Welsh and Sydney, with only a limited demand, and dealers consequently oversupplied. Cardiff nominal, holders firm and prefer storing rather than accept offers below $12. MANILA.—The market for White Shirts had shown more activity, but the demand for other plain staples continued quiet. For coloured goods the market showed no improvement, and rates continued most unsatisfactory.

SINGAPORE.—There had not been much change during the fortnight; business had been limited, the market being very dull. Grey Shirts: Early in the fortnight small sales transpired at $2.40 to 2.47½ per piece, but, demand falling off, prices declined to $2.42½ per piece; business limited, demand very quiet; 7 lbs. inactive, few sales; quotations for 6 lbs. nominal. Grey Maddapollams in moderate inquiry. T-Cloths, 6 lbs. and 7 lbs., in good demand at higher rates, and a fair amount of business done; 5 lbs. firmer, moderate inquiry. Grey Yarn: Lower numbers unchanged; market quiet. No. 40's firmer, moderate inquiry. Dyed and Printed Goods are without alteration. Metals had received little attention; quotations unchanged. Coal market depressed; little demand, and rates nominal.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—During the fortnight considerable quantities of new leaf had come forward, and had been eagerly bought up on arrival at high prices; settlements, consisting principally of good medium kinds, amounted to about 4,000 piculs, making total settlements since last American mail 5,000 piculs; the greater portion of this, with a large quantity from Hiogo, went forward by the present mail to San Francisco. Most of the settlements had been made at from $41 to 44 per picul, but the demand not having been so brisk during the closing few days, a weaker tendency may be noted, and prices at the close were as quoted below. The quality is said to be not so good as that of last season, there having been great carelessness in the making up of the leaf, arising no doubt from anxiety to get early into the market. The unsold stock was estimated at about 2,500 piculs. Quotations:—Medium, $35 to 37 per picul; good medium, $38 to 41; fine, $42 to 45 per picul; finest, $46 and upwards.

NAGASAKI.—A few small musters of the new leaf had been shown, but arrivals in bulk would not take place for twenty or twenty-five days. The country cost was lower than last season. The Albyn's Isles to London on the 6th June took shipments consisting of Uncoloured, 311,153 lbs., and Green Tea, 21,200 lbs.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—New leaf: A large business had been done for this mail, and settlements are estimated at 2,000 piculs. Prices were about on a par with those ruling at the opening of the market last year. The quality of the leaf was good, but many musters showed signs of a hurried and careless preparation. Arrivals about 2,200 piculs. All suitable parcels were eagerly taken up. Old Leaf: A few parcels, mixed with new, had found buyers. Quotations:—Common, none; good common, none; medium, Rios 36 to 39 per picul; good medium, Rios 40 to 45; fine, Rios 46 to 50; finest, choice, and choicest, Rios 51 and upwards.

KIUKIANG.—Black Tea: Owing to a reported decline in Hankow prices, shipments there had almost ceased. The No. 2 chops Ningchow had arrived, but were not equal to their usual quality; some chops had been settled at Tls. 24 to 36. The last sale of No. 1 chop Ningchow was Tls. 37, but there were no more to come forward. Quotations were: Ningchows, Tls. 24 to 27; Hohows, Tls. 21 to 22, but no sales had been made. Green Teas: Nothing to report.

HANKOW.—Oanfas and Oopacks: Business had been active during the fortnight, and though at one time prices, more especially for the medium Teas, weakened fully 1 to 2 taels, this decline had since been recovered; Oanfas still continued the favourites, and at Tls. 24 to 26 were readily taken up. The quality of the Chong-sou-kai Teas was disappointing, and though the leaf from the Suunyong district was fairly made, the Oopack crop was scarcely considered equal to last season; the second and third packs were about the only Teas on offer, current rates for them being Tls. 20½ to 24 per picul. Flavoury Teas of the Oonam class command Tls. 20 to 22, and common Seangtams had been bought to some extent at Tls. 13½ to 14½ per picul. Ningchows: Transactions were resumed at Tls. 27 to 34 per picul, showing a marked decline on former purchases; better value was again obtained later on, but in common with Teas generally prices had hardened. The Teas were being sent direct to Shanghai for sale. The prices paid were as follows:—Oanfas: Finest, 1s. 9½d. to 2s. 0½d. per lb.; medium to fine, 1s. 7½d. to 1s. 9½d.; common to good Oonam, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 6½d. Oopacks: Finest, 1s. 9d. to 2s. per lb.; medium to fine, 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 8½d.

SHANGHAI.—Black: The market for the new produce was opened on June 6 by the purchase of two chops, one being a parcel of Oopack at Tls. 28, and the other a Hohow tea at Tls. 24. A steady business had continued since at pretty regular prices, which, however, appear on the average to be higher than the reduced rates ruling at Hankow according to late advices. The shipments to date show an excess over those of last year, but the arrivals of Tea from the country had been somewhat smaller than they were at the corresponding period of last season. Settlements for the fortnight, 14,200 chests; re-shipments on owners' account, 11,400 chests; stock, 113 chops, or 39,400 packages. Quotations (duty paid, at 6s. 0½d., at £3):—Hohow, fair to fine, 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 7½d.; Oonam, common, 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0½d.; Oanfa, good, 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 7d.; Ningchow, good to fine, 1s. 7½d. to 1s. 11d.; Oopack, fair to fine, 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 9½d. Green: Musters of four chops, new Pingsueys had been shown, and three chops were reported as settled at Tls. 46 and 52 for fine lines in boxes, and Tls. 40 for whole chops. The quality, judging from the few to hand, appeared to be about equal to last season. Settlements for the fortnight, 1,650 half-chests; stock, 1 chop, or 336 packages.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton, and Co., report as follows:—This market was unexpectedly opened on the 14th June, by the settlement of about 1,000 half-chests of Yang How Congou, at prices averaging Tls. 22 ship off, all round. Most of the finest Teas had just arrived, and buying became general, resulting in the largest daily purchases ever known at the port. The opening prices for fine to finest chops were below last year's, but through keen competition the last purchases are at about same figure; but these Teas are fully 20 per cent. better than they were in the past season. Suey Kuts, worse than last year's, are 3 to 4 Taels dearer. Yung Hows, although averaging 2 to 3 Taels more, are better Teas to an equal extent. A few common Teas have sold at extreme rates, probably for Colonial orders. Only one chop of fine Souchow has been bought, showing worse value than last year. In Oolong business has been most irregular, and prices proportionately so; in some instances, as much as 7 to 8 Taels discrepancy being apparent. All good to fine Teas have been eagerly secured for England. American buyers have settled about 10,000 half-chests of fair cargo Teas at Tls. 21 to 28 ship off. The Teas are more dusty than last year. A few of the finest Pekoes have been bought on a par with last year. Scented Teas are Tls. 2 to 3 higher, and are very deficient in scent, owing to the unfavourable weather for the scenting flower; future supplies promise to be better. Even with the prospect of a short first crop, it is impossible for present prices to be maintained in the face of large simultaneous shipments from the North and Canton, with four steamers from this. Quotations are:—Congou: fine to finest, 1s. 11½d. to 2s. 3½d.; medium to good medium, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d.; common to flavoury, 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 7½d.; dust to ordinary, 10d. to 1s. 1d. Souchow: medium to fine, 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 11½d. Oolong: common to fair, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d.; good to superior, 1s. 7d. to 1s. 8½d.; fine, 1s. 11½d. Pekoe: fine, 2s. 2½d. to 2s. 5d.; finest, 1s. 11½d. to 3s. 5½d. Scented Teas: fine, 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 8½d.; finest to choice, 1s. 9d. to 2s. 1d. Freight: for steamer via Suez Canal, £5 per 40 cubic feet for 55 days or under, and £4 10s. for over 55 days; the rate for Clippers is £3 for 50 feet.

AMOI.—Musters of about 100 chops of Oolong had been shown, some of which were not free from Dust or Broken Leaf, but on the whole there was little difference, either in leaf or liquor, between this and last year's crop. Only a few Congous had arrived, and the report that supplies of this description will be short appears likely to be realised.

CANTON.—Scented Capers had been purchased very freely, and settlements amounted to 63,000 boxes. Prices had been rather irregular, but on the whole common and medium kinds may be reported as maintaining last quotations, while the finer kinds had ruled rather easier. Moderate purchases had been made of Scented Orange Pekoe at prices which, though somewhat reduced from the opening rates, were still very full, especially for the "new make" descriptions. In Green Teas there had been little doing, a few small parcels of Gunpowder taken for the Continent being all the business to report. Settlements had been Scented Orange Pekoe, 15,000 boxes at Tls. 15.50 to 33. Scented Capers, 63,000 boxes at Tls. 16 to 33. Gunpowder, 1,500 boxes at Tls. 22 to 27.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Operations had been confined to a very limited number, and the business done since the 3rd June resulted in the settlement of about 250 bales, chiefly for shipment on native account. Prices for Hanks continued on the most irregular scale, while Oahus and Sodais were a little lower. Favourable reports continue to be received with regard to the prospects of the new crop, and large musters were expected early in July. Settlements, total 250 bales; Stocks, 1,300 bales.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—About 60 bales had been settled during the month, terms for the greater portion of which had not transpired; the remainder consisted of silks upon which it was impossible to base quotations. Dealers had shown no anxiety to sell, and had, failing to obtain their price, withdrawn the few parcels of desirable silks which had been put on the market. The weather, generally speaking, had been favourable for the new crop.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—The French mail left this on June 10, taking 79 bales for France and 8 bales for London, and the American mail on June 13 with 68 bales for New York. Immediately after the departure of the last English mail buying began, and before the French mail left some 1,200 bales were settled; amongst them were some Old Standard Chop Silks at Tls. 540, which, on inspection, were found to be so very inferior for chop, they were rejected; buying since then has been pretty general, but at very irregular prices, and, as the mail closes, dealers are willing to make a concession of Tls. 10 to 15 per picul. The quality of all the Silk this season is much inferior to last. The following are a few of the purchases:—Check chop 3rd, 27s. 9d.; Koo Fong Sings, No. 3, 27s. 6d.; Dragon Chop, No. 3, 27s. 3d.; Changling, No. 3, 27s. 6d.; Donkey, No. 3, 27s.; Cock and Worm, No. 3, 27s.; Red Peacock, 23s. 5d. to 23s. 8d.; Gold Lion, No. 1 and 2, 25s. 3d. to 24s. 2d.; Chin Jan, 23s. 11d. to 24s. 5d.; Dancing Bear, No. 2 and 3, 23s. 11d. to 22s. 11d.; medium and common Tsatlee, 21s. 2d. to 22s. 8d.; Ching Yuen Sing, No. 2 Kahing, 23s. 10d.

CANTON.—There was but little of the first crop remaining on the market, the native manufacturers having taken it freely. The second crop was arriving, and the total yield was expected to be large, but the quality was extremely poor. This inferiority had checked business, buyers being unwilling to operate even at reduced rates which were being asked for second crop silk. The limited quantities of fine kinds of the first crop on the market commanded high prices.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—During the fortnight the Produce market had been very quiet, with but little change in the quotations of the chief staples. Gambier offering freely at $2.85, market weak, a large quantity coming forward; about 1,650 tons contracted for at $2.85 per picul. Black

566. — value, no supplies, quotations nominal. White Pepper advancing, and only obtainable in small lots. Pearl Sago in less request and weaker, business limited. Sago flour in good demand and firm, supplies of Borneo taken up at $2.57½ to 2.58½ per picul; a considerable business done. Tapioca bought to some extent at previous quotations, market cleared. Tin had an upward tendency, moderate business; market firm.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

LOSS OF HER MAJESTY'S SHIP "MEGERA."

Intelligence has been received at the Admiralty, by telegraph from Batavia, that Her Majesty's ship Megara has run ashore, in a sinking state, at St. Paul's Island. Crew and passengers all saved. The Megara was a troop ship, which about three months ago left Cork overcrowded with troops, and respecting the unseaworthiness of the vessel the gravest apprehensions were expressed.

Since the receipt of the first news of the disaster the Admiralty have received the following telegram, in reply to one sent to Batavia, asking the cause of the disaster, and whether provisions were landed from the Megara at St. Paul's. In addition to her own provisions, the vessel carried a considerable quantity of naval provisions destined for Sydney:—"From Fraser, Consul, Batavia, August 5. Leak reported about June 8. Kept under for several days by hand pumps. Leak increased; steam then used; water kept under. Insufficient coal to reach Australia; steered for St. Paul's. June 17 anchored. Survey held; diver employed; reported unsafe to proceed; hole through bottom; landed provisions; weather stormy; lost three anchors. June 19 the ship was run on the bar full speed and filled. Lieutenant Jones left July 16, all well; men under canvas; 80 tons cargo saved. Steam-ship Rinaldo left Singapore yesterday for St. Paul's, via Batavia."

The following telegram has been received from Hong Kong, dated August 5:—"The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Malacca, 1,680 tons, embarks provisions here. Should reach St. Paul's about the 29th. Can bring old (1 whole) crew home. The Rinaldo leaves Singapore immediately for Batavia with provisions; will communicate with Lieutenant Jones, of the Megara, and proceed to St. Paul's if urgently required.—THE COMMODORE."

Mr. E. J. Reed, the ex-Chief Constructor of the Navy, has written to The Times, stating that he examined the Megara in Woolwich Dockyard several years ago, and reported her fit only for a very brief period of further service, in consequence of the extreme thinness to which her plates had become worn by many years of almost continued use at sea. That period has long been exceeded. He has, he adds, been precluded for a whole year from making known to the professional advisers of the Admiralty the nature and grounds of his apprehensions touching certain vessels, but the time is coming when the safety of the navy will claim at least equal consideration with the economy of the navy. "It is amazing to me," he adds, "that men of intelligence, to say nothing of men who assume to manage the affairs of a nation, should fail to see that in thrusting the great navy of England into the hands of one man after another who knows nothing whatever about it Parliament is both inviting and insuring a long course of disaster."

In a second letter to the same journal Mr. Reed reiterates his statement that he made an inspection of her and pronounced her seaworthy for only a given time, but his most serious charge against the Admiralty is that they absolutely refused to allow him to communicate with his successors. It is this action on the part of the Government which occasions his apprehensions, and compels him to pronounce their policy inconsistent with the safety of the navy. He objects to men embarking on board the Glutton under present circumstances, for she was not designed as a sea-going ship, and he will repeat the same as regards the Thunder and Devastation, when they arrive at completion.

LAUNCH OF THE "GORDON CASTLE."—A beautifully modelled screw steamship was launched at Glasgow on the 7th inst. from the shipyard of Messrs. James and George Thomson, at Govan. The Gordon Castle—as the new vessel is named—is of 2,000 tons, 250-horse power, and intended to be the pioneer of a line of first-class steamships to China via Suez Canal, sailing from London, under the management of Messrs. Thomas Skinner and Co., being a continuation of their well-known line of "Castle" ships. The Gordon Castle will be fitted with every improvement that experience may suggest for the comfort of passengers and the efficient working of the ship, including the most improved arrangements for ventilation to holds and cabins.

DEATH OF ROBERT HENDERSON.—We announce with deep regret the death of Mr. Robert Henderson, the senior partner of the firm of Messrs. R. and J. Henderson, of Mincing-lane. The deceased gentleman was not only distinguished throughout his life for the great ability which he manifested in commercial affairs, but also for the high principle on which his operations were invariably carried out, and which secured to him the esteem of all with whom he had business relations. In his private life Mr. Henderson was unostentatious and simple. And his loss will be deeply felt by numerous personal friends, who were warmly attached to him. His death occurred suddenly at his seat, near Horsham, in Sussex.

POWER AND JUSTICE IN THE FAR EAST.

It is impossible to read without concern, so deep as to amount to anxiety, the reports which we continually receive of the arbitrary interference of the Executive with the Judicial departments of the administration of many of our dependencies in the Far East. No less than three instances in which British Governors have recently interposed their authority to check or alter the course of justice in British Courts are before us now. In Hong Kong, in Singapore, and in Calcutta, the Executive has deliberately refused to allow the law to take its course, set at nought the first principles of the Great Charter, and either prohibited or prevented trials involving the most cherished rights of British subjects from being taken in their proper order, or conducted by impartial judges. In Hong Kong Mr. Chief Justice SMALE's ruling, in the case of the coolie, KWOK-A-SING, whose rendition was demanded by the Chinese Government, has been superseded by an act, which approaches more nearly to a coup d'état than anything which we could have conceived possible under English rule. KWOK-A-SING, having been confessedly entrapped on board a Macao coolie ship, rose with his brother captives, and regained his liberty, in common with the rest of the human cargo of the slaver, by a struggle in which the commander and some of the crew of kidnappers were killed. When KWOK-A-SING was recognised, in the peaceful pursuit of the calling from which he had been snatched, in Hong Kong, the Chinese Government demanded his rendition to answer a charge of mutiny and murder on the high seas. Mr. Chief Justice SMALE, when the man was brought before him, ruled that he had committed no offence under which he could be given up, because every man who is unjustly deprived of his liberty has a right to employ the best means in his power to regain it—a truth which, we feel sure, none of our readers will deny. For reasons which he will no doubt be called upon to explain, this decision of the Chief Justice's appears to have been so unpalatable to the GOVERNOR that he ordered the coolie into custody again, and desired the Judge to reconsider his decision. No doubt Mr. SMALE did so reconsider it, for he arrived at the same conclusion that any other upright judge or independent observer would have done, and he confirmed his former judgment. Again and again was this unseemly contest renewed, until the GOVERNOR, finding the judge inflexible, determined to gain his point by a coup de main. Accordingly, the COLONIAL SECRETARY was instructed to move, at the last sitting of Council reported by the last mail, that a Bill might be read to "remove doubts" as to the rendition of criminals—an euphuistic phrase for reversing the law—and, although the proposed Bill was opposed by the CHIEF JUSTICE and other independent members, this Bill was actually passed through a second reading in abrogation of standing orders. "In a word," as our correspondent "TAU" forcibly puts it, "the GOVERNOR and his party disregarded the ruling of the Judge, and will, no doubt, follow up their action by giving the Chinese Government all they want." The Government and the CHIEF JUSTICE are therefore now at direct issue in Hong Kong, and—apart from considerations of right and wrong—the consequence of such an unseemly division cannot but be most pernicious in the present condition of our relations with the Chinese.

In Singapore—case No. 2—the dispute is fraught with different difficulties, the chief burden of which will press on the European community. We learn from our esteemed contemporary, the Straits Times, that Mr. OWEN, the gentleman whose appointment to fill the judgeship vacant till the arrival of Sir WILLIAM HACKETT was so universally popular, has been summarily superseded because he refused to postpone a certain trial in which the Government were interested. Of course, if any good reason existed why the trial should be postponed, the proper course would have been for the Government to have made the usual application in open Court. Instead of this, an "intimation" was conveyed to the judge, which that gentleman, very much to his honour, declined to attend to. Mr. OWEN felt—and every judge in the Empire will concur with him—that he could not conscientiously allow himself to be guided by any private communication—let it come from whatever quarter it might. This plain and reasonable explanation was, according to our contemporary, met with an authoritative "intimation" that the "wishes of the Executive must be obeyed;" and that, if they were not, Mr. OWEN would be immediately removed from the Bench—a threat which, monstrous as it may appear, was actually carried out. The Singapore Gazette appeared with a notice that Mr. OWEN's appointment was rescinded, and the consequence is that the Governor has gained his point by an arbitrary exercise of powers entrusted to him for a very different purpose. Because the Judge would not truckle to back-stair influence, the public are deprived of a high-minded and useful servant, and left adrift in the sea of pending litigation with the firm conviction that the gentleman who may be next selected to occupy the vacant Bench will owe his appointment rather to his complaisance than his conscience—to his readiness to do "anything to oblige" rather than his legal attainments or self-respect.

Both Mr. SMALE and Mr. OWEN, whatever may have been the penalties incurred by them through their conscientious interpretation of the laws which they were appointed to administer, may however be assured that their independent action has secured for them not only their own self-respect, but the respect of the great public at home. We wish we could say so much of the conduct of the judges in the recent Wahabee trials in Bengal—a case to which we should not refer here but that we fear the example set by the Governor General of India has only been too scrupulously—or unscrupulously—followed by the Executive in Hong Kong and Singapore. We will not dwell on the monstrous incidents of the Wahabee trial, which will, we believe, shortly engage the attention of Parliament; but we may mention that the Indian judges, in obedience, as it is believed, to the "intimations" of Earl MAYO not only refused to take the case in its due order at Calcutta—the only place where an independent jury of Englishmen could be collected—but also, when they had succeeded in removing the venue to Patna, conducted the proceedings in Urdu—a language unknown to the accused and their counsel—and absolutely refused to supply an interpreter.

It would be impertinent to detain our readers with any lengthened comment on instances of Injustice—deliberately committed under the stalking-horse of Justice—such as these three to which we have adverted. The independence of our judges is as dear to us all as the "palladium of liberty"—trial by jury. To endeavour to bend, soothe, bribe, or coerce a judge, has been, happily for England, a design too desperate to be attempted by any Government since the venal days of BACON or JEFFREYS. The new system attempted in Hong Kong, Singapore, and Bengal, can only recoil on the fatuous officials who would strive to stem the tide of public feeling with a weapon as insufficient as that which Mrs. PARTINGTON employed against the ocean. The "gravis censor," who "vitas et crimina quærit," will always be the object of the sympathy of the people, so long as he resists the influence of power unconstitutionally exercised—in fact, so long as he fulfils the duties accepted by him on oath at his appointment. The recompense may not be immediately apparent, but it will certainly be shown some day in the public appreciation of the conduct of such judges as Mr. SMALE and Mr. OWEN; and, in the meantime, their own hearts will console them for the slights they have been subjected to.

ARCHDEACON JERMYN, vicar of Barking, Essex, will succeed Bishop CLAUGHTON as Bishop of Colombo.

A STORM IN A TEACUP.

A VEXATIOUS little story comes to us from Shanghai. We should not allude to it, but that it has been commented upon in a London contemporary, and we mention it now chiefly for the sake of showing our friends in the Far East that they are objects of more attention and solicitude at home than they sometimes appear to think. Our contemporary deals with the subject in a genial spirit. He says there has been a "pretty little quarrel" between the French and German residents of Shanghai; and the former are so well pleased with the valorous part they played therein that they have sent home a copy of the correspondence in which they engaged. "Correspondence," by the way, is the only sort of "engagement" in which our neighbours distinguished themselves in the late war; but it is no valid reason why they should be affronted in their military reverses, when none but those who caused them could have believed in the utter demoralisation of the French army. It is no disparagement to the Germans—no tarnish on their shield of triumph—that they owed the unvarying ease of their victories not more to their own compact and perfect organisation than to the incompetence and profligacy of the French commanders. The courage of both nations, reckoning man for man, is as much respected now as it has ever been in the long series of alternate victories in the struggles which we had hoped, closed in the annals of the last war. It seems, however, that some of the German residents of Shanghai made a demonstration—partly, no doubt, excusable under the circumstances—when they received news of the terms on which peace had been concluded; and that this demonstration was made as wounding to their French neighbours as it was gratifying to themselves. We take the story merely as it has been told to us; but, if there be any foundation for it, we feel sure that all the educated Germans of the settlement (and what Germans are uneducated?) must deeply regret that gratuitous pain should have been inflicted on persons with whom they have been living on terms of complete harmony to the mutual advantage of both nationalities. We hope we shall hear no more of such unseemly squabbles as the one under notice. We regret that the French should have attached any importance to a little ebullition, which, though it showed a certain insouciance, was probably the impulse of a moment. Both parties must, we feel sure, be convinced that, whatever may be the glory Germany has acquired, and whatever prestige France has lost, in the late war, the general impression created in China by the fact that the Western Powers quarrel with one another must be most destructive to European progress in the Far East. Both Germans and French in China, whatever their natural feelings may be, must be assured by recent events that the causes and results of their conflicts are turned to the disadvantage of both by the hangers-on of the Chinese Government. Both Germans and French must, we imagine, be fully persuaded of the truth of the poet's saying—and we hope that angry feelings will now be allowed to subside, and that there will be no more wars between two nations which possess the opportunity of being of such inestimable assistance to each other in the civilisation of the Far East. Instead of squabbling about a few thousand acres of territory at home, let them unite in bringing into closer communion with Europe the countless millions of the Chinese population, who are hungering for such intercourse. And in this movement it will be only graceful for the victors to take the initiative. "Let bygones be bygones"—let Germany all over the world exult in the victory, which no one grudges her, but with the view, not of humiliating a fallen foe, but of raising her up to become a fellow-labourer in the inexhaustible vineyard of the Far East. VIRGIL might have been addressing the Germany of Shanghai in 1871 when he wrote—

"War is a game which, were their subjects wise, Kings would not play at."

"Hon tibi erunt artes, pacisque imponere morem, Parcere subjectis."

The Times publishes a letter from the Secretary of the Peruvian Legation, referring to the abuses which are committed in the engagement and transmission of Chinese emigrants to the ports of South America. The writer asserts that the Peruvian Government not only has never sanctioned the trading in Chinese in an illegal manner, but has adopted every measure in its power to establish in the most just and legal form the free emigration of Chinese, whose desire and interest lead them to go to Peru, where they obtain employment and reap innumerable advantages. He adds that the Peruvian Government is seriously occupied in the endeavour to do away with all occasion for the abuses and crimes complained of, forming at the same time the most strict regulations, in order to secure to the Chinese established in Peru the guarantees which the laws of that country offer them. All the slaves who existed in Peru prior to the year 1854 were liberated, and their proprietors paid their value in full. The Peruvian Government has, and will continue, if possible, with increased energy, to take every practicable measure to prevent all abuses and crimes connected with the engagement and transmission of Chinese.

NOTICE has been given by the POSTMASTER-GENERAL that according to information received by telegraph from Hong Kong, the steam vessel which has hitherto carried mails between that place and Manila has been withdrawn, and, in lieu of it, a service has been established between Singapore and Manila. Consequently, all correspondence for the Philippine Islands will in future be forwarded to Singapore instead of to Hong Kong.

WE understand that Vice-Admiral the Hon. GEORGE FOWLER HASTINGS, C.B., the newly-elected Commander-in-Chief for China, will leave England about November next.

MALOO MIXTURE AND THE GERMAN MERCHANTS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—In your issue of the 10th ult. your correspondent "Tau" writes from information received from a Shanghai correspondent that the trade in spurious tea was, as far as his correspondent could make out, "confined to two or three German houses." Then, alluding to some remarks of your own with reference to the cargo of the Sydenham, he hopes—and so do I—"that detection of the offenders will be followed up by the prosecution of both shippers and consignees;" and further, "that something should be done to repress a dangerous nuisance and a great scandal to British commerce." To this I say "so let it be." In the same number of your paper you quote an article from the Standard, in which it is shown that the authorities are powerless, not alone in the matter of the so-called tea, but in regard to the adulteration of many other articles of consumption.

With a view to find out how far your correspondent's assertions were supported by fact, I set about to find out the shippers and receivers; in short, I embraced the opportunity which an inspection of the manifest of the Sydenham has afforded me to obtain every information. The result of my inquiries was a discovery that the consignees are all English, and that amongst them are to be found the names of most respectable city houses; and would it surprise you to hear that such a mixture of so-called tea as "Tau's" Shanghai correspondent describes was not on board the Sydenham at all, although some low quality teas undoubtedly formed part of her cargo? Such assertions or insinuations, I think, as are made in "Tau's" letter should not be thrown out carelessly. I maintain that no German firms have shipped such teas, or, as your correspondent calls them, "preparations" by this ship. If the contrary be the case, then, having such facilities for ascertaining the facts as your correspondent possesses, let him denounce the firms by name, let him do this and he will have performed an act pro bono publico. But when he names two or three firms and asks them to denounce others he evidently implies that other houses not named by him, although standing commercially and socially as high as any of them, must be the culprits.

The next allusion in your correspondent's letter is to the case of a Mr. Oppert, who was sentenced to a year's imprisonment "by Prince Bismark's Government," for having, with some Americans, landed from a Prussian flagged steamer on Korea, and despoiled a royal tomb. Prince Bismark had nothing to do with the punishment of the person named—who, as a subject of Hamburg, was by the authorities of that place charged before the regular court,—with which Bismark had nothing to do. Your correspondent says that the Americans escaped punishment. The fact is Mr. Consul Seward in his correspondence to Mr. W. H. Seward, extending from 24th April to 7th December, 1868, speaks of only one American so concerned, and whom he would bring to trial in June of that year; but from that correspondence it is also evident that the chief instigator of the taking "from their tombs the remains of one or more sovereigns of that country (Korea), for the purpose, it would seem, of holding them for ransom," was a Bishop of the Romish Church, who of course does not appear afterwards, but who pretended to have been sent by the Korean Government.

To return to the original subject, "Maloo Mixture." Not being in the trade, of course, I do not understand much about it, but I find that quantities of "tea dust" are exported from China to England. From the latest returns of the trade at the Treaty ports in China, for the year 1870, I find that in that year the tea dust exported was to Great Britain 360,397 lbs., and to the United States of America 40,000 lbs. Without accusing anybody, it is evident that the greater part of this rubbish comes to England to be purchased by dealers, and mixed and sold as tea to consumers.

I do not think that the "heathen Chinese" is so much to blame "for collecting, mixing, scenting, doctoring and packing the article," as those who purchase the stuff, which, if not ordered, would not be manufactured. But it is not to Berlin we must look for a remedy of this evil.—I am not sure whether the tea trade considers it an evil—but nearer home. As a confirmation of this I point to the cargo manifests, which show conclusively who are the largest importers of this dust. This can be done by anyone with as little trouble as it has been to your obedient servant, London, Aug. 2, 1871. R.

Foreign Intelligence.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 2.

The optimism of our Conservative papers with reference to the principles of the newly-appointed Governor-General is increasing every day. Indeed, when Mr. Myer left the Hague to pass the rest of his political career in dolce far niente at Buitenzorg our Tories did not expect more support for their party than they anticipate now from Mr. Loudon. Mr. Myer started for Batavia because he was, as the Conservative Government declared, the right man in the right place to maintain Conservatism in our colonies, and it is now quite forgotten that Mr. Loudon has been appointed by a Liberal Government. Of course the opinion is that Mr. Loudon is a Conservative, or at least a man of half measures. But it is again forgotten that he has, as a colonial statesman, a history. Nine years ago Mr. Loudon was the bête noir of the Conservative party. In 1861 he was appointed Minister of the Colonial Department in a Liberal Cabinet. The Liberals expected much of his reorganisation plans, but Baron von Zuylen, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, who maintained the principles of his father-in-law, Mr. Rochussen, had the idea that the colonies ought to be ruled, not according to the views of the Minister of the Colonial Department, but according to his opinions. He accordingly addressed his famous dépêche-circulaire to our Ambassadors abroad, in which he developed his colonial programme. Of course these Ambassadors had nothing to do with this colonial policy, but the Baron had no other official persons to whom he could address himself. Mr. Loudon, however, rejected this programme and proved himself clearly to be a Liberal statesman. For this he was vehemently attacked by the principal Conservative paper, which was in return termed by the Minister in Parliament an organ for lies and slander. The dissension between the Ministers Loudon and Van Zuylen led to the fall of the Cabinet; and the first named was offered a seat in the Thorbecke-Beitz-Olivier ministry, which he refused because he did approve of fixing the India Budget by law. I think these few lines will be sufficient to prove that the Conservatives have no right to state that Mr. Loudon belongs to their party. On the other side, I should not like to affirm that Mr. Loudon is the man the Liberals are wanting; but there is no reason for believing that he will rule Java according to the views of our Conservatives.

In our commercial circles much anxiety is felt about the fate of the Hoek van Holland, which left Falmouth on the 15th of March with a cargo of coals. Since this vessel was lengthened much question was raised about her seaworthiness. So much is certain that the master and the crew, on arriving with the ship in England, refused to proceed any further.

There is hardly anything to report about affairs at the Bourse. The general weakness which prevails is obviously due to want of business. In the money market there is a moderate demand, and the rate of discount remains unaltered.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The result of the Trading Company's late Sugar sale has borne evidence of the dullness which has prevailed of late for this article, and by which the white sorts have in particular been materially affected. Rice also continues depressed, and can only be sold at reduced rates, but prices of the other articles are, upon the whole, pretty well supported, without there being much activity in the demand. The Trading Company's public sale of Rattans has gone off at high prices.

COFFEE exhibits a firm, but very quiet appearance. Hardly any business has been doing in Trading Company's Java from second hands, but the following shipments of private importation changed hands, viz.:—755 bags Java ex Fanny, 414 b. ex Annie Fleming, 723 b. ex Hedwig, 1,706 b. ex Annie Fleming, 527 b. ex Aristos, 400 b. ex Picard, 498 b. ex Senior. Total stock of Coffee, 757,000 bales, against 719,700 bales in 1870.

SUGAR.—The dull tone which of late has pervaded the market has in particular manifested itself at the late Trading Company's public sale by the slackness of the biddings and the irregular prices realised. The decline has affected to the greatest extent the white sorts, by which the proportion between the market value of the high and medium numbers has been materially altered. No business has yet been doing since the public sale. The market is quiet, but there is hardly anything on offer for sale.

TEA.—There is nothing of moment to report.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—The imports have been of some importance, but transactions are limited. They only include 505 bales Java, head-mark

TIN.—A firm tone continues to prevail for this article, and sales have been making of Banca usual prompt at f.80½, and for delivery, ex the next autumn sale at f.77½, f.77½, f.78½, and f.79. Billiton spot has sold at 79½ and afloat nearly due at f.79. Stock on warrants of Banca 51,842 slabs; new stock unsold Banca 70,784 slabs, Billiton 2,051 slabs.

RATTANS.—The quantity put up for sale by public auction by the Trading Company at Amsterdam, on the 27th ult., met ready buyers as follows, viz.: 16,351 bundles Borneo sold at f.11 to f.14.90; 14,546 b. Banjermassing at f.13.60 to f.15; 12,669 b. Padang at f.11.60 to f.14.80; 5,667 b. Katve at f.10.70; 43,153 b. mixed parcels at f.12 to f.14.90.

RICE remains very dull, and buyers can only be found at reduced rates. 4,628 bags Java, ex Noah I., changed hands here at f.7½, but the 4,438 bags, ex L. J. Enthoven, which were put up to tender last Tuesday have been adjudged. Sales have been closed at Amsterdam of 1,205 bags white Java, ex Alma Elisabeth at f.7½.

SPICES.—A good demand continues to prevail for the different articles under this head, but the reservedness of holders causes but little actual business to be done. Prices have further advanced for Nutmegs, which are now quoted—for No. 1, 178c. to 180c.; No. 2, 168c. to 170c. Mace unaltered. Cloves have been less inquired after; No. 2 are held for 29c., which checks the demand. Stock on warrants in the Trading Company's stores: Nutmegs, 2,122 casks; Mace, 56 casks; Cloves, 2,878 casks; Cinnamon, 29 packages; Pepper, 100 bags.

FOREIGN SHIPS IN THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

The Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade, have received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a translation of a note from the Spanish Minister at this Court, calling attention to the resort of foreign ships to non-qualified ports in the Philippine Archipelago, and requesting the publication of the following circular of the Spanish Government to its representatives abroad, dated 2nd of July, 1860, the provisions of which are still in force:—

“(Translation.) The abuses committed by some foreign vessels which, in violation of the Customs' regulations in force in the Philippine Islands, have taken to the island of Iolo a quantity of goods of unlawful commerce, munitions and stores of war, have attracted the attention of the Queen our Lady, and, in consequence thereof she has been pleased to direct that you be instructed to remind the Government where you are that as no other than the port of Manila, Sual, Ilo Ilo, and Zamboanga are open to external commerce the foreign flag will not be allowed to trade direct with Iolo and the adjacent places, which, according to the capitulations of April 30, 1851, form an integral part of the Philippine Archipelago. By Royal order I communicate this to you, so that you may make the foregoing regulation as public as possible for the information of the trading community of the country where you are.”

COURT OF ADMIRALTY.

THE WILLEM III.

This was a cause of salvage on behalf of the General Steam Navigation Company, the owners of the steamship Scorpio, and the owner, master, and crew of the steam-tug Cambria, in respect of services rendered to the screw steamship Willem III. On May 20 last, at midnight, the Scorpio fell in with the Willem III, on fire, off St. Katherine's in the Isle of Wight. On proceeding closer to the Willem III, it was discovered that the vessel had been abandoned. The Scorpio then proceeded to look for the boats of the Willem III, and ultimately found four containing the crew and a great number of passengers, many of whom were ladies. About five o'clock in the morning the Cambria reached the Willem III, and it was agreed that she should tow the vessel to Spithead, and at about 3 p.m. she succeeded in grounding the vessel, which was still burning, on Hamilton bank. The Court awarded £1,000 to the Scorpio, £2,500 to the Cambria, £20 to the pilot who was on board the Cambria, and £600 to the pilot cutter Mary for her services in rescuing certain of the crew and passengers, with costs.

Monetary and Commercial.

The tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received on the 2nd inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £340,000; and to Bombay, £60,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. on all the Presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 26 per cent; above in full. Tenders on Bombay at 1s. 10½d. will receive in full. No alteration of importance is shown, compared with the last occasion.

The share lists of the Anglo-Indian Tea Company closed on the 7th inst. for London, and this day for country applications.

A meeting of the proprietors of the London and County Bank was held yesterday. The net profits for the half-year amounted to £90,100, making a total of £94,449, including £4,349 brought forward. A dividend of 6 and a bonus of 3 per cent. were declared for the half-year, free of income-tax, being at the rate of 18 per cent. per annum.

At a meeting of the board of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company, it was resolved to pay the usual interim dividend of two per cent. on the 1st of September for the quarter ending the 31st of July.

At a special meeting of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company (Limited), it was resolved to hold half-yearly, instead of annual meetings, in future. It was also decided to reduce the authorised number of directors from fifteen to eight.

The directors of the Commercial Union Assurance Company have declared an interim dividend of 2s. 6d. per share, being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable on and after 8th September next.

The silver market is inanimate. Bars, being scarce, are quoted 60 11-16d., but new Mexican dollars have slightly receded to 59 1-16d., while, in consequence of slackness in the demand for China, those of the old description have fallen to 59½d.—a decline of ½d. from the last rate, and of ¾d. within little more than a fortnight.

Mr. Samuel Barrow, the official liquidator of the Northern Assam Tea Company (Limited), announces the payment of a dividend of 2s. 6d. in the pound to the creditors of that undertaking.

The stoppage is reported of Messrs. W. B. Cooper, jun., and Co., East India merchants, of New York.

It is stated that the new season's tea just imported shows an average loss, according to the present market prices, of about 2d. per lb.

The meeting of steamship owners interested in the India and China trades, via the Suez Canal, referred to in our last issue, was held on the 4th inst., at the offices of the General Shipowners' Society, Cornhill, on the subject of the forms of bills of lading. A committee was appointed to meet the merchants' committee appointed at the meeting held on the 11th ult. There is to be a meeting this day of the owners of sailing vessels occupied in the Far Eastern trade, and it is to be hoped that the negotiations between the various interests concerned will settle the question on an equitable basis.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The first arrivals of new season's Tea, per steamers Australia, Erl King, and Enterprise, have been placed on the market, and the quality of the portion yet examined is barely equal to that of the preceding season; the demand has been moderate, and only a few chops have been disposed of—good Moning Congou at 1s. 7d. to 1s. 10d., fine to finest 2s. to 2s. 4d. per lb.

At the public sales held on the 31st ult. only 3,892 packages were offered, consisting chiefly of small and undesirable parcels, and nearly the whole was disposed of without reserve at about the valuations. About 1,700 packages consisted of Congou, which sold without reserve at easy rates—siftings, 3d. to 3½d.; common red leaf, 10d. to 10½d.; good common to fully fair red leaf, 11d. to 1s. 1d.; Souchong brought 1s. 3d. to 1s. 3½d., and numerous small parcels of Green 6d. to 10d. per lb.

Another small public sale of 641 chests new season's Moning Congou, per Enterprise, from Hankow, was held on the 2nd inst. This parcel being printed without reserve on the day of sale on account of the importers, was sold at 1s. 10d. to 1s. 10½d. per lb. There was a fair attendance of buyers, but the price realised shows a decline compared with the first sales, ex Australia, on the 31st ult.

SILK.

The activity of purchase and buoyancy of market recently prevailing continues with some further slight advance in prices. The extent of business in China silk has been limited apparently only by the comparatively exhausted stock. The deliveries are good—far in excess of any previous month in the last few years, with the exception of last month and the month of March 1870, and the aggregate stocks are only slightly in excess of last year. A very large portion of the business done recently has been "for arrival"—rather a new feature, but the agency of the telegraph seems to render it comparatively free from difficulty, especially in the early part of the season. Japan Silk shows a large difference in the deliveries as compared with last month, but this was to be expected. They are still good if only present figures can be maintained. The stock is very large. In Canton Silk the stock has been reduced to comparatively moderate dimensions, notwithstanding the very large importation of the two past seasons; but in this Silk prices do not mark the same improvement as in China and Japan Silk.

COFFEE.

The market for Ceylon is still inactive, but prices are steady. The quantity offered at the auctions during the past week has not been extensive, and not having exceeded requirements has all been taken off; the latest rates paid for Plantation have been triage 49s. to 55s., ordinary 55s. 6d. to 57s., small 59s. to 61s., low middling to middling 62s. to 70s., good middling to bold 71s. to 76s., pea-berry 79s. 6d. to 82s. There have been few offers of Native Ceylon at the public sales, and only small transactions have been effected at 53s. 6d. to 54s., for ordinary and good ordinary, but a fair amount of business has been done privately in good ordinary at 54s., bold at 59s., and pea-berry at 59s. 6d. An offer of 382 bags Bonthyne Singapore bought in at 56s. to 57s., excepting 190 bags sea-damaged, which sold at 51s. 6d. to 54s.

SUGAR.

The market for West Indian Sugar has been strengthened by an improvement in the demand, and a considerable business has resulted at an advance of 6d. upon the prices ruling last week. The improved tone has not yet extended to East India descriptions, in which there is not a single transaction to chronicle.

COCOA-NUT OIL is only in limited request, at £39 5s. to £39 10s. for Ceylon in pipes.

HEMP.—At auction 300 bales Manila superior roping Boluzan were bought in at £49; of 148 bales Sunn 55 bales sold, good to fine £25 5s. to £27 5s., fair £21 5s. to £23 5s., the remainder middling bought in at £13 10s. to £19 10s., also 120 bales Cocoonada at £25.

PEPPER.—Black : continues in good demand, on the spot moderate sales have been made, Singapore and Penang both at 5 13-16d. For arrival 25 tons Singapore, per Dorothea, have sold at 5 1/2d., and about 230 tons Penang, per Black Adder and Contest, now shipping at 5 1/2d. White : Singapore has been sold by auction at 9 1/2d. to 10d. and privately at 9 1/2d.

RICE.—There has again been an absence of business on the spot, but the following floating cargoes have changed hands:—The Schwegersgaard 930 tons Rangoon at about 9s. 9d. continental terms, E contract; the Mirella 1,080 tons Rangoon at 9s. 10 1/2d. for the Continent; the Vigilante 1,370 tons Bassin at 9s. 5 1/2d. for the Continent; the Ole Bull 810 tons Rangoon at 9s. 10 1/2d. for the Continent; the N.E. Kirckgaard 670 tons Neeransie at 9s. 7 1/2d. for the Continent; the St. Petersburg 1,040 tons Rangoon early May sailing at 10s. for the Continent; and the Elizabeth 510 tons Neeransie March sailing at 9s. 9d., ex ship for London or Continental terms.

TIN.—The market continues firm at the last quoted rates for Straits, and at an advance of 10s. for Banca, the current quotations being, Straits on the spot and afloat, £133 10s. to £134; Banca, £136 10s.; Billiton, £134. There have been very large deliveries of foreign Tin from London during the past month—773 tons. The deliveries from Holland were about 400 tons Banca, and 110 tons Billiton, of which 90 tons have been sent here. The stocks here and in Holland are now reduced to a very moderate total, and, as the Tin Plate Trade is active, and the European consumption very good, it appears probable that prices will not go back for some time to come. Those generally best informed in the trade are looking for even higher prices than present quotations. We request attention to the following statistics:—

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—JULY 22.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular:—Business in all kinds of tea during the past month has been comparatively small, and prices current for Greens and Blacks at the date of our last barely maintained. Japans, other than choice parcels, show a further decline of 2c. to 3c. Our market at the close is somewhat unsettled, and buyers act with extreme caution in view of the near approach of new crop goods. The arrival at San Francisco of the America on the 15th inst., with 24,000 packages, has for the moment increased their disposition to limit purchases to actual wants, and until samples of her goods are shown, and probable values ascertained, Japans are likely to be neglected. Included in the sales reported since June 20 are 12,100 half-chests Green, 5,500 half-chests Japan, and 5,100 half-chests Oolong.

The following are the current quotations (in gold, duty 15c. paid):—Greens (Moyune, Teenki, and Fychow): Gunpowder, first quality, 103c. to 110c.; second, 70c. to 80c.; Imperial, first, 85c. to 95c.; second, 68c. to 78c.; Young Hyson, first, 87c. to 100c.; second, 68c. to 78c.; Hyson, first, 65c. to 75c.; second, 53c. to 58c.; Hyson Skin, 28c. to 35c.; Foochow Oologs, common and good, 39c. to 46c.; superior and fine, 53c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 100c.; Amoy Oologs, common and good, 38c. to 46c.; superior and fine, 50c. to 60c.; finest, 62c. to 65c.; Souchong and Congou, common and good, 27c. to 38c.; superior and fine, 43c. to 58c.; finest, 60c. to 85c.; Japans, common, 40c. to 43c.; medium, 46c. to 48c.; good medium, 51c. to 53c.; fine and finest, 55c. to 70c.; choice, 75c. to 80c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to July 18, 1871, were as follows:—Greens, 15,334,621 lbs.; Japans, 9,224,250 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,314,708 lbs.; Oologs, 11,388,370 lbs.; other sorts, 272,006 lbs.; total, 38,533,955 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 16,748,661 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 55,282,616 lbs., as the total supply. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to July 18, 3,550,161 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 31,160,333 lbs., there remains a total of 20,572,117 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from June 18 to July 18 amounted to 2,301,509 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 2,578,689 lbs.; and the exports to 232,561 lbs.

SILK.

The following is Mr. D. O'Donoghue's report on the market:—Since last circular there has been a fairly active market for silks, confined principally to the re-reeled sorts. Importers having submitted to a further slight decline, in order to close out old lots before the arrival of the new silk, has had the effect, in a few instances, of inducing manufacturers to anticipate their wants, and some transactions have been made for delivery 1st of August. As we approach the time for the new season's silks, however, we note a growing disposition on the part of buyers to hold off, and as a rule, sales have been made for immediate consumption. Re-reeled Tsatlee and Haineen are in fair request, though quality of stock is rather inferior. Usual reel Tsatlee and Taysaam are still slow of sale, the preference being for re-reeled sorts. In re-reeled Cantons an active business has been done. Sales have been principally of the common descriptions for fringes. Extra fine qualities are still very scarce. Japans.—No stock; no demand.

The following are the prices current for China and Japan Silks (currency six months' terms):—Tsatlee, No. 1. none; No. 2, $9; Tsatlee, No. 3, $8.50 to 8.75; Tsatlee, Nos. 4 and 5, none; Taysaam, Nos. 1 $8 to 8.1-8; Taysaam, Nos. 2 and 3, $7.50 to 7.55; Taysaam, Nos. 4 and 5, none; Canton, re-reeled, good, $6.50 to 6.75; Canton, re-reeled, fair, $6.1-8 to 6.3-8; Canton, re-reeled, coarse, $5.75 to 5.7-8; Tsatlee, re-reeled, best, $8.3-8; Tsatlee, re-reeled, fair and medium, $8. to 8.1-4; Taysaam, re-reeled, none; Haineen, re-reeled, best, $8.3-8; Haineen, re-reeled, fair, $7.7-8 to 8.1-8; Canton, re-reeled, extra fine, $7; Mahang and Hontang, none; Junkee, coarse yellow, $5; Japans, no stock.

Imports:—In June, 541 packages, $317,333 gold value; corresponding month last year, 251 packages, $196,550 gold value.

COFFEE.—The current quotations for East India kinds are, Java Government bags, 18c. to 20c.; Java mats, 18 1/2c. to 22c.; Singapore, 17c. to 18c.; Manila, 14c. to 15c.; Native Ceylon, 15 1/2c. to 17c., showing no alteration. The market for Brazil continues quiet, for, while holders are still very firm and offer their stock very sparingly, and only at extreme or advanced prices, there is a reluctance on the part of buyers to operate at present rates, and the business is consequently reduced to very small proportions. The market for East India is also dull, and only a limited business has been doing during the week; prices show a tendency towards decline. The sale is reported of 15,468 mats Java, per Rainbow, and 12,651 mats per Cyclone on private terms. The range for jobbing lots of Java is 18 1/2c. to 19 1/2c. for pale, 19 1/2c. to 19 3/4c. for medium brown, 20 1/2c. to 21c. for brown, and 22c. to 24c. for extreme brown, and for Singapore, 17c. to 17 1/2c. for pale, and 19c. to 21c. for brown, all gold.

CORRAGE continues in fair request at unchanged figures, say 18 1/2c. to 19 1/2c. for Manila, 18c. for tarred Manila, and 16 1/2c. to 17 1/2c. for Sisal.

CAMPOR.—China is quoted 19c. gold (in bond).

FIRE CRACKERS.—Market without alteration.

HEMP.—The quietude in the market for Manila noticeable at the close of our last report has continued, and business has been very small, while prices show a fractional decline. The only sales of Manila are 500 bales on the spot, 932 bales, per Velocity, and 228 bales, per Nimroud, both to arrive, at or about 11 1/2c., 60 days, gold.

INDIGO.—The market has remained very dull, and only small lots have been quoted at last quoted rates.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $3 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 40c. to $1 currency (duty free).

RICE.—The market for Carolina has been unsettled and irregular, owing to parcels of low quality being forced off at a decline. East India shows no alteration, sales of Rangoon being reported to the extent of 1,900 bags at $6.75 to 7.25 currency, and 100 bags in bond at $3.30 gold.

SUGAR.—The market has been somewhat less active, and without excitement, but has retained its firmness, the demand having continned steady and good from refiners, with some inquiry also from the trade. There are no sales of East India to report.

SPICES.—There are few, if any, invoices of Nutmegs, Mace, or Pepper offering, and the market for whole parcels of these goods is necessarily quiet, while prices remain firm; 280 cases Nutmegs and 700 bags Pepper at hand, per Rainbow, were sold previously. In Cassia there is a better feeling, and prices are a little higher. Pepper is strong; some orders are on this market for the article from London, but at limits below the views of holders. There is a steady trade demand at $1.50 for Mace, $1 for Penang Nutmegs, 31½c. to 32c. for Cassia, 33c. for Wild Cinnamon, 11c. for Cloves, 16½c. for Sumatra Pepper, 17½c. for Singapore, and 25c. for White—all gold.

TIN.—The market is less active, but prices are strong, and are again a little higher; Sales have been made of Straits at 35½c. to 35¾c., Banca 40c. to 40½c., and English 34½c. to 35c.—all gold; at the close Straits is held for 35½c.

EXCELLENT PILLS.—The resources of medicine and chemistry were long and fruitlessly tried before they yielded a remedy which could overcome disorders of the stomach and nerves, till Professor Holloway discovered his purifying and tonic Pills. They are the safest and surest correctives of indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, torpidity of the liver, twitches, nervous fancies, despondency, low spirits, and declining strength. Holloway's Pills supersede all irregular action in the body, and so strengthen and support the system that disease departs, and leaves the patient not at all shaken. This is the grand aim and object of medical art, to regulate disordered functions without damaging the constitution by the remedy, and admirably is this end attained by Holloway's Pills.

OUR NEW MINISTER AT PEKING.

On the eve of important events it is neither safe nor prudent to speculate. We take up the pen, indeed, without knowing what a day, or a telegram, may bring forth. But however the scene may shift on the diplomatic stage—however Cabinets may act, or by whatever influences Ministers may be urged—principles are happily immutable. Upon these we have from the first taken our stand; by these we are resolved in all circumstances to abide. To us the rise or fall, the success or defeat, of a mere party, has, of itself, comparatively but little interest. In our estimation, the importance of such alternations depends, not upon the various fortunes of the contest, but upon the tendency of the result to promote or obstruct the final triumph of those great principles which, whatever may be the resistance opposed to them, are certain sooner or later to prevail.

Recent events in China have shown that the progress of British commerce and civilisation in the Far East is much too dear to the country, and involves interests all over the world much too important to allow it to be counteracted by all the impediments which can be placed in its way by incompetent statesmen at home, or to be baffled by all the artifices which Oriental hypocrisy can employ to abate its energy. The power of resistance has limits, but that of perseverance has none. Our position in China is so plain that nothing but administrative blindness can prevent our Ministers from seeing it. It is necessary, however, that they should learn that it is not enough to mean honestly; they must act boldly and demand guarantees. On the Chinese Court they can have no hold, except through the medium of its fears. The mandarins will only yield to pressure from without; and it is as clear as noon-day that no reliance can be placed upon the young Emperor, surrounded as he constantly is by the inveterate enemies of progress—by persons who have systematically persuaded him to submit to anti-foreign influences which have enormously augmented all the difficulties of his Government, and have now once again imperilled the very existence of his throne. If the present dynasty is to be maintained, it must be made clear to the Government that it can only be done by extending and cementing the relations of China with the Western Powers. The time has at length arrived when the really great men of the people—the party of progress and enlightenment—must be so upheld by our Ministers, in spite of the sneers of Court parasites, and the blind hatred of their fanatical dupes, so that they may at once assume a commanding place in the councils of the Empire, and by their talents, their influence, their character, and their experience, enjoy free opportunity to promote the happiness of the people. They must be sustained by the means of developing—what we know to be a fact established beyond all doubt—that the good-will of the great bulk of the Chinese population is, in the main, favourable to foreigners—sensible of the advantage of their trade, anxious to profit by their inventions, and not radically opposed to their institutions if they are sensibly and delicately introduced to them. We can imagine no grander opportunity of extended usefulness, no career which could include a wider field for the accomplishment of that best of all good objects, securing "the greatest happiness of the greatest number," than that which now opens before Mr. WADE on his appointment as the successor of Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK at Peking.

We have on many occasions felt it impossible to record Mr. WADE's proceedings without animadverting in strong terms upon his apparently unaccountable delays, want of firmness, proneness to give the Chinese Government credit for sincerity and goodwill in the face of the most convincing evidence of their duplicity, weakness, and bad faith, and other short-comings. We are certainly not the people to seize the opportunity of his advancement to retract or modify one tittle of the opinions which we have felt called upon to express in regard to his conduct of affairs, though we are free to admit that his policy may possibly have been guided by his late chief in such a way as to have committed him to a course of action which he may not have entirely approved, but which he may have felt it inconsistent with his honour openly to deprecate. The strange omission to send home full particulars of the Chinese Circular remains still unaccounted for; and it seems only too probable that Parliament will be permitted to rise before the circumstances of that extraordinary proceeding are explained to the country. But we must by no means jump to the conclusion that the absence of the "missing despatch" is attributable to the laches of Mr. WADE, and that the indifference or procrastination of our Foreign-office have had no share in it. All that we can do now is to wait with what patience we may for the explanation which must ultimately be made, and console ourselves for the delay by the reflection that, now that Mr. WADE is officially constituted our Minister at Peking, he will feel it due to himself to speak more unreservedly than he may have considered himself entitled to do hitherto. In the mean time his appointment affords us the opportunity, which we gladly avail ourselves of, to express the general feeling of restored confidence which has been excited by the publication of the lucid and comprehensive memorandum which he appended to the Blue-book on the revision of the Treaties, of which we gave a resumé in these columns on the 21st ult. Mr. WADE's memorandum is not only conceived in a sense of enlightened statesmanship, but expressed in language which shows such a desire to discuss the views of the commercial community in a candid and conciliatory spirit as justifies the highest hopes of the successful administration of the British interests in the Far East now entrusted to his charge. It is a document which it is impossible to read without observing the great contrast between the temperate, thoughtful, and courteous phrases of our present Minister, and the cynical, sarcastic, and almost offensive language which Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK too often employed when referring to the British community in China, whose interests were confided to him. But the merits of the memorandum before us do not stop here. It is a document which gives assurance that all the terms of the revised Treaty which can fairly be advanced by our merchants, whose representations were formerly so superciliously disregarded, will lose nothing for want of the temperate advocacy of our new Minister.

HONG KONG VERSUS SHANGHAI.—AN OLD CONTROVERSY REVIVED.

In the new Blue-book on our Eastern colonies, which we summarise in another column, a lengthy memorandum appears, addressed to his Excellency the Governor of Hong Kong, in September, 1869, by Captain W. M. DEANE, superintendent of police, in reference to a letter from Mr. A. J. JOHNSTON, secretary of the Anglo-American Municipal Council at Shanghai, which appeared in our issue of the 8th July previous. Captain DEANE directly traverses Mr. JOHNSTON's arguments, and we therefore gladly give prominence to his version of the dispute—the relative good conduct of the populations of Hong Kong and Shanghai. At the same time we cannot but express our regret that Captain DEANE should not have felt constrained, in making an official communication, to employ less grating language in reference to a gentleman of Mr. JOHNSTON's position; and we must also confess to some surprise that a document, which is now said to be "published for general information," should not have been so published until twenty months after it was written. Into the general merits of the case we do not now propose to enter. We have little doubt that Mr. JOHNSTON will be anxious to explain any inaccuracies into which he may have been misled—if he were misled into any inaccuracies at all, which is by no means conclusively settled in Captain DEANE's hasty letter. But we must protest against an official communication reflecting on the conduct of the representative of an important body being permitted to remain unanswered for twenty months, and then being published in a form which admits of no satisfactory contradiction. If Captain DEANE felt so strongly on the subject as his phraseology would seem to imply, we wonder that he did not think it due to himself, and to Mr. JOHNSTON, to publish an immediate disclaimer of the latter gentleman's temperately-expressed allegations in the columns in which his letter appeared. Mr. JOHNSTON's remarks, whether right or wrong, were certainly not uncalled for, because the general character of the population of Shanghai had been made the subject of debate in the House of Lords; and Captain DEANE's reply would have had more weight if its publication had not been delayed so long as to give it rather the appearance of an attack upon an individual than an explanation of matters of fact. The question had slumbered so very long that we think it a pity that it should have been reopened, when the characters of both the communities, pitted against each other in so unceremonious a manner, must, by mere efflux of time, have undergone great modification. For our own part, we must confess that "sweeping charges," especially in morals, carry little weight with them. Like CHURCHILL, we are

MATRIMONIAL "MEDIATION."

An "ingenious gentleman," with a very common name, which we do not intend to give, since it might possibly serve him as an advertisement, appears to be endeavouring to persuade the Germans a very extraordinary idea of the way in which English ladies and gentlemen are "married and given in marriage." We have not the slightest fear that any of our German friends will be misled by it; but, for the amusement of our readers, we cannot resist giving the following translation of an advertisement clipped from the Hamburger Nachrichten. The italics only are our own:—

"OFFICE FOR MARRIAGES, LONDON.

"Old established and only International Institution in England for Marriage Mediation. Since 1856 officially registered sub R. 10,780 Inland Revenue.

"Rich parties for marriage from the middle classes, and the nobility of all countries always at disposal.

"Respectable (solid) references, and one from his Majesty the Emperor of Germany, most graciously certifying the decision of a Court of Honour (ehrengerichtliches), composed of a corps of officers, certify the happy result of this marriage of the Mediation Institute. The favour of orders is to be directed (postage paid and not anonymous), from ladies, to Mrs. Directress —, and from gentlemen, to — and Co., —, London."

Our blank spaces stand for words which in the original give an address in a metropolitan suburb much patronised by clerks who have not yet reached the minimum of income upon which the benevolent directors of the Union Bank lately drew the line between celibacy and wedlock. To this modest retreat, therefore, if we are to believe the advertiser, "rich parties" and "the nobility of all nations" resort or consign themselves (no doubt incog.) with the view of securing to themselves, at whatever apparent sacrifice of display or dignity, that priceless blessing—disinterested affection. If we may judge, however, from the phraseology of the Matrimonial Mediator, his agency has not yet been crowned with any considerable numerical success, for he speaks of this marriage in the singular number—and it must have been a very singular marriage indeed—which somehow gives the impression that his Hymeneal offices have only as yet succeeded in founding one union. Having regard to the neighbourhood, however, we cannot doubt that his agency, if successful, will pave the way to another union of a very different type—inasmuch as, in the latter establishment, husband and wife are separated instead of being joined. Giving Messrs. — and Co. all the credit for sincerity which they deserve, and a little more, we will assume that the couple, whose happiness has been certified by the Court of Honour, sprang not from the "rich parties of the middle classes," but from that "nobility" which seems so dear to him. We must own to some little curiosity to know the names of the titled bride and bridegroom who forsook the fashionable flirtation grounds of Belgravia and Hurlingham for the romantic matrimonial prairies accessible only through the omnibus or the tramway. We can well imagine the delight of the newly-wedded pair on finding their happiness not only the crowning bliss of their own lives, but also "certified by a Court of Honour"—not a dream from which they could soon arouse themselves by "pinching" (as a good many couples in their neighbourhood are obliged to do), but a good substantial article "warranted not to shrink in wear." Nevertheless, we must own to some misgivings lest the peer—or peerless—bridegroom, whom we have supposed, were obliged to publish his title to the world, he might turn out to be the "Lord Knows Who."

It is impossible to resist jesting at such an unblushing piece of absurdity as the advertisement under notice. We are, however, somewhat surprised that it should not have been suppressed by the censor of the press. It may, by a remote possibility, delude some innocent out of money which he can ill afford—though he would certainly get a very sufficient amount of experience in return for it. As the Scottish poet, POLLOCK, says:—

"Fertile is earth in many things—not least

and it seems hardly likely that persons would be found willing to invest in so many outrageous and transparent advertisements as disfigure the pages of some of our contemporaries if there were not as many pigeons as hawks in the world. Perhaps, after all, and morals apart, it is only a new phase of the law of demand and supply. As MARK LEMON said—"Oh, dear! Why do they make laws against swindling, 'when they ought to punish the greenhorns for tempting 'the ingenious'?"

SIR HARRY PARKES, Her Majesty's representative in Japan, with Lady PARKES, arrived from New York, per Cunard steamer Calabria, on the 9th inst.

THE BLUE-BOOK ON THE EASTERN COLONIES.

The third volume of the "Reports on the Present State of Her Majesty's Colonial Possessions," just presented to Parliament, is devoted to Ceylon, Hong Kong, Labuan, Mauritius, and the Straits Settlements. We will take them in the order in which they appear.

CEYLON.

Sir Hercules Robinson reports the financial results of the year 1869 as satisfactory. The revenue was £946,494, against £925,265 in the previous year; and the expenditure amounted only to £881,373, showing an excess of revenue over expenditure of £65,121. There is a slight decrease of revenue, under the head of Exports, owing to the postponement of shipments of coffee, &c., in order to get the benefit of the abolition of the export duties, which took effect from Jan. 1, 1870. The net result is, however, as above stated, an increase of revenue for the year of £21,229, while the expenditure, which amounted in 1868 to £974,950, was reduced to £881,373, a decrease of £93,577.

The public debt of the colony consists of a loan of £700,000, raised on debentures for the construction of the Ceylon Government railway from Colombo to Kandy. In consequence of the successful working of this line, the profits of the railway alone proved more than sufficient to meet the interest of the debentures and provide for the gradual extinction of the debt; and, under these circumstances, the export duties, being no longer required, were abolished; the receipts from the railway have been merged into the general revenue of the Island, and that revenue has been charged with an annual payment of £58,000 for fourteen years, which, it is calculated, will, after defraying the interest of the loan, create a sinking fund sufficient to provide for the redemption of the debentures as they arrive at maturity.

The value of goods imported in 1869, exclusive of specie, was £3,407,094 showing an increase of £3,106 as compared with 1868. The total value of Ceylon produce exported in 1869 was £2,989,876. The revenue derived from imports and exports showed an increase of £9,002 over the previous year.

The expenditure on public works amounted to £269,853, or £56,172 less than in 1868. Of new roads the most important is the one from Badulla to Batticaloa, forty-eight miles of which have been completed at a cost of £38,449. Other roads opening outlets for coffee estates have been completed or commenced, from Teldeniya to Galmal Oya, from Ginigathene to Dik Oya, from Galle to Morawak Koralé (the new coffee district in the southern province), and from Colombo to Ambetellé. Many new bridges were also completed in the course of the year. The total expenditure on irrigation works was £13,727.

From the Report of the Surveyor-General it appears that, during the year 1869, 4,420 lots, containing 28,831 acres of Crown land, were disposed of for £48,249, or at the rate of £1 13s. 5d. per acre. The largest sales have taken place in the Western Province.

The working of the railway has been most satisfactory. The profit for the year was £108,465, or six per cent. on the capital. Both goods and passenger traffic show a steady increase.

The principal civil medical officer reports that the public health was exceptionally good throughout the year. Only thirteen cases of cholera and fifty-five of small-pox occurred, and the rate of mortality declined from 16·3 in 1868 to 13·65 per cent.

The number of schools supported by Government was 120, and the returns from the different missionary bodies show an increase of 165 in the number of schools supported by them, so that they now aggregate no less than 497 schools, containing 20,243 pupils.

Eighteen ordinances were enacted in the session of 1869, the one most interesting to our readers being the repeal of the export duties already referred to.

HONG KONG.

The revenue for the year was £192,464, showing an apparent decrease of £43,810. In reality, however, there was some increase, as credit was erroneously taken in 1868 for £55,659, arising from the play-house licences.

The expenditure was £192,309, much less than the preceding year; but this, as in the case of revenue, arose from exceptional causes, viz., the remittance in 1868 of the then arrears of military contribution, and the closing of the Mint in 1869.

The sum expended on public works amounted to £39,958, of this £17,093 was spent on the Pok-foo-hu water-works, which yet remain unfinished, and were expected to draw largely on the resources of the colony in 1870 and 1871. When completed, however, there will be no reason to regret the outlay.

The Mint was closed by the sale of the plant to the Japanese Government for $60,000. The buildings were disposed of for $65,000. Thus the colony has realised only $125,000 as the result of an outlay of nearly half a million of dollars only three years ago.

The population would appear to have increased from 86,941 in 1859, to 121,979 in 1869; but the accuracy of the former census seems to be much questioned. There are now 4,889 English and Americans in the colony.

The increase of the trade of the colony is shown by the excess over 1868 of forty-five British ships, and 135 foreign vessels, owing to extended traffic with Australia, the United States, the Philippines, and Japan.

The number of prisoners committed to gaol for different crimes has been steadily reduced from 6,246 in 1865 to 3,059 in 1869; and the number of convictions at the Supreme Court has decreased from 200 to 75. This decrease of crime is greatly owing to the system of deportation as carried out by Sir Richard Graves MacDonnell.

The delay in the erection of a new hospital, worthy of the colony, owing to want of funds, seems to be the only unsatisfactory part of the Colonial Secretary's Report.

LABUAN.

Mr. Pope Hennessy, the Governor, reports that the revenue continues to increase, and that the chief sources of it are secured until Jan. 1, 1874. The expenditure is "well within the revenue." For twenty-three years the Imperial exchequer has defrayed the cost of maintaining the troops in Labuan, but this year will see a well-trained local force substituted for the troops. This local force will cost the Government less than £3,000 a year, and is expected to be more efficient than the one about to be reduced. The general health of the population was good in 1869, but two companies of the Ceylon Rifles suffered severely from the "Beriberi," or "bad sickness." Further information regarding this colony is promised at a future time.

MAURITIUS.

The officer administering the Government (Brigadier Selby Smyth) reports a more favourable year than the previous two. Not only has there been an increase of £17,000 over the revenue of the year before, but there has been also an excess of revenue over expenditure of £20,000. A marked improvement has taken place in the railway returns, the receipts exceeding those of last year by £17,000. This is mainly the consequence of the crop having been larger than the previous one; the tonnage of sugar conveyed being 23,700 tons in excess of 1868, and the total increase of goods traffic 41,280 tons. The passenger traffic also increased £3,000. The revenue fell short of the expenditure by about £2,000. The military expenditure was reduced about £18,000, owing to the reduction of the garrison. The expenditure on public works has been limited to repairs, new works being postponed till the finances of the colony will admit of their being resumed. In the Civil Establishment a saving of more than £5,000 has been effected. The population has decreased 1,478; there is, however, a marked improvement in the health of the colony. The total mortality of the island was 11,295, or 7,345 less than in 1868; the deaths from fever being fifty-six per cent. of the total mortality. Immigration from India continued to fall off; the total number of coolies introduced being 1,622, while the departures were 2,320. Wages have continued at a moderate rate, notwithstanding the decrease of population; and this is to be accounted for by the steps taken to suppress vagrancy. The number of scholars in the Government schools had increased 4,500. The criminal returns show a reduction in the number of persons tried, but a great increase of prisoners—a discrepancy which may be explained that the figures given are not believed to be reliable.

The value of imports in 1869 fell to £1,619,906 against £2,000,097 in the previous year; while that of exports rose from £2,313,134 to £2,601,657; so great a difference in favour of exports has not been recorded for 20 years.

The crop of 1869 realised expectation; it amounted to 107,000 tons, against 99,000 tons in the preceding year; and it may rank as third highest in extent of any year. The preservation of the water supply, which has been diminished by the clearing that has been going on for some years, is one of the most important questions of the colony. At the end of 1868 the estimated resident population, exclusive of military and shipping, was 324,402, of which number 115,503 belonged to the general class, which includes Europeans, Creoles, Chinese, &c., and 208,899 to the Indian. These figures are, however, only approximately correct.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

¶ Sir Harry St. George Ord reports the increase of revenue over that of 1868 as a little over $11,000, and of expenditure $43,000. There has been an excess of expenditure in public works owing to the large amounts expended on Government House.

The following table shows the imports and exports of the three settlements for the years 1868 and 1869:—

	1868.	1869.	1868.	1869.
Singapore ...	$31,579,926	$31,961,941	$26,670,989	$26,982,200
Penang ...	8,269,038	9,472,240	9,629,475	11,372,923
Malacca ...	2,280,744	2,552,041	1,693,392	2,228,199
Total ...	$42,119,708	$43,986,222	$37,993,856	$40,583,322

It will be seen that at Singapore the increase over last year in both imports and exports has been but slight, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

At Penang the increase in the value of imports has been about 14 per cent., and of exports about 17 per cent.

At Malacca there has been an increase of imports of about 10 per cent., and in its exports an extraordinary increase of upwards of 31 per cent.

As the imports of Singapore represent nearly three-fourths of the whole imports of the Settlements, and its exports about two-thirds, the total increase on the imports of the Settlements is reduced to about $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and that on their exports to about 7 per cent.

The results show that the trade of Penang is continuing to improve at a greater rate than that of Singapore, and gives support to the belief that it will eventually attain far larger proportions.

The revenue of Penang shows an increase over that of 1868 of $9,869, and a reduction of expenditure of $17,619. The imports of the year 1868 show a decrease as compared with those of 1867, but those of the past year show an increase over those of 1868 of $1,213,202, and over those of 1867 of $948,507. The new treaty made during the year with Siam, by which an exchange of land was effected with the Rajah of Keddah, caused a slight reduction in the area of Province Wellesley. The land obtained from the Rajah is, however, more advantageously situated for agricultural purposes than that surrendered to him. It is already in demand by Chinese and other cultivators.

The trade of Malacca, which has hitherto shown a steady annual increase, has this year taken a sudden and very large rise; this is no doubt mainly owing to the extension of cultivation which there has been in the Settlement itself, whilst at Penang the result is more due to the development of the trade with Sumatra and other neighbouring ports. The actual revenue for the year 1869 amounted to $123,626 35c., being an increase of $14,716 82c. on that of 1868. The expenditure for 1869 amounted to $124,429 40c., in 1868 $147,687 37c., being a decrease of $23,257 93c. on that for 1868. This decrease is owing to reduction of expenditure in public works, convict departments, and local prisons, &c.

LITERATURE.

The June number of the Phoenix fully maintains its reputation as a valuable repository of information for European students of the Far East, and an interesting literary curiosity for scholars all over the world. We are glad to find that the success which has already attended this publication has encouraged the editor to renewed efforts to increase its usefulness. The reprint of Mr. Brian Hodgson's "Illustrations of Buddhism," which appeared thirty years ago, but which (as the Academy says) have lost none of their importance, is presented as the pièce de resistance of the current number; but the one before us also contains a valuable "Summary of Burmese History," by the editor, the continuation of the Rev. Mr. Malan's translation of "Misawo, the Japanese Girl," and Mr. Carroll's "Cure for Jealousy," besides several reviews of more than usual interest. It could hardly be expected that the expenses of the Phoenix could have been met by the circulation of the first year, but the editor announces that the supporters of the magazine are steadily increasing, and a liberal amount of patronage has been received from the Secretary of State for India. We hope, therefore, that the second volume (which commences with the July number) will show a satisfactory balance-sheet to its energetic promoters. The Phoenix is not a magazine that we can afford to lose.

Dr. Bretschneider, physician to the Russian Legation at Peking, is the author of an exhaustive little treatise on The Knowledge Possessed by the Ancient Chinese of the Arabs and Arabian Colonies, and other Western Countries mentioned in Chinese Books. Messrs. Trübner and Co. are the publishers.

To the admirers of the policy of the late Richard Cobden the Report of the Proceedings at the Annual Dinner of the Cobden Club, which has just been issued in neat pamphlet form, will be a welcome souvenir of an enthusiastic gathering. Earl Granville took the chair, and the speeches were above the average.

Around the World by Steam is a pamphlet closely packed with valuable information to all intending travellers by the Pacific Railway to America, Japan, China, India, &c., en route. It may be obtained of Messrs. H. H. Starr and Co., 22, Moorgate-street, London, and the agents of the Atlantic steamer lines, Liverpool.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, August 8.

There being a dead calm in politics the German press are rather at a loss how to fill their columns, and have therefore taken up as a godsend the religious question mentioned in my last letter, and are doing their best to fan it into a flame. Not that there is any new feature to report to-day, except perhaps the significant one of Dr. Döllinger, the uncompromising opponent of the Infallibility dogma, and for which he was placed out of the pale of the Catholic Church by excommunication of the highest grade, being elected by an overwhelming majority of his fellow Professors to be rector of the University of Munich, which of course has drawn down on their devoted heads the still greater anger of the Ultramontane party, and will probably lead to their being excommunicated all together.

Rumours are afloat concerning the resignation of the Duke of Brunswick, but there is a difficulty as to the succession. There are so-called House-laws in existence, by which the two branches of the Guelphic family—Hanover and Brunswick—are to be united in the failure of heirs in one of them. The present Duke is not married, and his only brother was unseated by the revolution of 1848, and has ever since then been leading an eccentric kind of life at Paris; so that before the events of 1866 it was a fully understood thing that on the death or resignation of the present Duke his little Duchy would become incorporated with the Kingdom of Hanover. But now that King George has lost his crown—figuratively at least, for in reality he managed to save his valuable jewels, and has them all with him at Vienna—and his kingdom having been annexed to, and forming now a province of Prussia, the affair becomes more complicated, as not only does Prussia consider herself the inheritor of all the rights and dignities attaching to the Crown of Hanover, but she sets up another and separate claim to the Duchy of Brunswick, should it become vacant, as the successor and heir in direct descent of the great Elector of Brandenburg, whose consort was a Princess of Brunswick. It is but natural that the present Duke should prefer to see the succession go to his nearest relative, the ex-King of Hanover, but the claim of Prussia is well-founded, and under present circumstances requires much consideration in a legal and technical point of view. Negotiations have been opened on the subject, and there is reason to believe that provided the ex-King of Hanover can be induced to recognise the status quo and abdicate his throne in favour of Prussia—which he has not done yet, and Prussia only holds Hanover by right of conquest—then the Emperor would acknowledge the succession of the Hanoverian branch to the Duchy of Brunswick, whenever the expected vacancy occurs. It will, however, be exceedingly difficult to persuade the ex-King to resign his pretensions; but if he will not do so for himself, he may perhaps be willing to accede for the sake of his only son, a young man of about twenty-three years of age, who is now kicking his heels at Vienna. It is of course impossible to penetrate the veil that conceals the future, but as matters now stand there is but little chance of a restoration, the more so that the Hanoverians are perfectly content with their transfer, and have no wish for the return of their Guelphic sovereign.

Prince Bismark, who is enjoying his otium cum dignitate at his Pomeranian Tusculum of Varzin Castle, has written a very flattering letter of gratitude to Herr Carl Wilhelm, the music-master who composed the spirit-stirring national song of "Die Wacht am Rhein," accompanied by a cheque for one thousand dollars out of the funds at his disposal as Chancellor of the Empire. The equally-deserving author of the poem itself, Max Schneckenberger, did not live long enough to receive a similar compliment, but died last year in very indigent circumstances. The Empress, however, soon after sent a handsome present to his surviving widow.

Our Zoological Gardens here have just received a very valuable present from Messrs. Diekmann Barkhausen and Co., of Rangoon, in the shape of a healthy and beautiful three-year-old elephant, which arrived here in safety by the Hamburg barque Linda, whose skipper, Captain Hupfer, had paid it the greatest care and attention during the five months' passage. There was, however, some little danger in landing the animal, to facilitate which the vessel was placed alongside one of the landing-stages, and on to this the elephant walked from the deck of the Linda. Perhaps he did not like the appearance of the Hamburgers, who looked and were dressed so differently to the natives of his own country, or perhaps he took it into his capacious head that he was being marched out for execution; whatever may have been the cause, certain it is that he became at first sulky, and then obstreperous, refusing at first to move and afterwards setting off at a round trot, fortunately in the direction he was wanted to go. No accident occurred, and on his arrival at the Gardens he was introduced to his cousin the African elephant, with whom he appears to be on very good terms, for when I saw them a day or two ago they were fraternising and appeared to be both very comfortable. Among the other valuable presents lately received by the Zoological Society may be mentioned several large exemplars of the Chelonia imbricata—some of them three feet long—a species of turtle from the Pellew Islands, as well as four full grown specimens of the marble-streaked water lizard (Hydrosaurus Marmoratus) from the same group of islands, presents from Messrs. J. C. Godeffroy and Son, of this city, in one of whose vessels they were brought over.

When the first instalment of the war indemnity was paid the other day, which was chiefly in bills of exchange, it was discovered at Berlin that they were not en regle, and required to be specially and separately endorsed by the French Minister of Finance, and M. Pouyer-Quertier had to sign his name on them three thousand times. A part of the second instalment was also paid in bankers' bills, but to save himself a similar laborious job, the Minister of Finance made no conditions about the amount of each bill, and thus it happened that there were amongst them three of the largest sums perhaps ever drawn in one bill. One was drawn by Rothschild, at Paris, on the London house, for £1,278,000; another was on a Belgian firm for f.14,000,000, and the third was for 8,000,000 florins on Amsterdam. At Berlin no banker could be found able to discount such unwieldy amounts, and they had to be sent to the respective drawees to be changed into sums of more moderate dimensions, an operation attended with considerable expenses and commission, which, however, by the deep forethought of Prince Bismarck, who provided for such a contingency by a special stipulation in the Treaty of Peace, have all to be borne exclusively by France.

The number of Germans so harshly expelled from Paris last autumn, and who have reported themselves at the Chancellor's office to claim compensation, amounts in round numbers to 12,300, the South Germans preponderating considerably. It is not yet settled in what manner the distribution of the fund will be made.

COMMERCIAL.

There have been no fluctuations in the Tea market, and prices are firm. The quality of the new Congou only gives partial satisfaction, the quality not being equal to what was expected. The deliveries of cleaned Rice are satisfactory; most of the late arrivals of rough grain were sold for arrival, and only the small cargo of Moulmein, per Dioscuren, is still in the market. The sale of 6,000 bags Rangoon, per Panama, afloat for delivery on arrival, is just reported. Of Cassia Lignea 8,000 chests have been sold at 11 sch. bco. per lb., and the price now is 11½ to 11¾. Flores continues to improve. Pepper is also again higher, 6½ sch. bco. having been paid for Singapore. In Spelter no business done, the nominal price being 12 to 12½ mks. bco. per centner.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JAPANESE IN NEW YORK.

The New York Times gives the following high-flown account of the arrival of some Japanese students in that city:—Thirty young Japanese noblemen belonging to the most illustrious families in Japan, and under the leadership of Prince Schemidzo Jugad, have arrived in New York from San Francisco, and occupied quarters at the St. Nicholas Hotel. The young gentlemen are sent to this country by the Government of Japan in order to complete their educations, and especially with a view of examining mechanical inventions. As a general thing, these young Japanese possess very intelligent faces, and gazed around them with an air of half alarm, half astonishment, that was quite amusing. They were all dressed in irreproachable black broadcloth, and had it not been for their almond-shaped eyes and coffee-coloured complexions, they would have passed muster on Broadway for well-dressed Spaniards.

Prince Schemidzo Jugad, who has charge of the party, was educated in this country, and now occupies a very high position near the person of the Mikado. The Prince is about thirty years of age, and has a very prepossessing appearance. He converses in English fluently, and with scarcely a perceptible accent. He is quite intelligent and, though somewhat reserved and haughty, he conversed on various topics with considerable animation, and alluded more than once to his thorough knowledge of the English language and his familiarity with American institutions. He says that the young Japanese, not one of whom is over twenty years of age, are very apt and eager in their desire to acquire knowledge, and will, beyond a doubt, make rapid progress in the various studies to which they may apply their minds. Prince Schemidzo Jugad further stated the young noblemen are to be instructed with the object of fitting them to occupy important positions in the Foreign-office of Japan, which has recently become a very important department of the Japanese State. Upon his arrival, the Prince, followed by his charges, stepped up to the hotel register and wrote, in fair legible characters, "Prince Schemidzo Jugad, Japan, with twenty-nine companions." Soon afterwards the Japanese were shown to their respective rooms, as much as to escape the insolent curiosity of the crowd which had gathered in the hotel vestibule, as to refresh themselves after their long jaunt across the continent. The distinguished visitors will remain but a few days in the city in order to view the objects of interest, when they will be sent in detachments of four or five to the different colleges throughout the country.

THE REV. HUGH WILLOUGHBY JERMYN, who, as announced in our last issue, will succeed the Right Rev. Dr. P. C. Claughton in the Bishopric of Colombo, was educated at Trinity-hall, Cambridge, where he took his B.A. degree in 1841. In the following year he was ordained, and after filling some minor offices in the Church became chaplain of the Kensington Workhouse. Afterwards he went to reside at Forres, in the county of Moray, as the incumbent of St. John's Episcopal Church, subsequently becoming dean of the diocese of Moray and Ross. Having remained a few years in that position he resigned it, and went in 1854 to the diocese of Antigua, where he was appointed archdeacon of St. Christopher's. On his return to England he was nominated by Sir W. Trevelyan, Bart., to the rectory of Nettlecombe, near Taunton, and this living he exchanged a few months ago with the Rev. H. F. Seymour, M.A., vicar of Barking.

His Netherlands Majesty's screw corvette Willem, 16 guns, Captain Toutenhoofd, arrived at Spithead on the 12th inst. from Batavia, bound for Nieu Diep, and exchanged the usual salutes on entering the roadstead with the flagship of the Port Admiral and Naval Commander-in-Chief. Captain Toutenhoofd, accompanied by the Chevalier Van Den Bergh, Netherlands Vice-Consul at Portsmouth, landed at Portsmouth immediately after the corvette's arrival, and made official calls upon Port Admiral Sir James Hope and Lieutenant-General Viscount Templetown. The Willem is taking in coals at Spithead, and sails this day for Nieu Diep.

THE steamship Cella, Captain Gleadell, from China, via the Suez Canal and Malta, arrived in Plymouth Sound on the 12th inst. to replenish coal. This steamer has laid the telegraph cable between Hong Kong and Shanghai, and is returning to London, with a full general cargo and the staff who were employed in laying the cable.

CONSULAR APPOINTMENTS.—The Queen has been pleased to approve of Mr. F. W. Abel as Consul at Cocanada; of Mr. H. Hollmann as Consul at Maulmain; of Mr. B. A. Dickmann as Consul at Rangoon; and of Mr. G. Bircher as Consul at Aden, for the German Empire, also of Mr. Adolphus G. Studer as Consul at Singapore for the United States of America.

THE Iron Duke, the new flag-ship of the China Squadron, is still in dock at Devonport having defects made good.

THE opening of the Mont Cenis tunnel is fixed for the 17th of September next.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

The supplies of new season's Tea have been increased by the arrival of the steamers Ulysses and the Lord of the Isles. The cargo by these vessels amounts to 3,518,000 lbs., and the prospect of this large quantity being placed upon the market tends to increase the previous depression, and business in new season's Congou continues of very limited extent. At public sale of 505 chests new season's Moning Congou catalogued 188 chests offered without reserve, sold at 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 6d., but the remainder offered at reserved prices were withdrawn.

The Produce Markets Review says there has not been any considerable alteration in prices since our last report; with the present indisposition to buy on the part of the wholesale dealers, there can be no doubt that if large quantities of new tea were placed on the market a further fall would have to be submitted to. The high-priced Monings are relatively very dear, compared with what can be bought from 1s. 8d. to 2s., and in point of quality are inferior even to the second-rate teas of last year. The leaf of most of the Monings this season is unusually good, which is no small advantage, for the common and dusty character, even of many of the best parcels imported in past years, has displeased every one. The season has opened badly for merchants, and at present there is no prospect of a change for the better; already we are assured that large sales have been made which show a clear loss to the importers of from 1d. to 4d. per lb., and those who are holding in the expectation of better prices are hardly likely to fare better than those who have already sold. It was only last year that the home trade were congratulating themselves that a new policy had been adopted in China, which was likely to be firmly adhered to in future years. Successive seasons of heavy losses appeared at last to have produced their natural result, reflection succeeded recklessness, and not only were shipments so regulated as to harmonise with consumption, but the value of Tea in England, for the first time for many years, was adopted as a basis on which to make purchases for this market. The result of the year's trading was such as might have been expected, for large sums were made by many lucky operators, and the result to importers was generally of the most satisfactory character. This year the old and ruinous system of shipping quantities far in excess of what the trade can buy has again been resorted to, and will of course result in heavy losses to the importers,

While the dealers' trade for the time is thrown into confusion. These results are the more to be regretted, as there is no reason whatever for supposing that the total imports this year will be excessive; if, therefore, shipments had been regulated somewhat in accordance with the probable demand, a profitable year would no doubt have resulted; as it is, we may expect undue depression in prices for a few months, to be followed by an advance, beneficial only to a few speculative houses.

A telegram from Hong Kong, dated August 4, gives the total exports from China up to that date as 57,000,000 lbs. A private telegram states the quantity exported up to the 8th inst. as 64,000,000 lbs., or nearly one-half of the season's supply.

Monetary and Commercial.

The report of the Mediterranean Extension Telegraph Company (Limited), to be presented on the 15th instant, recommends the payment of the usual half-yearly dividend on the Eight per Cent. Preference Stock, less income-tax, and of a dividend at the rate of three per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, on the Ordinary Share Capital, leaving £462 to be carried to the reserve fund. The traffic shows a marked falling off, and the claim under the Government guarantee consequently exhibits a corresponding increase.

The extra freight of ten shillings per ton for the first vessel arriving with new season's teas has been awarded to the steamer Enterprise, which reached Gravesend on the 31st ult., a few hours in advance of the Erl King. Several of the consignees demurred to the premium being paid to the Enterprise, on the ground that the teas first on the London market were those by the steamer Australia, which were forwarded by railway from Southampton. This objection was, however, overruled on the point that the Australia was not despatched direct from Hankow. The officers and crew of the Enterprise have received from the owner, Mr. De Bussche, a gratuity of a month's pay.

The suspension is announced of Messrs. Blair and Co., calico printers, of Glasgow and Manchester. The liabilities are stated at £20,000.

A telegram received from Hong Kong by the London manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation intimates that for the past half-year a dividend is proposed at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, $100,000 are to be placed to the reserve fund (which will then amount to $900,000), and $30,000 are to be carried forward to the new account.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for July are satisfactory, both as regards the month and the seven months to which they relate. The exports of British and Irish produce in July were valued at £19,817,991, being an increase of more than two millions sterling over the corresponding period of 1870 and of 1869. For the seven months the total value was £121,455,961, or £6,900,000 more than the same months of last year. The increase on the month is distributed over most of the principal items—alkali, apparel, chemical products, coal, cotton yarn, earthenware, haberdashery, hardware, leather, linen manufactures, machinery silk and woollen manufactures—the latter showing an improvement of 30 per cent. Cotton goods were stationary, and there was a slight decrease in linen and jute yarn, beer, fish, and some of the miscellaneous goods. The imports in July were valued at £31,251,153, an increase of £6,561,013 over the return for July of last year. For the seven months the total is £186,507,467, exceeding the values of the same period in 1870 by £23,179,122. In the return for the month an increase is shown in respect of wheat, Indian maize, flax, hemp, hides, paper, and raw silk. The quantities of duty-paying articles entered for home consumption were greater in the case of tea, tobacco, coffee, cocoa, wine, spirits, and unrefined sugar—in the last-named to the extent of 50 per cent.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The first of the new season's Teas from Hankow have met with but little demand. Exporters have generally held aloof from the market, whilst the trade have shown an unusual apathy with regard to purchasing, owing to the quality being generally considered inferior to last season's, the finest Teas having been bought by the Russian houses in Hankow for direct shipment to Odessa. The Teas ex Enterprise, Erl King, and Craigforth showed no improvement in quality on those per Australia, and several importers, finding it difficult to get satisfactory offers by private contract, have resorted to public sale without reserve, 610 packages being offered on the 2nd instant, 1,688 packages on the 4th instant, and 4,135 packages on the 9th. The result has been to establish a decline of fully 3d. per lb. on the opening rates for good to fine kinds, whilst finest, from their comparative scarcity, have fairly maintained the opening prices. It has now become difficult to obtain offers privately for the fair to good and fine descriptions; but we trust the moderate range of prices which are now established for these classes will shortly lead to more confidence and larger transactions on the part of buyers. In old season Teas but little has been done, but the sales made have been at rather higher prices for good common Congous, both red-leaf and black-leaf kinds, the lower qualities still showing great depression.

Red-leaf Congous: Siftings remain without improvement. Broken-leaf kinds have sold ½d. to ¼d. per lb. dearer, also fair to good common. Fair to good and fine are scarce; buyers are now waiting the arrival of the new season's. A few hundred boxes of Pak-Ling have sold ex Australia, from 2s. 5d. to 2s. 6d. per lb. Black-leaf kinds: Low to fair common remain difficult of sale, a few of good common have been sold rather dearer. Fair to good and fine of old season have been neglected, the attention of the trade having been directed to the new season's, details of which are given above. Amoy kinds show no change. In new make Canton kinds, further arrivals, per Australia and Overland route, have come to hand, but have met with only a slow sale at from 1s. to 1s. 1d. per lb. for common to fair kinds. Oolongs have been neglected, also Souchongs and Flowery Pekoes. Scented teas: The arrivals per Australia met with only a moderate demand. Medium to fine Capers sold from 1s. 5d. to 2s., and Orange Pekoes from 1s. 7d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. In Foochow kinds there is nothing of interest to report. Uncoloured Japans remain as before. Green Teas: Business has been quite of a retail character, and leaves no subject for remark.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Tea Circular:—The business during the fortnight has been principally confined to the new season Teas; the steamer Australia, via Southampton, bringing the first cargo, followed by the Enterprise and Erl King. The crop, with the exception of Ooanfas, is below an average, owing, we infer, to wet weather during the process of curing, as most chops have a dark leaf after infusion and want of aroma, but they are generally well made, and highly fired. Buyers have acted with extreme caution, and a smaller quantity than usual has been sold and at declining prices, so that recourse has been had to public sale, without reserve, and 7,000 chests have already been disposed of by this channel. The Canton Scenteds, although equal to those of last season, per Taiping (the first arrival), have met with little attention, and only a few sales have been made at 2d. to 3d. per lb. below opening rates of last year. The telegrams from China to 8th inst. give the export at 64,000,000 lbs., and this enormous quantity (nearly half the total supply), shipped in two months, has naturally tended to make buyers cautious. For Export, buyers to the Continent have bought only of finest quality, and to other parts there has been no trade doing. Deliveries are as follows:—

Export do.	do.	21,456,000	17,800,000

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows:—

The market has been generally active, and prices of China silk have improved 6d. to 1s. per lb., present quotations being 23s. 6d. to 29s. for best chop third Tsatlees, 26s. for Red Peacocks, and 25s. 6d. to 25s. for Nos. 4½ to 5. Sales to arrive have continued on a large scale, and the bulk of the silk coming forward in the next few weeks is placed. The first arrivals of the new season's China silk (250 bales), consisting entirely of medium and common Tsatlees, were taken by the trade at the above quotations. Japan silk, which continued to improve till towards the end of last month, is again dull, and prices are somewhat nominal. Canton silk is 6d. higher than last quoted, and business continues at 17s. to 17s. 6d. for market Tsatlees, and 22s. 6d. to 23s. for finest Loong Kongs. Bengal silk, excepting the best flatures, remains neglected. The deliveries from 1st to 9th inst. were 812 bales China, 289 bales Canton, 239 bales Japan, and 133 bales Bengal respectively; total, 1,473.

The market for Ceylon has improved during the, past week, and prices may be quoted 1s. to 2s. higher than those last given. The supplies at the public sales have been moderate in extent. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 163,106 cwt., against 286,739 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1870; Native 20,927 cwt., against 20,684 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 5,811 cwt. Plantation, against 22,952 cwt., and 7,036 cwt. Native, against 31,983 cwt. The Dutch Trading Company announce that their next public sale will be held on the 16th inst., when 125,000 bags Java, &c., will be offered.

SUGAR.

The improvement noticed in our last report has not been sustained, the market having again become dull. Scarcely any demand has been shown during the week, and the business done has been very small; prices are, however, firm, and the recent advance is maintained. The sales of East India have been confined to Manila, of which description 4,000 bags Zebu unclayed Manila have been sold privately at 22s. 3d.; while in public sale 15,251 bags, import 1868 and 1869, met few biddings, and were all bought in, 6,663 bags clayed (duty 4s.) very low at 23s., fair to good 25s. to 26s. 6d., and 8,588 bags Taal and Zebu unclayed at 21s. 6d. to 22s.; privately 130 baskets have been sold at 22s. 6d.

The landings for the week are only 800 tons in excess of those in the corresponding week last year, and as the deliveries also exceed those of 1870 by 600 tons, one-half of which occurs in the exports, the deficiency in the stock remains about 29,000 tons. Stock, July 29, 74,413 tons, against 103,709 tons; Aug. 5, 75,120 tons, against 104,192 tons. ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The improvement noticeable in this market at the date of our last report has been barely maintained, and producers show rather less firmness, but the small concession they are disposed to make is not sufficient to tempt buyers, and the business transacted both in Yarns and Goods, but more particularly as applies to the latter, is within small compass. The same quiet feeling has prevailed up to the close of the market, but no desire has been evinced to unduly press sales.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

ARE UNDENIABLY THE FINEST MEDICINE in the world for biliousness and indigestion. In all cases of deranged stomach, determination of blood to the head, bile, sick headache, liver and stomach complaints, there is no medicine known that will give such immediate relief as these renowned PILLS: young and old, rich and poor patronise them, and so many cures are effected by their use that their praise is sounded from the torrid to the frigid zone; in truth, persons who travel consider them a necessary requisite. In sultry weather or warm climates, or in India, the blood becomes overheated, the liver torpid, the skin covered with prickly heat, and the whole system languid and exhausted. Nothing so soon gives relief as Holloway's Pills.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA. SHANGHAI.

The dates by this mail extend to the 30th June. The outward P. and O. mail from London of 5th May arrived on the 21st June, and the French mail of 12th on the 27th idem.

The following items are from the North China Herald:—

The news from Korea foreshadows still more severe fighting before the Government will be brought to recognise the necessity for responding civilly to friendly overtures. Admiral Rodgers has avenged the insult to the American flag offered on the 1st June, by capturing and utterly destroying the batteries on the Island of Kanghoa which fired on the survey party. The letters which we print elsewhere, from our correspondents, give full details of this plucky action. An expedition, comprising the Monocacy, Palos, twenty boats, and 957 men, started up the river on the 10th June, made good their landing in the evening, and stormed and took the heights on which the Koreans were fortified on the 11th. The fighting was severe, and the loss of the Koreans heavy—240 dead were counted outside the forts, a great many were wounded, and some prisoners taken; the assailants lost one officer and two men killed and seven men wounded, out of a landing force of 680. Lieutenant McKee was mortally wounded in leading the assault on the citadel; a warm tribute to his memory is paid by Admiral Rogers in the general order. Having accomplished its work, the expedition withdrew to the anchorage of the fleet, and the Admiral will no doubt await instructions from Washington before pursuing his success. It is thought likely that the fleet may return to Chefoo, pending the arrival of reinforcements.

ADMIRAL RODGERS'S GENERAL ORDER.

Anchorage, Boisee, June 12th, 1871.

The Commander-in-Chief has pleasure as well as pride in making known to the officers, seamen and marines of the Asiatic Fleet his high satisfaction at the gallantry and endurance evinced by them in the recent operations against the Koreans on Kang-Hwa Island.

On the 1st instant, while the Monocacy, Palos and four steam launches were engaged in surveying, they were suddenly assailed by a storm of missiles from masked batteries on the shore.

With the greatest promptitude and gallantry this treacherous attack was met, and the enemy driven from his guns and his position.

The Korean Government having failed to make any apology for this murderous attack, on the 10th inst. an expedition, consisting of a landing force detailed from the Colorado, Alaska and Benicia, under Commander L. A. Kimberly, with the gunboats Monocacy and Palos, all under Commander H. C. Blake, commanding-in-chief, was despatched to punish the enemy.

The operations of the 10th and 11th instant, which resulted in the capture of five smaller forts, culminated on the 11th in taking, by assault, the enemy's stronghold, located in a most formidable position at a very dangerous part of the river, and desperately defended.

Two hundred and forty-three of the enemy's dead were counted within and around these works, and fifty flags were taken.

The works were formidable, not only from the natural features of the land, from shoals and violent currents in the river, but were rendered artificially so by hundreds of weapons of various kinds, placed by the enemy for their defence.

The gallant band which encountered and overcame the perils of the navigation, which fought its way, against vastly superior forces, through mud and marsh, over precipitous hills and across difficult ravines, and finally stormed and captured the enemy's stronghold, is worthy of all praise.

To one and all the Commander-in-Chief expresses his thanks and the pride he feels in commanding such a body of officers and men. He makes known to the commanding officers of vessels his obligations for the efficient drill and organisation which have produced the reliable force composing the Asiatic fleet.

To those brave men now suffering from their wounds he tenders his hearty sympathy.

While rejoicing in the success achieved by our arms, he expresses his profound sorrow for the loss of those gallant men who gave up their lives in vindicating the honour of their flag.

While deploring their loss, let us preserve the memory of their bravery.

Among the honoured dead whose loss we deplore is Lieut. Hugh W. McKee, who, gallantly leading his men to the assault, fell mortally wounded in the centre of the citadel, which he was the first to scale.

His memory is the more endeared to us because we knew him, and his gallantry will be cherished by all as a bright example to the service.

JOHN RODGERS,

Commander-in-Chief of the Asiatic Fleet.

A Chinkiang correspondent writes:—We have no more news about Chen-kwo-jui and his friend Li-san-chou, except that both are in prison in Nanking, one in the Viceroy's, the other in the Tartar General's Yamen. It is currently believed that Tseng-kwo-fan has advised the Government to degrade both. But the respectable Chinese here still hope that the former at least may be executed, and I need hardly add that foreigners warmly endorse the wish.

H.B.M.'s Consul visited Yangchow last week, and found a very satisfactory state of things in that city. He went all over the place; and the people, one and all, were well behaved and civil. One little boy called out "foreign devil," and he was immediately taken to task for using the expression by the people near him.

The Chinese have a report of serious disturbances in Hunan caused by disbanded braves. The province is full of these characters, too proud to beg, and too idle to work. The pay of the soldiers actually under arms, too, is largely in arrears, and they naturally sympathise with the others. Lihung chang was appointed Viceroy of the two Hoo, on purpose to overawe the Hunanese; and the occurrence of disturbances is a natural result of his removal. Li-han-chang, his brother and successor, a mild gentlemanly kind of man, is not at all one of the awe-inspiring sort, and fails to control the rowdies. A memorial by the Governor, on the taxation of the province will go far to explain the condition to which Imperial misgovernment has brought it.

The Peking Gazette of June 10 contains an eulogy of Wojen, the Emperor's late tutor, who, as our Tientsin correspondent's letter of the 15th inst. noticed, died on the 8th. He was preceptor to the former Emperor as well as to the present one, having acted as Governor of Moukden in the interval. A tolo pall is decreed—a high posthumous honour.

Tungchow remains quiet. There has been no talk lately of killing foreigners. The city walls have been thoroughly repaired, and the soldiers more assiduously drilled for some months past than during previous years. These things have, however, no local significance, but are doubtless in obedience to orders from the capital. The people are gathering their wheat crops, which seems to be an average one. The droughts which prevailed to the west and north have not been so serious in this part of the province.

The North-German barque Chusan has been wrecked on the coast of Korea. The crew embarked in two boats. One, under the chief officer, reached Chefoo on the 9th. Nothing has been heard of the other, in which was the captain. The French gunboat Scorpion had gone out in search. H.M.'s corvette Barrosa arrived in port on the 18th, from Hong Kong, and was followed a few hours afterwards by H.M.'s despatch vessel Salamis, flying the flag of Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Kellett, K.C.B., from Nagasaki. On the following day H.M.'s ships Ocean and Adventure (the latter with the battalion of marines on board) also arrived at Chefoo.

The Kiangsi has brought into port the captain and part of the crew of the North German barque Nouman, whom she had picked up near the lightship. The Malay members of the crew mutinied, killed the mate, and severely wounded the captain, who, however, managed to reach his cabin, and kept off his assailants with his revolver. They then seem to have set fire to the ship, and jumped overboard. The captain and remainder of the crew ran the ship in close to the Saddles, and then had to take to the boat to escape the fire.

Both the P and O. and M. M. Companies announce reductions to Tls. 5 in the rate of freight on silk to London and Marseilles, and Tls. 5.60 to Lyons and Genoa. The former offers to carry at Tls. 6, and the latter at Tls. 7 to Brindisi, Trieste, Basle, and Milan; and the latter at Tls. 6 to Paris, and Tls. 8 to New York.

Notice has been given that the creditors of R. F. Thorburn must enter their claims by the 3rd July.

On the 19th June the case of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank v. Tombruik, trustee in the estate of Glover and Co., came before Mr. Justice Goodwin, on appeal from the ruling of Mr. Acting Consul Annesley, at Nagasaki (reported in our issue of the 5th July). After hearing the arguments of Mr. Rennie, for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Bird, for the defendant, the learned judge ruled that, when the first mortgage had been paid off, the proper thing to do would be to return the securities to Glover and Co. and let the other parties take steps to establish their rights. The claim was for Tls. 2,618 only; but the plaintiff demanded the delivery of goods valued at a larger sum. The Court eventually made an order that defendant pay to plaintiffs the sum of Tls. 2,618, and the latter then surrender to defendants the security. The judgment of Mr. Acting Consul Annesley, at Nagasaki, was thus confirmed.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to July 7. The outward mail of May 19 arrived on June 29.

The following summary of news is from the China Mail:—We hear that the Chinese-Macao difficulty is likely to be amicably settled, without, as it has been rumoured, resorting to force. Mr. Markwick, of the Imperial Customs service at Canton, we understand, has proceeded to Macao in the Customs cruiser Pung Chew Hai to settle this vexed question. The Portuguese Government only object to the too close proximity of the proposed Customs House to Macao, and wish it to be removed to a further distance from H.F.M.'s territory.

A well deserved compliment has been paid by a number of leading Chinese in this colony to Capt. Tough, late of the United Service steamer, which he has commanded for a long time in the trade between Hong Kong, Shanghai and Saigon. It becoming known that he was about leaving for England, they waited upon him, and with due ceremonial presented him with a handsome richly worked silk flag and streamers, gong, &c., &c., with an appropriate address expressive of their high esteem for him, and of their wishes for his speedy return. Captain Tough replied in suitable terms, declaring the pleasure which such a compliment afforded him. We understand that Captain Roper, whose name is familiarly welcome here, succeeds to the command of the United Service.

One of the senior inspectors (Mr. Grey) will proceed home by the mail leaving for England, in order to bring out forty European constables for the Hong Kong police force. We hope on the arrival of these men the efficiency of the force may be greatly augmented. Steady men must be procured, however, otherwise they will be worse than useless.

We hear from native sources that a tempest of a most destructive character has recently passed over the central portions of the Che-kiang province. The departmental cities of Kin-hua and Shao-shing are said to have suffered most severely. Scarcely a house is left standing, and the hillsides are bare of trees, which have all been uprooted by the fury of the tempest. We shall be curious to see how far the statements of our native informants will be confirmed by the receipt of news from the North.

On the receipt of intelligence concerning the fate of the British ship Mirage, Mr. Kwok Acheong, the owner, proceeded with Capt. Finch in the steamer Yottung to the scene of the wreck, which they reached after eighteen hours' steaming. The vessel was found to be lying over on one side off Haeling Island, with very little of the deck above water. Everything had been removed by the natives, who had gone on board in boats. As soon as the steamer was in sight they all scampered away as fast as they could. All the masts had been sawn off, and the deck planks and everything movable in the shape of copper fastenings, &c., had been forcibly severed and carried away. The vessel is valued at $10,000, while her cargo, consisting of rice, copper sheathing, teak planks, ivory, birds' nests, spices, &c., was stated at between $70,000 and $80,000. The goods were to a large extent insured, being owned by several hong, but the vessel was not. Mr. Kwok Acheong has sent persons down to the scene of the wreck to open negotiations with the natives for the purchase of the goods they have plundered. The wreck is still said to be worth $6,000, but the expense of getting the vessel off and towed into this port is too great to make the undertaking a profitable one. The Yottung met a French vessel outside in a disabled state, but she refused proffered assistance; she was in ballast, and was making for Hong Kong.

The 4th of July has been celebrated with a great deal of quiet demonstration and friendly interchange of good feeling between our American residents and their friends. The usual salute was not fired, owing to the absence of the American war vessels at the Korea, but the Pacific mail steamer Japan, which arrived shortly after noon, made partial compensation by the firing of her signal guns. The news from the Korea, which was brought down by the William Miller in the early forenoon, lent an opportune zest to the abounding congratulations. Most of the American houses were thoroughly "independent," as became the "glorious 4th," but all were equally hospitable, as became the cosmopolitan spirit of Hong Kong.

A further dividend of two per cent. on the estate of Dent & Co. is announced for payment on 1st August.

BANGKOK.

Dates by this mail extend to the 5th July. The London mail of May 17 arrived June 24.

The following items are from the Siam Advertiser:—

The rainfall of the past week has been such as to inspire hopes that the paddy for the next season will be abundant.

It is rumoured that the British steamer Bangkok has been purchased by the Siamese authorities, and that she will soon cease to run as one of the line of steamers plying regularly between this port and Singapore.

It has long been rumoured that H.M. the Supreme King of Siam was contemplating a visit to British India. The proposed visit is now a matter of general conversation among the Siamese noblemen, many of whom are looking forward to it, manifestly with much interest. Though the time for the contemplated visit is still in the distance preliminary preparations for it are evidently being made. We hear that an offer was made for the purchase of the American steamer Luzon, with a view of using her for the intended trip, but that the amount proposed was declined by the captain, who named a sum which the Siamese hesitated to give, with their certain prospects of being able to secure the British steamer Bangkok as their own.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

The following items are from the Sarawak Gazette :—

The steps taken by the Government against the disaffected population on the Katibas river, and at the head of the Batang Lupar, have so far been marked with success. The news of the expeditions under Orang Kaya Empaling and Mingat sets the question at rest as to whether the Dyak Balas, to whom the task of dealing with the enemy has been entrusted, are equal to the emergency. The addition of the doughty warriors of Undup to the Bala of Lang Endang will doubtless render him more than a match for any force which he may fall in with at Mujok and the Upper Katibas, if he has not already met and dispersed the enemy there. The actual effect of these expeditions on the mind of the Katibas may be judged from the wish expressed by Mumbang and others to enter into friendly relations with the Government; though it is but right to add, that the operations of the Dutch force against these Tuahs which resulted in the burning of their houses, must have had a considerable influence on them, apart from our own exertions. The moment these border tribes are made to feel that they no longer secure safety by crossing into our neighbours' territory, there can be no question that nothing will remain for them to do but to submit; and vigorous assistance given once or twice by Dutch residents will do as much towards restoring quiet amongst them as any little campaigns, however spirited on the part of our people.

The Gambling Farm at Kalaka was sold by public auction on the 20th June at an increase of 210 dollars per month.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this opportunity are to the 14th July. On the 5th the Orissa arrived with the English mail of 2nd June; and, on the 10th, the Ara came in with the French mail and London letters to the 9th June.

The following is from the summary of the Straits Times :—

The event of the greatest local interest during the fortnight has been the action of H. M. S. Rinaldo and the Colonial steamer Pluto with the Malays at Salangore. The Pluto had gone with a party of police in search of a junk which had been taken and the crew murdered by the passengers. The junk was found in the river at Salangore, a place in Malacca Straits, and after landing and conferring with a son of the Sultan, the police succeeded in recovering a part of the property and securing nine of the pirates. They would have taken more prisoners and got more of the property, but that some of the other Rajahs interfered, and their men threatened violence to the police, who then withdrew and returned to their vessel. The Pluto was also fired upon from the native forts, and then went to Penang with the junk and the pirates. A telegram was at once sent to H.E. the Administrator, and H. M. S. Rinaldo went down, and after her men had been treacherously fired upon and wounded while endeavouring to persuade the Rajahs to come on board the Pluto and settle the matter amicably, she went in next day, and after a spirited action succeeded in destroying the forts. She went in again afterwards, with the Pluto and a party of Sepoys, and completely demolished the forts, spiked the guns, and burned the town, all the inhabitants having fled. The place is a regular nest of pirates, and the punishment inflicted by the Rinaldo will have a beneficial effect.

On the 3rd of July the question of the cancellation of the appointment of temporary judge was brought forward by Mr. Adamson and Mr. Greenshields. The explanation offered by the Government is at least a full and straightforward one, and, we think, places the affair in a different and decidedly better light than it was previously viewed in. There has been no attempt to interfere with the judge, on the grounds that Government was involved in a particular case coming on for trial. The Colonial Secretary explains that the appointment of Mr. Owen was essentially a temporary one, and that before having the oaths of office administered to him, the limited range of the duties expected of him were clearly explained, so limited, indeed, did the executive estimate this range, that they distinctly declined to relieve him of his ordinary duties as magistrate and commissioner of the Court of Requests. There can be no question of this, and the good faith of the Government in their action both as concerns Mr. Owen and the public. Still, however, the principle enunciated and acted upon is a dangerous and a bad one. A judge is a judge—whether temporary or otherwise; by the oath of office which he takes, he is bound to discharge his duties on the Bench to the best of his own judgment, and if the scope and direction of these duties is to be limited by the Executive, then the oath is an illusion. We can understand the reluctance of the Executive, as expressed in the Colonial Secretary's letter to the bar, to nominate a comparatively junior officer in the service to so important an office, even temporarily, as that of judge—in so far, that such nomination must more or less embarrass the Government in its future selection to judiciary promotion; but, having overcome that reluctance and made the appointment, it should have attempted to attach to it no special conditions, and above all things, have avoided the scandal of a peremptory cancellation of it, when in a few days more it would have quietly lapsed by the arrival from Penang of the acting Chief Justice.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council on July 6 a Bill was introduced for the purpose of sanctioning the introduction of road steamers to run between the town and Sunghie Kranjie, opposite Johore. The scheme is projected by private enterprise, and may prove of vast benefit to the island; it is, for the present at least, preferable to a railway, as instead of stopping at regular stations, the trains will run along the highway, and discharge passengers and goods at any point of the road. The publication of the proceedings of the Legislative Council in the New Harbour Railway inquiry have not yet been published, though we believe they are nearly ready.

The criminal session opened on the 7th, before Sir William Hackett, and most of the cases have been disposed of. There are only two or three cases of any weight, the greater part being for minor offences. A seaman named William Smith, of the ship Queen of the Seas, which arrived on the 4th July, was acquitted on the charge of having caused the death of his mate, John Hollands, on the voyage from Cardiff to Singapore, by striking him on the head with a capstan bar, all the evidence tending to show that he did it in self-defence.

The speech of his Excellency the Governor of Labuan on the opening of the Legislative Council, shows the satisfactory state of the finances of that colony under the management of Governor Hennessey, and a very encouraging picture for the future. Labuan, which before Mr. Hennessey's time required a grant-in-aid from the Home Government, is not only able to dispense with this, but can boast of a very creditable surplus.

We learn of the loss of the British ship Glenavon, 835 tons, Captain Henderson, in Gaspar Straits. She was from Cardiff, bound to Shanghai, coal laden, and is a total loss. The ship and cargo were to be sold by auction on the 15th July.

Drills: Demand limited, but holders firm at an advance of 5 candareens. Jeans: Improved; English, Tls. 2.20 to 2.25 per piece. Fancy and Dyed Cottons: Market very dull; a few cases of Turkey Reds sold at Tls. 1.95 to 2.8, and Dyed Brocades at Tls. 2.90 to 3, but quotations nearly nominal. Woollens and Worsteds: Importers asking advanced rates, which had somewhat curtailed business. Camlets: 2 to 3 mace higher. Long Ells: Neglected. Good Spanish Stripes: Asked for up to 52 cents per yard. Orleans and Lustres: Figures not asked for, quoted Tls. 3.50 to 3.80 for ordinary to good assortments and quality; and Crapes, Tls. 3.20 to 3.30 per piece. Lead: Dull, with a large stock. Quicksilver: Nominal at Tls. 70 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—Cotton Piece Goods: At the date of departure of the last mail telegrams from London, advising a reaction at home and advancing prices for Cotton and Cotton Goods, were received at this port, and caused much excitement. Subsequent telegrams confirming the first report, dealers displayed more anxiety to purchase, and bought heavily of Grey Shirtings at Tls. 1.75 to 1.83 per piece for common to good 8½ lb. and Tls. 1.85 to 1.90 per piece for best. At the close rates were fully 1c. to 3c. per piece over the latter prices; 7 lb. Shirtings were worth Tls. 1.57 to 1.66 per piece, and Tls. 2.25 to 2.60 were offered for the 910/12 lbs. textiles. Heavy settlements had been made, exceeding 265,000 pieces. White Shirtings: 24,000 pieces reported settled; standard 64-reeds sold at Tls. 2.05, an advance of 5 cents on last quotations.

T-Cloths: Trade had been very extensive. Mexican qualities had been most wanted, but the supply being almost exhausted buyers had been thrown upon the better kinds of the commoner counts. For 6 lb. Mexicans as high as Tls. 1.50 per piece had been paid, but the ruling rates had been Tls. 1.44/48 for 6 lb., and Tls. 1.60/67 for 7 lb. Drills: Dealers had operated freely at a further advance. Tls. 2.90 refused for English 15 lb., which for last mail sold at Tls. 2.80 to 2.82, and best Dutch were held for Tls. 3.00. Americans changed hands at Tls. 3.15 per piece for a lot of mixed chops. Jeans: Few sales at Tls. 2.25 for English, Tls. 2.37 for best Dutch, and Tls. 2.50 for best American. Sheetings: Without alteration, no stock. Fancy Cottons, with few exceptions, still very difficult to move. Velvets had been in better request, but holders have raised their prices to 16 and 17c. per yard, and so limited business. Small parcels of Brocades, Spotted and Turkey Red had found buyers at former quotations. Woollens: Figured Orleans, sales of good patterns and assortment at Tls. 3.75. Former purchases of Spanish Stripes resold at a profit of 2½c. per yard; C.P.H. and other good chops of well assorted Camlets, quitted at over Tls. 12.00 per piece. Long Ellis: C.P.H. Scarlet could not be bought at Tls. 5.25 to 5.30 per piece, assorted also higher. Cape Lustres, settlements trifling, prices unchanged. Lastings, small business at former rates. Cape Lastings changed hands at rather easier prices. Metals: Lead continues unsaleable. Iron: 3,000 bundles Nail Rod Iron settled at Tls. 2.15 to 2.20 best assortments. Coals: The market is firmer for Cardiff, sales to arrive at Tls. 9.

HONG KONG.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co. report as follows:—Cotton Yarn: Inquiry for Canton and other country markets having strengthened a good business has been done at improved prices for all counts. Nos. 16 to 24 have been largely and steadily dealt in, and as supplies on offer are now small, the market closes very firm at a rise in values of $2.50 to 3 per bale. Nos. 28 to 32 have been moderately taken at rates $2.50 to 4.30 higher, at which rise they are now steadily held. Nos. 38 to 42 have found buyers for the Tung King District, and are now quoted $2.50 to 5.00 dearer. Piece Goods: The transactions of the fortnight aggregate very moderately, and as compared with those of the preceding interval are only about one-fourth as large; prices for Grey Goods, however, have undergone no change for the worse, but have been further strengthened near the close by the telegrams to hand reporting a firmer market in Manchester. Grey Shirtings have been completely neglected, as natives are still large holders from late heavy purchases; values of all weights unchanged. White Shirtings present no new feature for comment, a slight advance in the better kinds being the only change noticeable. Drills are little wanted, and the advance last reported in all kinds has been lost; English and Dutch have found buyers at the fall, but American are not asked for. In T-Cloths, 6 lbs. common are held for a rise of 2½c., while 6 lbs. Mexicans are quiet and unchanged; 7 lbs. common are saleable at figures 2½c. dearer, and 7 lbs. Mexicans are readily bought "to arrive" at an advance of 2½c.; 8 lbs. are in demand, and now realise a rise of 5c. per piece. Previous quotations rule for Brocades, Spotted Shirtings, and Chintzes. Woollens: A further improvement has taken place in all fabrics except Cape Lastings, which are not wanted and are unchanged in value. Scarlet Long Ellis are firmly held at an advance of 10c. to 20c., as supplies offering are limited. Assorted are higher 20c. to 25c., but inquiry is not active at the moment. Spanish Stripes have not been actively dealt in, but a marked rise of 5c. per yard is noticeable. 10 lbs. Blankets are readily saleable at last rates, and 7 lbs. are dearer. Good Lastings are in small stock, and are quoted 50c. higher. Camlets are strongly held for a further advance of 50c. Metals: Nail Rod Iron is little wanted at unchanged values, while Bar and Hoop are quiet at a decline of 5c. to 10c. Lead is very dull at a fall of 5c. Tin is slightly dearer but not in demand. Tin Plates are dull. Quicksilver is $1 higher. Coals: Arrivals have been 3,636 tons of Cardiff, and 1,000 tons of Australian. Sales have been 472 tons Cardiff at $10 per ton. Australian and Anthracite continue neglected. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, $108 to 115 per bale; Nos. 28 to 32, $112 to 120; Nos. 38 to 42, $120 to 127. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.10 to 2.15 per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.37 to 2.42½; 9.12 to 10 lbs., $3.30 to 3.40. White Shirtings, $1.35 to 2.85; fine, $3.10 to 4.80; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., ordinary, $1.50 to 1.55; Mexicans, $1.65 to 1.75; 7 lbs., ordinary, $1.70 to 1.75; Mexicans, $1.95 to 2.12½; 8 to 8.4 oz., $2.35 to 2.45. Spanish Stripes, Scarlet, £64 to 69 per yard; Assorted, £62 to 67; German, £91 to 92. Long Ellis, Scarlet, $6.80 to 7 per piece; Assorted, $5.50 to 5.80. Camlets, SS Scarlet, $15.50 to 15.70; SS Assorted, $15 to 15.50. Lastings, 30 yards, 31 inches, $12.75 to 15.25. Cape Lastings, $7.25 to 8.50.

FOOCHOW.—Sales were reported of T-Cloths, 7 lbs., at $2.12½; Grey Shirtings, 8½ lbs., at $2.70. Closing quotations:—T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.65 to 1.75; 7 lbs., $1.92 to 2.20; Grey Shirtings, $2.25; 8½ lbs., $2.62 to 2.70; Lead, $6½ to 6¾ per picul.

MANILA.—The market had undergone little change. For White Shirtings there had been a moderate inquiry, but other plain staples were in little demand. Coloured Goods were dull, and in some instances lower.

SINGAPORE.—We extract the following from Messrs. Boustead's report:—Grey Shirtings: The demand for 8½ lb. moderate, and to effect sales lower prices accepted; transactions at $2.42½ to 2.40; 7 lb. and 6 lb. in very limited request; some inquiry for 9 lb. at $2.80 to 2.82½; other weights neglected. T-Cloths: Slight advance, but inquiry limited; 5 lb., $1.25 to 1.27½; 6 lb., $1.55 to 1.57½; 7 lb., $1.75 to 1.77½. Maddapollams: Inquiry has been confined to 2½ to 2½ lb.; sales at $16½ to 16½ and 17 respectively. Long Cloths: No transactions. White Shirtings: Quotations unchanged; good inquiry for favourite makes of fine; medium and low descriptions in less request; 45-inch neglected, and nominal. White Spots: Limited inquiry. White Brocades: No demand. White Cambrics: Very little demand. White Maddapollams: Quotations nominal; no demand. Velvets still neglected; stocks. Turkey Red Cambrics: 2½ lb., $2 to 2.02½, and 2½ lb. $2.07½; 3 lb. dull at $2.25. Woollen Goods: Without improvement; very dull of sale. Grey Yarn: Moderate transactions in 40's at $108 to 109; other counts dull. Turkey Reds: Favourite marks saleable at $127 to 129 for 10 lb., and $133 to 135 for 12 lb. Glasgow dye.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

KIUKIANG.—No settlements of Black Teas had been made, nearly all arrivals having been forwarded to Shanghai. Reports regarding New Greens were conflicting.

HANKOW.—The following is Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s report, dated 23rd June:—We last advised you on the 10th inst., since when a considerable quantity of Tea has been settled here, viz:—38,695 chests 11,928 half-chests, against 18,000 chests 4,400 half-chests during the corresponding fortnight last year. The greater part of the settlements were made immediately after the departure of the mail, business at the close of the fortnight, owing to the undesirable nature of the small stock offering, being of a very trifling character. The advance in rates reported in our last has been steadily maintained up to the present, and for anything possessing a little quality Teamen are still very firm. The average range of prices at which settlements have been made is Tls. 13.80 to 14½ for Shuntam Tea and Tls. 16½ to 25 for medium to fine Oopacks and Oonams, a few better parcels selling up to Tls. 29 to 30. Oonams still continue in favour, and have been readily taken at Tls. 23 to 25. Total settlements to date are—236,070 chests 118,975 half-chests, against last year 225,600 chests 33,490 half-chests, showing an increase of 10,470 chests 85,574 half-chests, which is owing to the much larger quantity of Ningchow Tea forwarded to this port this year. The shipments on native account to Shanghai are considerably less than last year, namely, 41,000 chests, against 96,000 chests. A few chops of mixed first and second crop Teas have come to hand, and two or three settlements are reported at Tls. 22½ to 22½. We quote Oopacks and Oonams, fair to medium, Tls. 19 to 24; Shuntams and low Oonams, Tls. 14 to 18½.

SHANGHAI.—Black: A large business had been transacted at rather irregular rates. Choice Ningchows showed an advance, but common and medium Teas had been bought at prices much on a par with those existing at the time of the departure of the last English mail. Supplies had been fairly liberal, and embraced almost all the first crop yield to come forward. Second crop Teas were looked for in bulk in a few days; musters of the few shown were of rather good quality. Consequent on the free shipments of the month, the market closed quiet, with a drooping tendency. Settlements for the fortnight, 48,000 chests; re-shipments on owners' account, 40,000 chests; stock, 175 chops, or 69,000 packages. Quotations (duty paid, exchange at 6s. 0½d., freight at £2 10s.)—Hohow, fair to fine, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 6½d.; Oonam, common, 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1d.; Oonam, fair to good, 1s. 4½d. to 1s. 8½d.; Ningchow, fair to choice, 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 11½d.; Oopack, common to fine, 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 9½d. Green: Pinqueys had been in active demand during the fortnight, principally for American account, and prices had advanced from three to four taels upon opening rates. Quotations were Tls. 38.5 for chops containing some common lines to Tls. 61.5 for fine lines in boxes. The few musters at hand at the date of the last report had led to the supposition that the crop would be as good as that of last year, but that opinion had not been confirmed. A few parcels of fine Teas had been received, but the bulk of arrivals, comprising about three-fourths of the first crop, were very much inferior to last season's growth, and taking this into account, present prices were estimated to be fully five taels over last year's opening quotations. Settlements for the fortnight, 12,519 half-chests. Stock, 14,663 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—Transactions during the past week had been on a large scale; and common medium Teas costing from Tls. 16 to 20 showed an advance (taking quality into consideration) of from a tael to a tael and a half per picul. Finer kinds continued to be taken at full prices. A few parcels, mixed second crop, had been settled at extreme rates. Settlements of Congou for the fortnight amounted to 96,345 chests at Tls. 5 to 27. The following were the current quotations, the cost at which teas lay down in London calculated at exchange of 4s. 5½d. and freight £3:—Dust and siftings, 6½d. to 8½d.; broken leaf to ordinary, 9d. to 11½d.; fair to good common, 11½d. to 1s. 1½d.; flavour to medium, 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 6½d.; good medium to fine, 1s. 7d. to 1s. 8d. Souchongs are beginning to arrive more freely, but had been dealt in sparingly, owing to extreme rates asked by teamen. The quality of the crop was disappointing; settlements at Tls. 29; a small chop of boxes at Tls. 45. Oolongs: Small settlements at Tls. 21 to 23 for fair to good cargo grades. These teas were arriving more freely than in former seasons, and the fine kinds from Saryune were expected down during July. Settlements at Tls. 18 to 27. Scented Teas: Settlements at Tls. 24 for Caper, and Tls. 26 to 32 for Scented Orange Pekoe. Flowery Pekoes: Settlements at Tls. 28 to 60.

AMOI.—Purchases began on June 23, and since that date an eager competition had existed, Oolongs having been bought up as fast as brought to market. Prices paid for these Teas had been high, ranging from $2 to 6 above those ruling last season; and as many of the chops had been settled before being placed on offer, Teamen continued to demand extreme rates. Settlements aggregate about 35,000 half-chests, while arrivals had been only about 24,000 half-chests. Quotations: Fair cargo, $26 to 28; good cargo, $29 to 31; superior, $32 to 36; fine to finest, $37 to 42. Supplies of Congou thus far received had been small, and about 3,000 half-chests had been settled at prices above those of last season. The British barques Lanercost and Ardentenny, chartered in Hong Kong, were expected to load for New York.

CANTON.—A quiet tone prevailed during the first part of the interval, but latterly a little more disposition to meet the views of buyers being shown by the teamen, a moderate business had been the result. The common to medium descriptions do not show much change, but medium to fine and finest may be quoted Tls. 2 lower. Scented Orange Pekoes were firmer in price, and the short leaf descriptions commanded ready sale at full rates, Tls. 17 to 18.50 being paid for these kinds. For Canton Greens there was little inquiry at the prices required by teamen. Settlements:—Scented Orange Pekoe, 11,000 boxes at Tls. 17 to 30; Scented Caper, 9,000 boxes at Tls. 15 to 32; Gunpowder, 1,000 boxes at Tls. 16 to 26.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—Telegrams have been received almost daily during the past fortnight, announcing a great improvement on the home market, this has naturally caused much excitement here, and prices have been driven up 10 to 30 per picul; dealers report the second crop as being satisfactorily secured, and that 50,000 bales will be about the quantity available for export. The following are a few of the prices paid:—Koo Fong Sing chop 3rd, 28s. 3d. to 28s. 8d., Chooping check chop 3rd, 28s. 3d. 28s. 8d., Dragon chop 3rd, 28s. 3d. to 28s. 8d., Cock and Worm chop 3rd, 28s. to 28s. 3d., Yankee chop 3rd, 28s. 3d., Donkey, 28s. to 28s. 3d., Powing Cat and Bee chop, 27s. 2d. to 27s. 5d., Blue Flag chop 3, No. 3, 26s. to 26s. 6d., Gold Lion, No. 1 and 2, 27s. to 26s., Euke fung Elephant chop, 26s., Kukee Chin Jan, 25s. 8d. to 26s., Red Peacock, 25s. 2d. to 25s. 7d., Dancing Bear, No. 2 and 3, 24s. 8d. to 23s. 8d., Medium and Common Tsaltee, 24s. 5d. to 22s. 4d., Fatimow Haineen 24s. 5d. to 24s. 11d., Ching Yuen Sing Tinghow Kahing, 26s. 5d. Prices for all Silk with character and quality are firmly held and advancing.

CANTON.—For fine Tsaltee and Loong Kongs there had been considerable inquiry for Europe, and prices for these kinds were firmer, but the commoner descriptions of Silk had been offered at easier rates. A large business had been done for Europe, settlements amounting to 600 bales. For America transactions had been very limited. Quotations: Tsaltee, best selected $515 per picul; Loong Kong, $535 to 540; Re-reel Cumchook, best selected, $525 to 530; ditto, Cumchook, market No. 1, $510 to 515.

STRAITS PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—There had been a good demand for Produce of all descriptions; prices were well maintained, and a fair amount of business had transpired. Gambier was bought to a small extent in the early part of the fortnight on slightly easier terms, but latterly the price had hardened, and the bulk of the business was done at $2.85 per picul; about 1,050 tons had been contracted for. Rhio Gambier: In fair demand and considerable business done, price weaker than last quoted. Black Pepper: Again advanced; active inquiry, and still rising. White Pepper: Scarce and only to be obtained in small lots; higher prices paid. Pearl Sago: In fair demand and firmer. Sago Flour: Weaker, and supplies bought at lower rates. Tapioca: Rapidly risen, eager demand. Tin: Bought early in the fortnight at $32½ to 33 per picul, but telegrams of a further rise at home had caused the price to advance. Nutmegs and Mace had risen considerably. The Rice market was rather weaker; a moderate business had been done in Rangoon.

SHIP LAUNCHES.

On the 17th inst., Messrs. John Elder and Co. launched from their building-yard at Govan, Clyde, an iron screw-steamer for the Steam-vant Nederland Company. The vessel, which is an exceedingly fine craft, is designed and has been constructed for the company's service between Amsterdam and Java, via the Suez Canal. She measures 350 feet in length between perpendiculars, 39 feet in width of beam, and 31 feet in moulded width. Her gross measurement is 3,000 tons builder's measurement, and she is propelled by compound high and low pressure engines of 400-horse nominal, but capable of being worked up to 2,000. In her construction and equipment she has been fitted with all the latest improvements. Her saloon is elegant and commodious, her staterooms are capacious, light, and well aired, and they are furnished in a style of great elegance and beauty, while the comfort of passengers has been sedulously cared for. She has ample accommodation for 100 first-class, fifty second, and a number of third-class passengers. As the vessel glided off the ways she was named the Prins Hendrick by Mrs. Elder. The Prins Hendrick is similar to the Willem III. and the Prins van Orange, launched for the same company by Messrs. Elder and Co., with the exception that she is twenty feet longer than those vessels. Like them, she is amply lighted and ventilated, and possesses a large carrying capacity, with a light draft of water. The firm have yet another vessel on the stocks for the same company.

Last week there was launched from Messrs. Hall, Russell, and Co.'s building yard, Footdee, Aberdeen, a handsome screw steamer of the following dimensions:—Length, 160 feet; breadth, 24 feet; depth, 16 feet 6 inches. This vessel, which is named the Hailong, is 480 tons register, and 65-horse power, and is intended for the China coasting trade. She is owned by Messrs. James Morrison and Co., London, and is to be commanded by Captain Farrow.

NEW SEASON'S TEA SHIPS.

We have to add to our previous record of arrivals the Danube, from Canton, on the 16th (fifty-seven days), the Cheops, from Hankow, on the same day, and the Agamemnon, from Hankow, on the 18th inst. The Cheops brings a cargo amounting to 1,575,560 lbs, and the Agamemnon 2,392,004 lbs.
The Canton, from Canton, left Aden on the 26th ult., and passed through the Suez Canal on the 10th inst.; the Diomed, Emblehope, and Vanguard have also passed the Canal. The Statesman, from Foochow, left Aden on the 17th inst.

MALOO MIXTURE.

The last number of the Food Journal contains the following article—signed "Cha"—on the subject of spurious Tea:—
The occasional seizures of spurious Tea will have the effect of exciting the attention of the public, who should naturally be alive to anything concerning the adulteration of food, and more especially with regard to that universal beverage Tea. It is not the poor alone who are concerned in this matter, but the rich also, who have become most critical of late as to the quality of the Tea which they consume so largely. The recent disclosures are certainly most startling, and many will take for granted, that while seeking the cheapest Tea for the sake of economy, they have been victimised to a certain extent. It is not, perhaps, generally known of late years, owing to the great demand for Tea, and the difficulties attending its cultivation and transport, caused by the general disturbance throughout China, an inducement has been held out to the Chinese of the lowest class to resort to the practice of preparing the used Tea leaves, so as to make them resemble the marketable Tea. To a low-class Chinaman, such a proceeding was quite in keeping with his natural ingenuity, and there was no difficulty in collecting an unlimited quantity of used Tea leaves from the Tea houses, which are as numerous in a Chinese city as the public are in ours. I have frequently seen in my rambles through Shanghai large quantities of these Tea-leaves in process of drying, and otherwise being prepared for sale to the foreign merchants. Though it was impossible to get any precise information how this was done, it struck me from always observing large quantities of buffalo droppings heaped up in the drying yards where the Tea-leaves were spread out, that this ingredient was largely used to impart colouring-matter and flavour to the leaves, so as to make them resemble Black Tea, and probably the mass obtained an addition of weight from the clay of the floor on which it was spread. No doubt Tea-leaves so treated in unfavourable conditions of the weather—the drying was done in the open air—would cause a certain amount of decay or breakage of the leaves to take place, but otherwise there would be little difficulty in making the Tea-leaves assume once more the appearance which they presented before infusion. I also had frequent opportunities of noticing that Green Tea was prepared in an almost similar manner, with this difference, that instead of using buffalo droppings, which would impart a brown colour, the leaf, being originally the early growth of the spring, and not the usual matured leaf of the Tea plant it was 'renovated' by means of some acrid bitter fruits of a species of unripe rhamnus, &c., which were cut up and thrown into the heap of damp leaves, and allowed to remain in it for a certain time. They were afterwards withdrawn, as soon as sufficient bitterness was imparted. The Tea leaves were then submitted to a process of drying, rolling, &c., so as to make them resemble, as closely as possible, the Green Tea of commerce. The appearances of the Teas examined by Drs. Letheby and Stenhouse may be thus accounted for. Of course our Tea merchants in China are fully aware of these, and doubtless many other rogues of the Chinamen; but the great competition for trade, and the eagerness to realise the utmost profits by every possible means, now so much in vogue amongst all but the most respectable of the merchants, induce them to traffic in such supposititious articles, of the existence of which the disclosures now made public are but the sad evidence. Unfortunately, there is much facility for this kind of questionable practice in the Tea trade. Tea is the most complicated food product that we consume, and did we know all the preparations, mixtures, roastings and re-roastings, sortings, &c., which it undergoes from the time when it is collected from the shrub growing on the Chinese hills to its final infusion in the Teapot, we should be no less amazed at its history than at the intricacies of the trade which brings it to its ultimate destination. But notwithstanding Chinese roguery, we need not be afraid of being always imposed upon in buying our Tea. There is still good Tea produced in China. There are merchants who import it in an unadulterated state, and there are honest tradesmen who sell it.

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

The following are the names of the vessels belonging to the Mediterranean and Channel Fleets which, united with the detached squadron and the reserve ships, are now cruising, and form a total force of twenty-five vessels, of which nineteen are ironclads:—Mediterranean Squadron: Lord Warden, Caledonia, Defence, Prince Consort. Channel Squadron: Northumberland, Warrior, Hercules, Monarch, Agincourt, Minotaur (the two latter detained by court-martial). First Reserve Squadron: Achilles, Black Prince, Hector, Valiant, Vanguard, Invincible, Repulse, Resistance, Penelope. Detached Squadron: Narcissus, Inconstant, Topaze, Immortalité, Volage, Cadmus, and despatch-vessel Helicon. Vice-Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean station, takes the command of the combined fleet, and will, during the cruise, use every opportunity of exercising it in manœuvres under sail and steam. The nine ironclad vessels of the reserve squadron were to join the Vice-Admiral and rest of the fleet on the 9th inst., twenty-two miles west of Ushant. A few days afterwards Rear-Admiral Beauchamp Seymour, with the detached squadron, will be directed to proceed to Portland, and from thence will sail on a cruise to the Baltic. The rest of the fleet will continue united on a more protracted cruise.

The following iron and armour-plated men-of-war are at the present time under construction for the Government in Her Majesty's dock-yards and by private contract:—The Fury, armour-plated turret-ship, 4 guns, 5,030 tons, and 1,000-horse power engines, building at Pembroke; the Blonde, iron steam-frigate, cased with wood, 26 guns, 4,039 tons, 1,000-horse power engines, building at Portsmouth; the Thunderer, armour-plated turret-ship, of 4 guns, 4,406 tons, and 800-horse power engines, building at Pembroke; the Rupert, ironclad ram, 4 guns, 3,159 tons, engines of 700-horse power, building at Chatham; the Gorgon, double-screw iron armour-plated turret-ship, 4 guns, 2,107 tons, and 250-horse power engines, building at Jarroir on-Tyne; the Raleigh, iron frigate sheathed with wood, 22 guns, 3,210 tons, and 800-horse power engines, building at Chatham Dock-yard; the Hecate and Hydra, double screw iron armour-plated turret-ships, of 4 guns, 2,107 tons, and engines of 250-horse power each, building at Poplar and Glasgow; the Frolic, Kestrel, Ready, and Rifeman, double screw composite gun-vessels, of 4 guns, 462 tons, and 100-horse power engines each, building at Chatham.

The new casemated fort at Garrison Point, Sheerness, which is being built for the defence of the River Medway, is rapidly approaching completion. The whole of the granite work was finished some time since, and is now sufficiently firm to allow the arming operations to be proceeded with. About half of the immense iron plates which are to protect the embrasures have already been fixed, and fourteen of the thirty-eight heavy rifled guns with which the fort is to be armed are mounted. These are 9-inch guns, weighing 12 tons each, and throwing projectiles of 250lb. weight with a force considered capable of penetrating any ordinary ironclad ship at ranges of about 1,000 yards. The fort is what sailors term a "two-decker," there being a double tier of guns, nineteen in each tier. It is in shape like the letter D, the round side being armed, and fronting the mouths of the Thames and Medway, and a considerable extent of the seaboard, while the straight part forms the gorge or entrance on the land side, and is unarmed.

His Netherlands Majesty's screw corvette Willem, 16 guns, Captain Toutenhoofd, arrived at Spithead on the 12th inst. from Batavia, bound for Nieu Diep, and exchanged the usual salutes on entering the roadstead with the flagship of the Port Admiral and Naval Commander-in-Chief. Captain Toutenhoofd, accompanied by the Chevalier Van Den Bergh, Netherlands Vice-Consul at Portsmouth, landed at Portsmouth immediately after the corvette's arrival, and made official calls upon Port Admiral Sir James Hope and Lieutenant-General Viscount Templetown. The Willem has since sailed for Nieu Diep.

A fine battalion of 600 men paraded a few days since in the park at Greenwich, under command of Major Richmond, and marched thence to Chelsea Barracks, there to be stationed during four days for organisation and drill. This is the first time that any body of the First Class Army Reserve has been called out for training. The uniform is a mixture, consisting of a neat scarlet patrol tunic, the Parisian cap, and black accoutrements.

LITERATURE.

The July number of the Phoenix commences with a note in which the editor states that he has reason to be satisfied with the progress of the past year; and on the completion of his first volume he proposes to make some improvements which, we think, will be appreciated by his subscribers. The new issue will contain a page or two monthly of a brief chronicle of events, and also tables of works, and other information, valuable to the student of oriental lore. Besides this, it is intended to reprint some rare books of limited size, such as the history of the Hei-ho family of Japan, the fables of Æsop in that language, from an unique copy printed in the Jesuit College of Amacuse in 1592, &c.

The number before us, which commences the new volume, contains an interesting variety of articles of the usual kind, by Professor Hoffmann, Messrs. Howarth, Carroll, Hodgson, and Alabaster, and Dr. Smith. The first volume of the Phoenix, just issued in very neat style, is a repertory of valuable information, of which it may be truly said that it cannot be found in any other collection.

NORTHERN CIRCUIT.

MORRISON V. UNIVERSAL MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

This was an action on a valued policy of marine insurance to recover £500 in respect of the chartered freight of the ship Cambria, on a voyage from Bahia to the South-West Pass (one of the mouths of the Mississippi) for orders, thence to a port in the Gulf of Mexico to load, and thence to Liverpool. The only pleas of the defendants were pleas of fraud and misrepresentation and concealment of material facts. The plaintiff, a merchant in Liverpool, trading under the name of Charles Morrison and Co., was the owner of the ship Cambria, which sailed from Bahia on the 18th of August, and in October the plaintiff began to get uneasy, not being insured either upon the vessel or freight. On Saturday, the 8th of October, therefore, he wrote and posted, before closing his office in the middle of the day (as usual with business men in Liverpool on Saturdays), an order to Messrs. Previté and Greig, his insurance brokers in London, to insure his ship for £5,000, and the freight for a like sum. He at the same time gave to his brokers all the information about the ship in his possession, stating that she sailed from Bahia in August, that he had not heard of her since, and that he had become a little uneasy, and enclosing the last letter from his captain (Captain Owen), of the 18th of August, and a copy of the charter-party. The letter contained this passage:—"Do it on the best terms in your power, as I do not like running the risk any longer. I am prepared to hand you a check for amount of premiums on or before 8th proximo. I suppose you will have to pay something like ten guineas per cent., but telegraph to me the rate." After posting this letter the plaintiff left Liverpool for his home, at a distance of some miles from Liverpool, where he was shown by one of his sons a paragraph in that day's Liverpool Mercury, which caused him considerable anxiety, and, in consequence, he went to business earlier than usual on Monday morning, and at once despatched the following telegram to Messrs. Previté and Greig, in London:—"Since writing, Saturday, paragraph in Mercury, 'Cambria (query Callao, query from New Orleans) aground North Breaker.' To-day's Mercury says, 'vessel reported yesterday to be Cambria is stated to be the Cameo, for New Orleans.' Can you find out at Lloyd's? Let me know by wire before acting." It appeared that the North Breaker is a rock near Galveston, a port in the Gulf of Mexico. The answer which the plaintiff received from his brokers by telegraph the same day was:—"Vessel on North Breaker appears to be Cameo, not Cambria," to which he at once replied, "Your telegram received, and a great relief. Nevertheless, have been so frightened that wish insurance done on best terms." To this he received the reply:—" Cambria. Same done £1,350 freight, six guineas. Hull refused; Bremen only chance." The plaintiff sent a further telegram to his brokers as follows:—"Thanks for all done. Get all done on freight you can. Send hull to Bremen. Do not stick at rate." And received a letter from them stating:—"Now £3,150 at six guineas, and £500 at eight guineas. Underwriters do not much care about risk, for in any case she must be in bad weather in the Gulf, and, moreover, there has been some very bad weather lately, and she may just catch it." On the 12th the brokers telegraphed:—"Done £500 more on freight, at eight guineas. Here cannot do more. Underwriters fear hurricane of the 17th and 18th of September." This last was the particular insurance of £500 with the defendants which was sought to be recovered in this action. It appeared that Mr. Previté, who was the gentleman who actually effected it, went to the defendants' office and presented the risk to Mr. Pritchett, the sub-underwriter there. He told him (as was the case) that Mr. Fisk, the defendants' principal underwriter, had given him to understand that he would do the risk at eight guineas, and Mr. Pritchett then wrote it at that premium. Mr. Previté then went to Lloyd's, and turning to the "Loss Book," found the entry above mentioned, and a few minutes later Mr. Pritchett followed him into Lloyd's and saw the entry also. The latter thereupon said, "That must be your ship;" but Mr. Previté stated his impression to the contrary, saying, "We have known of that for some days, and I don't think anything of it;" and Mr. Pritchett made no further objection and appeared satisfied. The stamped policy was afterwards issued, dated October 12. On the 19th notice of the loss of the Cambria, without a "query" or reserve, was posted at Lloyd's and subsequently all the underwriters refused to receive premiums or to pay upon this risk. There was a record at the Post-office (which about that time first assumed the control of the telegraphic department) of a telegram having been sent out at half-past five on the 7th of October, "From Owen to Charles Morrison and Co., Liverpool," announcing "Ship Cambria ashore near here; full of water, probably lost." The plaintiff, however, was prepared positively to swear that he never received that telegram, and this might be accounted for, since there were more than one firm of the name of Morrison in Liverpool, and by the fact that the Post-office had only recently assumed the control of the telegraphic business, and that it was well known that numerous mistakes had occurred at that time. This case was fully supported by evidence, and the plaintiff himself swore most positively and unreservedly that he never received the telegram in question, and knew nothing more of the fate of the vessel than had been communicated to his brokers, and through them to the defendants' underwriters.

The evidence called for the defendants consisted of officials from the Post-office, tracing the telegram. The telegraph boy, whose duty it was to deliver it, said that he was well acquainted with the plaintiffs' office, but could not recollect delivering this, or, indeed, any telegram at any time at that office. He said that if he had found the outer doors of the Court shut, or even the door of the plaintiff's office shut, inasmuch as it had not a safe letter-box attached to it, he would have taken the message back and delivered it again at a different hour, according to orders he received, delivering also in the meantime a memorandum that a telegram had arrived, and was waiting, if ordered to do so by his superior in the Post-office. He recollected, however, nothing of this kind occurring. The contention on the part of the defendants was, that not only was there fraud on the part of the plaintiff with reference to the receipt by him of the private telegram from his own captain, but there was concealment of material facts in the omission on the part of Mr. Previté to communicate to Mr. Pritchett the notices which had appeared in the Liverpool Mercury and the contents of the captain's letter of the 18th of August, forwarded to him by the plaintiff. Upon the point of fraud the telegram had been traced almost to the plaintiff's own door, and it was impossible not to suppose that it was the fact of his having it in his own pocket which set him upon endeavouring with such sudden anxiety to insure a sum of £10,000 upon his ship and freight at premiums of the rates of which he appeared to be regardless.

The jury stated that there was no chance of their agreeing upon the main question of fraud, and they were discharged without delivering a verdict.

THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY.

The Berlin National Zeitung publishes an article of much interest on the International Society, from which it appears that the Association is organised on the model of the Jesuit Order, in a strictly despotic fashion. During the London Exhibition in 1862 the refugees of all countries, and the workmen who flocked to London from all parts, conceived the idea of founding an association composed of artisans without distinction of nationality. Two years afterwards, in 1864, the society was constituted; the plan is said to be work of Karl Marx, who is gifted with a special talent for organisation. The fundamental idea of the society is:—That workmen shall entirely ignore political and religious questions, and pursue one single and common interest—the struggle against capital. Under the Monarchy as under the Republic, in Germany as in France, the artisans are united by the community of interests. The International is the form in which the working classes throughout the civilised world are to organise themselves and fight the great battle of emancipation. For the Jesuit Order the different countries and States are only so many provinces of their society; in the eyes of the International they form so many sections. There is an English, an American, a Russian, a French, a Belgian, an Italian, a Spanish, a Dutch, and a German section; in the last are included Austria and Switzerland. Under the name of "Congress," a parliament of the working classes assembles periodically, and peremptorily decides all questions that concern the society as a whole; this parliament possesses legislative powers, and in all disputes its verdict is final. Coexistent with, and appointed by it, is a central committee, or high international council, which forms a centre for the various subdivisions and is at the same time the managing committee of the association. This council, to which all correspondence and all reports concerning the society are addressed, draws up the programmes to be submitted to the Congress and proposes resolutions; it orders strikes, sustains them with the resources of the association, revokes them, and is, in short, the very soul of the organism, for everything is set in motion in the Congress by its members or delegates. Subordinate to these general councils are the provincial councils, which are for the sections of the society what the central committee is for the whole association, and form a connecting link between these sections and the supreme council. The latter has its seat in London (for no continental State would tolerate a body of men who have systematised civil war), and is mainly composed of Englishmen and Germans.

With regard to its pecuniary resources, the association claims to have constantly two millions of thalers at its disposal, and pretends that it numbers 800,000 members in France; whilst a document of the ex-Imperial French Government (laid before the Correctional Tribunal on the 22nd June, 1870) gave the number of the French members as only 433,785. In Belgium the International claims 200,000 members, in Switzerland 60,000, in Italy 100,000, in Germany 300,000, and in Spain 40,000. In England the association is relatively weak, for in Great Britain it lays claim to no more than 80,000 adherents.

On several occasions the world has already seen the International at work; in its assemblies it reminds us of a madhouse; in the strikes begun by its command it reveals its tyrannical character by tearing from the industrial workman his employment by brute force; in its ephemeral successes—witness the Paris Commune—it has shown us, by a long catalogue of crimes, of what it would be capable if eventually triumphant.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 16.

We are in the midst of the dog-days, a tropical heat prevails, and everyone to whom it is possible has left the towns to spend these very hot days in the country. Politics have come to a standstill, and the only matter discussed by the papers is whether Parliament ought not to be convoked in order to discuss the Contagious Diseases Act, which is being examined by the Council of State. The majority of the public are of opinion that this is strictly necessary, because of the fear which is entertained that the cholera, which has actually entered North Germany, will reach us. It seems impossible for our local council to apply such measures as should tend to prevent an epidemic. For instance, the annual fair is permitted to be held here, notwithstanding that it has been forbidden in almost every other place throughout the country, on the ground that the fairs greatly promote the spreading of contagious diseases.

In the Hague an exhibition has been held of objects made by workmen, and I am glad to state that a large number of articles manufactured by Javanese, were exhibited, and that several prizes were awarded to them. A meeting has been held of members of the Society for Promoting Dutch Industry. In the long list of matters which were discussed appeared the revival of the East India tariff. The meeting protested most energetically against the project of the Minister to levy an export duty of three per cent. The imposition of this duty upon sugar was especially objected to, on the grounds that it is now most difficult for colonial produce to compete with the beetroot sugar, which is manufactured every year on an increasing scale in Europe. A resolution was carried that it was necessary to abolish the differential duties, if not at once then gradually.

The Minister of the War Department has at last taken a first step towards the reorganisation of the army. The "shako" is to be replaced by the French képi. This is certainly a good beginning, but it is still a mystery what will be proposed with the view to place our means of defence in a satisfactory position. The Bill with reference to our fortresses is not yet laid before the Council of State, notwithstanding that the new Session will be opened within a month, and the reorganisation of our army will be fixed, it seems, by Royal decree, notwithstanding the Liberals generally consider that this should be done by the authority of the States General.

The Government will shortly publish a most important report of the Netherlands India engineer, Mr. W. de Greve, about the coal mines in the several parts of the East India Archipelago.

An address, underwritten by 104 of our principal trading houses, has been forwarded to our Chamber of Commerce, for the purpose of urging the consideration of the system adopted by steamship owners, who print their bills of lading with clauses which practically annul their liability.

Early next month two steamers belonging to the Company Nederland, the Shiraz and the Gouverneur Generaal Myer, will leave Texel for Java, via the Suez Canal. The Prins van Oranje, we hear by telegraph, has arrived safely at Port Said.

H.M. has conferred the knighthood of the Netherlands Lion on the Regent of Bandong raders adhipati Wira Nata Koesoema.

I regret that I have to record the deaths of Mr. A. F. Jongstra, an ex-member of the Second Chamber of the States General, and of Dr. H. van Beek Vollenhoven, president of the First Chamber of States General.

The fears which were entertained about the fate of the vessel Haek van Holland have happily been unfounded. By telegraph we hear that she has arrived at Batavia.

In the last days of this month the Zind Holland will start for Java with troops to reinforce our East India Army.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

There is no alteration whatever to report in the general feature of our market for Colonial Produce, which continues to exhibit but little activity, but the forbearance of holders to press sales causes prices to be in general well supported. The most important occurrence on record, by which the attention on the part of the trade has been mainly engrossed, has been the examination of the samples of the Coffees to be put up at the Trading Company's public sale, to be held to-day.

COFFEE.—In the face of the Trading Company's public sale the article continues to be thought well of. The sales made from first hands were closed at very full prices, and the same embrace 1,975 b. Java, ex Caprera, 416 b. do., ex Aristos, 1,215 b. do., ex Aristos, 540 b. Padang Paré paré, ex Hollandia, 2,896 b. Java, ex Henriette Adriana.

SUGAR remains in a very quiet position, and prices are but nominally supported.

TEA.—Without anything doing; prices firm.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—Sales have been closed by private tender of 267 bs. headmark FA/Kedirie, 388 bs. PA/Malang, 250 bs. NT/Krossok, 44 bs. J. 2,250 bs. Djambean, 880 bs. Kotta, 2,029 bs. BVL and R, 1,531 bs. Tanl/Blitar, 1,457 bs. GBM.

RICE offers nothing of moment to report, beyond a sale closed of 386 bs. Java, ex Nederland. This article is under the influence of the crops, which the very hot weather of the last few days has pushed to maturity, so that the harvest is already commenced in this country. The produce is very satisfactory, and of an excellent quality.

RATTANS.—No sales to report.

SPICES.—Without anything doing, in anticipation of the coming annual public sale for account of the Netherlands Trading Company, consisting of 1,010 casks Nutmegs, 560 casks Maca, 180 casks Cloves. Until the 1st August next year no further quantities of this article will be offered for sale by the Company. Notwithstanding it has been confirmed by the Java papers that the whole crop on Banda is destroyed, this has had no further influence on our market.

TIN.—There is hardly any demand, and only small sales of Banca are to be reported at the late price of £80½ for usual prompt.

HIDES.—Continue to meet ready buyers. Some parcels ex Noach I., Coleroon, Maria and Elisabeth, and Nation's Hope were realised.

INDIGO.—A good demand continues to prevail for the fine sorts of Java, but for want of stock no sales are to be reported. The late arrivals are in course of being sampled and examined.

DRUGS.—The business doing in the various articles under this head remains upon the whole unimportant, but a pretty large parcel of Java Vanilla 22 chests (about 575 kilos) has made its appearance in the market, and immediately found buyers at a full price.

COTTON.—A dull tone pervades the market, and even at easier prices transactions have been on a limited scale. The decline reached 1c. We quote American low middling 44½c. to 45½c., middling 46c. to 47c., strict middling 47c. to 48c., fair Oomrawutte spot 39c.

ARRACK.—Continues to meet ready buyers. A parcel of 48/1 and 48/2 casks, ex Coleroon, has changed hands.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Aug. 3, at Brouwershaven, from Rangoon, Vigillate; 5, at Flushing, from Akyab, E. Ostle; 5, at Texel, from Java, Vrede; 8, at Texel, from Batavia, Professor van der Boon Mesch, Bato; 14, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Samhiri.

TRAVEL IN SWITZERLAND.

There is no part of Europe in which the Anglo-Saxon can so satisfactorily spend his time and money as in Switzerland. The great charm and speciality of the country is, of course, the combination of mountain and lake, with its impenetrable snow and ice. After this the greatest essential is the hotel. No scenery, however beautiful, could be enjoyed without a thoroughly satisfactory hotel. Of the many fine hotels on the lakes of Geneva and Lucerne the last one, opened at the head of the lake of Geneva, is the Grand Hotel at Vevey. This establishment has a beautiful site, standing in its own grounds, which are tastefully laid out, and supplied with seats and tables. It has some of the finest salons and apartments, at most moderate rates; a band plays morning and evening, and the management of the hotel is well-nigh perfect. It accommodates about 150 persons, and is, on the whole, a most charming house. The cost, we believe, was 2,500,000 francs. On the lake of Lucerne the last hotel opened is the National. This house accommodates about 200 persons, and is now on its second season. The construction of the house and all its fittings are on the most improved principles; every known invention for the management of the hotel is introduced, and almost every part of the house is connected with tubes for the conveyance of orders. The apartments for the use of visitors consist of a large salle à manger, a very fine salon, a ladies' salon, smoking and billiard rooms, and every other possible convenience. The apartments, considering the style, are remarkably cheap; large rooms, with double beds, most handsomely furnished—indeed, fit for any prince—are only six to eight francs. This is in most agreeable contrast to the hotels in Paris, and is found generally throughout Switzerland. The apartments are simply beautiful, and with their polished floors in summer so much cooler and better than the everlasting carpet "all the year round." Last, but not the least, of the new inventions is the "lift," an immense boon, for all such hotels must have their third, fourth, and fifth étage to toil up, which, when arriving from a journey is to a lady the last straw. The discipline maintained amongst the servants, and the general comfort obtained by all visitors to the National Hotel at Lucerne, is highly creditable to the manager, M. Fancherre, and the proprietors, Messrs. Segesser Freres.

A NUMBER of time-expired men and convalescent troops have arrived at Gravesend, from China, in the screw steamer Hector. The troops, who belonged to the 1st battalion of the 10th Regiment, and the 75th Regiment, were under the command of Lieut. A. R. D. Tosowill, 75th Regiment, and in medical charge of Mr. F. F. Hill, M.D., civil surgeon.

THE great tunnel under Mont Cenis, which is to be opened on the 15th proximo, will then have been completed three months before the time stipulated in the contract—viz., December, 1871. The works were commenced in 1857, and have thus been fourteen years in hand. The rate of progress has been about three yards per day. On the French side there is still part of the connecting line—about six miles in length—incomplete, and this will not be ready until a month after the opening.

WE are glad to learn that at the meeting of the Royal Humane Society, the silver medallion of the society was unanimously voted to Lieut. W. H. S. Browne, of Her Majesty's ship Ocean, for having saved the life of Lieut. L. Eyde, R.M.L.I., on the night of the 31st March last, at Hong Kong.

THE CLOSING SESSION AND THE FAR EAST.

WE regret to find that our anticipations are realised, and that, as far as the Ministry are concerned, the year of grace 1871 must be reckoned as an annus non. Our readers and ourselves—the merchants who silently contribute so much by their enterprise in the Far East to the prosperity of the manufacturers and the working classes of the mother country—the missionaries who diffuse the truth among peoples overrun with prejudice and overawed by Power—and our brethren of the press, whom we proudly recognise everywhere in the Far East as the pioneers of information, and the architects or developers of public opinion, companions "fit though few" for the leviathan organs of Printing-house-square and Fleet-street—all have especial cause of complaint at the disregard, not only of their recommendations, but of their complaints, by the present Government. In no year within our recollection have so many, or so important, questions arisen, involving the interests, the property—nay, the lives—of our countrymen in the Far East, as well as the maintenance of our Treaties and the protection of our trade there. Almost from week to week questions of the most pressing importance have been urged upon the Foreign Secretary and his subordinates; yet, now the Session is virtually over, we defy the most ardent admirers of the Ministry to deny that the duty of the English Government to its great dependencies in the East has been virtually ignored and systematically put out of sight. Mr. GLADSTONE seems to care no more for popular opinion, or the welfare of his countrymen, in China than in Greenwich. The Pythagorean doctrine of imperative silence has left its mark on the Government's majority of the misceled representatives of the country. There have been no open questions; the supporters of the Government have been dragged through the mud by the hand of Power, condemned to silence under the perpetual threat of dissolution, and compelled either to vote against their avowed opinions, or to absent themselves from divisions, leaving them to settle their pledges with their constituents in the best way they may. The Ministry having thus taken their stand on one side, it becomes the constituencies to take their ground on the other, and to reject all candidates holding office under them, who are manifestly unfit for the offices they fill, or ready to sacrifice the interests confided to them to the clamour of petty disputes about home policy—Licensing Bills, Ballot Bills, and Army Bills—not one of which can by any possibility be strained into having the slightest bearing on the interests or welfare of the great mercantile class in our dependencies abroad, which contributes by its imports and its exports, by its demand and supply, more than all the others put together to the true greatness of Great Britain. If the holders of the great offices in the Foreign, the Indian, and the Colonial Secretariats are not free agents, they are not fit to represent any constituency. If they were unseated at the next election, no doubt some very excellent men would be excluded from Parliament; but the injury which would arise from their exclusion would be incomparably less than that which must necessarily arise from allowing the Minister of the day openly to dictate how the representative of any constituency shall vote, and, what is even more important, whether the special administrator of any Colonial interests shall speak out, or hold his tongue.

The present session closes in dead silence so far as the Far East is concerned. The Chinese Circular, the Maloo tea adulteration scandal, the unjust rate of postage, the want of a harbour at Galle, the iniquities of the coolie traffic, the Tientsin Massacre, and the presence of CHUNG HOW—all these important questions have been pooh-poohed, postponed, ignored, or got rid of by some side-wind. We cannot but express the great obligations which the British communities of the Far East owe to the perseverance of such men as Earl CARNARVON, Mr. MAGNIAC, Mr. WHITE, Mr. MACFIE, and others, who have not been daunted by the insouciance of the Government from pressing their inquiries on the attention of Parliament. In the closing session China and India, cum multis aliis, have been completely ignored for the sake of discussing at wearisome length questions which can affect interests no larger than those of the district of Cockaigne. And until the electors and the elected stand on the well-known footing of principal and agent, the interest of the former will never, we believe, be properly attended to. It will always be liable to be sacrificed to the vanity or love of place of the representative.

RUMOURED ABANDONMENT OF COCHIN CHINA.

NOTWITHSTANDING some circumstances which seem to give colour to the rumour which has now been revived, we cannot believe that the French Government will ever resolve on withdrawing from Cochin China. It would be a suicidal act to do so. Not only are the mineral resources of the country almost unexplored, and its agriculture and manufactures comparatively undeveloped, but whatever has from time to time been added to our stock of information and experience on these points has been highly encouraging. By all recent accounts the natives are becoming more friendly to foreigners every day, and the great number of excellent harbours and valuable products would seem certain to attract an ever-increasing foreign trade. It is possible that the French possessions may not at present "pay" in that narrow sense of the word which regards only the time-being, but the experiment has not yet had a fair trial. The feeble attempts made by some European nations to establish a regular trade were frustrated by the long internal wars of the eighteenth century, and the commerce of Cochin China was limited to its intercourse with China. Since the establishment of Singapore, however, the case is altered, and by communication with Bangkok another channel of commerce was opened up, which only requires a little time and energy to develop. To withdraw from such a country at the present moment would be to cast away an unknown advantage which can never be regained without greater difficulty than before. The effect of such a withdrawal would, moreover, be prejudicial to the prestige of European nations in the East, as disturbing the network of commerce, and giving the anti-foreign party an excuse for depreciating us.

THE AMERICANS IN JAPAN.

It is evident from a paragraph which we find in a New York journal that our American cousins continue fully alive to the importance of securing a more important standing in the Far East than they now hold. The expedition to Korea will doubtless result eventually in the conclusion of a commercial treaty with that country, in which the American merchants will be insured advantages beyond those granted to other foreigners, and, as regards Japan, should the existing treaty be revised in accordance with the wishes of the United States Government, and the fortnightly service of the Pacific Mail Line, which has been so long in contemplation, be established, it is evident that a considerable impetus will be given to American commerce with that country. The following is the extract referred to:—

The United States Minister in Japan has given notice to the Minister of Foreign Affairs at Yedo of the desire of our Government for a revision of the existing treaty between the two countries. The treaty expires by limitation in 1872, and a year's notice is required of any purpose to renew or revise it. It is understood that an effort will be made by our Minister to have all the ports of Japan opened to our commerce, and from the friendly relations existing between the two Governments, there is a fair prospect that the request will be granted. Under the present treaty stipulation, our commerce suffers from unequal competition with Great Britain. We are the largest consumers of the Teas of Japan, but as a very considerable portion of the trade in that article is in the hands of foreign houses, the balance is much against us. By opening the other ports, we should doubtless increase our export trade with Japan, while our purchases could be made directly, instead of paying toll to a commercial rival, as at present.

EDWARD BALDWIN MALET, Esq., C.B., now a Second Secretary in the Diplomatic Service, has been appointed Secretary to Her MAJESTY'S Legation in China.

THE RISE AND FALL OF THE YANGTSE RIVER.

At the recent session of the British Association at Edinburgh in the Geographical section, Mr. Samuel Mossman read a paper on the "Inundation and Subsidence of the Yangtze River." This he compared generally to the annual flooding of the Nile, only of a greater extent and more devastating in its effects during great floods. These depend upon the rainfall from the clouds caused by the south-west monsoon rising in the Indian Ocean, and the melting of snow on the elevated lands of Tibet near its source. The river begins to rise at Hankow in May, and reaches its highest point variously from about the end of July until the middle of August; and the floods range from thirty-five feet to fifty feet above low water mark, while the most frequent rise is about forty feet, when no great danger is apprehended from the inundation of its banks. Mr. Mossman described the aspect of the country at this time, when he ascended the Yangtze in one of the American side-wheel steamers that ply between Shanghai and Hankow, a distance of 688 statute miles, penetrating thus far into the interior of China, surrounded by all the comforts of a first-class hotel. It was not until the boat passed Nanking that the inundation of the river banks assumed its magnitude, which increased at every mile on the route. In some of the long reaches the wide-spreading flood took away the ordinary aspect of river landscape, and gave to it the appearance of lake scenery, and in some it bounded the horizon, so that it required no stretch of imagination to suppose that the boat was sailing towards the sea. This was rendered more real by seeing numbers of the Chinese boats scudding over the flood, where, during subsidence, the husbandman may be seen tilling the soil, or buffalo grazing on the plain. Then, when the wind was adverse, the river banks could be traced where strings of boatmen appeared up to their waists in water, tracking their junks against the stream. Again, narrow strips of land would appear not more than a foot or two above the flood, whereon the industrious peasantry had built their houses. Should it rise above its ordinary level at any time these frail tenements are swept away, and the inhabitants have to escape for their lives in boats, or perish in the flood. A catastrophe of this kind happened in 1850, when, it is stated, the town of Hankow was swept away, excepting one solitary building to show where it once stood. However, as these great floods—Ta shuui—occur only at intervals of eighteen or twenty years, the inhabitants returned after the subsidence of the waters, and in a few years the town was rebuilt larger than before. This has been since increased by the establishment of a British settlement on the river bank eastward of the native town. In acceding to the treaty stipulations, it has been said that the Chinese authorities hoped that some day a great flood would come and sweep the intruding foreigners and their houses into the river. This is no idle prediction. In July, 1869, the flood rose rapidly above its usual level, and in twenty-four hours inundated the settlement and native town from five to ten feet deep. The streets were turned into temporary canals, and the only mode of communication was by boats. The lower parts of the warehouses were flooded and much property destroyed, while many of the native tenements collapsed. From careful observation the river rose 51½ feet above its previous low water mark; and it was calculated that if it had risen four or five feet higher in all probability Hankow would have been swept away as in 1850. Hence the residents who have purchased ground and erected costly buildings have a just cause of complaint against the local British authorities for selecting this dangerous site for a settlement, while they might have chosen one more eligible on the opposite side of the Han River, where Hanyang Hill stands high above the greatest floods. To what extent the inundation reaches has not been ascertained, but at an approximate estimate it has been computed at 10,000 square miles below Hankow, ranging from four to six feet deep, and leaving a detritus on the submerged lands of two or three inches. The amount of sediment carried in situ by the Yangtze has formed the chief portion of the great eastern plain of China, and is gradually extending beyond Shanghai, which, as its name denotes, was once "upon the sea," from which it is now some twenty miles distant. Moreover, the channels of the streams flowing through the delta are gradually filling up, and it is apprehended that the Wong-poo, which forms the anchorage of Shanghai, may at no distant date become so narrow and shallow that vessels of large tonnage will not reach the settlement in safety if deeply laden. Mr. Mossman illustrated this part of his paper by exhibiting a large plan of the country around Shanghai. This was the original plan of the survey made by Colonel Gordon, R.E., and C.B., assisted by other officers of the Royal Engineers. It is ten feet square, and beautifully executed on silk by a Chinese draughtsman, with the names of the streams, lakes, hills, and towns in native characters. The members of the Association present looked with much interest upon this specimen of Chinese draughtsmanship.

In connection with the subsidence of the Yangtze, Mr. Mossman mentioned a curious atmospheric phenomenon which he witnessed at Shanghai. At the end of March, when the river had nearly reached low water mark, there passed over the settlement from west to east what appeared to be a dense mist obscuring the sun by day and the stars at night. All this time there fell what appeared to be fine dust of an ash-grey colour, so light that it floated in the air like the spores of the fern-brake. Outside in the streets it swept along like a very light shower of snow, covering one's clothes and hair; flying up the nostrils, and causing the eyelids of many to smart and become inflamed. Inside the houses it penetrated everywhere, settling down on the furniture, not only like ordinary dust, but clinging to the under parts of tables and chairs. This strange phenomenon continued all next day and night, and for a quarter of an hour in the afternoon it was so dark that it was difficult to read or write. Vessels arriving at Woosung were reported to have met with it from fifty to sixty miles along the coast, and as far as a hundred and fifty miles at sea, where it fell on the rigging, sails, and deck so as to be easily gathered. The residents who had witnessed this before called it a "dust storm," and supposed it to be light sand blown from the plains in the interior. Mr. Mossman, however, on examining the particles, and consulting the Chinese Repository, found that it was not mineral dust at all, but dried remains of minute infusoria and confervee—the former being animalcules of various forms, and the latter aquatic plants, or hair-weed, growing in fresh water. These are in all probability generated in the flood-waters of the Yangtze and their exuvie left on the land after subsidence. Then, if the winter and spring be dry, and the electric state of the atmosphere be favourable, they rise into the air, and are wafted away towards the sea, where they fall by increased density from humidity. As far as it was possible to calculate, the width of this organic cloud was not less than sixty miles, its depth one thousand feet, and its average rate of progress ten miles an hour.
